Mr. Seeleʼs called up Mr. Currier's resolution memorializing congress for the submission of a constitutional amendment allowing the election of president and vice president of the United States by a direct vote of the people, and moved that it be indefinitely postponed. It was defeated by a vote of 41 yeas to 51 nays. The resolution was then discussed and passed.

Friday, Jan. 23.

SENATE.

Senator E. R. Smith offered a resolution providing that each senator should be allowed $10 for postage. There was no discussion of the resolution, strange to say, and upon roll call the vote stood 23 in favor and 19 against the appropriation.

Senator Sanborn sent to the secretary's desk a communication from B. F. Irvine stating that he had taken care of the legislative mail for a week before a postmaster had been elected in either house, and asking that he be compensated for such services. Senator Leavitt gave notice of debate.

Senator Cramer brought up the question of furnishing the members with newspapers by a resolution allowing each senator 20 cents per day for such purpose, but it was defeated.

The committee on federal relations reported favorably upon the joint resolution urging congress to pass the Payne bill for the construction of a ship canal in New York around the Falls of Niagara. The report was adopted and the resolution passed.

Senator March's bill amending the state banking law decreases the amount of capital required for state banks.

Senator Lommen's measure anent the railroad commission provides that when they make rates for the railroad companies such rates must be put into effect in ten days.

HOUSE.

Mr. McAllister of Hennepin introduced an exceedingly lengthy joint resolution in opposition to the Lodge election bill now before congress and instructing the Minnesota congressmen and senators to oppose its passage. Mr. Stone of Ramsey gave notice of debate.

After a session lasting close upon four hours the house last night, by a straight party vote, decided the Dunn-Price election case in favor of the Democrat—Mr. Price—by a vote of 64 to 42.

After the speaker had announced that Mr. Price would retain his seat, the house adjourned until 2 o'clock on Monday.

Doubting a Strong Man.

On the day preceding the arrival of circus at a certain good-sized town in Ohio, a "strong man," who had a week's lay-off from the museum circuit, dropped down on a visit to some relatives. There was no discount on him as "a marvel of strength," and the wood-cut which pictured him throwing a bull over a six-rail fence was not much of an exaggeration. As soon as it was discovered that he had no particular scruples against the flowing bowl, the boys set out to have a little fun. Early in the forenoon of circus day an alleged circus man waited on "the great western giant," and intimated that he was a fraud from away back, and that his marvelous feats were tricks and delusions. This had the effect we hoped for, and four or five glasses of beer did the rest.

Soon after noon the strong man sailed down to the circus grounds to demand an apology. The people had begun buying tickets, and the circus officials were too busy to talk. The way they ignored his presence made the strong man madder than ever, and he started for the entrance. The two men stationed there tried to prevent his ingress, but he threw one into a farmer's wagon and the other over a lemonade stand, and entered the tent. Six of the circus men now rallied on the center, but the struggle didn't last two minutes. He flung them alow and aloft as if playing with the clubs.

"Hey, R-u-b-e!" sounded the tocsin, and every single man connected with the circus rallied in response. As they came with clubs, neck-yokes and wagon-stakes the strong man looked about for some weapon. There was a long-tailed bull-dog lying under the sacred cow's cage, and he grabbed him by the tail and widened the circle and finally broke through it, smashing every man who opposed him. When clear of the circle he pushed a baby elephant off her legs, upset a a candy wagon, tore down a section of forty feet long, and appeared outside to exclaim:

"All fraud and delusion, is it? Havn't any moral right to my title, Well mebe I havn't but I guess this crowd won't dispute it!"

And he pulled the ticket wagon over on its beam ends, flung a bale of hay into a side show, and took the middle of the road tot he hotel.—N.Y.

New York's Thirteen Club.

New York has a club that exists for the purpose of combating the "thirteen" superstition. It started with thirteen members, who fled in the face of Providence by sitting down together to dine. The club now has 13,000 members, and the peculiar part of it is their death rate is no larger, and, possibly, smaller than is that of other clubs. At their dinners they have 13 courses, with 13 different wines. There are always 13 seated at each table, and the dinner always commences at 8:13 P. M. The committee on arrangement, entertainment committee and reception committee each number 13. The dues are 13 cents a month. The wine list for the last dinner, given December 13, is printed on black cardboard, in the shape of a coffin lid, in which there are 13 gold nails. One side tells you in the most reckless manner that death is saluted—though it is tamed down a little by being in Latin—and the other side has the name of the wines, headed with a gold crown skull, overshadowed by an incredulous, astonished owl. They defy death, and then have the courage to stand up and ridicule the superstition in their responses to sarcastic toasts. They have several dinners through the year, and the last was the 13th.—From the Chicago Herald.

Circumlocution.

The Arabs have no "hello!" in their language. The nearest they come to it is to throw a stone and hit a man in the back, and then ask him as he turns around: "Does it please Heaven to give you good health this morning?"—From the Detroit Free Press.

Prevention
is better than cure and people who are subject to rheumatism, can prevent attacks by keeping the blood pure and free from the acid which causes the disease. This suggests the use of Hood's Sarsaparilla, unquestionably the best blood purifier, and which has been used with great success for this very purpose by many people.
Hood's Sarsaparilla has also cured innumerable cases of rheumatism of the severest sort, by its powerful effect in neutralizing acidity of the blood, and in enabling the kidneys and liver to properly remove the waste of the system. Try it.

One Wife's Thanksgiving.

"I have lost $80,000 in the recent slump in stocks," said a New Yorker whose home life has been unexceptionable as his modest public career has been above reproach, "and I am practically left without capital. I will have to begin the world again at 45 no better off than when I started at 20. For a long time I hesitated about breaking the news of my financial ruin to my wife. This is the plan I hit on: I took her to dinner at Delmonico's the night before Thanksgiving. Then I took her to the theater. Our Thanksgiving dinner was a dainty one, and when it was over I looked around at the dining room I am unable longer to use, and at the dear home I shall have to move out of, it cost me a struggle; but I told her all. If I had any doubts as to how she would receive the news they were at once dissipated. Some wives are worth many fortunes."—New York World.

Mr. Childs' Passion for Clocks.

George W. Childs, the journalist, has the largest collection of clocks in the world. His friends say he is perfectly wild on the subject of clocks. During last year he added over 400 to the collection, making the entire number in his collection something like 2,000, which are kept in a room specially built for their reception.—St. Louis Republic.

A Fact.

From an interview, N. Y. World.

In an interview with a leading drug-house the N. Y. World, Nov. 9, 1890, gives the following comment on the proprietors of reliable patent medicines:

"He is a specialist, and should know more of the disease he actually treats than the ordinary physician; for while the latter may come across say fifty cases in a year of the particular disease which his medicine combats, its manufacturer investigates thousands. Don't you suppose his prescription, which you buy ready made up for 50 cents, is likely to do more good than that of the ordinary physician, who charges you anywhere from $2 to $10 for giving it, and leaves you to pay the cost of having it prepared?

"The patent medicine man, too, usually has the good sense to confine himself to ordinary, every-day diseases. He leaves to the physician cases in which there is immediate danger to life, such as violent fevers. He does this because, in the treatment of such cases, there are other elements of importance besides medicine, such as proper diet, good nursing, a knowledge of the patient's strength and so on. Where there is no absolute danger to life, where the disease is one which some physician has already determined, the patent medicine maker says fearlessly: 'I have a preparation which is better than any other known and which will cure you.' In nine cases out of ten his statement is true."

This is absolutely true as regards the great remedy for pain, St. Jacobs Oil. It can assert without fear of contradiction, that it is a prompt and permanent cure of pain. It can show proofs of cures of chronic cases of 20, 30 and 40 years' standing. In truth it rarely ever fails if used according to directions, and a large proportion of cures is made by half the contents of a single bottle. It is therefore the best.

The man who can't sing and has a baby is usually made to sing.

"German Syrup"
A Cough and Croup Medicine.
For children a medicine should be absolutely reliable. A mother must be able to pin her faith to it as to her Bible. It must contain nothing violent, uncertain, or dangerous. It must be standard in material and manufacture. It must be plain and simple to administer; easy and pleasant to take. The child must like it. It must be prompt in action, giving immediate relief, as childrens' troubles come quick, grow fast, and end fatally or otherwise in a very short time. It must not only relieve quick but bring them around quick, as children chafe and fret and spoil their constitutions under long confinement. It must do its work in moderate doses. A large quantity of medicine in a child is not desirable. It must not interfere with the child's spirits, appetite or general health. These things suit old as well as young folks, and make Boschee's German Syrup the favorite family medicine. ①

EVENTS OF A WEEK.

Flashed by the Wires of the Telegraph Condensed and Classified for Convenience of Readers.

Washington, Foreign, Accidental, Personal, Criminal and Other News of Importance.

WASHINGTON.

When the new administration took charge of the general land office at Austin, Tex., the accounts of the receiver of the office, Hon. O. H. Hollingsworth, were found short about $12,000.

The president sent to the senate a letter from Secretary Noble recommending favorable consideration of the bill appropriating $187,038 to compensate the Crow Creek Indians of South Dakota for loss sustained by them in receiving less land per capital in their diminished reservation than is received by Indians occupying other diminished reservations under the act of March 2, 1889.

PERSONAL.

In the legislature of Nevada Senator John P. Jones was re-elected United States senator for the fourth time, receiving 51 votes out of 60.

John Kressner, an Omaha pattern maker has just received word that he will in a few months be the possessor of £100,000. The money is his share of an estate of $1,000,000 that has been in chancery in the English courts.

The seat of Hon. John James Ingalls will be occupied by a new member, William Alfred Peffer, of the Farmers' Alliance, who, in the joint session of the two branches of the Kansas legislature, will be formally declared elected to succeed the senior Kansas senator.

CASUALTIES.

A collision occurred on the Union Pacific near Honeyville, Utah, between a freight and work train. About twenty Italians were seriously injured.

At Indianapolis a dummy and coach on a street car line was dumped into a ditch near the city limits. The eighteen passengers were badly shaken up and three seriously injured.

Rev. J. Settee, missionary among the Indian tribes around Lake Winnipeg and Manitoba, writes that camps of Indians hunting on the east side of Lake Winnipeg, not very far from Blood Vein river, near Dog Head, were visited by a band of wolves, about 100 in number. They attacked the camps and killed many Indians and devoured them. One Indian cudgeled and killed twenty wolves, another Indian climbed up a tree with his gun and shot down twenty. One got upon a stage which was not very high and the wolves got him down and devoured him. There is a great panic among the Indians in that quarter. The Indians say that there are no deer, consequently the wolves are mad with hunger.

WICKEDNESSES.

A member of the South Dakota legislature asserts that he was offered $1,000 to vote for Moody. Other charges of bribery are made.

At Williamsburg, Iowa, James Kelly, a blacksmith, and a man named Dulick engaged in a quarrel, during which Kelly struck Dulick with a hammer, fracturing his skull and fatally injuring him.

At Des Moines, Matt Merritt and his wife and William Frow were arrested, charged with counterfeiting coin. In their house the police found a tin pan full of metal, plaster paris, moulds, files and other tools.

H. McDonald, Mary Ann Boardman and James Paquett have been arrested in Chicago and are being held for extradition. Last December, it is charged, they drugged Peter Harlan in Montreal and robbed him of $58,000.

Wilson Howard, who admits having killed eight men, has been pardoned by the governor of California in order that Howard, who was serving a term for robbing a stage, may be taken to Kentucky to stand trial for murder.

At Kansas City Charles Goble, an iron worker, broke into the room of Anna Luther, fired three shots at her and afterwards shot himself in the head, dying almost instantly. The young lady is mortally wounded.

John Doyle, a worthless character, has been arrested at Springfield, Ohio, charged with murdering his mother. Neighbors found the woman sitting up in bed, her face horribly distorted, while finger and blood marks showed plainly on her neck.

The Frenchwoman, Mrs. Celestine Martell, on trial for the murder of Patrick Brenan, who was found dead in her house, was acquitted at Chicago, When the verdict was announced she fell on her knees in court, saying, "O, my God I thank you!"

The shooting of Mrs. W. J. Faulk by her husband in Pittsburg in a fit of religious enthusiasm has resulted in a warrant being issued for one George Knauff as an accessory before the fact. Faulk declares his religious insanity was inspired by the hypnotic influence of Knauff, who claimed to be another Messiah, and ordered him to kill his wife. This Faulk did, and officers are now hunting Knauff, who has disappeared.

A desperate attempt at jail delivery occurred at Cleveland, Ohio. When Sheriff Duff unlocked the door of a cage he was seized by two of the eight men confined therein, and a pistol taken from him. A lamp was knocked out of his hand and a desperate fight ensued, one man against eight. The plucky officer drew another pistol and firing began. The prisoner who had Duff's pistol put it full in the officer's face and fired it but the bullet missed its mark although the sheriff was badly powder-burned. Duff wrenched the weapon away and was master of the situation and locked up the unruly inmates of the cell. Scores of citizens armed with guns and pistols flocked to the jail, but their aid was not needed.

FOREIGN

Serious rioting on the part of the railroad strikers occurred in Glasgow. Several people were injured, but none fatally.

John H. Estop, treasurer of Ancaster township, Ont., was shot dead by burglars, who afterward ransacked the house.

The French committee on pardons has pronounced in favor of commuting the sentence of death passed upon Michael Eyraud, the murderer of Gouffe, to one of imprisonment for life.

The Vatican has been advised that the Italian government was occupying itself diplomatically with the approaching conclave to prevent the election of a pope unfavorable to official Italy and favorable to France.

Terrific snow-storms have prevailed recently through the southeastern portion of Russia. Deep drifts have been formed in many localities, and as a result whole villages and numbers of isolated houses have been almost buried in snow. The railroad tracks are entirely useless from the piles of snow resting upon them, and the only means of communication between the villages and towns is by sleighs. Added to the inconvenience to which the inhabitants are subjected are the sufferings which they are forced to endure on account of the bitterly cold wheather experienced in the snowed up districts. Numbers of people are already known to have been frozen to death, and it is feared that, as the snow disappears, there will be further loss of life revealed.

IN GENERAL.

Assignee Howard Doughlas has filed a schedule of assets of the Deuber Watch Case company, showing a total of $709,588.

With one exception all the fruit canneries in California have formed a compact with $5,000,000 capital stock to last fifty years.

The Monitor manufacturing works in Aurora, Ill., are in the hands of the sheriff. It is claimed to have a paid-up capital of $100,000.

At Nashville, Tenn., during a snow storm countless small fish were seen to fall. They were about an inch long and resembled the carp or mullet.

There is now very little hope of arbitrating the strike which has thrown 7,000 miners out of employment and is paralyzing trade in the Monongahela valley.

Preparations are being made by the Knights of Labor of the Connellsville (Pa.) coke region and their employers, the coke operators, for a prolonged and desperate wage struggle.

The ordinance recognizing prohibition laws in districts recently annexed to Chicago has been declared constitutional. An effort was made to secure licenses for saloons in Hyde Park near Jackson Park, where most of the world's fair will be held.

At Antigo, Wis., the committee appointed by the county board to examine the accounts of C. H. Larseeler, county treasurer, has just returned a report that his accounts are short $9,282. Notwithstanding his reelection last fall, he has been unable so far to secure bonds and the board will declare the office vacant and put in a new man.

A great sensation has been caused in Tacoma by Representative Frame, Democratic member from Snohomish county, openly stating that he was offered $1,000, $3,000 and then $5,000 to vote for Senator Squire by a man who was vouched for by Squire's private secretary as being all right in any offer he made. Frame will testify before the investigating committee.

The Iowa supreme court has affirmed the decision of the lower court in the celebrated case of Johnson vs. Miller, which has been in the courts at Waterloo, for 20 years. It is better known as the Jones county calf case, and was started over calves originally valued at $45. The costs now aggregate nearly $20,000, in addition to the verdict, which gives the plaintiff $1,000.

After twenty-four days of a double-headed legislature the Democrats and Republicans of Montana have agreed on a plan of compromise. The rival houses are to meet as one body, the Republicans getting twenty-eight members and Democrats twenty-seven. The Democrats are also to have the speaker, the subordinate officers and control of the committees. The compromise was drawn up by the senators of both parties and will be signed.

A Nobleman Seeks Death.

A thrilling story comes from Naples to the effect that a wealthy scion of a noble Italian family has made a desperate attempt to commit suicide in consequence, it is supposed, of a love affair. The names of the parties are carefully concealed; but it is believed that the beautiful widow of a recently deceased prince was the cause of the rash act. It seems that the passengers on the steamship Gottard, while on a voyage from Leghorn to Naples, became rather interested in the behavior of one of their number.

The individual in question is described as handsome and of commanding physique, but morose in temperament and haughty in demeanor. He resented all attempts at conversation, and evidently considered himself as far removed socially from the rest of his fellow voyagers. One night, when within a few hours' steaming of Naples, the watch was startled by the cry of "a man overboard!" Capt. Dilberto, the commander of the vessel, rushed on deck and ordered a boat to be lowered. One of the quarter life boats, with five men in her, went to the rescue, and in the bright moonlight saw a dark object rise to the surface.

Approaching the spot they seized the drowning man, who turned out to be the mysterious passenger. Instead of being grateful for his rescue he fought the boat's crew desperately, drawing a knife from his girdle and wounding two of them. He was overpowered and taken on board and locked in a state room, but eluding his guards, rushed out on deck and snatching a heavy crowbar dared any one to stop him. He made a rush toward the ship's bulwarks with the evident intention of again jumping overboard. Two or three courageous sailors, however, threw themselves upon him and flung him down. He was then heavily ironed and strictly watched until port was reached, when he was handed over to the authorities.

On his person was found upward of 2,000 francs in gold and several love letters with the name carefully erased. When interrogated he refused to give any name or to answer any questions. The story has created extraordinary interest in social circles in both Rome and Naples.

Fairy-Tales.

London Queen: The charm of fairy tales survives the age for which they are written. Setting aside the scientific explanation of certain facts—such as the concealment of the name in stories of the Rumpelstilzkin class; proving this to be a mere survival of the old savage superstition which forbids a wife to utter her husband's name; which, indeed, hides the true name as part of the self that sorcery could hurt all the same as it could hurt the person by means of the hair, nails, etc.—setting aside, too, the still more recondite explanations which would lift these stories out of the region of fancy and affiliate them to the graver parentage of sun-myths and the like—the delight of the mere thing itself is as great as it was when we were children, and more than half believed such things had been if even they were not then. Fairy tales have every requisite that goes to make a good story. Simple in outline, they are vivid in description. Full of adventure, they are neither prolix nor disappointing. They have no wearisome introspection, no exhausting analysis of character or motives. The bad are as black as night, and have not so much as a glow-worm's amount of light to redeem them. The good are without flaw, and end in a blaze of glory, like a Covent Garden transformation scene. All the lovely princesses and charming young princes are made after the same pattern, with not even so much difference among them as there is in a row of wax dolls in a toy shop. They all have the same fault—curiosity and disobedience—and are sure to do the very thing they are told not to do, with the sweetest unconsciousness, the supremest indifference to their promise, and the most artistic forgetfulness of threatened consequences. They never have the moral stature of full-grown human beings, and one never imagines them of the same height. They are mannikins—dolls to suit the grasp and comprehension of the little people to whom they are addressed; and the verities of human nature are sent out into the desert, together with the possibilities of human life. A nursery without fairy books is as doleful a place as one without a furry rabbit to run up mother's arm when she takes it into her hand, or a cohort of dolls to share the joys, to lessen the griefs and receive the secrets of the various little curlywigs who are their owners.

LAID AT REST.

Simple But Impressive Service Over the Remains of the Late Secretary Windom.

The Remains Followed to the Grave by Many Prominent Men of the Country.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—The national capital was truly a city of mourning to-day.

The executive departments and their various branches were closed all day, and congress did not assemble until 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

The flags on the White House and all other public buildings were displayed at half mast, and so were those of the hotels and other business establishments throughout the city, and the large granite columns of the four fronts of the treasury department were heavily draped in black.

These honors were paid to the memory of the late Secretary Windom, who was stricken down in the full tide of his usefulness on the 29th ult., and whose remains were committed to their last resting place to-day. The navy department and the department of justice were also draped in mourning in memory of other distinguished men who had been high in the councils of the nation. The crape on the navy department was in honor of ex-Secretary Bancroft, and the black bunting on the department of justice in honor of ex-Attorney General Devens. They served, however, to add to the generally solemn and funereal aspect of this city to-day on the occasion of the obsequies of Secretary Windom.

There was an air of genuine and universal mourning throughout the whole city, and the streets in the vicinity of the church where the last rites were performed and along the route taken by the funeral procession were crowded with men, women and children, who stood in respectful silence, many of them with bared heads.

AS THE MOURNFUL CORTEGE PASSED.

The funeral was simple in character and without the least attempt at display or ostentation. The only semblance to military honors was in the presence of sixteen members of the treasury branch of the national guard of the district. They acted as body bearers and marched beside the hearse on its journey to the cemetery. They wore the regulation uniform and were in command of Lieut. Richard Moore, of the treasurer's office. There never was, however, a larger purely civic funeral in the city of Washington, and it strikingly evidenced the people's great love and esteem for the dead statesman.

It was the intention of the family that the services should be public, but this was abandoned, owing to the necessity of making provision for the large official representation. The church was surrounded by an immense crowd.

It was nearly 12 o'clock when the funeral party arrived at the church. The entire congregation arose to receive it, and the organ pealed forth the low notes of a solemn dirge as the sad procession made its way to the altar, led by the minister, Dr. Hamlin, intoning the impressive words beginning, "I am the resurrection and the life," etc.

Following him closely came the honorary pall bearers in the following order: Secretary Blaine and Secretary Proctor, Attorney General Miller and Postmaster General Wanamaker; Secretary Noble and Secretary Tracy, with Secretary Rusk last. Then came and the members of the family. Just behind them were President and Mrs. Harrison, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Harrison, Mr. Halford and Mrs. Dimmick, Vice President and Mrs. Morton, Mrs. Garfield and family and the other persons who had accompanied the remains from the house. These were assigned front pews in the main body of the church. Just behind them were the members of the supreme court and diplomatic corps. The congressional delegation occupied seats to the right of the chancel.

Dr. Hamlin then reviewed the dead statesman's life, portraying how, while tilling the farm, William Windom's ambition led him to chafe under the narrow bounds which restricted him and how he ultimately espoused the profession of the law. He traced Mr. Windom's course through the house and senate, paying eulogiums to his ability both as a senator and a representative. In both these high positions his quick perception, strong logic and unfailing industry ensured success. Mr. Windom in each body, promptly distinguished himself by his notable services on committees and by his marked ability on the floor.

The services at the grave were brief but impressive. Following the casket, which had been carried to the side of the open grave, came the members of the cabinet, two by two, and after them Mrs. Windom, leaning heavily on the arm of her son. Then came the two daughters, and following them the other relations and friends. Mrs. McKee, on the arm of the president, Secretary Halford and other members of the president's official household were among those who came after.

After the casket had been lowered the weeping mother and her children stepped to the side of the grave, took their last look upon the violet-laden casket, then turned away. The procession quickly reformed and returned to the city.

A Drunkard's Terrible Deed.

BARRY, Ill., Feb. 3.—William Bradley, a brakeman, was discharged on account of drunkenness. He went to see his sweetheart, but in his inebriated condition she would have nothing to do with him and he proceeded to his brother's blacksmith shop, heated an iron rod red hot, fitted it in a vice and then pressed against it. The gleaming weapon penetrated his body and he will die.

Five Years in Prison.

CHIPPEWA FALLS, Wis., Special Telegram, Feb. 3.—Frank Baudin, alias Frank St. Claire, hailing from Stillwater, Minn., pleaded guilty in the municipal court here to-day to having stolen a valuable gold watch and an overcoat from parties in this city on Jan. 23 and was sentenced to five years in prison.

Peffer for President.

TOPEKA, Kan., Feb. 3.—It is said that the Alliance leaders are already beginning to talk of Senator-elect Peffer as the Alliance or third party candidate for president in 1892.

The "Q's" Annual Statement.

CHICAGO, Feb. 3.—The statement of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, including the Burlington & Missouri River and the controlled roads, showing earnings and expenses for December and the year 1890, was given out to-day. For the year ended Dec. 31, the gross earnings from passenger, mail, etc., amounted to $35,130,535, an increase as compared with the previous year of $1,002,068; expenses and charges, $31,795,183, an increase of $1,387,872; net earnings, $3,325,307, a decrease of $224,924. The statement for December shows a decrease in gross earnings of $384,045, and in net earnings of $134,495.

Withdrew the Complaint.

EAU CLAIRE, Wis., Special Telegram, Feb. 3.—The complaint against Elmer E. Graham, who was brought from Superior on the charge of deserting his wife and children, has been withdrawn and Graham discharged. The complaint, which was instituted by Mrs. Graham's brother, is declared by her to be wholly unfounded and she did not know what she was signing. Graham, who left here last September, has been wayward, but had no intention whatever of abandoning his family. He is a popular young man and highly connected here and is a son of Charles Graham and nephew of ex-Postmaster H. P. Graham. The family are deeply afflicted by the undeserved things said of the young man in the newspapers.

Shot At His Desk.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—The office of the South Brooklyn Steam Engine company was to-day the scene of a mysterious shooting affray. Josiah Willet, fifty years old, walked into the office and, without saying a word, walked up to Delphin M. Cobb, one of the proprietors, who sat at his desk, and fired a shot at him. The bullet entered Mr. Cobb's right side. He fell from his chair to the floor, and before Willet could fire the second time Patrick Quinn, a workman in Cobb's employ, wrenched the pistol from his hand and struck him on the head with it, fracturing his skull. Cobb's wound is not believed to be very serious. The cause of the shooting is as yet unknown.

Arrested for Murder.

DIAMONDALE, Mich., Feb. 3.—Russel E. Canfield was arrested to-night for the murder of the young girl found in the river here Friday night last. Last Tuesday night Canfield went to the state public school, an institution for the care of indigent children at Coldwater, and by some means he secured permission from its superintendent to take a young girl named Nellie Griffin away with him. On Wednesday Canfield arrived here with the girl and started off on foot for his home, about three miles from here. Suspicion was aroused when the girl's body was found, and an inquiry that was begun resulted in the arrest of Canfield.

Travelers Will Organize.

AUSTIN, Minn., Special Telegram, Feb. 3.—Representatives of over fifteen hundred traveling men, mainly from Minnesota, Iowa, Wisconsin and Illinois, were in session here to-day for the purpose of organizing the Western Traveling Men's association. A temporary organization was formed, with J. W. Irwin president, W. F. Sutherland secretary and George Hirsch treasurer. The day was spent in informal discussions. A permanent organization will be made to-morrow morning. This is not to be a revival of the old Travelers' Protective association, but an entirely new organization.

A Fatal Collision.

HELENA, Mont., Feb. 3.—A mixed train on the Utah Northern from Butte south and the regular passenger train northbound collided half a mile from Dillon yesterday. Engineer James Frost and Fireman Myron Russell, both of Dillon, were caught in the wreck. Russell was coaling at the time, and was crushed to a pulp by the tender telescoping over the engine. He was dead when taken out. Frost was thrown away from the wreck by the force of the collision, and was picked up badly crushed. He will die. The mail car was completely demolished, but the agent miraculously escaped unhurt. The passengers escaped with a severe shaking up.

More of the Beautiful.

MANKATO, Minn., Special, Feb. 3.—A severe snow storm set in early this morning and continued throughout the day. Snow is a foot deep on the level and in fine condition for a big blizzard.

WABASHA, Minn., Special, Feb. 3.—The wind blew hard from the northwest all day and the country roads are badly drifted. The mercury indicated 10 deg. below zero to-night, and is tending downward very fast.

HURON, S. D., Special Telegram, Feb. 3.—This was the coldest day of the season—16 deg. below zero at 7 this morning. Two inches of snow fell here last night.

Aimed at Senator Brice.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Feb. 3.—Representative Holliday (Rep.) this evening introduced a resolution to request Senator Sherman to resist Senator-elect Brice's admission to the United States senate on the ground that he is not a resident of Ohio. The resolution recites a number of facts bearing on his residence, none of which are new except that Mr. Brice's son in registering at college, gave his residence as "living with his father in New York city" and that the senator-elect is a member of the Ohio society in New York city, the members of which must have acquired citizenship in New York.

Killed a Fellow Workman.

ISHPEMING, Mich., Special Telegram, Feb. 3.—Thomas Toumey, a miner in the Barnum iron mine, met Pat Sullivan, a fellow miner, to-night and without altercation or words of any kind dealt Sullivan a blow across the temple with a heavy club, killing him almost instantly. Sullivan was accompanied by a half-witted man named Downey, who raised no alarm, but attempted to carry Sullivan home without attracting attention. Toumey was arrested. He is believed to have been drunk at the time of the murder.

The King Declares Himself.

BOSTON, Feb. 3.—The Globe says that Saturday Michael J. Kelly said to a reporter:

I want you to say that I am done playing ball. Under no circumstances will I ever play in the same team with Clarkson, Bennett or Pop Smith. I could have jumped the boys last summer and got $15,000 for doing it, but I stuck her out, and I don't want any of those people in any team I play ball with. Should I decide to try it once more Cincinnati is about the only place I care to go. I suppose that I have been a chump in not getting in out of the wet when I had a chance. I'll bet Ward and Ewing are getting $10,000 each for the next year, and both fixed their deals long ago. I guess I have stood out for Ward.

Insurgents Defeated.

BUENOS AYRES, Feb. 3.—Reports have reached here of another engagement off Ancud, capital of the island of Chiloe, in the Chiloe archipelago. The battle was fought between a government man-of-war and an insurgent war vessel. It resulted in the defeat of the insurgents. Communication with Santiago de Chili, the capital of Chili, and other towns which had been temporarily re-established, has again been interrupted.

The regular troops have reoccupied Valparaiso. According to these advices the insurgents lost heavily, and it is believed that the revolt will be speedily suppressed.

Limiting Passes.

CHICAGO, Feb. 3.—At the regular meeting of the Western Passenger association, to be held to-morrow, the question of maintaining that portion of the recent passenger agreement which prohibits the issuing of annual passes to the agents of other roads and confines the issuing of half-fare permits to clergymen will be among the questions discussed. It is practically settled that all the roads, with the probable exception of the Atchison, will vote to re-establish this part of the agreement, which was killed by the withdrawal of the Atchison company.

CAUSED HER DEATH.

Fatal Termination of the Injuries Received by a Young Lady School Teacher.

Her Assailants the Enraged Parents of the Pupil Whom She Had Punished.

WINNEBAGO CITY, Minn., Feb. 3.—News has been received here of the death from her injuries of Miss Lent, the young school teacher who was brutally assaulted by the Cruzen family a few days since. Miss Lent was teaching a country school near this place and punished a daughter of the Cruzens. Her parents were informed by another daughter, and, wild with rage, they went to the school house and assaulted the teacher. Mrs. Cruzen hit her with the school bell, knocking her down.

Miss Lent's hair was hanging over her shoulder, and the enraged woman grabbed it, dragging the helpless girl around the room until the cap of the skull was partly torn from its place. Her husband then came to her aid, and together they raised Miss Lent's prostrate form and threw her out of the window, her head striking on a stone. The panic-stricken pupils scattered to their homes and gave the information of the assault. Miss Lent's injuries were so severe that she was compelled to take to her bed, from which she never afterward arose.

Great indignation prevailed and the Cruzen's, father, mother and daughter, were arrested at once, but they are now out on bail. To-morrow is the day set for their examination on the charge of assault.

Miss Lent was the daughter of Frank Lent, an old and respected farmer of Faribault county.

FOUND IN A POOL OF BLOOD.

Bold Attempt to Murder a Young Lady in New York State.

UTICA, N. Y., Feb. 3.—Last night Lena Marks, aged twenty, the daughter of a baker living in Marcy, twenty-five miles from this city, left the house to go to the bakery. After a time the family became alarmed at her absence and went to the bakery to find her. She was found lying in a pool of blood just outside the bakery door, with her throat cut from one side to the other. After hours of work the girl became conscious, and it is now believed she will recover. The doctor who attended the girl thinks that she was first assaulted and then that her assailant attempted to murder her to escape detection from the crime of outrage.

She says she had been in the bakery but a few minutes when the door opened and a stranger stepped into the room. He asked her to follow him, and on her refusal he turned toward her with a bottle and handkerchief in his hands, and after a moment's struggle the girl lost consciousness and was in his power. She is aware who her assailant is, and, though she does not know his name, it is probable that from her description of him, that he may be captured.

LAID TO THE MAFIA.

The Chicago Police Think That Society Caused Sennas' Murder.

CHICAGO, Feb. 3.—The stilletto murder grows daily more sensational. To-day Police Inspector Punt, after careful investigation reached the conclusion that the victim was decoyed into the woods at Parkside by the tale that stolen property was buried there and could be purchased at a low figure. Arriving at a previously selected spot Sennas was told to dig at the foot of a scrub oak tree for the plant. While on his knees digging, Vallone struck him a fearful blow in the neck with the stiletto.

The dead man sent large, closely sealed packages at regular intervals to Italy. this circumstance, together with the peculiar facts of the assassination, is taken as tending to confirm a suspicion that the tragedy was the work of the Mafia.

REFUSED AN INJUNCTION.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—Judge Wallis, in the United States circuit court, rendered a decision to-day refusing to grant an injuction against the firm of Ehrich Bros. to restrain them from selling the "Encyclopedia Britannica" published by R. S. Peal & Co. of Chicago.

The complainants are the firm of Black & Co., publishers of the original work at Edinburgh, Scotland. In his decision Judge Wallace holds that rival publishers in this country have a legal right to use the contents of the original edition, except such portions of them as are covered by copyrights secured by American authors. The defendants' work he finds has substituted articles for these copyrighted ones.

HAS JURISDICTION.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—In the supreme court of the United States to-day Chief Justice Fuller announced that the court had decided to grant the British government leave to file an application for a writ of prohibition in the Behring sea matter.

A rule directing the district court of Alaska to show cause why the writ should not be issued was made returnable on the second Monday in April. The chief justice said, in delivering the decision, that the supreme court undoubtedly had jurisdiction in the matter.

A TERRIFIC STORM.

Terrible Sub-Zero Weather in Nebraska and South Dakota.

OMAHA, Feb. 3.—North Nebraska and South Dakota are enveloped in a terrific storm. At Deadwood it is 20 deg. below zero; at Lead City 30 below, and at Galena 40. Many herds of cattle have been lost, and destitute settlers will suffer.

IN COLORADO, TOO.

TOPEKA, Kan., Feb. 3.—A terrific storm is raging along the Rock Island's Western lines. The train from Denver is reported to be six hours late. The storm is said to be the worst at Claremont, Colo., and no trains are being moved at that point.

Another Legal Knot to Untie.

HELENA, Mont., Feb. 3.—Chief Justice Blake to-day, on application of Henry A. Root, contestant for the Davis millions, granted a writ of prohibition on the district court of Silver Bow county and a writ of mandamus on Judge J. McHatton, of the district court of Silver Bow county, returnable to-morrow. The probate of the will cannot go on until cause is shown why it cannot be restrained. It is alleged that the jury is illegally drawn, and that both judge and jury are prejudiced. Col. Ingersoll will argue on the motion to-morrow before the supreme court.

DYING BY INCHES.

DURAND, Wis., Special, Feb. 3.—A case of leprosy has been reported to the state board of health. The patient afflicted with the loathsome disease is an English woman about sixty years of age. She is a resident of the town of Canton, and just adjoining Pepin county. The local board of health has been discussing her case for the past four or five years, but nothing has been done by that body, and so finally it has been laid before the state board of health, and it is hoped by all people of this community that steps will be taken immediately to stop its propagation.

There has been considerable dispute among the physicians here whether or not it was a true case of leprosy, and so it will probably be necessary to have specialists examine the patient. The case is described as having a "horrible physique." The phalangeal and metatarsal bones of the feet have literally fallen off by degrees, as have also the tissues and bones of the hands and part of the face, presenting the appearance more of the so-called live type of the disease.

The woman lives alone with a small girl as attendant, who is her grandchild. She is very shy and does not permit strangers to come near. Only near relatives can scarcely see her. Moreover, she is inclined to resent any overtures on the part of curious people, or any one who might wish to see her, being somewhat of a violent disposition. Her lower jaw is partly eaten away, and she is conscious of her appearance, as she wears a cloth or veil over her face, and also over other diseased parts.

The only point upon which the diagnosis of the disease is doubtful to some of the local medical men, is the seeming non-contagiousness of the disease, although a young lady died a year and a half since who was thought to be similarly afflicted.

Another matter under consideration in this disease is the long period of incubation, which may extend over a period of twenty-five years, according to eminent authorities. Should this theory be correct there is no telling of the number who may develop the disease in the future, as the woman has a number of children who have almost all attained their majority, and consequently they have had more or less association with the mother since she became afflicted, which was about twenty years ago.

ROLLING MILLS SHUT DOWN.

This Action the Result of an Attempt to Reduce Puddler's Wages.

POTTSTOWN, Pa., Feb. 3.—This morning the entire iron works of the Ellis & Lessig Steel and Iron company in this city shut down, throwing seven hundred men out of work. This action was taken because of a contemplated reduction in the wages of puddlers of from $4 to $3.50 a ton to go into effect to-day. During the past two weeks conferences have been held, but an agreement could not be reached. The men offered to accept $3.75, while the company refused to grant the offer. President Lessig, of the company, says the unfavorable and unsatisfactory condition of the iron trade at the present time justifies the reduction. The price paid in Reading for puddling is $4 per ton. In Pittsburg the price is $5 and $5.50 per ton.

FOLLOWED THEIR EXAMPLE.

READING, Pa., Feb. 3.—The puddlers of the Brooke Iron Company of Birdsboro, this county, have refused to accept the proposed reduction of 25 cents from $3.75 to $3.50 per ton and the rolling mill closed down to-day. The stopping of work in the rolling mill also necessitates the closing of the nail factory. About 450 hands are thrown out of employment. The firm stated that wages were cut in accordance with similar action on the part of Ellis & Lessig at Pottstown.

REDUCTIONS MADE.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Feb. 3.—One thousand employes at the steel mill of the Bethlehem Iron company suffered a reduction in wages averaging 10 per cent. Depression in the trade is attributed as the cause.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Feb. 3.—A reduction of about 10 per cent has been made in the wages of the workmen at the Emma blast furnace, the property of the Union Rolling Mill company, taking effect to-day. The cause is the competition of Southern furnaces.

WINDOM'S SUCCESSOR.

A Bill Extending the Time in Which an Appointment Can Be Made.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—On motion of Mr. McKinley a bill was passed in the house today amending section 180, Revised Statutes, so as to read:

Vacancies occasioned by death or resignation shall not be temporarily filled under the three preceding sections for a longer period than thirty days.

The present law limits the time to ten days, and the bill has special reference to the appointment of a successor to the late Secretary Windom.

WANT A WESTERN MAN.

TOPEKA, Kan., Feb. 3.—A movement is being inaugurated here to unite the free silver Republicans in the West in demanding the appointment of Western man for secretary of the treasury. A resolution will be introduced in the senate asking the president to appoint a successor to Secretary Windom, a man whose views are in accord with the views of the people of the West on the monetary question, and further that the requests be sent to other Western state legislatures to co-operate in the effort by sending like petitions to the president.

IN FAVOR OF FOSTER.

Ex-Gov. Charles Foster is being actively actively urged by the Republicans of Ohio for the place in the cabinet made vacant by the death of Secretary Windom. To that end his friends throughout the state are holding meetings to-night and organizing for a campaign in his behalf.

IS IT POSSIBLE?

A Settlement of the Irish Trouble Said to Have Been Reached.

LONDON, Feb. 3.—In the lobbies of parliament to-night the rumor was revived that the settlement supposed to have been made with regard to the split in the Irish party leaves Mr. McCarthy in the chair, Messrs. Parnell and O'Brien going to America for the purpose of raising funds.

All the morning papers treat the rumor as truthful and make editorial comment on the outcome of the fight.

The Spanish Elections.

MADRID, Feb. 3.—Election returns from the provinces give the opposition, including all shades, 120 deputies out of a total of 427. The ministers and all of the chief party leaders are re-elected.

Revised returns show the election of 314 government candidates, 60 Liberals, 35 Republicans and 7 Carlists. No Socialists have been returned.

Killed His Son.

WHITEHALL, Wis., Special Telegram, Feb. 3.—Jorgen Nelson, a farmer ten miles from town, accidentally killed his stepson today. The son was playing with other boys about the father while he was chopping wood and dashed in front of the latter, receiving the full force of the blow in the head killing him instantly.

His Life's Run Ended.

LITTLE FALLS, Minn., Special Telegram Feb. 3.—J. D. Fuller, for twenty-five years a locomotive engineer, died here to-day of pneumonia, aged fifty-two. He was a Knight Templar.

FRENCH JUSTICE.

Peculiar System of Practice in the French Criminal Courts—All on One Side.

A French trial is the most amazing feature of French justice. The court of assize consists of three magistrates, a presiding judge and a jury. The president of the court, instead of being presumably ignorant, or at least indifferent to the case, and prepared to hold the scales of justice impartially between the prisoner and the state, has informed himself of the charges in advance, and with his mind apparently made up that the prisoner is guilty, proceeds to get the jury into a similar frame of mind. He virtually acts as a coadjutor in the prosecution. Having before him the statement of each witness, previously taken, he questions them as to this or that point not satisfactorily brought out, in his judgment, by the voluntary evidence. He examines the accused, drags up any former crimes that the prisoner may be suspected of or known to have committed, and enters into a wrangle with him on the subjects thus introduced. As the president presumably has no interest in the condemnation of an accused person, it is supposed that his purpose is to extract substantial justice from the melee which is thus created. It seems, however, grossly unfair to drag up incidents of childhood against a man or a woman on trial for a crime involving life itself.

For instance, Gabrielle Bompard was made to acknowledge that she was an unruly child, and refused to obey the discipline of home, that she had been impatient of schooling and shown an early tendency to depravity. All this is apparently on the principle of the proverb about giving a dog a bad name, and then hanging it. The lawyer for the accused dare not protest, for he has no right to. The president of the court is supreme, and apparently regards it as his business to convince the jury that the defendant is guilty. Practically the lawyer's only function is to sum up for his client and make the best showing he can for the latter on all the evidence. But, though the rules of court and etiquette require a lawyer to submit while his client is being browbeaten, it is not so with the prisoner.

Some Giants and Giantesses.

At all times and in all countries, kings and nobles had a fancy for including among their retainers either a giant or a dwarf, sometimes both. Frederick the Great had his corps of gigantic grenadiers; and in the Tower of London may be seen a lance and some enormous armor of the sixteenth century work, which doubtless belonged to some giant knight or trooper of the king's bodyguard. James I. had attached to his person a porter named Walter Parsons, commonly called the Staffordshire giant, a handsome, brave and strong young man, who had begun life as a farrier. His height was 7 feet 7 inches, and his portrait exists, engraved by Glover. Parsons lived on until the reign of Charles I., and was succeeded by another giant, 2 inches taller than his predecessor.

It is a curious fact that the population of France has rarely produced a giant; Great Britain, Germany, Poland and Switzerland carry off the palm; and this may perhaps be attributed to the prevalence in France of a vegetarian diet, which does not tend to develop to so great an extent the growth of muscle as does the stronger diet of meat. The eighteenth century, to judge by cotemporary letters and newspapers, seems to have been more than usually prolific in giants and giantesses.

A Little Mixed.

Cleveland Plaindealer: At a certain seminary for young ladies in the east the students of German are not allowed to speak any other language at the table, but one young lady, more daring than the other, broke the rule and announced in English to her companions that she was "mashed" on a certain young man.

"Mashed?" said the young fraulien, who presided over the students and who is but imperfectly acquainted with English; "mash, what does that mean?"

"Oh," spoke up one of the young ladies, wishing to save her blushing and confused companion, "when a person is very much in love with anybody she says she is 'mashed' on him.'"

The girls thought that ended the matter, but what was their surprise when the next night in prayer meeting the teacher rose with beaming face and declared: "I wish to testify, young ladies, that I am mashed on the Lord."

He Was In It.

"Why wasn't I heard more in congress?" rejoined the member contemptuously. "Do you read the papers?" "Certainly I do?" "Well, then, did you never notice in the reports of speeches 'Laughter,' 'Applause on the republican side,' and such things? I took a leading part in them every time."—Philadelphia Times.

Consoling.

Mrs. McFadden—"I'm very queer again, doctor. My cough bothers me so; I'm afraid I'm going to die." Genial Medical Person—"Never mind, it's not a very difficult thing to do. The last year of our life is much easier than the first. You see, there's no teething."—Judy.

Traveling men have been numerous in town the past week, all of which indicates that business is good with our merchants. Traveling men never visit a town unless there is something in it.

We learn that Mr. Buchholz, of Marshall county, had the misfortune to lose his house and all its contents by fire last Sunday morning while the family were at church,

S. M. Dainerd sold last week his entire stock of furniture to Holmes Bros, who will run the business in the future. They will keep the stock over their hardware store.

We would like to have some of our delinquent farmer subscribers bring us in a load of wood on subscription account as soon as possible as we are nearly out.

E. M. Hoff wishes to announce that he has a large stock of mittens, gloves and caps which must be closed out and he will sell them for cost for the next 20 days. It will pay to give him a call.

We learn that Frank Kricka Chas. Robbecke and other Ogemah's of Thief River Falls are having high old times these days hunting rabbits with the state guns and ammunition sent up there last week,

Cold weather struck us last Saturday and we have been having regular old fashioned winter weather ever since, the thermometer running down into the thirties nearly every night

M. E. CHURCH SOCIAL.

The ladies of the M. E. Church will give a social at the residence of Dan'l Patterson next Friday evening. Coffee and cake will be served. Let every one come and have a good time.

The sudden death of Secretary of the Treasury Wm. Windom, heart disease, last Thursday evening at New York was a great shock to his many Minnesota friends. Mr. Windom for many years represented this state in congress and the senate and was one of the ablest and best known men this state has ever produced, He was an able financier and his place will be hard to fill,

At a meeting of the trustees of the Norwegian Lutheran Church last Friday the bids for building the new church were opened and the contract given to August Svenson for $250. Work will be commenced as soon as the weather will permit. The present contract is only for outside work. The church will be large and commodius and will be a decided acquisition to our village.

Agent Fegan informs us that he has secured a "hot air car" for the benefit of such of our merchants as desire to ship perishable goods and for farmers who have produce to ship to the city. The car will run each week as follows: St. Vincent branch Tuesdays; St. Hilaire Branch Wednesdays; Fosston branch Thursdays, St. Vincent branch Saturdays.—Crookston Times.

THE INDIAN SCARE.

The Indian scare seems to have died a natural death. It seems strange that about one hundred Indians could succeed in frightening several thousand white settlers by having a few social dances, but this just what they have done. The rumor seems to have gone abroad that they were engaging in ghost dances, which is a mistake as they take no stock in the Sioux Messiah story, They dance every winter and always continue until they run out of provisions The farmers living near Holt P. O. in Marshall Co. sent the following letter to Governor Merriam last week. They were badly scared and without reason as there were few if any Indians near them.

Holt Jan. 25 1891.—Gov. Merriam: The Chippewa Indians around here have commenced dancing and will soon be on the warpath. Therefore we desire help and want soldiers to come to our assistance to defend our homes wives and children. Weapons and ammunition must also be sent at once so that we have something for our defense, so that they shall not shoot us down like animals We are without weapons and we want help before we are killed and our property destroyed. Here in this town the people are much frightened and some have already sent their families away. If you think our lives and property are worth anything remember we want instantaneous help from the state. Hoping for help we remain very respectfully.

P. S. Our address is Holt postoffice Marshall county. The nearest railroad station is St. Hilaire,

The following dispatch was also sent to St. Paul from Hallock and the Governor sent Adjt. Gen. Mullen up to investigate. He reported that there was no danger but to relieve the minds of some timid ones sent up arms and ammunition.

Hallock Minn, Special Telegram Jan. 27.—A messenger has arrived from the Roseau country, seventy miles east of here with a pressing petition to the governor asking for rifles and ammunition. They are in great fear of the Indians of the Lake of the woods. The redskins are dancing and have their war paint on and gather from all along the Rainy river and from the Canadian side. The report and petition are signed by fifty of the settlers near the scene of the excitement and unless they are furnished with arms and ammunition it is to be feared that an outbreak will be disastrous.

St. Paul Daily News: With a zeal worthy of a better cause the advocates of a heavy national guard appropriation, and their whips, are jumping a carmine tint to the vicinity of St. Hilaire that are not in harmony with the cold gray facts in the case.

Each day brings telegrams of a beseeching character that are based upon the wierd imaginings of minds eager for the self imposed task, the dime novel statements leading one to believe that the entire white contingent in the neighborhood of Red Lake will soon be in sore need of a wig-maker's services.

The fact appears to be that the alarm if indeed there be any, is baseless and wholly sympathetic, arising from a too close perusal of some of the shaggy morning paper dispatches from Pine Ridge and other points.

Agent Schuler who has charge of the Red Lake Indians is here in attendance upon the Federal court during the progress of reservation whiskey cases ridicules the whole thing and laughed unrestrainedly when he read the original fake account.

Mr Schuler furnishes the key to the whole business. Some of the bucks under his care went on a long hunt not long ago and returned in high feather, for the chase had been most successful and game abounded. The braves and the rest of the tribe were so elated that a celebration was held and the gentle children of the forest grew frisky. During the progress of the saturnalia the whites grew nervous and had all sorts of fears and visions.

"Why" said Mr Schuler, "I could take my police and round up every Indian on the reservation."

So far as St. Paul is concerned neither Gen. Ruger and interested railroad officials have heard a word which would in the slightest degree confirm the wild assertions so freely made.

If "cussins" count for anything all the express companies doing business in the state of Minnesota are damned beyond the hope of redemption. The country press is doing a double clog dance on them and calling them harder names than the railroads ever received. Before spring the legislature may be constrained to hang them up by the heels till their net receipts spill out of their pockets.—Pioneer Press.

Harpers Weekly: According to recent dispatches from the Old World it is apparent that a winter of unusual severity had bound all England and the continent with chains of ice. From John o' Groat's house to Land's end the country is covered with snow and ice. There is skating on the Thames above and below Oxford and miles. Above Teddington, where the tidal water ends the ice is eight inches thick. Belgium, Holland and North Germany are blocked with ice along their coasts. The Seine is full of ice and the Saone is frozen Along the Rhine snow drifts seventeen feet in depth are piled in places, and Bavaria is hidden beneath a mantle of white. Northern Italy has been visited with weather such as the present generation has never felt and railways are blocked with snow at Mantua, Turin and Milan, Snow has fallen in Spain, and orange groves in Valencia ruined by frosts, And down in Algiers, and for for some distance inland snow and hail have wrought havoc and ruin, Such are the reports that come to us coupled with tales of distress and misery among the poorer classes. A winter like this is unusual but not unparalleled.

M. Jeffers, of Gervais township, was in town several days last week circulating a petition for county division. He met with very poor success here as we understand that he only obtained two signatures to his petition one of which was a traveling man from Chicago who signed for two drinks and a cigar. Mike was all right however as his expenses were paid by the Red Lake Falls real estate boomers, It is poor policy for them having to spend much money in St. Hilaire for that purpose,

Credit is the curse of our country. It is this which fastens the farms with mortgages, and it is what bows down the body and spirits of farmers under many troubles, and there is no hope for relief from hard times until the cause of debt is lifted so that farmers will not be compelled to sell their crops and stock until they are ready. When a farmer is out of debt he can set his price on his crops and stock as the merchant does his goods, or the lawyer and doctor their fees. Then farmers will be prosperous, independent and happy.—N. W. Agriculturist.

Mankato Free Press: The period of year for reviving that old chestnut that Secretary Blaine will, under no circumstances accept the Republican nomination for president, has arrived and is now going the rounds of the papers. The rumor is given as "authentic" of course with the probability that there is not a particle of truth in it. Mr. Blaine is not in the habit of declining that which has not been proffered, and his past record does not warrant the belief that he would not stand for his party when his party calls. Mr. Blaine is quietly, and very satisfactorily to himself and the country, attending to his own business.

A special bulletin issued by the census office places the Indian population of Minnesota at 5,263; 2,931 males 3,332 females, an apparent decrease of 311 since 18 9.

At White Earth agency there are 951 males and 1,134 females; Leech Lake reservation, 724 males and 762 females; Red Lake reservation, 526 males and 594 females; Mille Lac Chippewas, 883 males and 503 females; White Oak Point Chippewas, 299 males, 1,839 females,

In the North Dakota agencies there are 7,814 Indians; 3,815 males and 3,993 females.

Hallock, Jan, 27.—The immigration board of the Red River Valley met in this city on Saturday and the following representative men in the valley were present. President M R. Brown and L. Ellington, of Crookston; H. L. Melgaard, of Argyle; J. P. Laudin, of Stephen; H. W. Donaldson and Ed. A. Love, of Kittson county, and M Folsom of St. Paul representing the Great Northern railway. The board went directly to business and mapped out the work that will be done this winter and spring, Letters of inquiry are daily received and the valley will during the next 12 months, see the greatest influx of immigration this state has ever seen, The executive board appointed to superintend the work between sessions of the regular board is composed of President M. R. Brown, Secretary Edward H. Love and Treasurer H. L. Melgaard, the three representing the three counties from the regular board.

One of the reforms that can be looked after by reformers of all parties begins at home, or near enough home to be in every county seat in the Northwest. Is there any good reason why county officers should receive any larger salaries than would be paid in any business for competent men? If these offices were not "soft snaps," paying in many cases several times as much as the services rendered are worth, there would not be a biennial scramble for them The corruption fund of politics is gathered up from the candidates for these offices, who, in some instances, spend thousands of dollars in the campaigns which precedes election. Take the fat out of these offices, and let the incumbents serve for what the labor is actually worth, and the air of politics will be speedily purified. But reformers generally prefer to talk about reforms a good ways from home. It is a good deal easier to make war upon corruption in politics in Washington or New York, at long range, than to pass resolutions against evils that exist about home, If an attempt was made to reduce the fees of county officers to a reasonable sum, there would be a bigger lobby organized in twenty-four hours, in any state in the Northwest, than was ever gathered in the interest of any measure in Washington at the National Capitol. —N. W. Agriculturist.

St. Paul Globe: To tax a mortgage is simply to make it harder than ever for a man to borrow money. A "foreign corporation" which is a pleasant term legislators and others of en employ to designate an institution chartered by any one state of our common Union, cannot bring money into another state and lend it as cheaply to the citizens thereof is compelled to pay a tax on every loan so made. It will have to charge the extra amount of the tax to the borrower, who alone will be the loser. This ought to be evident enough as well as the additional fact that the same borrower will be reduced in his range of choice and chance of lower rates by the trammeling of outside capital. The latter, as in the case of the funds of a great life insurance company, for example, is at the disposal of the local borrower with good mortgage security upon reasonable terms. But if invidiously taxed the loans will cost just as much more as the sum of the tax, for the policy holders who own these funds cannot be expected to stand the loss, and out of the borrower it must come. The latter will then be doubly taxed, paying the original tax on his property and the extra mortgage assessment beside, will be narrowed in his choice of resources by the unwillingness of "outsiders to continue to bring their money into such an illiberal community, and in the end will load with backhanded blessings the stupidity of legislators who have found nothing better to do than thus adding to his trouble in getting money and decreasing his ability to repay it.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.

Notice is hereby given, that the undersigned; owners of the townsite of St. Hilaire in the county of Polk, will at an adjourned term of the District Court of the county of Polk, to be held at the Court House in the city of Crookston in said County on the 10th day in March 1891 apply to said Court upon petition filed in the office of the Clerk of said Court, for a rule vacating all that portion of the said townsite of St. Hilaire, hereinafter described towit: Blocks four, five, six, seven, eight, nine ten, eleven, seventeen, eighteen, nineteen, twenty, twenty one, twenty-two, twenty three, thirty, thirty one, thirty two, thirty three and thirty four, on the south side of said townsite; and Blocks fifty-six to eighty-nine inclusive, on the north side of said townsite; all of said blocks being west of the railroad track and unoccupied and unsold,

All persons having any objection to the granting of said rule or order, are notified to appear at the time and place above stated, and show cause, if any they have why the prayer of the said petition should not be granted.

CREDIT BROKERS.

Merchants Through Whom a Man Can Get Anything on Trust.

"A what?"

"A credit broker. Didn't you ever hear of a credit broker? Well, it is a new business, to be sure, this credit brokerage, but it is an active one."

An uptown business man adjusted his eyeglasses to read a little card he held in his hand and proceeded to disclose to a reporter some of the mysteries of this new trade.

"The absence of a large income does not relieve them from the desire to live comfortably and keep up a good appearance on a small salary. They have to go in debt or buy things on the installment plan. Some people are not well enough known to get credit from the regular old established firms. It is to the relief of such people the credit broker comes. If you want a suit of clothes, made to order or 'hand me down,' he will send you to a first class place where you can present his card and get what you want without further question, though the merchant may never have seen you before. He will then give you an order to some furniture dealer, if you want, and you can have your house furnished and fitted out on the same terms. Or with his indorsement you can have your children fitted with new store clothes and you can get shoes for yourself, your wife and all the little ones without any ready money. You can get a watch and seal ring for yourself and earrings for your wife. If you are a carpenter or workman of any sort you can get tools in the same simple way. In short, you can get anything you want. You can even get your teeth filled or an aching molar dislocated. You can be fitted out with a new suit of clothes, a beaver hat and cane, shoes, studs, a watch and chain and all the other jewelry necessary to the complete outfit of a gentleman, besides fresh tie, clean collar and cuffs, stiff 'biled' shirt and enough at home for a change—you can get all these things on credit, though your face and name are not known to a merchant in town, if you have an order from the credit broker.

"The business is started in this way. A man who has enough means to make his credit good with merchants has a large circle of friends whom he knows to be honest and reliable, but who have no credit with merchants, not being known. With this to start on he decides to become a credit broker. He gets up a list of reputable merchants in various lines and makes an arrangement with them under which they are to give credit to any one presenting an order from him and are to pay him a commission on the trade, he being responsible for the debt. He then gives orders to his friends and acquaintances who want to buy on credit, but have no acquaintance with dealers in the things they want. They buy their goods and pay him in installments or spot down at a certain time. The man entering into this business must of course know the men he is trusting, but having a large circle of acquaintances he can easily determine whom of them he can trust, and can get enough regular and reliable customers to make him a good business. A man in one of the departments or in any business establishment where a great many persons are employed may work up a good business as a credit broker. The man whose card I hold here has gone regularly into the business as a credit broker. He has arrangements with some ten or fifteen reliable business houses, to which he sends his patrons and from which he gets a good commission on every sale upon his order. He makes from $150 to $200 per month out of the business and very seldom makes a bad debt."—Washington Star.

A Splendid Dredger.

A curious machine for clearing out the Sacramento river and various bars is about to be constructed at San Francisco. The machine is not a dredger but a great submarine plow, which simply clears the channel as it runs. It is propelled by large engines of the combined power of 54 horses, and while going at the rate of 12 miles or more an hour scoops out a space 6 feet deep and forty feet wide. The debris is shoved on either side so that instead of the banks being weakened they are strengthened.—New Orleans Picayune.

Another Big Bridge.

Encouraged by the success of the Forth bridge, French engineers have formed a syndicate to build a bridge over the Bosphorus between Roumeli and Anadoli Hissar. The plan has a length of 800 meters, which is to be a single span, or half again the length of the longest span in the Forth bridge, and the height will be 70 meters. Nothing is yet settled, but it is probable that the concession will eventually be obtained and the connection of Europe and Asia by a railway will thus be established.—Cor. New York Times.

Mr. John Keowan, the worthy postmaster at Keowan, Allegheny County, Penn., says: Chamberlain's Cough Remedy sells better than any other. The reason of this is because it can always be depended upon. Let any one troubled with a severe cold give it a trial and they will find that the first dose will relieve the lungs and make breathing easier, and that its continued use will free the system of all symptoms of the cold. The promptness and certainty of this remedy in the relief and cure of colds, has won for it many sincere friends and made it very popular. For sale by Justus L. Johnson.

The Queen's Witty Rebuke.

A fact but little known is that besides Lord Kingsale and Lord Forester, there is another individual who has the curious prerogative of remaining covered in the presence of the British Sovereign—namely, the Master of Trinity College, Cambridge. Anent this a curious anecdote has been narrated: A superstition prevails concerning the necessity for exercising the right or losing it altogether, so when on a certain occasion the Queen visited Cambridge University, the then well-known and highly popular Master of Trinity kept his hat on during the proceedings. The Queen apparently did not notice the circumstance, and the Master began to feel uncomfortable. At length just as her Majesty was about to depart, he deferentially approached and said: "Your Majesty has perhaps wondered that I should appear so far wanting in respect as to keep my hat on all day, but—er—perhaps it has escaped your Majesty's memory that Lord Kingsale in Ireland, Lord Forester in England and also the Master of Trinity have a right to keep their hats on in the presence of their Sovereign." "Quite so—ahem—but not in the presence of a lady!" was the freezing—rejoinder.—Philadelphia Record.

Stranger than Fiction.

The daughter of a Jewish merchant at Hamburg resided in Berlin with a brother and made the acquaintance of an orthodox Christian solictor. They fell in love with each other, but the solictor's father made his consent dependent on the young lady's conversion to Christianity. But the father of the latter expressed a wish that his daughter should remain a Jewess, at any rate until his death.

In spite of this she was baptized on a certain day in December, last year, at 2 o'clock, immediately after which she became engaged to the solicitor. About an hour afterward a telegram from Hamburg announcing that the death of her father from an apoplectic stroke had taken place on the same day at 2:30 o'clock.

When the father's testament was opened it was found that, besides the share of his property legally belonging to his daughter, he had also bequeathed to her a legacy of 20,000 marks, under the condition that she remained a Jewess till his death. Her conversion, however, having taken place half an hour before she lost the legacy. Legal proceedings were instituted by her to dispute the validity of the clause, but they have been unsuccessful.—Galignani's Messenger.

Government Supplies the Bank.

"I haven't slipped down once this season," said a middle-aged man in the land office as he was getting ready to go home the other day.

"You're lucky," said the rest of the clerks in a chorus.

"No, I'm not," he answered, "I'm only careful. Every day, before I start home, I take two of these wide rubber bands"—suiting the action to the word "and put them around the balls of my feet, so that they cross the widest part of the soles of my shoes. See?" The bands were scarcely noticeable, and the soft rubber prevented any slipping on the ice no matter how smooth it was. The bands only last a day or two usually, but unfortunately the supply at the department clerks' disposal is large, and now half the gentlemen, and ladies too, who work in the department wear the rubber bands around their shoes when they go out on the icy streets.—Washington Post.

An Expert's Recommendation.

An eastern hair-restorer manufacturer publishes a timely testimonial from Kicking Horse, in which K. H. says that he hopes the preparation will come into general use. The Dakota settlers, he states, have been getting more baldheaded every year, some of them requiring to be scalped way down on the backs of their heads and not a few requiring the use of pinchers at that.—San Francisco Examiner.

Lottery Mail Matter Seized.

CAMDEN, N. J., Jan. 21.—Postmaster Browning made his third seizure to-day of lottery mail matter addressed to residents of this city. The matter consisted of about seventy-five circulars of the Louisiana Lottery Company, stating that a drawing of the lottery would be held on the 17th day of February, and that all tickets drawing less than $1,000 would be cashed at an address in Boston, and those drawing over that amount would be cashed at New Orleans.

In accordance with the instructions he has received from Washington, Postmaster Browning forwarded the entire lot to Postmaster General Wanamaker.—N. Y. Sun, Jan. 22d.

"August Flower"

Mrs. Sarah M. Black of Seneca, Mo., during the past two years has been affected with Neuralgia of the Head, Stomach and Womb, and writes: "My food did not seem to strengthen me at all and my appetite was very variable. My face was yellow, my head dull, and I had such pains in my left side. In the morning when I got up I would have a flow of mucus in the mouth, and a bad, bitter taste. Sometimes my breath became short, and I had such queer, tumbling, palpitating sensations around the heart. I ached all day under the shoulder blades, in the left side, and down the back of my limbs. It seemed to be worse in the wet, cold weather of Winter and Spring; and whenever the spells came on, my feet and hands would turn cold, and I could get no sleep at all. I tried everywhere, and got no relief before using August Flower Then the change came. It has done me a wonderful deal of good during the time I have taken it and is working a complete cure." ④

AN OLD TIME INDIAN TERROR

An Aged Indian Warrior who For Ten Years Terrorized Arizona Settlers.

They were talking about the present Indian outbreak when one of the party, who had been for many years a resident of Arizona Territory, remarked:

"I tell you gentlemen that this Indian business is liable to become serious before long. Why on earth the goverment don't enlist 25,000 men and have those red men rounded up at once and for all is something I can't understand.

"Why, down in Arizona we lived for eighteen years in a state of terror on account of a marauding band of Apaches that had things pretty much their own way all this time, in spite of all that the government troops could do to keep them in check.

I call to mind particularly Old Victorio. There was a warrior for you. He commanded a band of some 200 bucks. They were the Chiracahua Apaches, and the murders, robberies and depredations committed by that band during those ten years in which they were on the warpath are almost incredible.

"Old Victorio was nearly 90 years of age when the troubles began. He ruled those redskins with a rod of iron in spite of his years. And he was paralyzed, too, completely paralyzed. He was only able to use his left arm a little, just enough to lift a cigarette to his mouth.

"He was constantly in the saddle, and had to be strapped on like a bale of goods. His band had the finest ponies to be found anywhere. They would sometimes appear at one place and in less than twenty-four hours you would hear of them at some place 100 miles distance. All throughout Southern Arizona and Northern Mexico old Victorio continued his raids until the settlers finally gave up in despair. The government troops appeared to be utterly powerless in the matter.

"Why, that band of redskins would sometimes plunder a wagon train right under the noses of the troopers, and by the time the latter were mounted and ready to start in pursuit, they would be out of sight. The next day perhaps, the wires would tell of some fresh depredation committed by the same band in a section of the country over 100 miles away.

"This old war dog, however, was finally rounded up and shot. He died in the saddle, fighting to the last, and his band what was left of it, dispersed. Of course the settlers heard of it and were delighted. Dismay followed, however, when Cochise took the field. This Indian ran things pretty much the same way for five years, and then came old Geronimo.

"The Indians of the Northwest are much more numerous and better armed. You may take my word for it, gentlemen, we haven't seen the last of these Indian troubles. We've hardly seen the beginning of them. The government will wake up to this fact before long too.—From the New York Herald.

It Came High.

A gentleman who was in a great hurry rushed into a swell uptown hotel a few days since and handed some letters to a typewriter, says the New York World. He asked her to copy them, and said he would be back in half an hour. It was a gorgeous hotel, and the typewriter was beautiful. The shoulders of her gown were puffed, she wore a natty toque, the color of her eyes were brown, and her rings were numerous and valuable. Over her patent-leather boots she wore a pair of remarkably smart white duck "spats" and when she sat down to the key-board it turned out that she could write almost as well as she looked.

The keys hummed a little while, and then she leaned back in her chair and waited the coming of the buisness man.

"How much is it?", he asked as he shoved the letter hurridly in his pocket.

"Two dollars," said the young woman, quietly.

The man started, stared, and then glanced at the gown, and the jewels, the duck spats, and paid her without a word.

"Those things all cost money" he said philosophically, as he passed the money over and took in the details of the young woman's attire.

"Yes" she said, serenely, as she took up a novel, "they are expensive—to my customers."

DEADHEADS.

The Enormous Amount of Free Passes Issued by Railroads.

Go into any of the offices of presidents of great transporation companies in the last week, and you could not help noticing the pretty square cards beautifully lithographed, which littered the desks of the presidents and the immediate subordinate officers, says the New York Sun. The presidents of the railroads, the presidents of the express companies and of great insurance companies, and all other men influential in the business world had a satchelful of these pretty engraved cards. They were the annual passes which entitle them to travel on every road in the country gratis. These passes come in from all parts of the country, and the filling out of the list takes the time of one clerk one month before the beginning of ever year. Of course the presidents of the railroads coming into New York and the presidents of the express companies have to reciprocate, and they also have sent out a wagon load of these annual free passes. It should be added that the Western Union issues quite as many. The railroad passes permit free travel, the express passes the sending of free packages, and the telegraph passes permit the sending of free messages no matter where the holder may be in the United States.

A Pleasing Sense.

—the progress of Consumption. The best authorities agree that it's a scrofulous affection of the lungs. If taken in time, and given a fair trial, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will effect a cure. Thousands have been saved by it—thousands more are putting it off till too late. For every form of Scrofula, Bronchial, Throat, and Lung Affections, Weak Lungs, Severe Coughs, and kindred ailments, it is a positive remedy. It's guaranteed to do all that's claimed for it. If it doesn't benefit or cure, in every case, your money is returned.

The "Discovery" is the only Liver, Blood and Lung Remedy that's sold so. Think what a medicine it must be!

Especially has it manifested its potency in curing Tetter, Salt-rheum, Eczema, Erysipelas, Boils, Carbuncles, Sore Eyes, Goitre, or Thick Neck, and Enlarged Glands.

A Beautiful Catalogue.

L. L. May and Co.'s catalogue of Northern Grown Seeds for 1891 is nearer perfection than any ever issued. This firm being located in the North Star State where their seeds are grown and tested receive thousands of orders for seeds from farmers, declaring that they want nothing but Northern Grown Seeds, claiming they are the best and hardiest. May's Catalogue contains over a thousand beautiful illustrations and many suggestions which are both needful and useful to farmers and others ordering seeds or plants, also thirty-two pages of novelties never before issued by any seedsmen. Do you want one, if so see their offer in this issue. Address L. L. May & Co., St. Paul, Minn.

Nothing Else Will Do It.

We have volumes of evidence to prove that S. S. S. is the only permanent cure for contagious Blood Taint.

I suffered for five years with the worst form of blood poison, during which time I was attended by the best physicians I could find, and tried numbers of proprietary medicines without any beneficial results. I continued to grow worse all this time, until my whole system was destroyed by the vile disease, my tongue and throat having great holes caused by it. I then commenced taking Swift's Specific (S.S.S.), and in a few months I was entirely cured, and to this great medicine do I attribute my recovery. This was over two years ago, and I have had no return or any effects of the disease since, and my skin is to-day as smooth as anybody's.—William Bowers, Covington, O.

SWIFT'S SPECIFIC S.S.S. Is as near infallible as it is possible for a medicine to be in the cure of Blood poison.

THE SECRET OF OUR SUCCESS.

WE CLAIM that a combination of local and constitutional treatment is necessary to thoroughly eradicate Catarrh. Exclusively local applications, if made when the trouble first begins, sometimes cure, but more frequently drive the disease to other parts of the system, where it develops in a far more serious form. Blood purifiers may improve the condition of the system, but they seldom cure—for they do not reach the seat of the disease. Certain Catarrh Cure is the only preparation which combines local and constitutional treatment, and can consistently claim to cure Catarrh in all its forms and stages. It is cheap, easily used, purely vegetable, entirely harmless. By it, others, who had no faith, have been cured: YOU CAN BE, whether you have had the disease one year or fifty; whether it is in the head, stomach or bladder. TRY IT NOW.

DELAY IS DANGEROUS.

Past Failures Need not Discourage You.

In Support of Our Claims,

We offer the testimony of those who have tried Certain Catarrh Cure to their entire satisfaction. "An ounce of experience is worth a pound of theory." Our endorsers are well known persons, who are alive and can be found. Not one of our testimonials was purchased at any price. They are the voluntary expressions of parties who seek to benefit humanity. A perusal of them will surely convince you that our claims are well founded. If you have Catarrh, you cannot afford to be indifferent to its progress. Treatment cannot be commenced too early. The longer disease continues, the more time it will require to be eradicated. Your unsatisfactory experience with other remedies should not influence you against ours. Lay aside distrust; give Certain Catarrh Cure a fair test, and you will, throughout the remainder of your life, feel thankful to us for the advice.

We have handled Certain Catarrh Cure since its first introduction. It has given general satisfaction, and such has been the increase in demand, that our purchases during the last six months have amounted to nearly twenty-five gross.—The Lamar Drug Co., Atlanta, Ga., May 1st, 1889.

DON'T BE DECEIVED by the offer of a large reward in case some medicine fails to cure you. If the reward is claimed, there is always some way to evade its payment; if never claimed, it is no evidence that everybody, or anybody, has been cured; but it speaks well for the intelligence of our people, that no one is fool enough to expect its payment. $1,000,000 might be offered with equal safety; for it is needless to say that the user of such medicines always dies before their proprietors are convinced that he "can't be cured." It is one of the most deceptive schemes that ever insulted an enlightened people.

We are disposed to give the public every protection possible against the imposition of scheming frauds or worthless nostrums, but NO DEPENDENCE CAN BE PLACED IN GUARANTEES. If Congress will pass a law by which all medicines are subjected to a thorough test, and their merits—in the diseases which they claim to cure—are fully established before they can be offered for sale, we will heartily favor it. An honest remedy suffers more from the failure of other preparations to establish their claims, than from all other causes combined—as disappointment in one medicine causes distrust in many.

Certain Catarrh Cure is mentioned so favorably, by our customers that we have great confidence in its merits.—Alexander Drug and Seed Co., Augusta, Ga.

Its Harmlessness.

Makes it entirely safe to try Certain Catarrh Cure for any trouble, without the slightest fear of injury. It is a purely vegetable preparation, and to the most delicate constitution, or organ of the body, can produce no bad effect whatever.

REMEMBER!

Certain Catarrh Cure is not simply a snuff or local application, to drive the disease from the nasal organs into the system; nor a blood remedy, to tone up the system and leave the nasal parts uncured; but it is a combination of both methods, and the only remedy which will give satisfaction in the many different stages of catarrh.

DIGEST OF THE NEWS

Interesting Digest of the Happenings of the Past Week Culled From the Associated Press.

Washington, Criminal, Foreign, Personal, Casualty, and Other Important News.

AROUND WASHINGTON.

The supplemental band of twenty-two Sioux have arrived in Washington and will visit Secretary Noble.

Secretary Blaine has purchased the old Seward mansion, in which he now resides.

Senator Stewart presented a memorial of the National Farmers' Alliance urging that congress amend the constitution so as to prevent the establishment of lotteries in any state or territory.

Senator Paddock reported from the committee on agriculture his bill known as the pure food bill, with two unimportant amendments. The amendments are merely verbal and in no way affect the general purpose of the measure.

Sir Julian Pauncefote prepared a statement, which was sent to Lord Salisbury, denying the authenticity of the alleged interview with the minister on the supreme court decision on the Sayward case which was cabled to the London Times.

Some time ago Assistant Commissioner Stone made a decision relative to valuable lands near Seattle, Wash., in which he held that the entries under the land law were valid. Secretary Noble has ordered the case before himself and the case may be reopened and reversed. The lands are owned mostly by Gen. Alger of Michigan, who is now in Washington on this business.

Assistant Secretary Spaulding has informed a correspondent in Texas that goods which arrive in the United States in transit merely for Mexico or other foreign countries do not come within scope of section 6 of the tariff act in regard to marking, branding, etc., for the reason that such goods are not considered importations.

Commissioner Nichols, of the bureau of patents, has submitted to congress his annual report. The aggregate number of applications for patents and for registration of trade marks and labels has exceeded that of any preceeding year in the history of the patent office, and the number of patents granted and trade marks and labels registered has correspondingly increased. The income last year from copies of patents alone was $60,000.

PEOPLE IN PRINT.

The funeral of John C. Kemble, formerly city editor of the Seattle, Wash., Journal, and who died in that city a few weeks ago, will be held at Trinity chapel, New York.

A joint resolution was offered in the Ohio legislature requesting Senator Sherman to vote against the admission of Senator-elect Brice to the United States senate on the ground that he is not a resident of Ohio, but of New York.

Rev. Dr. T. N. Hasselquist, for thirty years president of Augustana college and for forty years the senior minister of the Swedish Lutheran Augustana synod, died at Rock Island, Ill., He was born at Skone, Sweden, in 1816.

The body of the young man who cut his throat in the Astor house New York, and who had registered as "Fred Evans, England," is said to have been identified. A caller who did not give his name, identified the body as that of Frederic Evans, a well known western mind reader.

UNFORTUNATE EVENTS.

Nine children were burned to death and several others fatally injured by a fire in an orphan asylum at Moscow, Russia.

Elmer Clark, superintendent of the Kansas City Cable Railway company, was killed. He was standing in front of a grip car, which started suddenly.

All of the fishermen caught in the ice floe near Bay City, Mich., with two exceptions, have been heard from, and these two are thought to be safe.

A poorhouse near Waterville, Me., was destroyed by fire. A demented girl named Butler is missing and is supposed to have burned to death. The other inmates suffered terribly from the cold.

From some cause as yet unknown a fire broke out in the stable of Havelow & Bernstein in Boston early one morning and entirely burned that building and sixty-five horses.

J. B. Ells, the patient at a Kansas City hospital afflicted with consumption, and upon whom Dr. Baum of Kansas City, Kan., experimented with Koch's lymph, has died. The coroner will make a post mortem examination.

The works of the Eau Claire Gas company blew up with tremendous force and one-half of the plant was utterly destroyed. Richard Pitt, who was in charge of the works at the time, was seriously hurt. John Conley, aged seventeen, was dug out of the debris by the firemen and was found to be unhurt. The pecuniary loss is $10,000.

It is certain that the seventeen missing men in the Hayden mine disaster are all dead and that most of them drowned in their chambers. The water on the pitch of the slope has raised 200 yards, which is a higher point than any of the breasts arched. Even though they were not drowned, they would die from suffocation long before the water can be pumped out.

News of a serious wreck on the Cotton Belt railroad six miles south of Clarendon, Ark., has just reached Little Rock. The north-bound passenger train which left Pine Bluff at 2:20 p. m., was wrecked. One report says nine people were killed, another only four, and still another (from a railroad man) that only a fireman was killed and several others injured.

A fire in the five-story building at Green Point, L. I., occupied by E. D. Church as a soda water factory, caused a damage of $20,000 to stock and building. The entire block is occupied by the factory. At 1:55 two tanks containing 5,000 gallons each in the factory of the Brooklyn oil works were on fire. The efforts of the firemen were immediately set at these and it is probable that the oil works will be saved.

WAYS OF THE WICKED.

At Friar's Point, Miss., three negroes confined in jail set the building on fire and were burned to death.

Mr. and Mrs. Reilly have been murdered at Ballyjamesduff, county Cavan, Ireland. It is an grarian crime.

At Clark's, Neb., the residence of Banker Cowles was burglarized. Cowles was knocked senseless and his wife killed. The burglars secured about $50 in cash and escaped.

The Mexican police arrested James T. Henry, who is wanted in Canada on the charge of robbing the Bank of Montreal of cash and securities amounting to $1,500,000. Henry's big haul was made Dec. 13 last.

Two burglars were going through Judge H. J. Ewing's house at Cleveland, Ohio, when the judge opened fire with a pistol. John Farley, a colored man, one of the thieves, was mortally wounded.

Judge J. A. Warder, city attorney of Chattanooga, Tenn., is in jail for the murder of his son-in-law, Banker Fugette. The grand jury have found an indictment for murder in the first degree.

After a trial of ten days Capt. W. H. Richardson, of the Scatterfield (Ind.) White Caps, has been acquitted. The cases against five men indicted with Richardson will be dismissed. Great indignation prevails over the verdict.

Two masked men entered a tent at McCartyville, an isolated railroad town in the northern part of Missoula county, Mont., and shot five men, two of whom died. The masked men took $700 and escaped to the mountains. In an hour after the tragedy Deputy Sheriff Sprague was in pursuit, and since his dispatch sent the next day after the tragedy, nothing has been heard of the officer and it is believed he has been killed. A posse has gone in search of the missing deputy.

Charles and Eugene Duryea, two green goods swindlers, were arrested by Constable Schreve near Union City, Pa., in a very clever manner. They had made an appointment with Miles M. Walrod, a butcher, to meet him in the woods near that place, and for $500 deliver to him $5,000 in spurious money. Walrod concealed Constable Schreve in a large meat box in his wagon, where the officer overheard all the conversation, and at the proper time with the aid of Walrod captured the swindler. Emma Duryea, a sister of the defendants, is now under bail to appear at the next term of the quarter sessions to answer to the same charge. More arrests will follow.

OTHER SHORES.

The Duke of Orleans is going to Turkey and Persia.

Prof. Koch is in Vienna en route to Constantinople.

Honduras is reported to be on the verge of a revolution.

Nine soldiers were killed by an explosion of dynamite at Montpelier, France.

A total of 1,225 Italian emigrants left Trieste for America in January.

Ten thousand shoemakers in London have gone on strike for an increase in wages.

In Berlin it is stated that Wissmann has sent his resignation as African commissioner to the emperor.

The Central Farmers' Institute of Canada has passed a resolution in favor of free trade with the United States and England.

King Humbert of Italy has accepted Signor Crispi's resignation and entrusts the Marquis di Rudini with the task of forming a cabinet.

It is asserted that Senor Zorilla, the Spanish agitator, and the Spanish Republicans provided funds for the aid of the insurgents who took part in the recent revolt in Operto.

Advices received by the Gaulois from its correspondent in Buenos Ayres are that the Chilian Insurgents have been obliged to abandon La Serena and Coquimbo and that the harbor of Iquique has been reopened. The reports also say that the government will raise the blockade at Valparaiso in three days unless the insurgents make another attack in the meantime.

The Manitoba school law, which abolishes the Catholic schools and obliges Catholics to support the national secular schools, was again sustained by the Manitoba court of appeals as constitutional. The case came up on an appeal from a similar judgment of the lower court. It will now go to the supreme court at Ottawa and thence to the imperial privy council.

SPORTS.

John Griffin and Tommy Warren, featherweights, have been matched for a glove contest for a purse of $2,000 before the Audubon Athletic club, New Orleans, Feb. 9. Five-ounce gloves will be used and the men are to weigh in at 129 pounds.

President Parsons, of the Louisville club has forwarded to President Thurman the following names of players: Taylor, Shinnick, Raymond, Tanney, Stratton, Ewing, Daly, Ehret, Cook, Vaughn, Ryan, Weaver, Wolf, Hamburg and Browning. Meakin, Goodale and Bligh will be disposed of to the highest bidder.

Austin Gibbonds, the undefeated lightweight prize fighter returned to New York from New Orleans, where he recently went to fight Andy Brown. The latter at the last moment refused to make the match. Gibbons says he has left $500 as a forfeit to make a match with either Billy Meyer or Jack McAuliffe.

The following is given by the New York Tribune as the New York team for 1891: Catchers, Ewing, Buckley, Brown and Clarke; pitchers, Keefe, Rusie, Welch, Crane and Sharrott; first base, Conner; second base, Richardson; short stop, Glasscock; third base, Denny; outfielders, Gore Tiernan, Slattery and O'Rourke.

LABOR CIRCLES.

The socialists of Chicago have adopted a resolution demanding that the managers of the world's fair must employ union labor upon all work in connection with it.

Fifty miners on a strike at the Cumberland mine in Castle district Helena, Mont, went in a body, and endeavored to drive away by force all men at work. Superintendent Lewis and the foremen stood the strikers off until officers arrived, when the fifty men were arrested.

The fourth convention of the National Patternmakers' league is in session at Chicago. A committee will be appointed to effect a federation of the machinists, molders, brass workers and patternmakers. The convention will also discuss the question of demanding an eight-hour day on May 1, 1891. The entire day was occupied in discussing proposed changes in the constitution and by-laws.

MISCELLANEOUS NOTES.

The Nebraska house has passed a bill prohibiting any company or corporation from employing armed forces while a strike is pending.

Five Chicago doctors have returned from a visit to Berlin. They believe Koch's discovery will lead to wonderful developments in the field of medicine.

The Arkansas legislature has refused to vote money for the Columbian exposition on the ground that the state cannot afford it.

State Geologist Spencer, who was "knocked-out" recently at fisticuffs by State Treasurer Hardmann, tendered his resignation to Gov. Norbein and it was accepted.

A mortgage of $12,000 has been placed on the Weldon farm, on which live George J. Schweinfurth and his disciples. The name of Schweinfurth does not appear upon the instrument, and as it is the general opinion that the leader of the new sect is in receipt of about $100 a day in the way of tithes there is some speculation as to the reason the 500 heavenly acres, worth at least $30,000, have been mortgaged.

Attorney General Hunt has begun proceedings to wind up the affairs of the Cook County (Ill.) Mutual Live Stock Insurance company, which was organized Jan. 1, 1888. Outstanding liabilities amount to only $9,000.

BIGAMY IS CHARGED

She was married to Beard three years ago at Hudson, Wis. He represented to her that he had been married before, but that his wife was dead. About a year previous to that time Mrs. Beard left her home and taught school in Knapp, Wis. At the expiration of the term she lived at Beard's home and kept house for him and his daughter by the first wife. Here the courtship began, which resulted in marriage. They came here about a year ago.

Several months ago Beard deserted her, and, as she has since learned, began paying attentions to Mrs. Lottie Blackman of this city, and last month married her, the wedding being quite a swell affair and made a great deal of in the newspapers. Mrs. Beard No. 2 was in ignorance of all this until a few days ago, when she came across a letter from the relatives of Wife No. 3.

WOULD BURN SIOUX CITY.

Incendiaries Seem to Be Carrying Things With a High Hand.

SIOUX CITY, Feb. 9.—The wholesale grocery store of Tolerton, Stetson & Co. was burned this evening. Loss on stock, $35,000; on building, $50,000.

While this fire was raging Lyon's gun store, less than two blocks away, was discovered to be on fire. The badly crippled department sent one hose team to work on the building, but the building being a two-story wooden structure, was soon burned to the ground, together with its contents. The upper floor was occupied as living rooms by two families, and it was rumored two children were burned to death, but this is not verified. The fires were clearly the work of incendiaries, done, it is supposed, for the purpose of robbery. It is now thought by many that it is the same gang that tried to burn the little town of Covington, just across the river, three weeks ago.

An attempt was made at 11:30 to start another fire in a second-hand store in Pearl street, but the blaze was discovered and checked by firemen.

PROFESSIONAL WITNESSES.

The Difficulty of Convicting Polish Criminals Explained.

SHENANDOAH, Pa., Feb. 9.—William and George Butsairage, Matt Moldazes and John Lalurnikus, four Poles, have been committed to jail in default of $2,500 bail each for murderously clubbing and stabbing five of their fellow countrymen who were instrumental in having a friend of one of the accused sent to jail for assault and highway robbery.

The men named are ringleaders of a society which has for its main object the avenging of wrongs done its members and the payment of all expenses of members who get into trouble before the courts. The discovery of the society's existence is of great importance. Of late it has been almost impossible for the commonwealth to convict Poles of crimes on account of the vast amount of testimony put up in favor of the accused. This kind of testimony is now believed to have been supplied by professional witnesses, members of the society.

RAPID GROWTH.

It Hinders One of the New States in Getting Settled Down.

WASHINGTON, Special Telegram, Feb. 9.—It is learned at the treasury department that a proposition is on foot to entirely reorganize the sub-ports of entry on Puget sound.

Considerable complaint has been made of the location at Bellingham bay and one or two other points, and an effort will be made to have them removed. This can be done by the treasury department without any legislation, as the act organizing the Puget sound collection district allowed the treasury department to fix upon sub-ports of entry. There has been more or less contention about the affairs in this collection district and the unsatisfactory state they appear to be in, and various people are petitioning for changes and removals and reorganization.

Most of these complaints, of course, are referred to the Washington state delegation, as the members have more accurate knowledge of the existing state of affairs than can be obtained by the treasury officials. The new State of Washington seems to have some trouble in getting settled down, and the rapid growth of various sections necessitates changes not foreseen a few months previous.

GAVE HIMSELF AWAY.

A Young Man Confesses Murder, Believing He Was Soon to Die.

OMAHA, Feb. 9.—H. M. Rogers, a young insurance agent who came here from Chicago last week, attempted to commit suicide after writing a letter addressed to the United States Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York, confessing that he murdered his sweetheart last summer near Mercer, Pa. He did not mention names, but admits that he assumed the name by which he was known. When he realized that he would live he made an effort to secure the letter, but the authorities had been apprised and secured the confession and took charge of Rogers. The Mercer authorities have been notified by telegraph. Rogers is intelligent and of good address.

Cause of Mike Wilkes' Death.

STILLWATER, Special, Feb. 9.—Veterinary surgeons have examined into the cause of the death of the trotter and pacer, Mike Wilkes, who dropped dead on the ice race track on Friday. They found that it was caused by the rupture of a blood vessel over the kidneys, and this was done by a sudden strain. On Thursday he acted badly, making several jumps in harness, each of over twenty feet, which would account for the bursting of the blood vessel.

Negresses Slay Each Other.

DALLAS, Tex., Feb. 9.—A brutal murder was committed in the negro quarter. Two young colored women named Adelina Scroggins and a Mrs. Gilbreath were at a ball, when a quarrel began among them, which terminated in Mrs. Gilbreath being stabbed throught the heart by her infuriated rival. Before dying the victim seized an ax and dealt the murderess a terrible blow on the head, felling her to the earth, after which she droppeddead. The murderess is in jail.

PEPPERY.

Action of Chicago Workingmen Anent the World's Fair.

CHICAGO, Feb. 9.—The organized labor of Chicago hotly asserted itself to-day regarding the world's fair. It was at a regular meeting of the trades and labor assembly, a body said to represent 47,000 workingmen, and one of whose members was given a seat in the world's fair directory in recognition of the $300,000 subscribed by the workingmen to the guarantee fund of the fair.

Intense interest is manifested in the subject. There had been much discussion beforehand in the meetings of individual unions, and it was generally expected that a climax would be reached to-day.

Whereas, when it was first proposed to hold a world's Columbian exhibition in Chicago, organized labor was appealed to by the promoters of that institution to assist them in securing legislation and other influences in favor of Chicago; and, whereas, the members of the various trade unions and labor organizations of Chicago have subscribed liberally to the stock of said exposition; and, whereas, inducements were held out by the promoters of said exposition to the working people of Chicago that in all work done on the buildings of said exposition union labor should be recognized and have a preference over scab labor; and, whereas, the present directors of said exposition indicate an intention of not only refusing to recognize union labor, but threaten to employ indiscriminately non-union labor, thereby flooding the labor market of Chicago with the ultimate design of destroying the trade unions; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we, as union men, protest against this treacherous action of the directors of the world's Columbian exposition, and unless immediate action is taken in regard to this union labor, that we shall deem it our duty to oppose in every way any further legislation, either municipal, state or national, in favor of said world's Columbian exposition, and we hereby recommend all working men who have subscribed for said stock to decline to pay any further assessments until proper assurances are given by the directors that said implied plans will be kept;

Resolved, That unless satisfactory assurances are given by the directors that their indicated action will be changed we shall deem it our duty to ask the co-operation of every body of organized labor throughout the country to assist us in making our protest emphatic.

In an instant a dozen men were on the floor, and peppery speeches containing some pointed personalities followed. One speaker conclude with the assertion: "There is no doubt that it is the intention of the directory to kill organized labor." Mr. O'Connell here jumped up and shouted: "We will make the directory put a regiment of soldiers around their grounds if they employ scab labor. The day has passed when organized labor can be ignored in a great public enterprise of this kind." This was received with cheers and loud cries of "that's right."

STILL THE IRISH.

Parnell Condemned and Harrington Criticised by the Prelates.

DUBLIN, Feb. 9.—A pastoral letter from the Catholic primate was read in Catholic churches throughout Ireland to-day condemning Mr. Parnell's conduct and warning those engaged in the Boulogne negotiations to take care that the compromise reached be definite, as the country will have the last word to say on the issue.

Demonstrations by the two rival factions were held in Stradbally to-day. Plenty of policemen were present, and both demonstrations were orderly. Mr. Redmond addressed the Parnellites.

Several Irish bishops, following the example set by Archbishop Walsh, have written letters to the clergy of their dioceses in opposition to Mr. Harrington's appeal to the members of the National League to reorganize in view of the coming general elections. Archbishop Walsh advised clerical members of the league to combat such Parnellite "packing" by refusing to join in the trickery.

In reply to Archbishop Walsh, Mr. Harrington says the archbishop misjudges the object of the league's circular, which is similar to those issued annually by the league. Mr. Harrington says he informed Messrs. Dillon and O'Brien before issuing the circular that in consequence of the collapse of the American tour he had determined to ask the league branches to help evicted tenants. Mr. Harrington advises the archbishop not to commit the priests too hastily to a policy which will lead to two hostile camps in every parish.

The Parnell leadership committee have agreed to dissolve in view of the accession of Mr. Dillon.

Valuable Stallions Burned.

HURON, S. D., Special Telegram, Feb. 9.—The livery barn of L. C. Treadway was destroyed by fire early this morning. Twenty-four horses, several carriages, buggies, harness, etc., were consumed. Among the horses were two stallions valued at $1,000 and $2,000 each. The loss is about $12,000; only small insurance. The origin of the fire is not known. The warerooms of the Huron Furniture company were also badly damaged and some stock injured. The artesian well and the fire company saved the west portion of the town from destruction.

Badly Banged Up.

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—The Hamburg-American Packet company's steamship Polaria, from Copenhagen, regarding whose safety much anxiety has been felt, reached port to-day, five days overdue. Her foremast was gone, her engines were out of order, the bulwark forward on her starboard side were replaced with rough, unplaned boards, and she presented a battered appearance generally. The damage was done in a storm on Jan. 27.

A Millionaire's Son Missing.

CHICAGO, Feb. 9.—Thomas Dudley Easton, aged thirty-eight, said to be the son of millionaire parents living at Mount Sterling, Ky., has been mysteriously missing since last Tuesday. Easton has been connected with an insurance company in Chicago for several years. The last seen of him was at the entrance to the Palmer house, where he stepped out of a cab, leaving a loaded revolver on the seat. Mental aberration and foul play are the suggested solutions of the mystery.

Wouldn't Give Up His Ticket.

ECKLEY, Col., Feb. 9.—Section men found the body of a man lying in a ditch west of here this morning. On examination the man proved to be S. Brayer of Rochester, N. Y. A ticket was found in his pocket from Rochester to Denver. The railroad men say he was ejected from the train because he refused to give up his ticket after the train left McCook.

Sickness and Suicide.

LAKE CITY, Minn., Special Telegram, Feb. 9.—Mrs. Fred Cosenbrook of this city committed suicide by hanging to-day while temporarily insane in consequence of physical illness. She leaves a husband and two young children.

A SOUTHERN LOVE STORY.

The Eckly plantation lies near Campbell's Bend on the Arkansas side of the Mississippi river. Old Maj. Eckly, the owner of the plantation, has, in many respects, the unstrung liberty of the ideal planter, yet in other respects he is prejudiced and narrowly self-opinioned.

Zalie, the major's daughter was regarded as the handsomest girl of a community in which handsome girls were not rare. She had made an impression upon the brilliant social life of New Orleans, and had received offers of marriage from many well known men, but had refused them. The truth is, she loved a man named Bickles, a young fellow without fortune without prospects, and, still worse, without particular industry.

Bickles was bright and pleasingly humorous, he told amusing stories in a lazy sort of way which was of itself attractive, and the old major was exceedingly friendly toward him until Bickels one day began to speak of Zalie. He told the old major of his great love for her. The old man turned upon him with fury.

"Why, confound your impudent hide, get out of my house," the major yelled. Get out! Don't stop to say a word. I could tolerate you so long as I suppored you to be simply an amusing pauper, but, finding that you are nursing a design against my—my—get out, I tell you!"

"Wait a minute, major, you will surely give me a chance to defend myself."

"No, I won't!" shouted the major.

"Then you compel me to take it. Now, the only way to meet this trouble, and it seems to be a serious one, is to meet it without excitement. Now, wait don't fly to pieces, for, if scattered, you will be in no condition to deal with this subject."

"Don't fool yourself, young man. My first objection is my affection for my daughter."

"What's that got to do with it?"

"It's got this to do with it; I don't want to see her married to a man who is not able to of take care her. You have no money, sir."

"Won't need much money. We could live here with you."

"Oh, you could, you trifling rascal."

"Yss, I could live here very comfortably, I could take charge of the plantation, and could relieve you of a great deal of trouble."

"Oh, yes; I've no doubt that you could relieve me of everything I've got."

"I would promise you that you should never regret our marriage."

"Oh, I reckson so. You would run me so completely crazy that I shouldn't have sense enough to regret anything."

"I would work faithfully."

"Yes, oh, yes; work your jaws when something was put between them."

"Mention some of your other objections."

"It is not necessary; the one under discussion answers every purpose."

"It may answer all your purposes, but it doesn't answer mine. Let me tell you that your daughter loves me, and that I promise to work faithfully, if you give your consent, but if you don't I will run away with her without making any promise at all."

"Oh, is that a fact!" the old man sarcastically rejoined. "Run away with her, eh? All right; I will follow along and seek an early opportunity of filling your hide so full of holes that it wouldn't hold wheat straw. Loves you, does she? Ah, ha—loves you! Well, now I'll call her, and you may start to run away with her right at once. Better roll up your breeches before you start. Loves you, does she?"

"Yes, I do." The girl stepped out upon the veranda.

The old major turned angrily upon her.

"Yes, I do," she repeated; "but I will not marry him without your consent. For gracious sake, don't say anything more, for here comes Gen. Griddleton."

Bickles withdrew. Gen. Griddleton, an old fellow with a pompous air and broken veins in his face, dismounted at the gate. He and the major were the warmest of friends. For each other's sake they were self-sacrificing; they would fight for each other, and, at poker, they had often won each other's money.

"Ah, good morning, general."

"Ah, major, good morning."

"Beautiful weather, general,"

"Major, magnificent."

This form of greeting changed with the weather, and people who were accustomed to see the two old men meet each other had long since ceased to smile at their ludicrous gallantry, so familiar had the system of salutation become.

"Zalie," said the major, "go into the house, I have something in paticular to say to the general. What do you think?" he added, when the girl had withdrawn, "that infernal Bickles wants to marry my daughter."

"The trifling rascal!" the general exclaimed.

"And he swears," the major continued, "that if I don't give my consent he will run away with her."

"Oh, the venomous wolf!" the general cried.

"He is a pauper!" said the major.

"And a wretch!" declared the general.

"General you have always stood by me."

"And I always will."

"Give me your hand."

They shook hands and then entered into the close and absorbing communion of a game of poker.

A few weeks later the major and general went down to New Orleans, and as they were returning on a steamboat, the general suddenly exclaimed:

"By George! major, yonder is a man who did me a favor in Havana. "Yes," gazing intently, "that is Victor Dinzolas, one of the most prominent planters in Cuba. He's coming this way."

The general advanced to meet the Cuban, who came walking with an easy, graceful swing down the cabin, bowed, made an open arm gesture and said:

"Pardon me if I make a mistake, but is not this the Honorable Victor Dinzolas?"

The Cuban, after a moments reflection, recognized the general, and, with graceful heartiness, seized his hand. When the major had been introduced the party withdrew to the bar. Dinzolas was not an ill-looking man; he wore enormous black whiskers and long hair, and spoke English easily, but with a slight Spanish accent. After several "rounds" at the bar the general proposed a game of poker. No objections were raised; the Cuban was accommodating. They went to a private apartment, and were soon deep in the thrilling anxiety of the "great American pastime." From the very first Dinzolas began to win. The major snorted and the general fumed, but the Cuban, undisturbed, still continued to rake in the money.

It must have been nearly daylight when the major shoved back his chair and said,—

"I'm broke."

"So am I," the general took occasion to remark.

"I am very sorry, gentlemen," the Cuban declared, "for I have just begun to get interested in the game. Have you nothing that you can put up?"

"No," the major remarked. "As I have often been compelled to remark, I have nothing left except my plantation, my soul, and my daughter."

"Ah," said the Cuban, "would you like to put up one of them—the plantation or the daughter?"

"Sir!" exclaimed the major, springing to his feet, "what do you mean?"

"Oh, no offence, I assure you. I have more respect for my friend, the general, than to insult his friend. I once won a young lady—please be seated, major; don't be excited, for I assure you that I meant no insult."

"Major, hear what he's got to say," the general interposed.

The major sat down; the Cuban continued:

"Once, in the City of Mexico, I played for a gentleman's daughter and won her. An agreement was drawn up, reading about this way: 'I agree to give the bearer my daughter so-and-so, providing he can gain her consent.' I won the paper bearing the words, but in truth did not win the girl. She spurned me. Perhaps I should be more fortunate another time."

"Will you excuse the major and me if we request a private interview?" the general asked addressing Victor Dinzolas.

"Most assuredly; I will withdraw."

"Don't this beat anything you ever heard of?" said the major when the Cuban had withdrawn.

"Rather peculiar, I must say; but let me tell you I see good in it. Agree to his proposal, put up Zalie."

"General, do you take me for an infernal barbarian?"

"Oh, no. Now, if you put up your daughter and lose her, this Cuban might come around, and—well, he might scare the life out of Bickles."

The major slapped the general on the shoulder.

The Cuban resumed his place, put up a thousand dollars against Zalie and won. Shortly afterward the boat landed at Campbell's Bend.

One afternoon, several days later, the major and the general sat on the veranda overlooking the broad field of cotton.

"Major, is Bickles still hanging around?"

"He was here yesterday, but left somewhat downcast, as Zalie positively refused to marry him without my consent. Who is that coming through the big gate? By gracious! 'tis that infernal Cuban."

"That's who it is."

"Confound my fool hide. I wish I hadn't done that caper. I wouldn't have done it if I hadn't been half drunk. Now that's a nice piece of paper he's got. Wish Bickles was here. I'd soon have them chewing each other. I don't know what to do."

Zalie came out on the veranda.

"Oh, what is that?" she asked.

"Zalie," thundered the major, "go into the house!"

"No offense. Will my friend the general, explain the object of my visit?"

"I will," the general answered, "but would first like to send for a friend of mine, Bickles."

"My time is limited. Will the general explain?"

The general explained; the girl listened with deep interest.

"Oh, how romantic," she said, "how charmingly uncommon! Sir," extending her hand toward the Cuban, "I'll go with you."

"What!" the major roared, "go with this barbarian? No, not if he had fifty plantations."

The major sat down.

The girl obeyed. The Cuban came up the steps.

"Ah, general, glad to see you again; and the major I hope he has not forgotten me."

"No," said the major; sit down."

The Cuban took a seat and began to fan himself with his broad-brimmed hat. The major snorted; the general hemmed and hawed.

"Ah," said the Cuban, "is Miss—Miss—let me see (examining the paper) ah, Miss Zalie. Is she at home?"

"Look here," said the major, "I want you to understand that my daughter is not a slave."

"Oh, certainly, I understand that, but she is mine if I can win her. This paper—"

"Hang the paper!"

"But, as a gentleman, you can not, ah, give me a word here, can not repudiate."

"That's a fact," the major admitted.

"Will you call her?"

The major's face grew livid with rage, but he called Zalie. She came out, and when the Cuban was presented, she bowed with charming grace.

"A very handsome girl," said the Cuban. "She has many fine points."

"Sir!" thundered the major, springing to his feet.

"You are right," he said "you are right, but I don't understand my daughter; don't understand her. I thought she was a woman of pride, but I don't understand her,"

"I do, said the Cuban. He snatched off his false whiskers and long hair revealing the familiar features of Bickles.

The major snorted like a frightened horse. For several moments he could say nothing. Then he turned upon the general.

"You old—old—"

"Hold on major" said the general, laughingly. "Here is the money the Cuban won from you on the boat."

The major took up the money, and tucking it into his vest, pocket remarked,—

"Bickles you've got more sense than I thought you had, and I reckon I'll have to stand my contract.

WINTER CAMP IN THE WOODS.

How to Keep Warm With the Mercury 32 Degrees Below Zero.

Cut two strong crotched posts, the one ten and the other four feet in length; these with a stout pole 18 feet long, constitute the timbers. Set the posts firmly in the ground, 12 feet apart, and lay the pole in the crotches, letting the small end, which should be sharpened for the purpose, into the ground a foot or more, so that it cannot slip.

Fell a straight basswood, poplar or pine, cut into proper lengths and rive these into shakes; place the shakes on each side of the pole letting them diverge some eight or nine feet at the front or highest end of the shanty, the shakes being shorter and the shanty growing lower and narrower as you work back to the far end.

Set the shakes edge to edge as closely as possible, and cover the whole with earth to the depth of a foot, not forgetting to place a layer of grass or dried leaves beneath the dirt, to prevent its sifting through the chinks. Place a foot log across the broader end of the shanty and fasten it with pins driven in the ground. This is essential, as without it the shanty is pretty certain to take fire sooner or later.

If the shanty is only intended for autumn weather, you will hardly need a fireplace; but if to be occupied during a part of the bitter Northern winter, make a snug fireplace and a close chimney, by all means.

To do this, build the chimney of sticks, chinked with clay; let it be of the width of the shanty at bottom, carried up at the same angle, or nearly so, with an oblong opening at top 8 inches wide by 20 inches deep, and fitted closely to the end of the shanty by "chinkin and daubin'" An aperture at the side of the chimney, 14x20 inches to close with a close-fitting shake, will be sufficient for a door, and in such a camp, with a good campfire and plenty of browse, blankets and furs, a man may defy the weather with the mercury at 32° below zero, as I happen to know.—Forest and Stream.

Returned, With Thanks.

In is a great mistake for the literary aspirant to imagine that his returned manuscript has committed any offence, or that his muse, if he has strided Pegasus, cannot soar. What he must do is to sail forth with it again, until it reaches a favored port, which it will surely do if it has the requisite merit, somewhere and at some date. President Lincoln used to say, when he was trying faithfully and with great diligence to place the various able men who were presented to him for the civil service and for the army, that it was a very difficult matter to get the square pegs in the round holes and the round pegs in the square ones. And it is justly this difficulty which confronts the writer for periodicals and magazines. No matter how experienced he may be, he will often fail before he brings his commodity to the market which waits for it.

But editors do not wish to be cruel or hard-hearted, however much they may seem so to the unspurred and unfledged writer. The very best and most famous of them have often told me that one of the saddest and most thankless duties they have to perform, is to return a contribution that for some good reason does not prove to be available. When I once wrote some verses treating this necessity humorously, I had to apply to three editors in succession before I could get them printed, the first two assuring me sorrowfully that the matter was quite too serious to be treated with levity.—The Ladies' Home Journal.

Beer-Drinking Exploits.

An extraordinary state of matters was proved to have taken place at Ince, near Wigan (during an inquiry by Mr. Brighouse, the county coroner, into the death of a man who had been drowned in the Liverpool and Leeds canal). A comrade of the deceased stated that he had seen him the previous afternoon, and up to that time he might have had a dozen pints of beer (six quarts). At night they had two glasses and afterward four small glasses of whisky. It was further shown that in the course of the afternoon and evening the deceased and another man had a wager as to who could drink three pints of beer in the shortest time, and that he drank these three pints under five minute's time,—in fact, in half the time it took the other man. No wonder this man, when he started to go home, lost his way in the darkness and fog, and that when he fell into the canal he was unable to help himself out. The beer drank by the Germans and Bavarians is a much lighter beverage, and therefore probably contains less alcohol.—London Lancet.

THE INDIANS AGAIN.

A large number of the settlers east of here came in again last Friday badly frightened and reported that the Indians were dancing again. Hans Fredrickson who lives near the reservation reported that the Indians shot three times at him Thursday night while he was working near his barn. The Indians were reported to have been dancing and shooting off their guns all night and the settlers were as badly frightened as ever There is positively no danger of the Indians attacting any settler unless he is caught or has been stealing timber on the reservation. If the settlers let the timber alone the trouble would cease and if it is not speedily stopped the guilty parties should be arrested, there is no doubt that a very large amount of timber has been stolen from the reservation and the Indians can hardly be blamed for trying to protect their property especially as the Indians will soon be given lands in severalty and intend to take the land which the settlers are now trying to steal all the timber from. It is the duty of every law abiding settler to try and stop this and prevent further trouble.

Great Falls (Mont.) Leader: The defeat of the election bill is a blow to the friends of honest elections. There was absolutely nothing in the bill which could be objected to by fair minded men. The times are coming to that point when the citizens of the United States will rise up and demand a free and untrammeled ballot, For years in Montana a few democratic millionairs have bought votes right and left and thereby carried elections, The registration law and the Australian law have, in a measure, put a stop to this fraud. The fedral election bill was designed to further secure honest elections. Its object was a good one. To the party which exists by fraud must be given the credit of its defeat.

Capt, Gresham, in looking over an old account book in the store of one of our merchants found the following charges paid for goods in 1865, in St. Peter.

Kerosene per gallon	$1.25
Apples per peck	1.00
Tea per pound	2.50

The above are only a few of the articles and prices quoted, If there are any grumblers, let them compare prices now and then, and we are satisfied they will conclude that they are buying goods cheaper to-day than any time during their lives. Mr. P, J. McGuire left on Wednesday with his family for Duluth, where as before announced he has found business opening which his many friends will sincerely hope may prove a profitable one. His departure from our city will leave a void which it will be hard to fill, and the loss will not be felt by this city alone but by the whole northwestern part of the state where he is well known and his extraordinary ability and goodfellowship is appreciated at its true worth, To him and to his estimable wife Crookston extends a unanimous wish that they may have all the happiness and prosperity that this earth affords. Our people will always be interested in their welfare and glad to know of their success, Should they ever conclude to again come back to us—and most of those who leave us do—they will find as warm and hearty a welcome as they could wish for.—Crookston Times

Washington Feb. 10,—An important feature of the programme for the future treatment of the Indian question is the scheme now being prepared by the war department for the enlistment of a number of young bucks for service in the ranks of the army. It is proposed to enlist about 2000 including 600 or 700 scouts. A Separate regiment composed entirely of Indians will not be organized as at first proposed by some army officers, for the reason that it is not regarded as perfectly safe to bring such a large body of uncivilized and treacherous people together. Separate companies, however will be organized and about one attached to each of the infantry and cavalry regiments serving in the west, Those companies will be officered by men especially selected for their knowledge of Indians and their habits. The plan is strongly recommended by Gen. Miles, who believes that future peace among the Indians can best be secured by this method of employing the young bucks who would otherwise make it incumbent on the army to exercise the keenest vigilance to keep them out of mischief.—St. Paul Dispatch.

An event not often occurring in this city took place on Friday evening of last week that of an elopement in which the principal actors were young Mr. Thebarge, a French girl and her pa. The particulars as learned by the Times reporter are here given in acts'

Act I. Young Thebarge had been paying his attention to the girl for some time and at last concluded to marry her, In this part of the scene his mother steps in and prevents it.

Act II. The failure of this purpose soon worked upon his mind. He then decides to leave for "pastures green," having obtained $400 of his mother's money (against her will.)

Act III. He then goes to the depot, purchases three tickets direct to Duluth and on Friday evening, boarding the train at Carman, the trio leave for the "promised land."

Act IV. The mother soon sees the path her son is leading, and puts the case in chief Gonyea's hands. He telegraphed officials at neighboring places, and from advices received in reply betook himself to Fargo where he found the deserting trio, lured them across the boundary to Moorhead, arrested and brought them back,—Crookston Times.

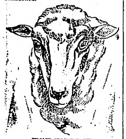
THE RAISING OF SHEEP.

BY THOROUGH VIGILANCE, INTELLIGENCE AND NECESSARY KINDNESS,

Together With the Favorable Climate, Feeding Grounds and Means of Shelter Found in Minnesota and the Dakotas; It Can Be Made a Profitable and Pleasant Occupation.

Sheep husbandry was one of the first and favored occupations of civilized man. Shepherds still tend their flocks on the hills of Bible lands as did the patriarchs of forty centuries ago. There has been little change or improvement, however, in the appearance, wool or meat of these old time flocks, and for that matter the shepherds have changed but little themselves. No animal perhaps is so universally distributed over the world, furnishing food and clothing for mankind, as the sheep. The rearing of sheep therefore is no new business. For novices to engage in it for temporary speculation, however, it is a matter of risk.

It is the prediction of The Western Rural that sheep will always be largely bred in this country, whether we have high tariff or low tariff, or no tariff at all. The excellence of sheep as farm stock shows itself too conspicuously, in several ways, for the business ever to be abandoned.

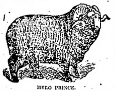


CHOICE SPRING LAMB.

The farmers of the Northwest are taking much interest in the industry, but many of them lack the necessary knowledge and experience. The profit in sheep husbandry depends upon the proper selection of the stock and the attention given the flocks. These requirements met, combined with its favorable climate and grasses, will make the Dakotas and Minnesota as noted for wool and mutton as they now are for wheat.

The flesh and wool of the sheep are the products of the soil; the best grass for them is the low growing and clinging varieties common in the west, which, combined with wild plants, make excellent pasturage. Success in the sheep business in the Northwest has passed beyond the experimental stage—with the right kind of men. Profits depend largely upon the individual. The lazy, indifferent man will usually fail. Let no one engage in the business with the idea that it is play. It does not require as much muscle as it does brains, vigilance and kindness.

In a letter to The Northwestern Farmer and Breeder, of St. Paul, but formerly located at Fargo—and by the way, every sheep raiser and farmer should be a subscriber—Hon. E. M. Prouty, president of the North Dakota state board of agriculture, says that he knows, after years of experience, that there is annual profit in sheep raising; that along the line of the Great Northern, west of the Red River valley, there are still innumerable places adapted to the business.



HERO PRINCE.

This illustration is that of a Merino ram that sold for $3,500.

Superintendent O. C. Gregg, of the Minnesota Farmers' Institute, says that "Nature's antelope country, which is the prairie region of Western Minnesota and the Dakotas, is the sheep country of civilization."

Thousands of sheep for breeding purposes have been already imported from Montana. No doubt some ewes are too old for this use. On this account some disappointment will result. A prominent stock raiser of the Mouse River country states that a band of 1,000 ewes was brought into western North Dakota by an inexperienced man, who discovered when it was too late that they had no teeth wherewith to gather their food. An experienced flock master would have discovered this before purchasing.

Montana sheep may be hustlers, but they do better under shelter during stormy or cold weather than in the snow and rain, and water is better for them than snow to quench their thirst, and hay is superior to husks and brush to make flesh and wool. No doubt a good many of these new comers to the Dakotas are old ewes and weaklings culled from large flocks, and had they not been sold a fair share would probably have died this winter, and they may anyhow, unless extraordinary care is taken of them. This warning is given and the utmost caution is urged upon every new man who has embarked in a business he knows but little about. Unless you give extreme care to your flock this winter, next spring you may not have a very high opinion of the sheep business.

Every farmer should keep a few sheep, if only for domestic use. Mutton is a most desirable meat, as it is good in any form—roasted, baked, boiled, fried, stewed or hashed. It has a woolly taste only when the sheep is run down in flesh through starvation.

If you are not familiar with the business of handling sheep, go slow. Because a small flock is profitable do not imagine that large ones are. More dangers menace large flocks than the small ones near the house.

The observance of some general rules or system is necessary to the best success in establishing a profitable band of sheep.

Only ewes of one and two years should be bought.

The buyer should be satisfied that they are free from scab or foot rot.

For Minnesota and the Dakotas a Merino-Cotswold or Shropshire cross, an animal of fair excellence both for wool and mutton, seems to be the present favorite.

They should have roomy, well ventilated sheds for shelter from storms. The shelter may be left open on the south side. Observe cleanliness under foot.

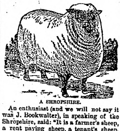
Never let them be exposed to storms, or, if possible, become chilled by cold rains. Nature has provided sheep protection against ordinary cold.

It takes some time for wet wool to dry, and in the meantime the sheep suffers, if they do not take cold. They can stand a good deal of water, but it should be inside and not outside. A soaking rain washes the dirt down to the skin and gives the wool a dingy appearance.

In fine weather at all seasons they should be kept during the day on the range. This is as necessary for healthful exercise as the purpose of securing food. Plenty of air is one of the essentials to the health of sheep.

Ranges infested with burrs and devil's needles should be avoided. The former spoil the wool; the latter have been known to kill sheep.

In lambing time the herder or owner should remain with the band day and night. "Eternal vigilance" is the price of lambs, as well as of the full grown sheep.



A SHROPSHIRE.

An enthusiast (and we will not say it was J. Bookwalter), in speaking of the Shropshire, said: "It is a farmer's sheep, a rent paying sheep, a tenant's sheep. It is a money making, wool producing, mutton carrying sheep. It's a bank, a save-all, a frugal living and quick fattening, hardy sheep."

Buy only the best pure blooded rams to improve your flock.

A THRILLING EXPERIENCE.

Remarkable Statement of Personal Danger and Providential Escape.

The following story—which is attracting wide attention from the press—is so remarkable that we cannot excuse ourselves if we do not lay it before our readers, entire.

To the Editor Rochester (N.Y.) Democrat:

Sir. On the first day of June, 1881, I lay at my residence in this city surrounded by my friends and waiting for death. Heaven only knows the agony I then endured, for words can never discribe it. And yet, if a few years previous any one had told me that I was to be brought so low, and by so terrible a disease, I should have scoffed at the idea. I had always been uncommonly strong and healthy, and weighed over 200 pounds and hardly knew in my own experience, what pain or sickness were. Very many people who will read this statement realize at times they are unusually tired and cannot account for it. They feel dull pains in various parts of the body and do not understand why. Or they are exceedingly hungry one day and entirely without appetite the next. This was just the way I felt when the relentless malady which had fastened itself upon me first began, Still I thought nothing of it; that probably I had taken a cold which would soon pass away. Shortly after this I noticed a heavy, and at times neuralgic, pain in one side of my head, but as it would come one day and be gone the next, I paid little attention to it. Then my stomach would get out of order and my food often failed to digest, causing at times great inconvenience. Yet, even as a physician I did not think that these things ment anything serious. I fancied I was suffering from malaria and doctored myself accordingly. But I got no better. I next noticed a peculiar color and odor about the fluids I was passing also that there were large quantities one day and very little the next, and that a persistent froth and scum appeared on the surface, and a sediment settled. And yet I do not realize my danger, for, indeed, seeing these symptoms continually, I finally became accustomed to them, and my suspicion was wholly disarmed by the fact that I had no pain in the effected organs or in their vicinity. Why I should have been so blind I cannot understand.

I consulted the best medical skill in the land. I visited all the famed mineral springs in America and traveled from Maine to California. Still I grew worse. No two physicians agreed as to my malady. One said I was troubled with spinal irritation; another, dyspepsia; another, heart disease; another, general debility; another, congestion of the base of the brain and so on through a long list of common diseases, the symptoms of many of which I really had. In this way several years passed, during which time I was steadily growing worse. My condition had really become pitiable. The slight symptoms I had at first experienced were developed into terrible and constant disorders. My weight had been reduced from 207 to 130 pounds. My life was a burden to myself and friends. I could retain no food on my stomach, and lived wholly by injections. I was a living mass of pain. My pulse was uncontrollable. In my agony I frequently fell to the floor and clutched the carpet, and prayed for death. Morphine had little or no effect in deadening the pain. For six days and nights I had the death premonitory hiccoughs constantly. My water was filled with tube-casts albumen. I was struggling with Bright's Disease of the kidneys in its last stages!

While suffering thus I received a call from my pastor, the Rev. Dr. Foote, at that time rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, of this city. I felt that it was our last interview, but in the course of conversation Dr. Foote detailed to me the many remarkable cures of cases like my own which had come under his observation. As a practicing physician and a graduate of the schools, I derided the idea of any medicine outside the regular channels being in the least beneficial. So solicitous, however, was Dr. Foote, that I finally promised I would waive my prejudice. I began its use on the first day of June, 1881, and took it according to directions. At first it sickened me; but this I thought was a good sign for one in my debilitated condition. I continued to take it; the sickening sensation departed and I was finally able to retain food upon my stomach. In a few days I noticed a decided change for the better, as also did my wife and friends. My hiccoughs ceased and I experienced less pain than formerly. I was so rejoiced at this improved condition that, upon what I had believed but a few days before was my dying bed, I vowed, in the presence of my family and friends, should I recover, I would both publicly and privately make known this remedy for the good of humanity, wherever and whenever I had an opportunity, and this letter is in fulfillment of that vow. My improvement was constant from that time, and in less than three months I had gained 26 pounds in flesh, became entirely free from pain and I believe I owe my life and present condition wholly to Warner's Safe Cure, the remedy which I used.

Since my recovery I have thoroughly re-investigated the subject of kidney difficulties and Bright's disease, and the truths developed are astounding. I therefore state, deliberately, and as a physician, that I believe more than one-half the deaths which occur in America are caused by Bright's disease of the kidneys. This may sound like a rash statement, but I am prepared to fully verify it. Bright's disease has no distinctive features of its own, (indeed, it often developes without any pain whatever in the kidneys or their vicinity) but has the symptoms of nearly every other common complaint. Hundreds of people die daily, whose burials are authorized by a physician's certificate as occurring from "Heart Disease," 'Apoplexy," Paralysis," "Spinal Complaint," Rheumatism," "Pneumonia," and other common complaints, when in reality it is from Bright's disease of the kidneys. Few physicians, and fewer people, realize the extent of this disease or its dangerous and insidious nature. It steels into the system like a thief, manifests its presence if at all by the commonest symptoms and fastenes itself in the constitution before the victim is aware of it. It is nearly as hereditary as consumption, quite as common and fully as fatal. Entire families, inheriting it from their ancestors, have died, and yet none of the number knew or realized the mysterious power which was removing them. Instead of common symptoms it often shows none whatever, but brings death suddenly, from convulsions, apoplexy, or heart disease. As one who has suffered, and knows by bitter experience what he says, I emplore everyone who reads these words not to neglect the slightest symptoms of kidney difficulty. No one can afford to hazard such chances.

I make the foregoing statements based upon facts which I can substantiate to the letter. The welfare of those who may possibly be sufferers such as I was, is an ample inducement for me to take the step I have, and if I can successfully warn others from the dangerous path in which I once walked, I am willing to endure all professional and personal consequences.

THE CHICAGO HOTEL THIEF.

He Steals Hats Right Off the Owners Drowsey Head.

The Chicago hotel thief is a man of nerve. An Illinois politician was sitting on his overcoat in one of the plush-covered chairs at the Grand Pacific, discussing the senatorial outlook with an acquaintance, the polite thief stepped up to the guest, and tapping him gently on the shoulder said: "You are sitting on my overcoat sir."

"Oh, I beg your pardon" replied the guest as he lifted himself from the garment, and continuing the discussion, let the fellow walk off with a $50 ulster. The guest told his experience to "Sam" Parker, who extended this consolation:

"Oh, that's nothing. You go back to the same chair and the thief will come back and steal your shoes."

The thief of nerve entered the writing-room of the Palmer house. A man was sitting at the desk busily engaged in writing. His new silk hat was on the table not two inches from his elbow. The thief wore a black derby without lining or sweatband. When he departed he wore the guest's $8 silk, leaving the worn-out derby behind. But the man of nerve was not satisfied with that. He paid a Palmer house messenger boy 25 cents to carry this note to his victim,

"Oh, where did you get that hat?"

This was the first intimation the guest had of his loss.

Not long ago a guest was taking a nap in one of the easy chairs in the rotunda of the Tremont house. The thief stepped up to him, removed his hat from his head and left an old slouch hat in its place.

A Remarkable Clock.

Another marvelous piece of mechanism has recently been exhibited in Paris. It is an eight day clock which chimes the quarters, plays sixteen tunes, playing three tunes every hour, or at an interval required by simply touching a spring. The hands go as follows: One once a minute, one once an hour, one once a week, one once a month, and one once a year. It shows the moon's age, rising and setting of the sun, the time of high and low tide, besides showing half ebb and half flood. A curious device represents the water showing ships at high water tide as if they were in motion; and as it recedes, leaves them high and dry on the sands. The clock shows the hour of the day, the day of the week, the day of the month and the month of the year. The machanism is so arranged as to make its own provisions for long and short months. It also shows the signs of the zodiac, equation, and the difference between sun and railroad time for every day in the year.

KEEPING THE BOYS DOWN.

The Imperial Family of Austria Has Had Enough Spendthrifts.

Pittsburg Dispatch. The imperial family of Austria, although perhaps one of the richest reigning in Europe, would appear thoroughly to appeciate the many merits of economy and frugality, if recent reports be correct. It appears that the Archduke Charles Louis, who is heir presumptive to the empire of the Hapsburgs, has limited each of his sons to a sum of 50 florins a month until they are of age. Twenty-five dollers a month is certainly not much for an imperial highness.

It would seem as if this stern measure as regards the sons of Archduke Charles Louis—which young gentlemen will, by the way, on their comeing of age, inherit $100,000 a year each—were adopted to keep them from falling into the evil way which proved the destruction of poor Rudolph and resulted in the disgrace, of Archduke Ernest and Archduke Sigmund. These two last named peccant princes have been banished from the court in disgrace to their country houses in Tyrol, where, although evreything is found them, their pocket money is limited to exactly $5 a day.

Austria is even more than Russia par excellence in the country spendthrifts, and some rigorous measures are from time to time nessary to keep extravagant youths from galloping down the road to ruin with unduecelerity, It was an Austrian nobleman who spent $200,000 a month on a woman in Paris twelve years ago. A candlestick of solid gold, thickly encrusted with the most precious of stones (the extinguisher alone cost $3,000), was one of the pretty trinkets which Prince F gave to the lady of his heart. After three months of this little game the handsome Prince Franz returned to the parental mansion, certainly a wiser if not a sadder man.

WORK OF CONGRESS.

Resume of the Important Measures Consined by Congress the Past Week.

What is Being Done by the Senate and House of Representatives at Washington.

Wednesday, Feb. 4.

SENATE.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—In the senate today Messrs. Cockrell and Dawes amused the senators and spectators by engaging in a wordy fight over the introduction of stereotype memorials on the Conger lard bill, etc. The fortification bill was taken up, and several amendments of a minor character agreed to. More important amendments were that two civilians should be on the board of ordnance at salaries of $6,000, and increasing to $4,250,000 the appropriation in the fortification act of last session for the procurement of heavy ordnance. Mr. Dolph offered an amendment appropriating $1,000,000 for a plant for heavy ordnance at some point on the Pacific coast, and for the appointment of a board to select the site. Disagreed to—23 to 27. The bill was then passed. The military academy bill was then taken up, and passed but with one amendment. The pension appropriation bill was then taken up, and went over as the unfinished business.

HOUSE.

In the house the diplomatic and consular appropriation bill was agreed to. During the discussion Mr. McAdoo of New Jersey spoke in favor of reciprocity with Canada. Mr. Blanchard of Louisiana declared that the treatment by the United States of the Indian tribes was one long record of broken treaties and of Punic faith, and Mr. Candler of Massachusetts spoke in favor of a proposed amendment instructing the secretary of the treasury not to approve the payment of any expense attendant upon a meeting of the world's Columbian commission or of the board of lady managers, except such meetings as may be called at the time of the dedication and opening of the world's fair.

Thursday Feb. 5.

SENATE.

WASHINGTON, Special Telegram, Feb. 5.—Senator Washburn to-day called up and had passed Representative Lind's bill establishing an Indian school at Pipestone.

In the senate to-day a conference report was presented and agreed to on the bill setting apart for settlement a portion of the Fort Ellis military reservation in Montana,

HOUSE.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—The house to-day, after agreeing to meet at 11 o'clock a. m. during the remainder of the session, went into committee of the whole on the sundry civil bill. When the paragraph providing for the expenses of the interstate commerce commission was reached Mr. Anderson of Kansas offered an amendment directing the commission to inquire into the facts relating to the Western Railroad Traffic association. A point of order raised against the amendment was sustained. Mr. Bland of Missouri offered a silver free coinage amendment to the paragraph providing for the recoinage of gold and silver coins. Mr. Dingley of Maine raised a point of order against the amendment. Pending a decision the committee rose and the house adjourned.

Representative Hansbrough to-day introduced a bill in the house authorizing the construction of a bridge across the Red river at Drayton, N. D.

Friday Jan. 30.

SENATE.

WASHINGTON, Special Telegram, Feb. 6.—Senator Casey introduced a petition from the National Brickmakers' association asking for the passage of the Torrey bankrupt bill. It contained some points in favor of the bill that have not been brought out, and at the senator's request was printed as a public document. Senators Pierce, Davis and Washburn presented a number of petitions from their constituents praying for the enactment of various measures.

The senate discussed the eight-hour law, and an agreement was reached that a vote shall be taken on the bill to-morrow.

HOUSE.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—The house to-day went into committee of the whole—Mr. Payson in the chair—on the sundry civil appropriation bill.

Mr. Dockery of Missouri moved to strike out the appropriation of $20,000 for recoinage and insert the words "and so much as may be necessary to meet the expenses of such recoinage is hereby appropriated out of the silver profit fund." Adopted.

Saturday, Feb. 7,

SENATE.

The senate decided to-day, during the remainder of the session to meet at 11 a. m., sit till 6 p. m. and then take a recess till 8 p. m.

A resolution in the senate to-day to correct an error of punctuation in the tariff bill as to cables, cordage, etc., was objected to and the resolution went over until Monday.

HOUSE.

In the house to-day Mr. Evans of Tennessee reintroduced the bill heretofore offered by him to establish a limited postal telegraph service.

The house went into committee of the whole to-day (Mr. Payson of Illinois in the chair) on the sundry civil appropriation bill.

Monday, Feb. 9.

SENATE.

Senator Dawes to-day favorably reported Senator Casey's proposed amendment to the Indian appropriation for $80,000 for the Devils Lake Indians. The amendment now goes to the appropriation committee and may be allowed.

Senator Washburn to-day prepared an amendment to the diplomatic bill increasing the salary of the consul at Kingston, Jamaica. W. R. Estes of Madelia is consul at that place.

In the senate to-day the credentials of D. W. Voorhees as senator from Indiana and of H. C. Hansbrough as senator from North Dakota for the term beginning March 4 next, were presented and filed.

HOUSE.

On motion of Mr. Brewer of Michigan the senate amendments to the fortification appropriation bill were non-concurred in by the house, and a conference was ordered.

The senate bill to authorize the construction of a bridge across the St. Louis river between Wisconsin and Minnesota was placed on the house calendar to-day.

Mr. Vandever of California introduced in the house to-day a bill prohibiting aliens to obtain title to any of the public lands of the United States.

A Fight With Strikers.

LONDON, Feb. 10—The unloading of the steamer Parkmore, from Baltimore, at her dock here to-day was the occasion for a fight between the dock laborers who are out on strike and the stevedores and nonunion men who were at work on the Parkmore. The strikers overpowered the stevedores and their men, obliging them to stop work. The police force on duty about the docks then interfered, effectively dispersing the strikers and enabling the stevedores to resume work.

Bolt and Nut Works Burned.

READING, Special—The large bolt and nut works of J. H. Sternberg & Co. were completely destroyed by fire to-night. The fire originated in the forging department. The loss is etimated at from $300,000 to $350,000, with an insurance of probably $250,000. The firm employed 550 men and boys, who will be thrown out of employment. Many valuable patterns were destroyed.

Boyd Recognized as Governor.

OMAHA, Special. Gov. Boyd to-day delivered his inaugural address before the joint session of the legislature and an enormous crowd of people. The action of the legislature in recognizing Mr. Boyd is received with much satisfaction throughout the state.

COPYRIGHT 1888

A building up of the entire system follows the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It's an invigorating, restorative tonic, soothing cordial and bracing nervine — and a certain remedy for all the functional derangements, painful disorders or chronic weaknesses peculiar to women. It improves digestion, enriches the blood, dispels aches and pains, melancholy and nervousness, brings refreshing sleep, and restores flesh and strength. For periodical pains, internal inflammation and ulceration, leucorrhea and kindred ailments, it is a positive specific—a guaranteed one. If it fails to give satisfaction, in any case, the money paid for it is refunded. No other medicine for women is sold on these terms. With an ordinary medicine, it can't be done.

That's the way its makers prove their faith in it. Contains no alcohol to inbriate; no syrup or sugar to derange digestion; a legitimate medicine, not a beverage. Purely vegetable and perfectly harmless in any condition of the system.

The First Typewriter.

I saw a few days ago a model of the first writing machine made in this country. It was patented in 1843 by a man named Charles Thurber, of Massachusetts, and is a really amusing affair in its very clumsiness. It consists of a wheel about a foot in diameter which turns horizontally upon a central pivot; the rim of the wheel is bored with twenty-five holes, in each one of which is a rod-bearing at the top a glass letter and at the bottom a similiar letter of steel. The paper sheet is so arranged that the line to be printed is under the rim of this wheel, and the letter wanted is swung into place by turning the wheel; when in place a rod bearing it is depressed until the steel letter or type touches the paper. I should say that even the fastest operator could not write more than half as fast as a man with a pen. Yet it was a writing machine, and Thurber succeeded in getting people to invest $15,000 in this curious device. At present there are no less than forty-seven different kinds of typewriters made and sold in this country, and in New York City alone there are said to be more than three thousand expert operators making a living by type-writing.—From the Charleston News and Courier.

A WESTERN law paper quotes the following law recently enacted by the Nebraska Legislature: "It shall be unlawful for any person to fire off or discharge any pistol, revolver, shotgun, rifle or any firearms whatsoever, on any public road or highway in any county in the State of Nebraska, or within sixty yards of such public road or highway, except to destroy some wild, ferocious and dangerous beast, or an officer in discharge of his duty."

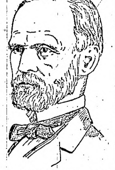
NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—"It is all over."

It was Gen. Thomas Ewing who said these words to a group of anxious waiting friends and reporters as he stood bareheaded on the doorstep of Gen. Sherman's residence in West Seventy-first street, a few minutes before 2 o'clock this afternoon.



Within a few seconds the news had been flashed over the wires to every part of the country. The old hero's stubborn fight with death was at an end and he had been conquered at last.

Death came slowly, but easily and without pain, to the veteran of so many bitter struggles. He passed away exactly at 1:50 o'clock.

All the members of his immediate family were gathered at his bedside at the time, except his eldest son, Rev. Thomas E. Sherman, the Jesuit priest, who is now on his way to this country from abroad on the steamer Majestic.

Grouped about him in his last moments were Senator John Sherman, the general's brother; his younger son, P. T. Sherman, his daughters, Mrs. Fitch, and Mrs. Thackara, and the two unmarried ones, Miss Rechael and Miss Lizzie Sherman, who live with him. There were also present his niece, Mrs. Colgate Hoyt, and her son; Lieutenants Fitch and Thackara, the general's sons-in-law; J. M. Barret, his private secretary; Gen. Thomas Ewing, his brother-in-law, and Doctors Alexander and Green, who have attended him constantly

DURING HIS LAST ILLNESS.

They all had been watching by his dying bedside since the early hours of the morning, for when they were first summoned from their beds at 5:30 this morning it was believed that he might die at any moment.

The dying general had been unconcious for several hours, and his fluttering pulse was so feeble that on several occasions it was almost impossible to tell whether he was living or not. His long struggle had completely exhausted him, and it was only his remarkable vitality and will power that enabled him to cling to life so long after all hope had been given up. From time to time during the morning some of the family would leave the room, but only to be summoned back hastily when it was thought that the end was approaching.

At the final moment there was no appreciable change in the appearance of the sufferer. He had been lying as one dead for several hours. Dr. Alexander, who had his hand on the general's breast, for he could not detect the heart beats in his pulse, was watching his face intently. He looked up quickly just ten minutes to 2 and told the grief-stricken family that

THE GENERAL HAD PASSED AWAY.

Gen. Ewing immediately left the room and went down to the door to announce the fact to the representatives of the newspapers, who had been watching the house anxiously for four days. He was visibly affected by his grief at the death of his old friend, and could say no more than to make the announcement that the general had passed away.

HIS LAST ILLNESS.

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—Dr. C. T. Alexander gave the history of Gen. Sherman's illness this evening. The doctor had been almost incessantly at the general's bedside from the time his illness began, and he had not had more than two hours' sleep any day since Sunday. He said:

The general, as is known, caught cold Wednesday a week ago. The next day he attended a wedding against the urgent advice of the members of his family. On Friday I was called in and found the general suffering from a cold and a sore throat. On Saturday he felt so much better that he wanted to keep an appointment he had made for that day. On my advice, however, he desisted and spent the day playing cards, I believe, with his family.

Erysipelas set in on Sunday. He was flighty on that day, and on Monday became delirious. The erysipelas spread over his face, and the sympathetic glands in his neck became swollen. Tuesday he grew worse, and I applied treatment for the erysipelas. Wednesday came, and there was no change for the better, but Gen. Sherman slightly rallied on Thursday morning. His rally was not such to insure even faint hope of the general's recovery, and I so informed Surgeon General Moore at Washington.

Friday was the turning point for the patient. The erysipelas had almost completely disappeared, but the attack had left the general very much weaker. His old complaint, brochial trouble and asthma, I think, killed Gen. Sherman. In his weakened condition he was unable to throw off the mucus which gathered. The mucus accumulated, and the general was slowly strangled to death. I think he suffered greatly. There was always the quick respiration, the gasp for breath, but he bore everything without a murmur and no one could have been more heroic. Since Tuesday we had practically abandoned all hope of Gen. Sherman's recovery.

HIS LAST RESTING PLACE.

Sherman's Request That His Body Rest Beside His Wife and Soldier Boy.

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 14.—In February, 1890, on the occasion of Gen. Sherman's seventieth birthday, the members of Ransom Post, G. A. R., of which Gen. Sherman was the first commander, sent the general many congratulatory letters and telegrams. The old warrior, in replying to these, among other things said:

I have again and again been urged to allow my name to be transferred to the roster of some one of the many reputable posts of the G. A. R. here, but my invariable answer has been no: that Ransom post has stood by me since its beginning, and I will stand by it to my end, and then that, in its organized capacity, it will deposit my poor body in Calvary cemetery, alongside my faithful wife and idolized "soldier boy." My health continues good, so my comrades of Ransom post must guard theirs that they may be able to fulfil this sacred duty imposed by their first commander.

God bless you all. W. T. SHERMAN.

Calvary cemetery is in this city, and is one of the most beautiful spots in St. Louis. It is expected the general's desire in the matter will be carried out, although, of course, the family's wishes will rule in the case.

CLAIMED BY OHIO.

A Request That Gen. Sherman's Body Be Buried in His Native State.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Feb. 14.—The following telegram was forwarded by Gov. Campbell to Gen. Thomas Ewing, New York:

As the representative of the people of Ohio, I claim the body of Gen. William T. Sherman for burial on the soil of the state which gave him birth. The people of Ohio will keep his grave green.

At the instance of the governor Adjt.-Gen. Dill has issued a general order announcing the death of Gen. Sherman, and calling upon the National Guard to join with the people of the nation in testifying to the great loss sustained in his death. It is ordered that the colors at the headquarters, the state arsenal and all the armories of the state be placed at half mast until and including the day of the funeral; that the officers of the national guard wear the usual badge of mourning for three months; that on the day of the funeral there be fired by the Eighth battery of artillery at Columbus thirteen guns at dawn of day, and one gun at intervals of thirty minutes during the day, and at the close a national salute of forty-four guns.

BIOGRAPHICAL.

A Sketch of the Life of One of America's Greatest Generals.

Gen. William Tecumseh Sherman was born at Lancaster, Ohio, Feb. 8, 1820. He was a cadet at West Point from 1836 to 1840, when he was graduated and promoted to second lieutenant of the Third artillery. He served in the Florida war until 1842, during which he was promoted to first lieutenant. In 1845 he went to California, and was in the war with Mexico, being breveted captain in 1848 for meritorious conduct. He was acting assistant adjutant general of the deparement of California from 1847 to 1849; aide-de-camp to Gen. P. R. Smith, and acting assistant adjutant general of the Pacific division to 1850; promoted to captain Sept. 22, 1850, and on commissary duty at St. Louis and New Orleans until Sept. 6, 1853; when he resigned and went to San Francisco, where he was in the banking business until 1857. In 1858-9 he was in the practice of the law at Leavenworth, Kan., and during the two years following was president of the Louisiana state seminary and military academy at Alexandria, La. On the breaking out of the civil war he was reappointed to the United States army, May 14, 1861, with the rank of colonel of the Thirteenth infantry, and May 17 was appointed brigadier general of volunteers, and commanded a brigade in the first batle of Bull Run. In October he was placed in the command of the department of the Cumberland, but afterward he took charge of a camp of instruction at St. Louis until February, 1862, when he was placed in command of the district of Paducah, Ky. In the Tennessee and Mississippi campaign he commanded a division; was in the battle of Shiloh, April 6 and 7, in which he was wounded; was in the advance in the siege of Corinth, April 15 to May 30, and was promoted to major general of volunteers May 1. He commanded the hastily organized expedition which attempted to capture Vicksburg, Dec. 27-29. In 1863, in command of the Fifteenth army corps, he led the expedition which carried Arkansas Post by assault Jan. 11, and until July 3 was actively engaged in the siege of Vicksburg. On July 4 he was made brigadier general in the regular army, and during the summer and fall was engaged in various operations in Tennessee and Mississippi. At Chattanooga he commanded the left wing of the army Nov. 23-25; and early in December compelled Gen. Longstreet to raise the siege at Knoxville. In February, 1864, with 20,000 men he marched to Meridian, Miss., and destroyed the railroads centering there. He was in command of the department and Army of the Tennessee until March 12, when he was of the military division of the Mississippi, which was composed of the departments of the Ohio, the Cumberland, the Tennessee and the Arkansas. At Nashville he organized an army of more than 100,000 men, and with them he invaded Georgia, where he met the Confederate forces under Gen. J. E. Johnston, forcing them to evacuate Dalton, Resaca, Cassville and Dallas in rapid succession, between May 12 and 28, and almost daily thereafter engaged the enemy until the occupation of Marietta, July 3. In several subsequent engagements he defeated Gen. Hood before Atlanta, the hardest battle being fought July 22, when the siege of Atlanta began. On Aug. 12 he was made major general in the regular army. Aug. 31 the battle of Jonesboro was fought, and the night of Sept. 1 Gen. Hood evacuated Atlanta and Gen. Sherman took possession and occupied the city until Nov. 16, when he began his memorable "march to the sea." He reached Savannah Dec. 13 and stormed and captured Fort McAllister, and eight days thereafter the city was surrendered to him. Making the Savannah river his base of operations he marched his forces unto the Carolinas, capturing Columbia, S. C., Feb. 17, 1865, Cheraw March 3 and Fayetteville March 12. Four days later he fought the battle of Averysboro and March 19, 20 and 21 fought and gained the battle of Bentonville, and entered Goldsboro March 23. His advance was unchecked, and he reached and occupied Raleigh April 13, while on April 26, at Durham station, N. C., the army of the Confederacy, under Gen. J. E. Johnston, surrendered to him upon terms which were not accepted by the government. Following this surrender, Gen. Sherman, began his advance to Richmond and Washington April 22, and on May 24, 1865, ended his wonderful southern marches of more than 2,600 miles at Washington, his efforts having been crowned with success from the first to the last. On June 27 he was appointed to the command of the military division of the Mississippi, in which were comprised the departments of the Ohio, Missouri and Arkansas, his headquarters being at St. Louis. On July 25, 1866, he succeeded Gen. Grant as lieutenant general, and on Aug. 11 took command of the division of the Missouri. In November and December of that year he was employed on a special mission to Mexico. After the election of Gen. Grant to the presidency and the consequent vacation of the office of general of the armies of the United States by President Grant, Lieut. Gen. Sherman was made general March 4, 1869. In 1871, after nearly thirty years of active service in the army, he obtained leave of absence for a year. He at once went to Europe, extending his travels to the East, being everywhere received with that marked distinction which the people of the old world are ever ready to accord to one who has occupied such prominent positions in military life and had won such laurels as had Gen. Sherman. On his return from his travels he took up his residence at Washington as commander-in-chief of the army, remaining there until October, 1874, when he removed his residence to St. Louis. On Feb. 8, 1884, Gen. Sherman was placed on the retired list, at his own request. The last few years of his life were passed in New York. In 1875 he published two octavo volumes, entitled "Memoirs of Gen. W. T. Sherman, by Himself," which have been well received and accepted as a most important addition to the history of the United States.

THE GENERAL AT FORT SNELLING.

Soon after his graduation from West Point, Gen. (then second lieutenant) Sherman was ordered to Fort Snelling, and was stationed there for several months, occupying quarters in the old stone barracks along the south side of the old parade ground. His experience at that time was not more eventful than that of several other junior officers by whom an order transferring them to an Eastern was regarded as a special dispensation of Providence, on account of the lonesomeness and remoteness of their station at that time.

The second memorable visit of Gen. Sherman to the Northwest occurred very soon after the close of the war, and partook of the nature of an ovation. Gen. W. S. Hancock, who was then in command of the department of Dakota, with headquarters at St. Paul, entertained him. The trip was undertaken for the purpose of inspecting the forts in the Northwest, and hence was fruitful of military receptions as well as pleasant social reunions. One lieutenant upon the occasion of a formal military reception and inspection during the visit had decked himself in all the panoply of war, but in his desire to make a stunning appearance, had allowed his tailor to adorn the dress coat with more aiguillettes than the regulations called for. Gen. Sherman took in the situation at a glance, and he pointedly said, "Mr. ——, I should be pleased to see you in your uniform."

Gen. Sherman was present as an invited guest at the celebration in Minneapolis of the bi-centennial anniversary of the discovery of the Falls of St. Anthony, and was one of the speakers on that occasion.

ELECTED A SENATOR.

Rev. James H. Kyle Will Succeed Moody as Senator From South Dakota.

PIERRE, S. D., Special Telegram, Feb. 17.—By a combination of the Independents and Democrats James Henderson Kyle, on the fortieth ballot, was elected United States senator to-day to succeed Moody.

It was not fully determined that the Democrats would go to Kyle to-day until this morning. Fears that the Republicans would be able to draw enough Independents to elect their candidate, if the election was delayed longer, decided their action about noon. At 12 the two houses met in joint session, there being present only 139 members. By this time rumors were strong that Kyle was to be elected. The Republicans set their faces with determination to go down with colors flying.

As the roll was called on the ballot for senator and it was seen that the Independents and Democrats were voting solidly for Kyle, everybody knew that the end had at last come. Even Bowell and Converse went with the Independents and every Democrat. The following Republicans changed their votes from Sterling to Tripp: Belknap, Douglass, Donahue, Hall, McCormack, Taylor, Teets and Wilson. No further changes were made, and the clerk announced the result as follows: Kyle, 75; Sterling, 55; Tripp, 8; Campbell, 1.

The speaker announced that James H. Kyle, having received a majority of all votes cast, was declared elected United States senator for the term beginning March 4 next.

Kyle occupied a seat in the joint assembly as state senator unmoved throughout the proceedings. Being loudly called for, in the same collected manner he has borne through it all, he took the rostrum and which was well received. He said that on account of the exercises just held—memorial exercises just held on the death of Gen. Sherman—he would not make the speech he otherwise would. He stated, however, that he stood squarely upon the Independent platform and believed heartily in all its demands. Further than this, he was elected senator for the whole state of South Dakota regardless of party, and would endeavor to fulfil the duties of such office. After a certificate of election had been signed in the presence of the joint assembly, it adjourned.

MADE A SHORT SPEECH

ADDITIONAL TRIBUTES.

Resolutions on the Death of Gen. Sherman Adopted in the House.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—Mr. Cutcheon of Michigan, chairman of the committee on military affairs, reported the following series of resolutions to the house to-day:

"That the house of representatives has heard with profound sorrow of the death at his home in New York City, on the 14th inst., of William Tecumseh Sherman, the last of the generals of the armies of the United States.

"That we mourn him as the greatest soldier remaining to the republic, and the last of that illustrious trio of generals who commanded the armies of the United States—Grant, Sherman and Sheridan—who shed imperishable glory upon American arms, and were the idolized leaders of the Union army.

"That we hereby record the highest appreciation in which the American people hold the character and services of Gen. Sherman as one of the greatest soldiers of his generation, as one of the grandest patriots that ever country has produced and as a noble man, in the broadest and fullest meaning of the world. We mingle our grief with that of the nation, mourning the departure of her great son, and of the survivors of the battle-scarred veterans whom he led to victory and peace, and we especially tender our sympathy and condolence to those who are bound to him by the ties of blood and strong personal affection.

"That the speaker appoint a committee of nine members of the house to attend the funeral of the late general as representatives of this body.

"That a copy of these resolutions be forwarded by the clerk of the house to the family of Gen. Sherman."

Messrs. Cutcheon, Grosvenor, Outhwaite, Henderson, Cogswell, Vandever, Wheeler of Alabama and Williams of Ohio made short eulogistic addresses, after which the following committee was appointed to attend the funeral: Messrs. Cutcheon, Spinola, Cogswell, Cummings, Grosvenor, Kinsey, Tarsney, Henderson of Illinois and Outhwaite.

PREPARING FOR THE FUNERAL.

St. Louis Citizens Arranging for the Last Tributes for the Dead.

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 17.—A meeting of the citizens' committee having in charge the preparation for the funeral of Gen. W. T. Sherman met to-day.

The committee reported that Gov. Francis had expressed his willinness to order all the militia in the state to St. Louis to participate in the obsequies, but that there was a question as to his authority so to do, and that it was deemed best not to take this step at present. It was moved that an invitation be extended to all the militia companies to join the funeral procession.

On account of the lack of information regarding the desires of the family it was impossible to arrange all the details at the meeting to-day. Another meeting of the committee will be held to-morrow, and it is expected final arrangements for the funeral will then be made.

The following official order in regard to Gen. Sherman's funeral has just been received:

Washington, Feb. 16.—Brig. Gen. Merritt, St. Louis: Gen. Sherman's funeral will start from New York Thursday afternoon. The burial will take place at St. Louis Saturday. The Ransom post of the Grand Army of the Republic will escort the remains from the depot to the cemetery. Besides this you will have a suitable escort of artillery and cavalry, and be prepared to fire the suitable artillery, small arms and bugle salute after the burial.

J. M. SCHOFIELD,
Major General Commanding.

Fought With Knives.

DEADWOOD, S. D., Special Telegram, Feb. 17.—Two finnish woodchoppers, Matt Selbeck and Charles Smith, last evening got to quarreling in the latter's cabin, situated on Elk creek, about twelve miles from this place, and knives were freely used. In the fight, Selbeck, however, suffered but little injury, while Smith was badly cut across the face, in the back and down the side, and will die from his injuries. Selbeck has been arrested and lodged in jail. He takes it very coolly, and says that the fight was the result of an old quarrel.

BALFOUR UPHELD.

Mr. Morley's Motion Censuring the Irish Executive Defeated.

LONDON, Feb. 17.—In the house of commons to-day Mr. Morley arose, and, in accordance with the notice previously given by him, moved that the house adopt a vote censuring the Irish executive for its action in the Tipperary prosecutions.

Mr. Morley's motion declared that such action on the part of the Irish executive was calculated to bring the law into contempt, and was a violation of the rights of citizens.

Mr. Morley said that the motion was opportune, inasmuch as two prominent Irish commoners had just passed within sight of the house on their way to prison. The imprisonment of these men was the climax of the Tipperary prosecutions.

After seeing the working in Tipperary of the terrible machine of coercion, his (Morley's) eyes had been opened to the pitch of demoralization to which the agents of the chief secretary had been brought by the fact that the chief secretary was ever ready to defend their every act of right or wrong, and to credit every statement of the police, refusing inquiry as to their alleged misdeeds, no matter how strong the evidence was against them.

Mr. Parnell sat with folded arms listening to Mr. Morley evidently with close attention. He did not join in the Irish cheers. He left as soon as Mr. Gladstone rose to speak. Mr. Gladstone spoke for half an hour. He manifested no special enthusiasm till toward the close of his speech then his voice in ringing tones of triumph declared that the doom of coercion and the government was assured.

After a reply by Mr. Balfour upholding his course in Ireland, Mr. Morley's motion was rejected—320 to 245.

DISASTROUS AND FATAL.

A Big Fire, Attended by Loss of Life, in a Canadian Town.

NEW WESTMINSTER, B. C., Feb. 17.—This city was yesterday visited by a conflagration which destroyed in the neighborhood of $500,000 worth of property and caused the death of John McCannon, a member of the volunteer fire brigade.

The fire started in the premises occupied by F. Stirsky, watchmaker and jeweler, and the whole block of buildings was ablaze before the fire department had succeeded in getting to work. For two hours the firemen fought the flames, and were just getting them under control when an explosion in the rear of one store occurred. It broke almost every pane of glass within a radius of half a mile, and burst all the hose pumping on the fire. The Masonic Temple, next adjacent, had, up to this moment been considered absolutely safe, but the breakage of windows caused a draft which sucked the flames inward and in a minute the whole interior of the building was afire. It was a four-story brick building, valued at $80,000. It was occupied by stores, offices, lodge rooms and the provincial registry offices. Nothing was saved out of this building but the papers from the register's office.

While fighting the flames at one of the windows the western wall of the building fell in and Fireman McCannon was buried under two tons of brick. He was taken out and brought to St. Mary's hospital, where he died last night. Another man is reported to be buried underneath the ruins.

IMPORTANT CHANGES.

Revision of the Confession of Faith of the Presbyterian Church.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—The committee of the general assembly of the Presbyterian church of the United States on the revision of the confession of faith, after a very harmonious session lasting eleven days, completed its work and adjourned this evening.

The changes made have generally met with unanimous approval. Its work will be reported to the assembly in Detroit next May, and by it referred to the presbyteries for their adoption or rejection. The changes made in the statements of the confession have been of great importance, but have in no way impaired the integrity of the system or doctrine so long held by the church.

A Big Haul.

LONDON, Feb. 17.—In the Provincial Bank of England to-day a stylishly dressed man accosted a clerk of the London branch of the Bank of Scotland who was just then making a deposit on behalf of his bank. The clerk turned to answer the stranger, and while his attention was thus distracted for an instant an accomplice of the questioner rushed forward, seized a package of Bank of England notes representing £11,590, which lay before the clerk, whose head was momentarily turned away, and, before any one had a suspicion of what had happened, was out of the door and away. Police officials who are investigating are of the opinion that the two bank sneaks were expert American thieves, who have probably watched McKenzie for weeks.

No Removals.

LONDON, Feb. 17.—In the house of commons to-day Stanhope, secretary of state for war, replying to a question as to what action the government proposed to take with referedce to the military officers who were concerned in the recent Baccarat scandal, said that pending the result of the legal proceedings taken by Sir William Gordon Cummings against the persons who had accused him of unfair play, the war department did not propose to retire any of the officers concerned in the affair.

Mr. Stanhope further added that the colonels of the various regiments were making successful endeavors to prevent gambling among the officers of their commands.

Jews Brutally Treated.

LONDON, Feb. 17.—Advices from Russia state that no such scenes have been witnessed since the days of the inquisition as are now going on there. The agents of the holy synod are inquiring everywhere into charges of heresy against Semites, and the latter are being arrested and imprisoned and subjected to brutal treatment to compel them to join the orthodox faith.

Want to Lynch Him.

LONDON, Feb. 17.—The latest discovery made by the police in connection with the Whitechapel murder bids fair to connect the man Sadler, now in custody, with this "Jack the Ripper" crime. Wild threats of lynching and tearing the prisoner to pieces are uttered by excited females. At the request of the police the prisoner was to-day remanded until Feb. 24 in order to give the police time to make further investigations into the case.

Acted Under Orders.

WASHINGTON, Special Telegram, Feb. 17.—Senator Casey to-day introduced a bill to pay a judgement of about $1,000 against John C. Bates and Jonathan A. Yeckley, officers in the United States army. The judgment was obtained against them in the territorial court of Dakota. They, acting under orders from superior officers, arrested two men—Ward and Clark—alleged to have been selling liquor on an Indian reservation. It afterward transpired that the saloon was not within the reservation and Ward and Clark recovered damages from the officers. The government defended the officers in the suit.

MINNESOTA EDITORS

The Brainy Men of Minnesota in Annual Convention Assembled at St. Paul.

FIRST DAYS' SESSION.

St. Paul, Special Telegram.—The Minnesota Editors' and Publishers' Association held their twenty-fourth annual convention in this city. A more enterprising and intelligent body of men could not be found than that which gathered here, men who, as moulders of public opinion have left the impress of their work upon the commonwealth and are destined to leave it in a still deeper degree.

As soon as the convention came to order the bresident, L. P. Hunt, of the Mankato Free Press, gave his address. He extended congratulations to the convention on the fact that no state could produce a better class of editors. It was time that the editors and publishers of Minnesota should organize for mutual protection. Certain legislative matters were recommended to the careful consideration of the members of the association. The speaker considered it a wise move to hold two meetings a year, thus separating business and pleasure. A legislative committee, composed of the ablest men in the association, should be appointed.

After the address the convention turned its attention to business matters. Irving Todd, of the Hastings Gazette; H. P. Hall, St. Paul News, and H. G. Day, Albert Lea Standard, were appointed a committee to select representatives to attend the National Editorial association meeting to be held in July next at St. Paul.

A message of greeting was sent to the Canadian Press association, which meets to-morrow at Toronto.

A committee on resolutions was appointed, consisting of J. A. Johnson, St. Peter Herald; Soren Listoe, Nordvesten, and George Pease, Anoka Union.

Letters of regret were read from H. E. Hoard, W. J. C. Kenyon and Frank J. Mead.

The treasurer's report shows a total of receipts for the year, including $51.93 on hand at the beginning of the year, of $2,055.63. Total expenditures, $1,842, leaving a balance on hand of $213.63, with $72.55 still due from the committee on the publication of laws.

THE AFTERNOON SESSION.

At the afternoon session the first topic on the programme was that of "Legal Advertising," on which subject there was a paper by George N. Lanphere, of the Moorhead News. Mr. Lanphere took strong grounds against the printing of legal notices at less than the authorized fee. If this discount was for the benefit of the mortgagor, in the case of mortgage sales, it would not be so objectionable, but the discount almost uniformly inures to the benefit of the attorneys in the premises or to the loan companies holding the claim. The paper closed with the following resolution:

Resolved, That the Minnesota Editors' and Publishers' association, in annual convention assembled, emphatically disapproves and condemns the practice of giving discounts from the statute fee allowed for the publication of legal notices in the newspapers of the state, and views it as a practice which unnecessarily diminishes the legitimate revenues of the newspaper business, thereby lowering its dignity and honorable independence. It expresses the hope and recommends that all the publishers of the state will hereafter demand the full legal fee in every case of such publication.

J. A. Johnson, of the St. Peter Herald, took decided grounds against rebates, and declared that he had never yet given back a single cent in such manner.

The editor of the St. Peter Tribune was as fully opposed to giving rebates on legal advertising as any one. He thought, however, that there was needed something stronger than a resolution to break up the custom of rebates, as such resolutions had been repeatedly disregarded.

There followed considerable further discussion, in which everybody agreed that all the editors should decide to never publish a legal notice at less than legal rates. Mr. Pease, of the Anoka Union, caused a commotion by stating that there would be a bill introduced in the legislature this session which would reduce the legal rates by one-third. Several speakers advocated an agreement whereby the papers would all refuse to publish the notices at all if the rates are reduced.

Mr. Paradis, of the Midway News, moved the appointment of a committee of five to look after legislation which affected the publishers.

Mr. Heatwole was of the opinion that the present legislature should be handled with gloves, as there was no way of telling what it would do. In regard to another matter, he presented a resolution endorsing the bill introduced by Senator Tawney, which takes away from the judges of probate the power of selecting the papers in which notices shall be published, and places this power in the hands of executors and administrators. Both Mr. Heatwole's resolution and the motion of Mr. Paradis were adopted. Mr. Lanphere's resolution was referred to the committee on resolutions.

H. G. Day, of the Albert Lea Standard, read an interesting paper upon the "Regulation of Common Carriers." He reviewed the increasing power of the corporations and dangers resultant therefrom. People seemed to be forgetful of the fact that the country belonged to them and not the corporations. The remedy for the existing state of affairs is in a proper use of the ballot, an honest administration of the courts and most of all in the power of the press. There should be laws regulating consecutive terms of office of legislators and representatives in congress. United States senators and the president of the United States should be elected directly by the people. Appeal should be made often to the people for first principles, and then the people should be educated and elevated. The paper was able and scholarly throughout.

THE IMMIGRATION QUESTION.

"Encouragement of Immigration by the State," was the subject of a paper by W. E. McKinzie of the Crookston Times. He favored an immigration bureau, but thought their efforts should be mainly directed to the East and South, rather than to the inducement of foreigners to settle in the state. It would be better to make an effort to Americanize the foreigners already here rather than to get still more to come. But the overflow from the Eastern states constitutes the class of people which will be of most value to the state.

Mr. Carpenter, of the Farmington Tribune, vigorously opposed the plan of an immigration bureau, conducted at the expense of the state. It was simply a scheme to allow speculators to get rid of their private property through the use of the state's money.

Mr. Ives, of the St. Hilaire Spectator; Mr. Lanphere and Mr. Listoe, of the Nordvesten, jumped into the fray as soon as Mr. Carpenter had ceased speaking, and in an emphatic manner set forth the needs of the state in the way of an immigration bureau.

IN THE EVENING.

The evening session of the editorial association at Westmoreland hall was of a social and literary character. The beauty and fashion as well as the brains of other cities and towns were represented in the gathering.

The programme opened with a selection by Seibert's orchestra. The second number was a recitation by Mr. Franklyn W. Lee, of the Daily News, of an original poem entitled "Widow Breen."

Following Mr. Lee came Col. Pat Donan, whose paper on "The Country Press, Its Mission and Power" was listened to with the deepest appreciation. For over an hour Col. Donan poured over his audience the lurid fireworks of his oratory in an oration characteristic of himself, and as unapproachable in its own peculiar style as a railroad manager by a tramp seeking for a free pass.

The hardships of an editor's life were depicted in the most woeful terms, in which the editor's sanctum was characterized as an inky den, a tread mill of horror. The versatility of talent requited to be able to write upon all the subjects necessary was given as something neither more or less than human.

Another musical number was performed by Mr. Milch, the cellist. In the absence of Maj. W. A. Hotchkiss, who was put on the programme for an address on "The Pioneer Newspaper," Capt. Castle was called upon for a few words. He spoke briefly, being unprepared, and disclaiming the title of "pioneer" in any sense, but referred appropriately to the early days and to the names of such men as Gen. Sibley, Alexander Ramsey and H. M. Rice, who were associated with that period of the state history.

Mr. H. P. Hall was next called upon. He gave some interesting statistics as to the early days of the association. At the date of its first meeting there were but fifty-five papers published in the state, and thirty-three of these were represented at the convention. All but four of the 33 are still in existence, 17 being under the same name and 7 under the same ownership. There are now 456 publications in Minnesota, of which 28 are dailies.

After Mr. Hall's remarks there were a few moments of social chat, after which a collation was served in the dining room adjoining the hall. The remainder of the evening was spent in such social enjoyment as ought to be appreciated by the man depicted by Col. Donan as the typical editor. Dancing was the chief feature, and the members of the "ink-slinging" fraternity turned their backs on Pallas for the nonce and walked with Terpsichore.

SECOND DAY

The morning session opened by Mr. Mitchell, of the St. Cloud Journal-Press, moving that a copy of Mr. Heatwole's resolution, giving it as the sense of the editorial association that the bill now pending in the state senate amending the probate code so that administrators or executors shall designate the paper in which probate notices shall be published, be forwarded to senator Tawney for use in securing the passage of the bill. This motion was unanimously adopted, after which the editors stirred up the immigration question. George N. Lamphere, of the Moorhead News, opened the subject by introducing a preamble and resolution to the effect that Eastern people be informed of the great opportunities offered by Minnesota, and to that end the association is unqualifiedly in favor of the re-establishment of the bureau of immigration.

Mr. Lamphere moved the adoption of the resolution, but the president here announced that Mr. F. I. Whitney, general passenger agent of the Great Northern railroad, had prepared a paper on the subject of immigration which he was desirous of having read before the Editorial association. There were no objections and Mr. Folsom, an employe of the Great Northern, read the document.

Another resolution recommending the executive committee of the National Editorial association to change the date of their annual meeting in St. Paul from July 22 to July 24 by reason of the triennial convocation of the general grand chapter A. F. and A. M. of the United States, which begins in Minneapolis July 21, was adopted. Mr. Lamphere's resolution giving it as the sense of the meeting that no editor should cut on legal advertising was tabled.

On resolution of Mr. Irving Todd, the executive committee was requested to purchase a life-size portrait of Mr. David Ramaley, treasurer of the association for the past twenty-four years, and present it to that gentleman with the compliments of the association.

Mr. Hunt presented a resolution which pledged the aid of the association in properly representing Minnesota at the world's fair, which was adopted.

THE AFTERNOON SESSION.

Upon reassembling in the afternoon the election of officers was taken up, and were in each case elected by acclamation on a rising vote, resulting as follows:

President, H. P. Hall, of the St. Paul Daily News; first vice president, George N. Lamphere, of the Moorhead News; second vice president, J. F. Murphy, of the Waseca Herald; third vice president, A. N. Dare, of the Elk River Star-News; secretary, J. A. Johnson, of the St. Peter Herald; corresponding secretary, Ed A. Paradis, of the Midway News; treasurer, David Ramaley, of the A. O. U. Guide, St. Paul; executive committee, F. S. Verbeck, Northwest Printer, St. Paul; Irving Todd of Hastings, H. G. Day of Albert Lea, together with the officers just elected.

Mr. Ramaley presented a resolution, which was adopted, to the effect that in view of National Editorial convention next July, it is the desire of this association that the executive committee shall call a summer meeting of the association at the same time and to make arrangement for entertainment.

Mr. W. B. Mitchell, of the St. Cloud Journal-Press, was then allowed to read his paper on "County Printing." The paper brought out a very lively debate, Editors Listoe, Hinds, Putnam, Vendiver, McKinstry, F. A. Day, Irving Todd, Ramaley, Hunt, H. G. Day and Jennison taking part. As a conclusion it was decided to refer the matter to Mr. Ramaley, he to confer with the attorney general in regard to getting fuller reports of the proceedings of the board of county commissioners, and also have the state auditor's blanks for delinquent tax lists so arranged as to include name, description and amount of taxes due on land.

The committee on delegates then reported the following list of delegates to the national association:

W. B. Mitchell, St. Cloud Journal-Press; Daniel Sinclair, Winona Republican; G. S. Pease, Anoka Union; C. H. Lienau, St. Paul Volkszeitung; L. P. Hunt, Mankato Free Press; H. E. Hoard, Montevideo Leader; H. G. Day, Albert Lea Standard; William Hinds, Shakopee Argus; Hans Mattson, Minneapolis North; A. W. McKinstrey, Faribault Republican; F. S. Verbeck, Northwest Printer; Joel P. Heatwole, Northfield News; V. C. Seward, Stillwater Messenger; Lewis Baker, St. Paul Globe; S. P. Jennison, Red Wing Republican; W. E. McKenzie, Crookston Times.

The committee on organization appointed last year made its report and strongly recommended an organization of the association on business principles.

Mr. John J. Dobson of the Northwestern Newspaper Union made an offer to furnish law supplements to the newspapers of the state at a price cost of twenty five per cent. less than the "Actual Cost" price of the Editorial Association in 1889 provided the Association would withdraw from the business of publishers—The offer was referred to the committee, upon laws with power to accept or reject.

In concluding the business of the session the retiring president, Mr. L. P. Hunt, thanked the editors for past and new honors. He contended that this session was the most profitable one in the history of the association. Three cheers were then given for him and the convention was over.

An Accomodating Domestic.

Why didn't you come when I rang," said a Texas lady to her servant.

"Because I didn't heah de bell," replied Matilda Snowball.

"Hereafter when you don't hear the bell you must come and tell me so."

"Yes'm."

HONOLULU CUSTOMS.

Curious Ways of the Islanders Described by Miss Ruth Ward.

The beautiful cresent-shaped harbor, with the Big Diamond and Punch Bowl mountain peaks on either side and the town of Honolulu nestling between them, are the changing scenes forming the prelude to a strange drama. The countrymen, farmers and peasants wear but little clothing, simply what the natives call a matu, a near approach to the fig leaf. The fishermen wear other clothing when they come into the town, but as soon as they have sold their wares and return to the country or the sea the clothing is removed and carried over their shoulder. The native men are of splendid physique, having fine figures and splendidly developed muscles.

When I had been in Honolulu but a few days, writes Miss Ruth Ward, I was riding past a country house in company with some friends. I noticed what I supposed were two bronze figures. I asked why statues were placed in a locality so remote from the town and from any park. My question provoked peal upon peal of laughter. After a short time the statues walked away.

"The society of the court dancers is called the leimamo. The Hawaiian girls mature young, at 12 and 14 years. They have the dark and languid eyes, the sensuous lips and the voluptuous beauty of form that may be seen only in warm countries. From the most beautiful of these girls the court dancers are selected. Great care is taken to secure the most attractive mould of form and the superior luxuriance of beauty. They are twenty in number. A place is prepared for them near the queen's palace. Their diet is the best that can be provided, and all their surroundings are those of luxury and dreamy, languid ease. Upon state occasions they dance at the royal palace and also for the entertainment of distinguished visitors who wish to see all there is on the island. They wear short skirts, made of birds' feathers and belted at the waist. Over the shoulder and under the arm is passed a black silk ribbon, upon which is printed in gilt letters the name of the society. Their dance to the wild music of the royal band of thirty-six pieces is indescribable.

"Another female society of very peculiar characteristics, and one in which a membership is eagerly sought, is the lilinokalano or riding society. The riding costume is called the pa-u. It is a single piece of silk fifteen yards long and two yards wide. The ladies of the society all ride astride. The costume is folded in such a manner that one yard floats in the air upon either side of the horse. It is tucked in around the waist. It is usually of the brightest colors.

"Marriage customs are merely a matter of form. Wives are never true to their husbands. Children never take their father's name. They are sure of their mother and receive her name. One custom strikes every visitor as being most strange. Children, as soon as born, are given away. There is a contest for them among the near relatives. When one family tires of them, they are passed around to another that is willing to receive them. In case of the mother's death there is always a contest as to who shall receive the children. The princess told me that she never knew her mother until she was 30 years of age.

"When a girl has attracted the attention of several young men, each of whom desires to marry her, a choice is made by a sort of athletic contest. Each suitor provides himself with a love stone. It is a rough hewn piece of stone about three inches in diameter. The young men stand at a given point and each one throws as far as he may be able. The longest throw wins the belle. Before she goes to her husband she lives for a short time with each of those who were less fortunate."

Iron Ore Discovered by Lightning.

Commenting upon a report that a house in Ohio, supposed to be situated over a bed of iron ore, had been struck by lightning eight times within three years, a correspondent of the Chicago Journal of Commerce says: The truth is that all iron ore deposits are not confined to the several well known localities of the United States where they most abound. If careful observation was made, undoubtedly many new fields might be opened up in places where the presence of iron is not suspected. The writer, in his youth, lived on a farm in Southern Wisconsin, on two acres of which lightning had struck, it was estimated, at least forty trees. No sane man could for one moment suppose that the stricken trees of themselves possessed sufficient metallic attraction for the lightning to single them out for destruction. The suggestion made at the time, that underneath these two acres was a bed of iron ore, has never been effaced; yet it is doubtful if ever any other person noticed the peculiarities of that particular plot of ground. Nature seldom errs in her indications of mineral wealth, and makes electricity a prominent agent in determining the location of iron deposits near the surface. Hence if a forest at any point shows unusual effect of lightning, or if a house becomes a peculiar attraction for it, it might pay to engage an experienced prospector to develop the hidden ore.

It seems to be the general impression that the present legislature will pass a usury law cutting the rate of interest down to seven per cent. This may do very well for the older parts of the state but it will work great hardship for this part of the state, It is almost impossible at present to get money at ten per cent and if the bill passes it will drive what little money there is here to other states for investment.

The county division schemers have a large lobby at St. Paul trying to get the legislature to pass their bill, They don't seem to be able to agree and have not yet decided what they will do. We have it from the best authority that Senator Lommen and Representative Carlton are opposed to division. Without their aid the bill will never pass and the fond and cherished hopes of Red Lake Falls and other, would be county seats, can safely be said to be dead,

The St. Paul papers announced last week that Toby Valario after an imprisonment of eighteen months for the part he played in tar and feather outrage on Jack Sinhold has been pardoned by the governor, Valarie was sentenced to three years imprisonment and his good conduct while in the penitentiary and the fact that he was the only one taking part in the outrage who was convicted and punished was the reason for the executive pardon.—Crookston Times.

Sockless Simpson has put in the highest bid for leadership in the domain of crank finance. His ideal money he says, is a bit of paper. He would have an estimate made of all the precious metals now under ground and have the government issue paper money to the full amount. He would not have the metal mined, for if it was some foreign foe might steal it now let every lunatic who ever heretofore expressed an idea on finance subside and give Simpson the undisputed palm,—Pioneer Press.

The Farmers Alliance of Kansas is very bitterly opposed to pools of all kinds except its own. A grain pool for the purpose of withholding from the market immense quantities of breadstuffs by storing them in "alliance" warehouses until the producers can obtain such prices as they consider satisfactory, in their opinion a very proper scheme, but a pool to control the price of iron, oil or any other article not produced by farmers, is by the same judgment robbery.—Ex.

The following is from an exchange and we reproduce it for the benefit of any kicker who may read it:
"Here's to the kicker, the faint hearted kicker, the kicker so helpless and blue who always is crying and never is trying some good for his own town to do, No use to correct him, nor need you expect him to get to the front like a man, while others hustle he'll sit down and rustle objections to raise at each plan. But when the brute dies we'll pause with dry eyes, on his future condition to dwell; we'll envy the devil who'll not have to be civil. when he roasts the rank kicker in the well."

The banks of New York city are resorting to their old game of calling in and hoarding funds, to show that the volume of currency is sufficiently large for the legitimate wants of the country, and that free coinage would certainly lead to financial and commercial disaster. Yesterday the House Coinage Committee was telegraphed that the banks of that city held $20,000,000 in excess of legal tender reserve, and that money on call was a drug at 2 per cent per annum. With the banks fostering this dog in the manger policy, retarding and crippling the business of the country, it is no wonder there is a demand for relief and free coinage has its advocates,—News.

Railroad talk is running high as spring approaches and there is very little doubt that the Great Northern will be extended from St. Hilaire to this place at least before next harvest and thus make Thief River Falls the rustling town of the Northwest.—Thief River Falls Press.

The above will show that the citizens of Thief River Falls have "got em bad" again, As it has been several months since they have built any railroads they may perhaps be pardoned. In a few weeks at least we will expect to hear that the Northern Pacific, Duluth & Winnipeg and the Thief River Falls & Go-Everywhere air line will be built to that windy berg long before harvest. If it affords you any amusement boys, go ahead, but it does smell a little chestnutty.

Congressman Comstock is using every effort to secure sufficient money to complete the survey of the Red Lake Indian reservation in Minnesota. In company with Senator Washburn he called at the interior department Tuesday, and requested Secretary Noble to issue an order making the sum of $5?,000 immediately available. This money was appropriated at the last session. Mr. Noble informed his callers that he would give the request his immediate attention and decisive action is anticipated in a few days. Congressman Comstock says it will take at least $212,000 to complete all the surveys in Minnesota.

The triangular controversy which is now under way between Henry Watterson, David B. Hill and Grover Cleveland is of very general interest. Whatever the outcome of the controversy may be, however, it is quite evident that David B. Hill alone will be the sufferer therefrom, Watterson publishes a letter addressed to Hill, which he says he sent to that gentleman, telling him that if he should presist in his presidential ambitions as against the pre-empted right of Grover Cleveland he would wholly destroy his influence present and future. Hill denies that he received such letter and declares his belief that Watterson would not be guilty of inditing any such insulting screen. Watterson, on the other hand, true to the inspiration of the star-eyed goddess of reform, insists that he did write and send the letter in question to Mr. Hill. The controversy has its bearing on Mr. Cleveland chiefly on account of his latest silver proclamation. The outcome now seems to be that whatever the immediate result of the controversy the two great New York statesmen Hill and Cleveland, are out of the next presidential race, and the star-eyed goddess must look elsewhere for a favorite son.—St. Paul Dispatch.

It is just as one of our foremost citizens said yesterday: "I believe this Farmers movement is the salvation of the country." The fact that the people are set to thinking is where the good comes in, Some of the ideas advanced are unreasonable and put into practice would work injury, but the sober judgment of the country will finally hit upon the proper course to pursue, Some bad laws will be passed but they will be repealed and ultimately the republic will be stronger for the present agitation and uncertainty. Take the question of free coinage of silver! A majority of the people seem to be for the measure, but many wise financiers honestly think that the enactment of the senate bill ~~would work very serious damage to~~ the country that gold would bring a premium and silver dollars would depreciate. There are two sides to the tariff question. Like finance, this is not a matter that can be solved by an hour's study, and then in considering it from only one point of view. It is not a question that should be settled, either, by accepting the ideas advanced by a glib tongued orator who may never have given a serious thought to economies. The encouraging facts are: The people are thinking; if mistakes are made they can be rectified, Congress is quick to act in line with the popular will. The man who is so partisan that he fears the country is going to destruction if his party is defeated, should live in a monarchy where there is but one party—the emperor. The republic is safe with her free schools, her free press and free thought.—Grand Forks Plaindealer.

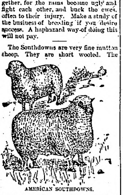
The ewes should be served by the rams during December so that lambs will come about June. This is a most important matter and personal attention should be given to it by the flock master in not allowing excess and exhaustion by the rams. Overwork means barren ewes and loss of lambs. See that the duty is performed during the day, and keep rams and ewes separated during the night, for both should sleep. Thirty ewes are about all any ram should serve in one season. Both should be in good condition, otherwise weakly progeny will result. During this season they should not be needlessly handled or driven. Peace, quietness and kindness will tend to produce docile lambs. It is not a good plan to allow the two to run together, for the rams become ugly and fight each other, and buck the ewes, often to their injury. Make a study of the business of breeding if you desire success. A haphazard way of doing this will not pay.

The Southdowns are very fine mutton sheep. They are short wooled. The ewes are prolific. In England, where sheep raising is a science, beautifully marblized mutton is produced.



AMERICAN SOUTHDOWNS.

Marketable wool should be free from burrs, chaff, and tags or skirt locks. Wool is sold at the market price of actual fibre. Dirt in no form pays in wool.

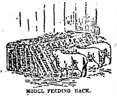
For winter fodder oat straw is estimated at 75 per cent. and wheat straw at 70 per cent. of average meadow hay. Straw is less constipating than hay. Flax straw mixed with hay makes a good feed but alone is apt to act as a physic. In feeding, a good ration is what the animal will eat up clean.

The ewes should be "tagged," that is, the wool under the tail and around the udder should be cut off to allow the lambs freedom in sucking and to prevent the accumulation of filth.

Avoid too much green food, and except with old wethers or ewes being fattened for market, concentrated food should not be given.

Give them a change of feed, if possible, every week, by varying from hay to corn fodder, than millet and straw, etc., as you can. This will keep their bowels regular and make good flesh and wool.

Let them have access to pure water; stagnant water is bad and its use results in parasitic diseases. Do not let them eat snow, which can be prevented by supplying them with water.



MODEL FEEDING RACK.

The feeding rack shown herewith is from Stewart's Shepherd's Manual, a most excellent work on the subject of sheep husbandry. Portable feeding racks, X-shaped, can be cheaply made.

Keep salt in a dry form where they can get at it all the time. Irregular salting is injurious, as ewes will frequently abort their lambs from an overdose of salt.

They should be yarded or guarded at night and examined regularly. No farm animal will consume and turn into use as much "roughage;" but too much improper food is as bad as feeding insufficiently; either method is certain to injure if it does not kill.

A pair of toe clippers, such as are kept at all hardware stores, are a necessity for the farmer who keeps sheep, says The Northwestern Agriculturist. The feet grow too fast when kept on level ground and sod and must be cut back or lameness results. In its natural condition the sheep likes rough and rocky lands, where its feet are worn away by climbing among the stones, but when conditions are changed the feet must be cut back, and no implement is so good as these clippers which are also useful in trimming the hoofs of calves and colts. Sheep with overgrown hoofs never do well. In fact, no animal will do its best which is uncomfortable for any cause, and a sheep or a calf or a colt, with overgrown hoofs is as uncomfortable as a boy with tight boots on at a Sunday school pic-nic.

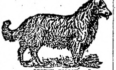
No other animals can compare with sheep for enhancing the fertility of the land on which they are kept, and if for no other reason than this a small flock should be owned by every farmer. Then, in addition to this, fresh mutton of the best quality may be had at pleasure, which for farmers, distant from towns is quite a treat.

Costiveness is one drawback to sheep husbandry. The flockmaster should know that dry food, especially of the fat forming variety, tends to produce a costive condition. This kills as many sheep as anything else.

It is never profitable to keep old sheep. At the age of 3 or 4 years all inferior breeders should be culled out and sold to the butcher.

By aiming to get the best mutton you will be certain to get the best wool, which will always sell, no matter what breed it belongs to.

Keep them free from parasites; a dip made of tobacco stems is good, so too are some of the patent preparations.



SCOTCH COLLIE.

A good Scotch Collie dog in caring for sheep or cattle is worth a couple of ordinary hired boys. The Collie is intelligent, kind, faithful, and sagacious. There are two breeds, the rough haired and the smooth. They will not worry nor kill sheep. They are not absolutely necessary but they save a man many steps.

Every farmer should learn something about the properties of different kinds of feed, viz.: what produces flesh, fat, milk, etc. Everyone should take a good agricultural paper; every issue will give information worth a hundred times the cost. Western farm papers are better suited to the West than those printed in the far East. In addition to The Farmer and Breeder, already mentioned, we might name The Northwestern Agriculturist and The Farm, Stock and Home, of Minneapolis, and the Orange Judd Farmer and The Western Rural, of Chicago, Colman's Rural World of St. Louis, The Indiana Farmer of Indianapolis, and The Ohio Farmer of Cleveland. Every local home paper should be taken too.

With these foundation rules observed, notwithstanding that sheep are at the top price, and more likely to decline than advance in value, a fair degree of success may be anticipated, to be followed with years of increasing experience, by a profit of from 15 to 40 per cent. per annum.

Victoria's Throne.

The English coronation throne is not a raised dais of gold or precious stones, as many have pictured it in their imaginations, but a common, high backed oak chair of antique style, which has served in its present capacity for six or seven generations, its existence having been traced back to the time of Edward I. The back and sides of the chair were formerly painted in various colors, but all the wooden parts are now hidden with heavy silks and velvets embroidered in gold. Under the finely upholstered seat is a rough sandstone, 26 inches in length, 17½ in width, and 9 inches in thickness. It is the famous "Stone of Scone," said to have served as a seat during the coronation ceremonies of the early Scottish kings.—St. Louis Republic.

Cheap Postage.

It is the popular idea that Japan has the cheapest postal system in the world; a letter can be conveyed to any part of that kingdom for two sen, equivalent to about one-third of an American cent. But it appears that the Indian Empire takes the palm for cheapness. Postcards there cost one farthing each, letters are sent for one halfpenny each, newspapers up to an ounce and a quarter in weight for one-sixteenth of a penny, and books and patterns three farthings for four ounces, or six cents a pound.—Chatter.

Mr. John Keowan, the worthy post master at Keown, Allegheny County, Penn., says: Chamberlain's Cough Remedy sells better than any other." The reason of this is because it can always be depended upon. Let any one troubled with a severe cold give it a trial and they will find that the first dose will relieve the lungs and make breathing easier, and that its continued use will free the system of all symptoms of the cold. The promptness and certainty of this remedy in the relief and cure of colds, has won for it many sincere friends and made it very popular. For sale by Justus L. Johnson.

EXCITEMENT IN ROCHESTER.

The Commotion Caused by the Statement of a Physician.

An unusual article from the Rochester N. Y., Democrat and Chronicle, was recently republished in this paper and was a subject of much comment. That the article caused even more commotion in Rochester, the following from the same papers shows:

Dr. J. B. Henion, who is well-known not only in Rochester but in nearly every part of America, sent an extended article to this paper, a few days since which was duly published, detailing his remarkable experience and rescue from what seemed to be certain death. It would be impossible to enumerate the personal enquiries which have been made at our office as to the validity of the article, but they have been so numerous that further investigation of the subject was deemed necessary.

With this end in view a representative of this paper called on Dr. Henion, at his residence, when the following interview occurred: "That article of yours, Doctor, has created quite a whirlwind. Are the statements about the terrible condition you were in, and the way you were rescued such as you can sustain?"

"Every one of them and many additional ones. I was brought so low by neglecting the first and most simple symptoms. I did not think I was sick. It is true I had frequent headaches; felt tired most of the time; could eat nothing one day and was ravenous the next; felt dull pains and my stomach was out of order, but I did not think it meant anything serious.

"The medical profession has been treating symptoms instead of diseases for years, and it is high time it ceased. The symptoms I have just mentioned or any unusual action or irritation of the water channels indicate the approach of kidney disease more than a cough annouuces the coming of consumption. We do not treat the cough, but try to help the lungs. We should not waste our time trying to relieve the headache, pains about the body or other symptoms, but go directly to the kidneys, the source of most of these ailments."

"This, then, is what you meant when you said that more than one-half the deaths which occur arise from Bright's disease, is it Doctor?"

"Precisely. Thousands of diseases are torturing people to-day, which in reality are Bright's disease in some of its many forms. It is a Hydra-headed monster, and the slightest symptoms should strike terror to everyone who has them. I can look back and recall hundreds of deaths which physicians declared at the time were caused by paralysis, apoplexy, heart disease, pneumonia, malarial fever and other common complaints which I see now were caused by Brighc's disease."

"And did all these cases have simple symptoms at first?"

"Every one of them, and might have been cured as I was by the timely use of the same remedy. I am getting my eyes thoroughly opened in this matter and think I am helping others to see the facts and their possible danger also."

Mr. Warner, who was visited at his establishment on N. St. Paul street, spoke very earnestly:

"It is true that Bright's disease had increased wonderfully, and we find, by reliable statistics, that from '70 to '80 its growth was over 250 per cent. Look at the prominent men it has carried off, and is taking off every year, for while many are dying apparently of paralysis and apoplexy, they are really victims of kidney disorder, which causes heart disease, paralysis, apoplexy, etc. Nearly every week the papers record the death of some prominent man from this scourge. Recently, however, the increase has been checked and I attribute this to the general use of my remedy."

"Do you think many people are afflicted with it to-day who do not realize it. Mr. Warner?"

"A prominent professor in a New Orleans medical college was lecturing before his class on the subject of Bright's disease. He had various fluids under microscopic analysis and was showing the students what the indications of this terrible malady were. 'And now, gentlemen,' he said, 'as we have seen the unhealthy indications, I will show you how it appears in a state of perfect health,' and he submitted his own fluid to the usual test. As he watched the results his countenance suddenly changed—his color and command both left him and in a trembling voice he said: 'Gentlemen, I have made a painful discovery; I have Bright's disease of the kidneys;' and in less than a year he was dead. The slightest indications of any kidney difficulty should be enough to strike terror to any one."

"You know of Dr. Henion's case?"

"Yes, I have both read and heard of it."

"It is very wonderful is it not?"

"No more so than a great many others that have come to my notice as having been cured by the same means."

"You believe then that Bright's disease can be cured."

"I know it can. I know it from my own and the experience of thousands of prominent persons who were given up to die by both their physicians and friends."

"You speak of your own experience, what was it?"

"A fearful one. I had felt languid and unfitted for business for years. But I did not know what ailed me. When, however, I found it was kidney difficulty I thought there was little hope and so did the doctors. I have since learned that one of the physicians of this city pointed me out to a gentleman on the street one day, saying: 'there goes a man who will be dead within a year.' I believe his words would have proved true if I had not fortunately used the remedy now known as Warner's Safe Cure."

"Did you make a chemical analysis of the case of Mr. H. H. Warner some three years ago, Doctor? was asked Dr. S. A. Lattimore, one of the analysis of the State Board of Health."

"Yes, sir."

"What did this analysis show you?"

"A serious disease of the kidneys."

"Did you think Mr. Warner could recover?"

"No, sir, I did not think it possible."

"Do you know anything about the remedy which cured him?"

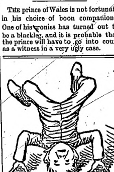
The standing of Dr. Henion, Mr. Warner and Dr. Lattimore, in the community is beyond question, and the statements they make cannot for a moment be doubted. Dr. Henion's experience shows that Bright's disease of the kidneys is one of the most deceptive and dangerous of all diseases, that it is exceedingly common, but that it can be cured if taken in time.

THE retirement of Count von Waldersee from the position of Chief of the General staff of the German army indicates that the young Emperor is no less determined this year than he was last year to have his own way in all things.

THE prince of Wales is not fortunate in his choice of boon companions. One of his cronies has turned out to be a blackleg, and it is probable that the prince will have to go into court as a witness in a very ugly case.



It isn't the usual way —it's just the reverse—to pay a patient when you can't cure him. Nevertheless, that's what's done by the proprietors of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. They promise to pay you $500 if they can't cure your catarrh, no matter how bad the case. It isn't mere talk—it's business. You can satisfy yourself of it, if you're interested. And you ought to be, if you have catarrh. It's faith in their medicine that's behind the offer. It has cured thousands of the worst cases, where everything else failed. You can be cured, too. If you can't, you get the money. They're willing to take the risk—you ought to be glad to take the medicine.

It's the cheapest medicine you can buy, because it's guaranteed to give satisfaction, or your money is returned.

You only pay for the good you get. Can you ask more?

MINNESOTA SOLONS.

Condensed Proceedings of Both Branches of the Minnesota Legislature.

What is Being Attempted in the Way of Legislation by Our Lawmakers.

Tuesday Feb. 10.

SENATE.

When the session of the senate opened Senator John Day Smith presented another batch of petitions from Minneapolis people against extending the saloon limits.

Senators Burkhardt, Craig and Dean presented petitions asking to have the age of consent raised.

When general orders were reached the senate went into committee of the whole, with Senator Stevens in the chair. The second bill on general orders was Senator Donnelly's joint resolution providing for a conference with the legislatures of the states of the Mississippi valley in reference to the interest on money. The house resolution which contained the same provisions was defeated in the senate on Saturday. Senator Donnelly offered an amendment providing that the commission to be composed should not meet with commissions of other states to consider the questions of interest and usury, but should instead carry on a correspondence with the committees of other legislatures, with a view to agreeing upon a uniform rate of interest and a common usury law. The amendment further provided that nothing in the resolution should be construed to mean that the states were to favor any league or conspiracy against the authority of the United States.

A roll call was demanded, and Senator Donnelly's motion was defeated by a vote of 19 yeas to 28 nays.

The bill of Senator Hompe submitting an amendment to the constitution providing that the legislature can make any appointive office in the state elective, was referred back to the judiciary committee.

Senator Lienau, from the committee on beet sugar, reported in favor of establishing that industry in Minnesota, and presented a bill providing that instructions in sugar beet raising and beet sugar manufacturing shall be given at the agricultural farm, and appropriating $35,000 to establish a sugar manufactory at that point.

The senate committee on state institutions yesterday gave a hearing to a delegation of citizens from St. Cloud, upon the question of employing skilled labor in the granite quarry at the state reformatory. J. H. Drake spoke in favor of restricting the output of granite from the reformatory, while J. H. Cooper took the part of the institution.

HOUSE.

Yesterday morning the house was occupied with a large amount of small business arising out of reports of committees and the introduction of resolutions. Mr. Bell's bill for the abolition of wolf bounties was unfavorably reported upon by the committee on agriculture, and Mr. Furlong made a strong speech in favor of retaining the bounties. Mr. Bell sent a communication to the clerk's desk to be read from the auditor of Polk county requesting the passage of the bill, and this was supplemented by a statement from Mr. Capser showing that Polk county drew over $1,300 in wolf bounties, and the adjoining county of Douglas but $39. The committee's report to indefinitely postpone the bill was adopted, with the understanding that Mr. Bell is to bring in another bill to meet the existing abuses of this bounty system.

The committee on towns and counties reported the West Duluth incorporation bill favorably, but after a lively spat between Messrs. Kendall and Boyd the bill was referred back.

The joint resolution relating to the Niagara ship canal was reported favorably upon by the committee on commerce.

The judiciary committee reported back the single tax bill without recommendation, and also recommended that the preamble to Mr. Keyes' resolution calling a constitutional convention be stricken off. The bill recommending an amendment to the United States constitution in the method of electing presidential electors was recommended to be indefinitely postponed.

Mr. Smith's bill, H. F. 321, has the effect of making the state bear the expense of certain state prosecutions for offenses, and not the county. Mr. Moore introduced a free text book bill.

Mr. R. A. Walsh introduced a bill which proposes to obliterate the dividing line which separated the election districts of justices of the peace in St. Paul into east and west of Wabasha street. This bill will greatly simplify the election of justices by making their election at large.

Wednesday, Feb. 11.

SENATE

The senate met to day, but did not transact much business owing to the absence of a large number of senators at St. Cloud. It was nearly 11 o'clock before there was a quorum present, and then such business as could be dispatched without a roll call was speedily finished. When it came to passing bills there was often considerable difficulty in getting a sufficient number of votes to pass, and finally the senate gave up the attempt in disgust and adjourned.

Senator Borchert presented a petition from citizens of Renville county relating to the building of warehouses on the rights of way of railroad companies.

Senator John Day Smith introduced a joint resolution providing for the appointment of a joint committee to investigate the work of Platt B. Walker for the state in connection with the securing from the United States a return of the money collected as a war tax. The measure also authorizes the payment to Mr. Walker of such sums as it is found he is entitled to. The committee of investigation is to consist of two senators and three members of the house. Later in the session Senator Leavitt introduced a resolution authorizing the president of the senate to appoint a committee of three to look into the matter of Mr. Walker's services, to find out who appointed him, by what authority he acted, and how many other attorneys were appointed to look up the same matter.

HOUSE.

The members of the lower house were off on a junket to St. Cloud.

Thursday, Feb. 12.

SENATE.

The senate put in a full day yesterday—mostly in making speeches. The work actually accomplished did not amount to as much as on the previous day when there was barely a quorum present and the senate was not actually at work over an hour and a half.

The morning session was taken up with a discussion of the question of printing the evidence taken by the investigating committee of two years ago, and although there was a clear majority in favor of such action from the start, nevertheless it took nearly two hours to come to a vote.

In the afternoon the bill submitting to the people a constitutional amendment providing for an income tax was debated for two hours and a half, and then the bill was defeated, but by a blunder of its opponents the vote was immediately reconsidered, and the measure is now on the calendar again, where there will be another chance to debate it.

Senator Crandall brought up the matter of filling the vacancies on committees caused by the unseating of Senator Searles, and it was agreed that the vacancies should be filled by the Republicans. The Democrats will make vacancies on committees for Senator O'Brien.

HOUSE.

Among the most important mundane matters introduced was a bill by Mr. Foley of Aitkin county regarding the taxation of railway lands. It is known as house file 360. The title of the bill is:

RAILROAD LANDS TAXATION.

An act relating to the taxation of certain lands owned by railroad companies in this state and repealing laws and parts of laws relating to the taxation of the same, and to provide for the submission of this act to the people of the state for their approval or rejection.

Another bill was submitted by Mr. Stockwell of Hennepin, providing for giving to women the power of voting for all city offices at municipal elections.

PASSES FOR LEGISLATORS.

Mr. Waeck of Le Sueur introduced a bill requiring all railroad companies in the state to give free transportation to all members of the legislature. This is diametrically opposed to Mr. Gildea's bill and to the provisions of Mr. Currier's railroad bill.

Mr. Tripp of Hennepin introduced a bill providing for the levying of a tax of 5 per cent on all inheritances of $500 or over. The money so raised is to go to the state and probate judges, and county auditors will be responsible for the assessment and collection of the tax. Administrators are also held responsible for the payment. This bill is based on the New York collateral inheritance tax law.

Mr. Bell's bill, relating to grand juries, making the minimum number sixteen and the maximum twenty-three, was recommended to pass.

Mr. Gildea's bill, prohibiting members of the legislature and state and county officials from accepting free passes from railroad companies, after being amended to take effect on April 15, 1900, was recommended to be indefinitely proposed by a vote of 52 to 30.

Mr. Caswell's bill, house file 222, relating to the liability of a husband for a wife's debts and vice versa, was recommended to pass.

House file 222, Mr. Bjorge's bill for the abolition of capital punishment, was the next taken up. Mr. Bjorge, in moving that the bill be recommended to pass, delivered an eloquent and able address against what he termed judicial murders. The address was too lengthy for publication, but it consisted of a comprehensive review of the whole question. Mr. Feig moved that the bill be recommended to be indefinitely postponed. There were several speeches more or less eloquent and then Mr. Reeve moved that the bill be made a special order for Thursday afternoon, Feb. 26. Mr. Bjorge seconded the substituted and it was carried.

Friday, Feb. 13.

SENATE.

The senate put in another full day yesterday considering the legislation upon its table, but did not get within sight of the end. Several important measures were acted upon in committee of the whole, and others were considered without any action being reached.

Senator Sevatson introduced a resolution providing for the appointment of a committee to consider the subject of establishing courts of conciliation, and providing for a safer, cheaper and more perfect system of land transfers.

Senator McHale's bill relating to notaries public provides that the name of the notary shall appear on his seal.

Senator Donnelly presented a bill instructing the railroad commissioners to fix rates of transportation on farm products at rates based on rates of transportation of similar products east of the Mississippi river and between Chicago and New York.

HOUSE.

Yesterday morning the house transacted but little business of any importance, devoting the major portion of the time to the discussion of several minor resolutions. Several bills were introduced, one of which was by Mr. Bjorge, providing fixed freight rates and classification for railroads, and another by Mr. Boyd, providing land for the Duluth & Winnipeg Railroad company's land grant.

Saturday, Feb. 14.

SENATE.

The senate yesterday held a three hours' session, in which a good deal of business was disposed of, the table being nearly cleared when an adjournment was taken.

In the committee of the whole, with Senator Hompe in the chair, several bills were considered and recommended to pass. The bill detaching Itasca county from Aitkin was recommended on motion of Senator Allen, to lie on the table. This action was taken for the purpose of allowing the house bill to be taken up by the senate. The bill which provoked most discussion was that introduced by Senator Tawney taking away from judges of probate the authority to select the papers in which legal notices shall be published and giving it to the administrators or executors of the estates of deceased persons. No conclusion was reached and the committee reported progress.

HOUSE.

A number of bills were reported back by various committees and placed on general orders, among others being the so-called anti-Pinkerton bill.

A number of new bills were introduced, among them being two by Mr. R. A. Walsh of Ramsey county providing for the vacation of Oakland and the Lutheran cemeteries in the city of St. Paul and giving the city power to have the same vacated for the purpose of making streets, parks, etc. The bill will not, if it becomes law, necessarily entail the immediate vacation of these burial grounds, and several years will elapse before they are absolutely vacated.

On motion of Mr. Diment Senate File 106 was ordered returned to the senate.

On motion of Mr. Feig House Files 303 and 379 were recalled from the railroad committee and sent to the public lands committee.

Monday, Feb. 16.

SENATE.

Shortly after the senate came to order yesterday Senator Sanborn introduced a series of joint resolutions concerning the death of Gen. Sherman and Admiral Porter.

The resolutions were passed under suspension of the rules and sent to the house, which body also adopted them.

PROPOSED LEGISLATION.

Senators John Day Smith and Dean presented petitions against the enactment of legislation increasing the liability of employers of labor, or which shall change the now well defined law of negligence as at present established by legislation and judicial determination.

Senator Lienau's bill relating to chattel mortgages provides that all such mortgages upon household goods must contain the signatures of both husband and wife.

HOUSE.

The house reassembled at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon and after prayers, roll call and other preliminaries Mr. Feig called up his resolution regarding the passage of the joint resolutions of condolence and regret regarding the deaths of Gen. Sherman and Admiral Porter, and the report of the house thereon was presented and adopted. The same report was made in the senate and appears in the proceedings of that body.

The reports of regular and select committees were then presented and accepted, a number of bills being reported back.

Mr. McAllister offered a resolution empowering George H. Miller to draw the pay of a page whose position he has temporarily filled. Referred to the committee on legislative expenses.

On the motion of Mr. Kendall the joint resolution to congress in favor of building the Niagara ship canal was taken up under a suspension of the rules and passed.

Slavery in San Francisco.

Interview with a San Franciscan: Slavery in the strongest and most literal sense of the word exists in the Californian metropolis. The federal government knows it, but makes not the slightest effort to eradicate the evil. I refer to the hideous traffic in Chinese women. There are thousands of these women in San Francisco, and, except the wives of a few of the higher grade Chinamen, there are few who are not bought and paid for. These slaves are brought into the United States on fraudulent certificates, and several Americans holding official positions have at various times been arrested for complicity in the forgeries, but in every instance the matter has been hushed up. The girls are all young when brought over, ranging in age from ten to sixteen years. The San Francisco slave dealers have agents in China, who purchase the girls, paying from $500 to $1,000 each, according to the degree of attractiveness. Most of them are contracted for before arriving in this country, yet they will often be put up at auction in some secret den in the Chinese quarter and knocked down to the highest bidder. All this would be bad enough if the girls were simply sold into slavery, but it is a fact that they are sold to masters who compel them to lead lives of shame in order that their gains may be increased. The awful truths of Chinatown depravity may some time be told.

Electric Light for Mines.

While it is not impossible that explosions might occur in mines lighted solely by electricity from imperfect insulation or the breaking of incandescent lamps, yet the fact that no accidents of this kind have occurred in the mines in which the experiment has been tried is strongly in its favor. Apart from the fact that insulated wires and incandescent lamps afford no point of contact between the explosive gases and the fatal spark that renders them destructive to human life, the placing of the entire business of lighting the mines in charge of a single agency independent of and apart from the miners themselves would be a great advantage. Those who are interesting themselves in legislation for the protection of miners will do well to give the subject of doing away with all lights in the hands of miners themselves serious consideration.—Philadelphia Times.

A TRIPLE TRAGEDY.

Two Editors Exchange a Fusillade of Pistol Shots in a Crowded Street.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Feb. 25.—A horrible triple tragedy occurred here to-day. Two men were killed and several wounded in a fusillade of pistol shots. The affair was the outgrowth of a newspaper feud, which has been raging for several weeks between the publishers of the Sunday World and Sunday Capitol of this city. Col. W. J. Elliott, editor of the Capitol, shot and instantly killed Albert Osborne, city editor of the World. W. L. Hughes, an old gentleman, who was standing near by, was shot and killed by a stray bullet from Elliott's pistol.

The tragedy, as before stated, was the result of a newspaper war. Two weeks ago the World made charges against Elliott's family, insinuating that a female relative of Elliott was unchaste. Elliott retaliated in the following Sunday with a four-column article, charging F. W. Levering, editor of the World, with being the joint proprietor of an assignation house, being associated with a woman named Lou Burtin, in the disreputable enterprise. Levering is an assistant of the state oil inspector and prominent in politics. The charge, therefore, created a profound sensation. The charges against Levering also implicated Claude Meeker. Levering and his city editor, Osborne, retaliated yesterday with a sensational article, charging Elliott with nearly all the crimes in the calendar.

Elliott, with his brother Patrick, and Osborne, met this afternoon on High street, near the American hotel. Patrick Elliott opened fire upon Osborne, and Osborne returned the fire. A running battle ensued, in which W. J. Elliott joined, all three men as rapidly as possible. One of the shots from W. J. Elliott's gun grazed Osborne's arm, and he turned and fired at the former. The shot missed its mark, and Osborne fled into Malcolm McDonald's hat store. As he did so he turned and fired at W. J. Elliott. The latter fired his weapon almost simultaneously and the shot took effect in Osborne's chin. It went clear through his mouth, upward and backward through the brain, and came out at the base of the skull.

Elliott had followed Osborne into the store, and, as he fired the last shot, grappled with him. In the scuffle which followed both their guns were discharged, and Osborne fell to the floor dead, although the last shot, it is said, did not take effect in either man, the ball which caused Osborne's death having entered his face as he came in through the doorway.

Elliott retreated out the front door and disappeared in the crowd with the revolver in his hand. W. L. Hughes, a highly respected citizen and formerly steward of the imbecile asylum, was struck during the running battle. The ball entered Hughes' head immediately over the left eye, and he immediately dropped upon the iron grating in front of Ambros' restaurant, expiring instantly. Patrick Elliott was shot in the back and arm, and has a frightful wound on top of the head.

The bodies of Osborne and Hughes were removed to the coroner's office. Among the wounded spectators were John H. Reese, government statistical agent, shot through the left leg, not serious; C. W. Sullivan, bookkeeper, shot through the arm; R. E. Gardner, Danville, Ohio, shot through the ankle; G. W. Reifschneider, struck in bosom by spent ball.

W. J. Elliott was at one time state supervisor of printing, and has taken an active part in politics. He is a personal friend of Charles Stewart Parnell, the deposed Irish leader. Both of the Elliotts are locked up at the station house.

In the senate to-day a bill was introduced which was suggested by the tragedy. It provides that any editor, proprietor, owner or correspondent who publishes, or permits to be published, any attack upon the private character of any citizen with intent to injure his credit or standing in public, or to publicly charge any citizen with unlawful practices in private affairs shall be deemed guilty of a felony, and fined not less than $1,000 and confined in the penitentiary not less than one year, or both, at the discretion of the court.

TARBELL'S TRICKS.

More Serious Charges Made Against the Former St. Paul Man.

FAIRHAVEN, Wash., Special Telegram, Feb., 25.—In an interview at Vancouver, B. C., P. E. Tarbell denies attempting to fire the building in which his printing office was located, and charges the Fairhaven Land company with persecuting him. Officials of the latter company emphatically deny that they have ever threatened or antagonized him in any way.

Some of the officers and stockholders state that Tarbell was employed by the Herald company about five weeks, but was discharged. Since he quit their employ they claim it has been discovered that he has embezzled upward of $1,000 which they have already detected and attempted to secure by an attachment suit. Some of the money was obtained, they further allege, through forgery committed eight days after his discharge. The evidence of this is in drafts and vouchers now in the secretary's possession.

Tarbell also says his own attorney, Mr. Logan, advised him to go to Canada. Logan denies having recommended such a proceeding, though he admits that it was not a bad thing to do under the circumstances.

Mrs. Tarbell, who is sorely grieved over the affair, is urging her husband's return. To-day she received a letter from him, saying he would come back and stand trial if informed that a warrant had been issued. His proposition is generally regarded as capping the climax for audacity.

Coming to America.

LONDON, Feb. 25.—Mr. Abraham, M. P., will go to America with the Irish mission. Messrs. Flynn and Kenny will sail for America next week. Mr. Cox will embark for Australia on Friday next, and Mr. Sullivan will join him as soon as possible, traveling part of the way overland.

Celebrated Washington's Birthday.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—Washington's birthday was celebrated here to-day by a parade of civic and military organizations which passed in review before President Harrison. Several of the organizations after the parade were addressed by District Commissioner Douglass, who made a speech suitable to the occasion. The Oldest Inhabitant's association observed the day in their time-honored way by listening to the reading of Washington's farewell address. All the executive departments were closed, and after 12 o'clock business was generally suspended.

THE WORST OVER.

Parkersburg Being Uncovered by the Receding Waters of the Ohio.

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., Feb. 25.—The worst of the flood is now over. The Ohio has receded from the business and factory sections of the city.

In the Ohio valley not less than fifteen thousand men have been thrown out of employment. This will entail great suffering. A close observer who has passed through the inundated district estimates the loss at $4,000,000.

Only two cases of drowning are reported—William Powell, who lived near Benwood, and Harry Westgate, whose home was at Torch, on the Ohio side of the river.

News from Pocahontas county says that many people in the upper part of that county are in a starving condition.

NEARING THE CREST.

CINCINNATI, Feb. 24.—The Ohio at Cincinnati at 10 o'clock to-night was 56 feet 3½ inches. The flood has begun to falter, and before morning it is thought the water will be stationary, and by to-morrow midnight will begin to fall, provided there is no rain in the meantime. If fair weather continues all inconvenience and delay to business will be over by Friday noon.

TERRIBLE FLOODS IN ARIZONA.

GILA BEND, Ariz., Feb. 24.—The second suspension of traffic on the Southern Pacific railroad in Arizona occurred Saturday. Salt river, near Phœnix, rose ten feet in an hour, sweeping away many houses. Thousands of people in the valley of Salt river are houseless. One hundred adobe houses have been washed down in Yuma, and 300 people are homeless. Great distress prevails for want of food, clothing and shelter.

THE WOMAN WORLD.

Representative Women From All Parts of the Country in Session.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—The first triennial meeting of the Woman's National Council of the United States was held at Albaugh's opera house to-day.

The body of the theater was crowded with intellectual women, with a fair sprinkling of men, while on the stage were seated the delegates, many of whom were the most conspicuous figures in the woman world.

The meeting was opened with prayer by Rev. Mary H. B. Hitt, after which the delegates were introduced by President Frances E. Willard, who then delivered a long and most interesting address, which was freely interrupted by storms of applause.

The general topic of discussion at the evening session was "Women in the Church." The first paper on the special subject of "Woman's Status in the Church To-Day" was read by Rev. Mila Frances Tupper of Grand Rapids, Mich. She said that woman's place in the church was being agitated in some form all over the United States. Woman's ministry is past the theoretic stage, and has become an established and well grounded fact. In this country there are 720 women who have been regularly ordained as ministers of the gospel. There was a great and growing need of women in the ministry.

NINETEEN LOST.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 25.—The loss of lives by the wrecking of the clipper ship Elizabeth off North Head Saturday night is now estimated at nineteen, including Capt. Henry, of the local live-saving service.

Eleven persons, including the wife and children of Capt. Colcord, of the Elizabeth, were saved. The list of survivors so far as known comprises Mrs. Colcord, the captain's wife, their son and daughter, Chief Mate Barclay, James Taken, Wheelman and six seamen.

Capt. Colcord, Second Officer Pendleton, William Redmand and Edward Miles, boatswains, Carpenter Smith, twelve seamen and the Chinese cook were drowned.

The vessel, which was from New York, with a cargo of general merchandise consigned to William S. Dimond & Co. of this city, was owned by Pendleton & Co. of New York and was valued at about $75,000. The cargo was valued at $125,000. There was no insurance on the hull in this city, but the cargo was insured in several insurance companies represented in California and the Atlantic Mutual of New York. The amount of insurance is at present unknown.

NATIONAL PORTRAIT GALLERY.

A Plan to Display Pictures of Prominent People at the World's Fair.

CHICAGO, Feb. 25.—There has been submitted to the sub-committee on art of the world's fair a plan for a national portrait gallery. It is proposed to have in it the portraits of all men and women who have attained prominence and distinction in the nation.

The collection would include portraits of all the presidents, all the state governors, the signers of the Declaration of Independence, prominent historians, army and navy officers and inventors. In extent such a collection would be enormous, but it is believed that it could be easily secured, as the various states would feel an interest in getting it up. It is proposed that a separate pavilion be erected, as the collection would require too much room to be included in the art exhibit. The plan is well thought of by such members of the committee as have heard of it.

Director C. L. Hutchinson will bring it before the meeting of the joint sub-committee on art, which meets in New York this week.

SIX SCORE OF VICTIMS.

The Death Roll of the Spring Hill Mines Disaster Increased.

SPRING HILL MINES, N. S., Feb. 25.—The work of recovering bodies has been carried on throughout the day most successfully. A revision of the list shows the number of dead to be 120. Of these, 54 were married men, 41 single men and 25 boys.

The scene of the explosion is about three-quarters of a mile from the bottom of No. 1 slope. In all the bores in that district the men were killed. Their bodies are being recovered quite rapidly.

There is no sign of the body of Manager Swift. He is thought to have been covered by the fall of one of the levels.

This afternoon a broken hearted Frenchman named Oliver Dupre took from the morgue the body of his son, James, who was killed in No. 1 slope. His other little boy ran out to meet the sorrowful father, slipped on the ice and struck his head with such force that he was instantly killed.

Idaho's Fourth Senator.

WASHINGTON, Special Telegram, Feb. 25. W. H. Claggett, the fourth senator from Idaho, has arrived in the city, and is ready to show reasons why he should be seated in the senate. Secretary of State Pinkham to-day filed in the senate his reasons why he could not attach the great seal to Claggett's certificate. He says he has sealed the certificates of three senators during one short session of the legislature, and he thinks that is enough. Fred Dubois hopes for an extra session of the senate so that the contest may be settled at once. He has no doubt as to the decision of the senate, but wants it settled early,

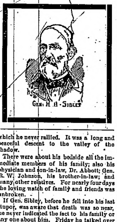
GEN. SIBLEY DEAD.

After Three Days of Unconsciousness, the Ex-Governor Slowly Passes Away.

He Was the First Governor of Minnesota and Was Everywhere Honored.

At 4:30 o'clock yesterday morning the solemn silence in the room where Gen. Sibley had lain for twenty weeks was broken by a far-away, muffled note from the Swiss clock on the mantel down stairs, and at the same instant the heart of the famous man throbbed for the last time, and the foremost man in Minnesota sank into eternal rest.

Last Friday it became apparent that the end for him was very near. From that time he gradually sank away until on Sunday morning he fell into a stupor from which he never rallied. It was a long and peaceful descent to the valley of the shadow.



GEN. H. H. SIBLEY

There were about his bedside all the immediate members of his family; also his physician and son-in-law, Dr. Abbott; Gen. R. W. Johnson, his brother-in-law; and many other relatives. For nearly four days the loving watch of family and friends was unbroken.

If Gen. Sibley, before he fell into his last stupor, was aware that death was so near, he never indicated the fact to his family or any one about him. Friday he talked over some business matters with his son, Mr. C. F. Sibley. His mind seemed perfectly clear, but in no way did he indicate a realization of the situation. However, the general was by nature inclined to be reticent upon such matters, and hence it is believed that in reality he was well aware of his condition. It was but a short time after the conversation with his son that he became unconscious.

All day yesterday St. Paul friends and acquaintances from outside the city called at the family residence on Woodward avenue to extend sympathies, and many telegrams of condolence were received from all over the country. Among the telegrams was the following:

> NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—Crawford Livingstone: Please convey to Gov. Sibley's family the assurance of my profound sympathy and grateful remembrance of personal kindness.
>
> HENRY VILLARD.

THE FUNERAL.

The funeral will be held from St. Paul's church at 2:30 o'clock Friday afternoon. The arrangements will be conducted under the direction of William Dampier.

Rev. John Wright, rector of that church, and Bishop M. N. Gilbert will conduct the religious ceremonies.

The actual pall bearers will be Judge Greenleaf Clark, Harvey Officer, J. I. Beaumont, J. D. Ludden, Gen. G. W. Bishop, Gen. George L. Becker, Prof. Folwell of Minneapolis and T. B. Campbell.

The honorary pall bearers will be ex-Gov. Alex Ramsey, Hon. John S. Prince, ex-Gov. John S. Pillsbury, Judge C. E. Flandrau, Judge Westcott Wilkin, Capt. Russell Blakeley, Hon. A. H. Wilder, Judge R. R. Nelson.

The funeral will be of a civic nature, though Col. Mason, commandant at Fort Snelling, will probably send down a military escort. The colonel will be in St. Paul to-day and decide definitely upon the matter.

A PROCLAMATION.

Gov. Merriam issued the following proclamation yesterday:

> It becomes my sorrowful duty to announce the death of Hon. Henry H. Sibley, the first governor of the State of Minnesota.
>
> A long and useful public career, involving positions of trust of the highest order, is brought to a close in the demise of this illustrious and honored citizen. The greater portion of his life has been spent within the borders of the state he loved so well, and to whose service he devoted so much unselfish labor.
>
> All the people of our commonwealth will cherish the memory of his noble nature and generous deeds. His pure and spotless character, his eminent civil and military services, his magnanimous conduct and his many private acts of charity, have endeared him to all good citizens.
>
> Now, therefore, as a token of public grief and veneration, I do designate and appoint the following citizens of the state to attend the funeral ceremonies: John S. Pillsbury, James Gilfillan, William Lochren, Thomas Wilson, William Dawson, G. S. Ives, E. T. Champlin and E. M. Pope.
>
> As a further manifestation of the sorrow felt by all, and as a mark of respect, I direct that on the day appointed for the funeral all state offices be closed to public business: that the national flag be displayed at half-mast on the capitol until sundown; and I further direct that the building be draped with emblems of mourning for the period of thirty days.
>
> In testimony whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the great seal of the State of Minnesota to be affixed.
>
> Done at the capitol in the city of St. Paul, this 18th day of February, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one.
>
> WILLIAM R. MERRIAM,
>
> By the Governor,
> F. P. BROWN, Secretary of State.

HONORING THE DEAD.

Senator H. F. Stevens introduced appropriate resolutions upon the death of Gen. Sibley in the senate early yesterday morning, which were passed, and concurred in by the house. After this both the senate and house adjourned for the day out of respect to the memory of the deceased. These resolutions appear in full in the report of the proceedings of the senate.

Lieutenant William Loebren, commander, yesterday issued an order that the Companions of the Commandery of Minnesota of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion shall assemble at the Ryan at 2 o'clock to-morrow afternoon, to attend the funeral in a body. The order also appointed ex-Gov. Ramsey, ex-Gov. Pillsbury, Hon. H. M. Rice, ex-Gov. Marshall and Gen. J. W. Bishop a committee to prepare resolutions to be presented at the meeting of March 10.

Acker Post, G. A. R., of which the deceased was a member, will attend the funeral in a body, as will also nearly every post in the city.

The directors and members of the chamber of commerce meet at the chamber at 2 o'clock to-morrow afternoon to attend the funeral of their ex-president.

CLOSED ITS DOORS.

The American Loan and Trust Company Financially Embarrassed.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—The American Loan and Trust company closed its doors to-day. Three savings banks, one in Syracuse, one in Rochester and another outside bank, the names of which are not known, demanded payment of deposits amounting to $300,000. The institution could not pay, and at the request of one of the savings banks the superintendent took possession.

This evening Bank Examiner Preston made a verbal statement as follows: "The liabilities amount to $2,824,827; the apparent deficiency is $656,789. Since the company closed the doors to-day I have been waited upon by influential men, and I have strong reasons to believe that it is possible that certain securities which I have estimated at a low figure may be paid to-morrow in full. If this is done we will have reduced the deficiency to $[illegible],000. I believe that the remainder will be made good by the stockholders of the institution, and it may be placed on its feet again. I am confident the depositors will be paid in full.

"The papers served to-day for the appointment of a receiver are returnable on Friday, but if the negotiations looking to a revival of the institution appear tangible the court proceedings may be adjourned to enable the officers to carry out their plans. The indications of to-morrow will decide this question."

ASSETS AND LIABILITIES EQUAL.

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 19.—The Union Investment company has assigned. The liabilities of the company are about $1,000,000, and its assets are an equal amount. The assignment was made for the reason that the company thought it the best way to protect all of its creditors alike. The cause of the failure is given as the difficulty in calling Western loans and negotiating paper in the East.

A BANK FAILS.

TOPEKA, Kan., Feb. 19.—The John D. Knox & Co. banking house closed its doors to-day. The liabilities are said to be $250,000. The assets are principally land equities, unpaid coupons, bills discounted, tax sale certificates, etc. The total value of the assets cannot definitely be determined, but Mr. Knox claims that at a fair valuation they will aggregate $450,000.

PURELY ACCIDENTAL.

Fire in a Tenement House Causes the Death of Four Persons.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—A woman and four children were suffocated, and a man was probably fatally burned in the fire that occurred at Delmonico Place and Hopkinson avenue, Brooklyn, early this morning. The building in which the fire occurred is a three-story frame structure. The basement and ground floor were used as a bakery, and two families lived on the floors above.

Jacob Enrich was at work in the basement over a pot of boiling fat, when the fat boiled over and set fire to the surrounding woodwork. In a few minutes the building was on fire and dense smoke was pouring through the halls. Enrich was badly burned, and the doctors say he cannot recover.

The firemen managed to subdue the flames after the bakery and second floor had been gutted. Then a search of the building was made, and on the top floor Mrs. John Henry and her four children were found dead. The woman and her children were asleep when the fire broke out, and were overcome by the smoke before they could escape.

GERMANY AND FRANCE.

A Member of Germany's Royalty Now on French Soil.

PARIS, Feb. 19.—Empress Frederick, accompanied by Count Seckendorf, and Countess Perponcher, arrived here at 11:45 p. m. She was met at the station by Count Munster and the members of his staff, and all preceeded to the German embassy.

Ex-Empress Eugenie arrived at the Northern railway station at 9:30 to-night from England. She alighted in the midst of the crowd awaiting the arrival of the ex-empress of Germany, and, being mistaken for the latter, was followed to her carriage by a silent and respectful multitude.

ENTENTE CORDIALE.

BERLIN, Feb. 19.—Emperor William is gratified at the decision of the French artists to send works to the art exhibition to be held in Berlin.

The German embassy in Paris admits that Empress Frederick will visit the leading studios in that city, and it is believed there that by Emperor William's express desire she has gone to Paris to accelerate an entente cordiale between the two countries, and so forestall Italy and Austria should they secede from the dreibund as foreshadowed in the fall of Premier Crispi and Austria's rapprochement with Russia.

Without a Quorum.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—The senate to-day proceeded to the consideration of the substitute for the house bill to provide for the adjudication and payment of claims arising from Indian depredations. Mr. Edmunds moved to strike out section 3 of the substitute, which prohibits the allowance of any claim made by Indians on the testimony of any witness of the Indian race. Mr. Walthall moved to amend the section by making it read "on the unsupported testimony of any Indian." Mr. Walthall's amendment was agreed to, but when a vote was taken it showed the lack of a quorum. A recess was taken until 8 p. m., but a quorum was not present at that time and the senate adjourned.

Wants the Bill Amended.

WASHINGTON, Special Telegram, Feb. 19.—F. D. Pease of Livingston, Mont., is in Washington. He desires to have the Crow Indian reservation bill amended so as to give the squaw men and half-breeds an opportunity to select lands on the ceded lands before the white settlers have a chance. In this he will not succeed. Maj. Pease is now endeavoring to assist in passing Senator Casey's amendment to the Indian bill to ratify agreements made with the Fort Berthold Indians in North Dakota. He says that justice and humanity demand the passage of this bill and the payment of the money to the Indians.

An Account of a Scandal.

LONDON, Feb. 19.—It is announced that Prince Albert Victor of Wales will visit Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wilson's house at Doncaster, where the recent card scandal occurred. The Pall Mall Gazette to-day publishes a two-column account of the scandal, giving diagrams showing the table and the positions the prince of Wales, Sir William Gordon Cumming, Lord Somerset, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wilson and others occupied during the much talked of game of baccarat.

A Mysterious Shooting.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—Early this morning a man dying of a pistol wound in the abdomen was found by an officer in an upper room on Twenty-eighth street. A handsome woman bent over him, and, as the officer entered, the wounded man said to her: "You've done me this time, but keep your mouth shut." The couple gave fictitious names. He is in the hospital. She is locked up, and says he attempted suicide.

MINNESOTA SOLONS.

Condensed Proceedings of Both Branches of the Minnesota Legislature.

What is Being Attempted in the Way of Legislation by Our Lawmakers.

Tuesday Feb. 17.

SENATE.

When the session began Senator Donnelly presented a petition from Douglas county citizens asking for annual sessions of the legislature.

Senators Davis and Stockton presented petitions against the passage of laws increasing the liability of employers to employes.

The first bill upon the calendar was Senator Leavitt's measure proposing an amendment to the constitution authorizing an income tax. Senator Dean made a strong speech against the bill.

After some further debate the bill was passed by a vote of 30 to 14.

Senator Mayo, who left before a vote was reached; and who favored the bill, was paired with Senator Morse, who opposed it.

Others absent or not voting, Ayers, Daugherty, Hammer, Liepau, Peterson, S. D., Sanborn, Smith, J. D., Streissguth—8.

Senator Crandall's bill appropriating money for the state public school at Owatonna provides for the following sums for the porposes named: Wing to the main building, $15,000; cottage residence, $5,000; electric dynamo, $1,000; water mains, $15,000; fire pump, $1,000; water reservoir, $1,000; water closet, $1,000; hen house, $500; engine for laundry, $300; library, $400; fencing, $200; workshop, $500; cisterns, $500; sidewalks, $500; current expenses for 1892, $7,800; expenses for 1893, $7,800.

HOUSE.

The house expressed its disinclination yesterday morning in a very emphatic manner, to legislate on educational matters with a view to making compulsory regulations in regard to the age of pupils or to the exclusion of any other than English from the public schools. Mr. Stockwell's bill fixing the age at which children shall be compelled to attend public schools, and Mr. Knudson's bill providing that for twelve weeks, six of which shall be consecutive, the English language alone shall be taught in all private and public schools, were both reported back from the committee on education with recommendation that they be indefinitely postponed.

After some discussion a vote on Mr. Stockwell's amendment was taken, and it was lost—68 to 13. Those voting in the affirmative were Messrs. Bjorge, Carleton, Coburn, Darelius, Gilmore, N. P. Nelson, Penney, Price, Sheets, Stockwell, A. Thompson, Tripp and Wahlund. Total, 13. The committee's report was then adopted.

Mr. Knudson's bill was indefinitely postponed without any further discussion.

On the motion of Mr. Zelch the privileges of the floor were granted to all members of the Grand Army while attending the state encampment.

On the motion of Mr. Keyes the clerk was directed to transmit all bills to the engrossing committee before they were placed upon the calendar.

Wednesday, Feb. 18.

SENATE.

The senate session was largely taken up yesterday with a discussion of the reports of the special committee to which was referred the election bills introduced by Senators Dean, McMillan and Leavitt. The majority report recommended the McMillan bill, while Senator Dean presented a minority report recommending that the bills be all referred to the judiciary committee. The final result was to adopt the minority report, four Alliance Senators voting with the Republicans.

Soon after the session had opened, Senator Stearns announced the death of Gen. Sibley and introduced the following resolutions, which were adopted by a rising vote:

Resolved, by the senate, the house concurring: Whereas, The legislature of the State of Minnesota has learned with profound sorrow of the death of Gen. Henry H. Sibley, which occurred in this city at an early hour this morning: therefore

Resolved, That in the decease of this distinguished soldier, patriot statesman, who was the first governor of this state, and has ever been foremost in the hearts of its citizens, the State of Minnesota has sustained great and irreparable loss.

Resolved, That a joint committee of three on the part of the senate and six on the part of the house be appointed by the presiding officers thereof, respectively, to draft and present suitable joint resolutions upon this melancholy event;

Resolved, That a joint committee of three on the part of the senate and six on the part of the house be likewise appointed to attend the funeral exercises on behalf of the legislature of the state;

Resolved, That from and after the adoption of this resolution and until after the funeral exercises are ended the flag upon the capitol be displayed at half-mast.

Resolved, That out of respect to the memory of our distinguished fellow citizen the legislature do adjourn at 12:30 o'clock.

HOUSE.

When the house met yesterday morning the speaker announced that the funeral of Gen. Sherman would take place on Saturday, and the house would adjourn on that day.

Mr. Capser made the announcement of the death of Gen. H. H. Sibley, and made a feeling allusion to "the pioneer statesman-soldier of the North Star State." A set of resolutions on the death of the general were then read and adopted by a rising vote. The text of these resolutions appears in the proceedings of the senate.

Thursday, Feb. 20.

SENATE.

Senator J. D. Smith presented a communication from Judson N. Cross and M. F. Griswold of Minneapolis offering to give the state 100 acres of land near Norcross if the state would erect thereon an experimental station for manufacturing beet sugar.

When the senate reached Senator McMillan's bill providing that all franchises for the use of streets shall be sold to the highest bidder, and that no grant shall be for a longer period than twenty years, Senator Keller asked for unanimous consent to amend, but failed to get it. Then the bill was referred to Senator Keller for amendment, and he reported it back with an amendment exempting his district and all places with less than three thousand inhabitants. The report was rejected by a vote of 17 to 25. The bill was then put upon its passage and was passed by a vote of 34 to 15.

The most of the afternoon session of the senate was taken up with the consideration of general orders, Senator S. D. Peterson in the chair. Senator Dedon's bill to license peddlers was recommended to be referred to the judiciary committee. There was considerable discussion of Senator Hompe's bill providing for the erection of grain warehouses and elevators on railroad rights o: way, and for condemnation proceedings in connection therewith. Several amendments were made, the most important of which takes away from elevator companies the sole right to decide whether such condemnation shall be made and a yearly rental paid, one year's rental to be paid in advance. The amendment makes the terms of rental a matter of agreement between railroad and elevator companies. The bill was recommended to pass as amended.

HOUSE.

When the house had settled down to business yesterday morning petitions were received protesting against the passage of the employers' liability bill and favoring the woman's elective franchise bill.

Mr. Ames' bill to prevent corruption at elections is a copy of the New York law regarding the same.

Mr. Smith's bill is to repeal the charter of the St. Croix River Boom company. It is a bill in the interest of the steamboat men, who claim that the St. Croix river is a navigable stream and that the existence of the booms impedes navigation.

The bill introduced by Mr. M. Walsh, H. F. 82, is to submit to a vote of the people an amendment to section 3, article 9, of the constitution relating to the taxation of property, real and personal. The bill proposes to give to municipalities and to counties local option on the adoption of the single tax system. There was considerable debate on the question, Messrs. Turrell, Greer, Tucker and Searle opposing it for the reason that it was the duty of the house of representatives, and the purpose for which they were elected by the people, to decide upon all these questions and not to shirk responsibility by sending the question back to the people for them to decide upon.

Friday, Feb. 21.

SENATE.

The senate held a two hours' session yesterday, adjourning at noon to attend the funeral exercises for Gen. Sibley.

There were several petitions against any legislation increasing the liability of employers. Also one favoring prohibition.

Senator Dedon presented a resolution providing for the appointment of clerks for the committees on public lands and labor, each to receive $5 per day.

When Senator March reported back from the Hennepin county delegation the bill requiring the park board of Minneapolis to get the sanction of the city council before issuing bonds, Senator Bell moved to refer it back to the delegation, saying that the full delegation had not yet considered it. His motion was seconded by Senator Phillips, and it was adopted by a vote of 15 to 10.

S. F. No. 834—Authorizing village of Luverne to issue bonds for waterworks.

S. F. No. 296—Allowing village of St. Hillaire to appropriate money for use of School District No. 101.

S. F. No. 293—Providing for filing resurvey of Minnesota Lake in Faribault county.

HOUSE BILLS PASSED.

H. F. No. 49—Providing for the loaning of money to certain persons for the purchase of seed wheat.

H. F. No. 105—Restraining animals from running at large in township of Home Lake in Morrison county.

H. F. No. 98—Providing for phonographic reporters to be appointed by judges of the district court of Hennepin county.

The senate adjourned until 2 p. m. Monday.

HOUSE.

The house yesterday morning expressed its unanimous concurrence in the joint resolution brought in from the senate regarding the death of Gen. H. H. Sibley, and decided to adjourn at noon until 3 o'clock p. m. on Monday next.

Mr. Chesley presented a petition against the bill relating to extending the powers of mutual insurance companies, with especial reference to a Norman county company. Mr. Lockwood offered a resolution for the appointment of a joint committee to visit the Nebraska beet sugar factories, which was laid over on a notice of debate by Mr. Furlong.

Mr. Bondo introduced a bill which is intended to prevent loss to shippers of milk, while the milk is in transit.

Mr. Wacek had a bill which provides for the appointment of a game warden in each county of the state.

Mr. Chesley introduced a bill which gives plaintiffs against railroad companies the power to institute suit against the companies in the district in which the plaintiff lives.

The following bills were passed by the house under suspension of the rules:

H. F. 238—Incorporating the city of Chaska in Carver county.

H. F. 240—authorizing the village of Gaylord to issue $5,000 of bonds to build a village hall.

H. F. 309—to annex the village of Moritzes to Monticello in Wright county.

The house then adjourned to Monday at 3 o'clock.

Saturday Feb. 21.

SENATE.

Not in session.

HOUSE.

Not in session.

Monday, Feb. 23.

SENATE.

The senate met at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and the members appeared somewhat refreshed after the vacation, as a motion to adjourn, made immediately after the approval of the journal, was defeated by a vote of 22 to 4.

S. F. No. 354—By Senator Craig—Reapportioning the state into congressional districts.

S. F. No. 355—By Senator Donnelly—Amending General Laws relating to county commissioners and care of poor.

The bill authorizing the city of Mankato to donate to the general government a site for a public building was passed under suspension of the rules.

The senate adjourned until 10 o'clock this morning.

Senator Craig, chairman of the senate committee on reapportionment, yesterday introduced a bill reapportioning the state into seven congressional districts, in accordance with the bill passed by congress which gives Minnesota seven congressmen instead of five. The bill is not a committee bill, but embraces Senator Craig's personal ideas of what the new apportionment should be. The basis of the bill is the population, according to the census of 1890.

HOUSE.

When the house assembled at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon Mr. Bell drew the attention of Mr. Bjorge, speaker pro tem., to the fact that copies of the journal were not on the desks of members, as the rules provided, and that the rules would have to be suspended. A vote to suspend the rules revealed the fact that there were sixty members in the house, 48 of whom voted aye and 12 no. There not being sufficient votes to suspend the rules the motion was lost, but the house by unanimous consent decided to proceed with business, and the journal was read.

Mr. McAllister moved that the house adjourn until 10 o'clock the following morning, out of respect to the memory of the late, lamented Gen. George Washington. This, the house by a vote of 42 to 8 declined to do, and the reports of committees were read.

A number of new bills were introduced, among them being one by Mr. Gallagher providing for the redistricting of the Twenty-ninth senatorial district in Minneapolis. This district comprises the First and Third wards, the First being a strong Democratic ward and the Third doubtful. At present the two representatives of the district are voted for separately in each ward, and Mr. Gallagher's bill provides that the dividing ward line be obliterated and the two representatives voted for at large in the district.

Another bill, and one of general importance, was House File 495, introduced by Mr. Tripp of Hennepin. This bill makes a uniform method of controlling the pawnbroking business. At present it is left to each city, there being no state law.

Mr. Coates of Benton introduced two bills of deep interest to the owners of livery and feed stables. The first bill regulates the business, and is in the interest of the general public, while the second bill is designed to protect the proprietors from loss by bad debts, etc.

A contemporary starts the query: "Why do shoes squeak?" Probably for the same reason that opera singers do, because of the music in their soles.

Trembling Youth—"Madam, I love you to distraction; will you be my wife?" Girl of the Future—"You may leave your references and call again."

"Are those people really grown up?" asked a little girl whose mother had taken her to see the dwarfs. "Yes, dear, but their mammas fed them on condensed milk."

"Judge (to small witness)—"Do you know the nature of an oath?" Witness—"Oh, yes, sir. I am an office boy and have to answer the telephone every few minutes."

Police Judge (who is trying to find out the trade of the accused)—"What are you, anyhow?" Prisoner—"Ash yer honor hash no doubt obsherved, I'm (hic) a little off this morning."

The present legislature has proved its anti-monopoly proclivities beyond all dispute. Its members are in favor of free passes The true anti-monopoly doctrine involves the getting out of the monopolies all you can, Hence, no doubt, the public will understand that in deciding to remain in possession of their railroad passes, our legislators have once for all settled the question as to whether they are or are not good anti-monopolists,—Dispatch,

Farmers in the vicinity of Ada have an idea that beats courts of reconcilaition in simplifying or doing away with litigation. When the secrtary of the Minnesota Livestock Insurance company made his appearance in that Arcadian region to prosecute a batch of suits against gentle husbandmen who had refused to pay their assements they quietly procured a rope, made a neat hangsman's noose at one end thereof and called on the secretary. New Ulm Review: After all the talk about economy and reform in our state legislature it is almost enough to cause a fainting spell to single out the many bills that are being brought forward for the creation of office and investigating boards. If kept up at the present rate we predict a squandering of money by the present legislature that will certainly place the treasurer in a condition of bankruptcy similar to that in which Donnelly would have the people believe that the Republicans of the last legislature left it. Unnecessary expenditure is creeping upon them in a quiet way and useless appropriations are being piled up too rapidly for the public good, Truly, economy is not in it. The wolf is there in sheeps clothing.

The committee of the county commissioners appointed at the last meeting of the board went to Wadena where Commissioner Kirsch was made chairman of the meeting called to take action regarding the taxation of railroad lands A bill was drawn and has been introduced into the legislature. It is the impression however that any act by the legislature looking to the taxing of these lands would be inoperative as in the case of the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific the state has no jurisdiction, as the land came to these companies direct from the National government. Let us hope that it may prove otherwise.—Crookston Times.

There are thousands of men in Minnesota today, who did not vote the republican ticket at the last election who are just as good republicans, as they ever were, Some of these thousands however, in remaining at home and others in voting the other ticket, did so to discountenance the use of money in elections and to discountenance wealth as a recommendation for office, They fully realize the state of affairs, and acted accordingly. Next year, with a ticket in the field, made up of brains, not wealth, an old time republican majority is as certain as the sun rises and sets: The party has but to heed this warning and all will be well,—Anoka Union.

Here we have a soil unsurpassed in fertility, easily cultivated, and producing the finest wheat, oats, barley, flax, potatoes and vegitables in the world. Much of this land can yet be had without money and without price, except a trifling fee paid to the government. More of this land can be bought at a low price, and on long payments at low rates of interest, from railroad companies and private individuals. Price of products are fair, and improving every year. Railroads will soon be in easy reach of every farmer in this portion of the Red River Valley, Facilities for transportation afforded by the railroads already in operation are better than in many places in the older states No better country can be found for farmers who can start in with a little capital, and who keep within their means and ability to pay their obligations. With a few hundred dollars, common sence, economy, sober and industrious habits, and practical knowledge of farming and handling stock, a healthy ablebodied man can make a better living here and make it easier than any place on earth, that we know of. Put that in your pipes and smoke it you eastern grangers, who are trying to dig a living out of the poor, worn out soil of your native states.—Warren Register.

Persons familiar with the subject believe and assert that the flax grown in Minnesota and the Dakotas will turn out as good fiber as any in the world. This belief has assumed practical form in Minnesota, Linen mills are being built at Minneapolis and hundreds of tons of fiber will be needed. Will the farmers help sustain the faith and works of the manufacturer? Hand broken and scutched fiber or tow is worth more than machine scutched, and any farmer with a few dollars worth of tools can prepare from two to three hundred dollars worth of fiber during the winter and in the evenings and odds and ends of time of other seasons when not otherwise profitably employed. By right treatment both seed and fiber can be saved. We hope our farmers will give the matter careful thought this spring and put in a few acres with a view to making binding twine, for a machine of Minnesota invention will make it, it is claimed, at a cost of two cents a pound. MORTGAGE SALE.

Whereas default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage bearing date October 12th 1889 made and executed by William P. Fowler and Jennie R. his wife, mortgagors, to The Dakota Investment company of Grand Forks Dakota, mortgagee which mortgage was on the 18th day of October 1889 at 9 o'clock a. m. duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Polk county Minnesota, in Book 43 of mortgages on page 103. And whereas, it was stipulated in said mortgage, that in case of default of any of the conditions thereof, the mortgagee might declare the whole sum secured by said mortgage due and payable, and default having been made the said mortgagee has elected to and has declared the whole sum thereby secured due and payable. And whereas there is claimed to be due and is due on the debt secured by said mortgage at the date of this notice the sum of sixhundred fifty-eight dollars and seventy cents: and no proceedings at law or in equity have been instituted to recover the debt thereby secured or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that the said mortgage will be foreclosed pursuant to the statute and to the power of sale contained in said mortgage and the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage to-wit: The south east quarter of section thirty-four in township one hundred and fifty-two north of range forty-four west situate in the county of Polk and state of Minnesota will be sold by the sheriff of said Polk county at public auction on Saturday the 13th day of April 1891 at 10 o'clock a. m. at the front door of the court house in the city of Crookston in said county of Polk, Minnesota, to satisfy the amount due on said mortgage and expenses of sale together with an attorneys fee of twenty-five dollars stipulated to be paid in case of the foreclosure of the said mortgage.

SOIL CULTIVATION.

A FEW VALUABLE SUGGESTIONS TO MINNESOTA FARMERS.

How Shall We Cultivate the Soil of Our Dry Prairie Regions to Make Them More Productive?—A Practical Prairie Farmer Tells His Experience For the Benefit of Others.

The following article was written by a prominent farmer of Minnesota, in a spirit of inquiry, and is printed in the belief that it is worthy of investigation and trial—by not only the farmers of Minnesota and the Dakotas, but of the more Westerly semi-arid region:

One of the most important questions before the agriculturalists of Minnesota and the Dakotas is this: What shall be done with our dry prairie soils to make them more productive? Congress is agitated by the irrigation question, but, like all large bodies, it moves slowly, and the farmer that waits for salvation by congress will probably only wait to meet his doom. I am not a believer in legislative salvation to any great extent in anything, but have great faith in salvation by individual work. As an agricultural people in the nineteenth century we are "perishing" largely as they did in ancient times, when the prophet said, "our people perish through lack of knowledge."

Considerable experience and observation have led me to study the treatment of soils in the dry prairie regions of western Minnesota and the Dakotas. They are very dissimilar from central and eastern Minnesota, and farming methods that would be approved in the latter would prove in many ways a failure in the former sections.

CAPILLARITY OF SOIL.

In the cultivation of this dry soil I think there is one central thought that should always be kept in mind, viz., the capillarity of the soil; I will here use a sketch that will make this matter plainer than my words can make it. A. is the surface; C. capillary tubes; B. sub-soil, which I will call the home of moisture.

These capillaries are the equalizers of moisture in the soil. When the rain is abundant the water goes down these tubes to the drier sub-soil beneath: when the drouth prevails then the moisture from beneath goes up these tubes to relieve the parched surface of the ground.

HOME OF MOISTURE.

It is true this "home of moisture" may be so saturated with water as to be death to plant life, unless the farmer's art assisted the capillary tubes by drains that would lead the "water of death" to a lower level and exit. Moving water in soils may be called "life," but stagnant water is "death."

The agriculturist of wet sections must meet the danger of stagnant water, but the farmer of the dry region must solve the problem of using with the greatest economy what life-giving water nature has given him.

DRY PRAIRIE ILLUSTRATED.

The sketch gives a section of dry prairie soil in the growing season, when the accumulated moistures of the past fall and winter is ascending the naturally appointed channels to succor the parching surface of the land in summer. The natural lack of moisture at this time in this section is intensified by the absence of trees, and the prevailing winds, that like robber bands carry off the moisture as fast as it appears at the surface of the soil. Much has been said about the "blizzards" that prevail during the winter in Western Minnesota and the Dakotas, but the winter wind does not make such destructive raids in those sections as the "summer sirocco."

OLD WAY OF SEEDING ILLUSTRATED.

Now, in view of the facts stated, what are we going to do at the present time in the dry region, as a rule? I think I can again use an illustration to make plain the average agricultural method in this section. If experience teaches anything then I think we can safely say that this method has not proven a success, and it is about time to be able to safely call it a failure. Here is shown the surface of the soil, the plowed portion, the location of the seed (represented by dots), the capillaries and subsoil.

This cut shows the depth of plowing, at which point the ascending moisture must stop until the capillarity of the soil is restored. The space between seed and capillaries has been turned by the plow, and the capillarity of so much of the soil has for a time been destroyed.

The grain is sown in the loosened soil, with the parched surface soil overhead and cut off from the source of moisture supply from beneath. Here we have an excellent example of the "monkey and parrot" experience. The Northwestern sirocco playing the part of monkey, and the grain crop (that we need, but so frequently fail to get), passing through the experience of the parrot, who reported to her mistress that "she had had a h—l of a time."

FACTS KNOWN TO DRY PRAIRIE FARMERS.

We now make note of two facts that are well known to every cultivator of these Western soils. First—While the land at first breaking is firm, at each subsequent plowing it grows more and more like an "ash heap," and out of this loosened earth the summer winds lick like a flame the moisture it may contain. Second—This loosened and beat

"German Syrup"

G. Gloger, Druggist, Watertown, Wis. This is the opinion of a man who keeps a drug store, sells all medicines, comes in direct contact with the patients and their families, and knows better than anyone else how remedies sell, and what true merit they have. He hears of all the failures and successes, and can therefore judge: "I know of no medicine for Coughs, Sore Throat, or Hoarseness that had done such effective work in my family as Boschee's German Syrup. Last winter a lady called at my store, who was suffering from a very severe cold. She could hardly talk, and I told her about German Syrup and that a few doses would give relief; but she had no confidence in patent medicines. I told her to take a bottle, and if the results were not satisfactory I would make no charge for it. A few days after she called and paid for it, saying that she would never be without it in future as a few doses had given her relief." ⓘ

THE DEADLY PIE.

It is the Great American Depopulator, Says This Authority.

"The risks which New York men take with their digestion," said the proprietor of a group of well-known down-town restaurants to a New York Sun man, "is a constant source of surprise to me. Heavy pie and pulpy pudding are bolted at the very time when careful eating should be rigorously attended to. I sit and look on at times in my different restaurants with absolute amazement at the judgment, or rather lack of judgment, which men exhibit at the table. We have two throngs of customers. The first rush comes about 9:30 in the morning. It is composed of brokers, business men, clerks, and office employes, who have grown into the habit of rising late and rushing down to the office without breakfast so as to start the work of the day on time. They could easily get their breakfast at their boarding-house or at home if they rise a half-hour earlier, but most of them are up late at night and the temptation of a longer nap in the morning is too alluring to resist. So they hurry down-town, open the mail, start things a-going, and then rush into the nearest restaurant for breakfast. It does not hurt any man to take a little exercise before he eats in the morning, and undoubtedly a delay in the first meal of the day would not do them any particular harm if they would be careful about the character of their food. But after working two hours on an empty stomach they come in in violent hast, order a cocktail, and then eat pastry and sweets enough to ruin the digestion of an ostrich. They usually start in with roast beef or some other dish that is ready and wind up with mince pie or a boiled apple dumpling. I know many a business man who comes in and consumes three or four dishes and is out of the place again in less than fifteen minutes. At lunch-time they come in again and load up with an oyster pattie or beefstak pie or some other dish in which rich pastry is an important factor. This second rush of trade is even more interesting than the first, because it shows how the habit of eating pastry grows. It is no unusual thing to see a man of 40 years of age take wheat cakes, sausages, and mince pie for his luncheon. He bolts the sausage, covers his cakes with rich syrup, and his pie served hot and sprinkled an inch deep with powdered sugar. He is invariable an advanced dyspeptic in appearance, and for some unaccountable reason he seems to succeed in business. It does not do any good to sneer at the pie-eaters of New York, because half the railroad presidents, telegraph superintendents, and influential men of affairs of this town eat things which cause a man of gastronomical intelligence to shudder. Most of the absorbed and nervous financiers and business men die at 50, and everybody says it is due to over work. All a mistake. Pie is the fell destroyer."—New York Sun.

YOUR NAME BY MAGIC.

A Simple Device That Will Reveal Any Number of Secrets.

By use of the table given below you can ascertain the name ot any person or place, providing the rules below the lettered diagram are strictly observed:

A	B	D	H	P
C	C	E	I	Q
E	F	F	J	R
G	G	G	K	S
I	J	L	L	T
K	K	M	M	U
M	N	N	N	V
O	O	O	O	W
Q	R	T	X	X
S	S	U	Z	Y
U	W	V	Y	Z
W	W	W
Y	Z

Have the person whose name you wish to known inform you in which of the upright columns the first letters of the name is contained. If it is found in but one column, it is the top letter; if it occurs in more than one column, it is found by adding the alphabetical numbers of the top letters of the columns in which it is to be found, the sum being the number of the letters sought. By taking one letter at a time, in the way outlined above, the whole word or name may be plainly spelled out. Take the word Jane for example. J is found in two columns beginning with B and H, which are the second and eighth letters down the alphabet: their sum is ten, and the tenth letter down the alphabet is J, the letter sought. The next letter A, appears in but one column, the first, where it stands at the head. N is seen in the column headed B, D and H, which are the second, fourth and eighth letters of the alphabet; added they give the fourteenth, or N, and so on.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Swarms of Spies.

It is estimated by an eminent statistician that there are now employed in various parts of Europe and America at least 1,800,000 Russian spies. No one who reads second-rate English novels can doubt that Europe swarms with Russian spies, and there are few Russians of either sex, residing one side of Russia, who have not been suspected by their cooks or housemaids of being spies. It now appears that Mr. George Kennan, who is lecturing in the United States, is constantly followed by a detachment of Russian spies, whose presence prevents him from making the blood-curdling revelations that he would otherwise make. Everybody knows that the Russian Government lives in deadly terror of Mr. Kennan, and the presence of Russian spies at his lectures is generally thought to be an additional proof of the fact. Still, it is possible that Mr. Kennan is mistaken in supposing that spies are at present dogging his foot-steps. The Russians whom he believes to be spies may be criminals of exceptional atrocity, who have been condemned by a cruel government to expiate their crimes by attending a series of Mr. Kennan's lectures. Cruel and unusual punishments are, however, forbidden by the Constitution of the United States, and the so-called spies ought to be informed that when they are in America not even the Czar can compel them to undergo Mr. Kennan's lectures.—New York Herald.

Pretty Girls as Nurses.

"She's a King's Daughter, God bless her! and she's been all through this house leaving joy and sunshine in her wake."

It was an old, wrinkled woman who spoke. Her eyes were dimmed with tears as she gazed affectionately at a pretty young girl, scarcely twenty, who was just turning the corner.

The scene was a Brooklyn street, in one of the most densely populated parts of the city, and the young girl a member of the King's Daughters.

"We do all the good we can," said an elderly member of the order, "but the greatest service is being done by our young girls just budding into womanhood. They are indefatigable workers, and each day finds them climbing tall tenement house stairs and in the sick rooms of the very poor."—New York Journal.

The Future of Hogs.

The following correspondence will be of interest to the hog growers of the Northwest. The first letter was written by R. C. Judson, to Gen'l Mark D. Flower, president of the St. Paul Union Stock Yards Company:

Gen'l Mark L. Flower.

DEAR SIR:—You are aware of the great interest taken by myself in the hog and sheep raising industry of Minnesota. Years ago, I became convinced that diversified farming was necessary to the success of husbandry in this state. The exclusive wheat grower year by year became poorer, until he was forced to diversify. My great hope for the farmers of Minnesota has been in hog and sheep raising, and I have viewed with pleasure the growing cash markets here for all kinds of stock. However, I now hear more or less complaint of the prices secured this year for hogs, and fear the low prices will tend to decrease the hog product of Minnesota next year.

What explanation can you give for the unusual low prices at all of the leading markets of the country? Is my cherished hope in the utility of hog production as the one sure winner for the farmer likely to be blasted?

The following is Gen'l. Flower's reply:

"The tendency of the hog market has been generally downward during the past four months, and the farmers of Minnesota, like those of other states, have been compelled to either refuse to sell or to accept unremunerative prices. In November the hog market at Chicago, Kansas City and other leading markets were lower than at any time during the preceding twelve years. Considering the exceptionally high price of corn and other grain this would seem to be a strange circumstance, but it was due alone to the high price of grain that hogs became a drug in the markets! The farmers who had little or no grain could not afford to buy it for feeding purposes, and those who had grain preferred to rush their immature hogs and shoats upon an overstacked and demoralized market at any price it would give, and convert their surplus grain into cash.

"On the part of the farmers with one accord, there existed a mania to sell hogs at any price, to save feeding, and this intemperate desire to sell extended to brood sows and stock pigs, thus making it next to impossible to seasonably supply the markets next year.

"What will be the sequence to this "tale of woe"? Next year, with the same intemperate zeal and unanimity that has characterized their action, this season as to hogs, will impel them to raise grain and abandon hog production. The logical conclusion is that grain will then be the drug in the market, and the few farmers who are wise enough not to abandon hog-raising will surely be recompensed for their foresight and judgment."

Dr. Dauphin's Successor.

The Board of directors of The Louisana State Lottery Company met yesterday morning and elected Mr. Paul Conrad president, vice Dr. M. A. Dauhlin, deceased.

Mr. Conrad has practically managed the affairs of this great corporation for the past five or six years. He has been an attache of the company in varions capacities since 1870, and has earned the good will, confidence and respect of all with whom he has come in contact.

Born in this city in the year 1840, he entered the Confederate army soon after attaining to manhood and his record as a soldier was as enviable and gallant as that of any of Louisiana's sons who wore the gray. He served with distinction to the end of the war. He was a member of Capt. Henry St. Paul Chasseurs a Pied, a part of the Army of Northern Virginia, and is one of but a few of the survivors of that famous command. The company left New Orleans April 22, 1861, for Pensacola. Thence they went to Virginia, and other companies being attached, St. Paul's Battalion was formed. Their first big fight was at Seven Pines, where more than half the command were killed or wounded—among the former being young Bourges, Conrad's first cousin.

He is and always has been strictly speaking a man of the people. Of a genial and pleasant disposition and possessing rare business qualifications he is eminently fitted to fill the responsible position to which he has been elected. He is an honest, upright and faithful business man, whose word is as good as his bond, and, having a thorough knowledge of the intricate affairs of the corporation over which he now presides, the interests of the stock holders may be said to be in safe and careful keeping.

Repulishing this notice from the New Orleans Picayune the Mobile Register says:

Keeping the Gate.

A man who was recently arrested on a charge of vagrancy was asked by the magrestrate why he did not go to work.

"I cannot," the man replied.

"You cannot? Why I haven't seen a more strapping fellow in many a day than you are. Does anything ail you?"

"No, sir."

"Then why don't you work?"

"Because I used to keep toll-gate on a turn-pike in the South."

"You are a disharged," said the Judge. "Here take this dollar."

The judge was a wiseman. He knew the nature of a toll gate-keeper; he know that the most active and industrious man in the world, if put at toll gate-keeping, would become a sloth incapable of self-support. The town constable is lazy, and the country school-teacher is not given to undue exertion but the toll gate-keeper is the head waiter (we can think of nothing more suggestive of indolence. The old toll gate-keeper was a sort of news budget. He had nothing in detail, but held the paragraphic gossip of several neighborhoods. In season he had a little weedy garden back of his house, and in it yellow cucumbers could be seen, withering under the fierce rays of the sun, but no one ever saw him chop down any of the weeds or gather any of the cucumbers. Near his house there was a well, from which water was drawn with a long pole set in a see-saw, and with a heavy weight on one end. It would be risky to say that there was any worse waterin the world. It was blackish, and had, in connection with its other monstrocities, a burnt-leather taste. But how the old fellow did delight in handing out that water to the thirsty and dust-covered traveler. He had a gourd that had been broken and sewed up with a twine string, but the wound had never healed, and through it the water poured down the way farer's sleeve. As a rule the old fellow had seven children and several grandchildren. His daughter, a pale-faced woman, with large, sad, brown eyes, had buried her husband away over the hill under the persimmon tree. The oldest of the grandchildren, a chubby little rascal, with a daub of molasses in his hair, would toddle, out to collect the toll.

The old fellow does not keep the toll-gate now. He lies under the persimmon tree on the hill.

Calm in the Face of Death.

A tradesman of Lyons, in France, of the name of Grivet, a man of mild and simple manners, was sentenced during the French revolution, with a number of others, to die next morning. Those who were already in the cave pressed around the newcomer to sympathize with and to fortify him. But Grivet had no need of consolation; he was as calm as if he had been in his own house. "Come and sup with us," said they; "this is the last inn in the journey of life; tomorrow we shall arrive at our long home." Grivet accepted the invitation and supped heartily. Desirous to sleep as well, he retired to the remotest corner of the cave, and, burying himself in his straw, seemed not to bestow a thought on his approaching fate.

The morning arrived. The other prisoners were tied together and led away without Grivet's perceiving anything or being perceived. Fast asleep, enveloped in his straw, he neither saw nor was seen. The door of the cave was locked, and when he awoke, after awhile, he was in the utmost astonishment to find himself in perfect solitude. The day passed no new prisoners were brought into the cave. The judges did not sit for two days. Grivet remained all this time in solitude, subsisting on some scatterd provisions which he found in the cave, and sleeping every night with the same tranquility as on the first. On the evening of the fourth day the turnkey brought in a new prisoner, and became as one thunderstruck, on seeing a man, or, as he almost believed, a spirit, in the cave.

He called the sentinel, who instantly appeared. "Who are you?" said he to Grivet, "and how came you here?" Grivet answered that he had been there four days. "Doubtless," he added, "when my companions in misfortune were led away to death I slept and heard nothing, and no one thought to awaken me. It was my misfortune, since all would now have been past, whereas I have now lived with the prospect of death always before me; but the misfortune now will undoubtedly be repaired, and I shall die."

Grivet was summoned before the tribunal. He was interrogated anew. It was a moment of leniency with the judges, and he was set at liberty.

A Chinaman on Walking.

Nobody ever saw a Chinaman with muddy shoes, no matter what the weather, unless some hoodlums had pushed him into a puddle. We take care of our feet instinctively, and get into a habit of walking carefully. If you watch on a muddy crossing you will see one American after another pick his way over cautiously, and yet land on the other side with mud on his toes, while a Chinaman will walk along after them at his usual gait, and, seemingly not noticing his feet, stepping on the other curb with not a particle of mud on his shoes. But when he crossed the street he did not walk as the American did. Had he done so he would have been as muddy as they. They stepped along gingerly on their toes, or, at least the front part of the foot. In this way they put all the weight of their body on the thinnest part of the shoe, from top to bottom, and when it flattened out with each step the mud touched the leather. The Chinaman walked over with the weight of his body on the heel and instep of the shoe, and the toe barely grazing the ground. The foot of the shoe that felt his weight was firm and unyielding, and did not spread into the mud.—Fung Loud in St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

'A Cold Blooded Husband.

A coroner sees many curious sights. Deputy Coroner—— was telling of a circumstance that came under his notice recently that surpassed everything ever heard of in the way of heartless indifference. He was called to investigate a case where a man's wife had died very suddenly. It was plainly a case of heart failure, but the husband insisted upon an autopsy. He not only wanted the autopsy, but he wanted to see it performed. The body was placed on a table and the doctor began his work. The husband watched every movement very closely. Finally the liver and heart were exposed and the heart was found to be greatly enlarged. The husband, more deeply interested than ever, stepped forward and took hold of the heart with his fingers.

"It made my blood run cold," said the deputy, "and I pushed the man away." He seemed to resent the coroner's action very much and insisted on knowing what caused his wife's death. The doctor exclaimed that it was caused by an enlargement of the heart.

"Wall, by thunder!" mused the man, "I don't understand that. I supposed a big heart made folks generous like, but that woman was the dumdest stingiest critter I ever see."

A SUGGESTION FOR TABLEAUX.

A VERY successful tableau-entertainment was recently given in New York, the subjects being taken from illustrations in the current magazines. The idea is a simple one, and if the subjects are well chosen it can be made very interesting.

The Century Company has prepared a list of suitable pictures with suggestions for any one who wishes to get up the entertainment. They will send it free on request.

When that famous epidemic, "la grippe" prevailed in Europe and America thousands of people used Scotts, Emulsion and were benefited. Such a signal proof of the efficacy of a medicine had scarcely ever before been known. It is not only efficacious in influenza, but in consumption in its early stages, bronchitis, whether acute or chronic, and, in fact, in all diseases of the respiratory organs. If you "have a cold" DO NOT WAIT until it develops into some disease that is difficult to remove, but get Scott's Emulsion at once, and thus save yourself much suffering, and avoid the danger of its settling into a chronic cough. Those who are subjected to great changes of temperature, and are therefore liable to contract colds, should keep it on hand. For use in families, it is a food medicine that will give speedy relief and save many doctor's bills.

The conferrees on the repeal of the timber culture law have nearly agreed. There is a dispute over the repeal of the pre-emption law, also over the provision to stop prosecutions where miners have taken government timber where other timber could not be obtained, and allowing claims of this timber land to be acquired.

Acting Secretary Nettleton issued warrants for the payment of nearly $20,000,000 on account of pensions. The requirements for pensions for the quarter ending March 4 next are about $31,000,000. Including disbursements, a little over $21,000,000 has already been applied to that purpose, leaving nearly $10,000,000 to be met. The available cash balance in the treasury at present, as stated by the treasurer, is $15,000,000, so that there will be still a surplus after paying all these pensions.

FLOODED TOWNS.

Every Building in Yuma, Ariz., But Two Destroyed by the Flood.

One Building Blown up by Dynamite to Save a Costly Railroad Bridge.

SAN FRANCISCO, Mch. 1.—Dispatches received by the railroad officials from Yuma to-day say that every building in the town except the Southern Pacific hotel and the penitentiary were destroyed by the flood last night. The Gila and Colorado rivers rose thirty-three feet above low water mark. The passenger and freight depots are both flooded and water rose to a level with the bridge across the Colorado river. In order to prevent the bridge from being carried away by the freight depot being set afloat, the building was blown up with dynamite. This morning the river dropped seventeen inches in one hour.

Repairs to the railroads in Southern California are being pushed and it is expected that trains will be moving to-morrow on all the lines.

Several deaths have resulted from the flood at Tia Juana. A Mexican was drowned while attempting to assist others. William E. Scribner, druggist, was swept away in his store by the flood. A PLAN TO ELECT PALMER.

The Speaker Advised to Count a Quorum When the Republicans Refuse to Vote.

WASHINGTON, Special Telegram, Mch. 1.—Telegrams from prominent Democrats here have been sent to the speaker of the Illinois legislature telling him to count a quorum when Republicans refuse to vote, and declare John M. Palmer elected senator.

These Democrats assert that his title will be as good as that of the Idaho senators, that state having been admitted by the bill passing the house on a quorum counted by Speaker Reed. This will somewhat complicate the Idaho question between Dubois and Claggett here if the Illinois speaker follows this advice, as the Democrats of the senate will claim that Pelmer is as justly entitled to a seat under a counted quorum as the Idaho senators.

WORKING FOR PALMER.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 2.—Congressman-elect McKeighan of Nebraska was in the city to-day holding conferences with the Democrats and F. M. B. A. men. He has, it is asserted, come to the conclusion that a farmer candidate cannot be elected senator of Illinois and would like the F. M. B. A. men to vote for Palmer. In an interview to-night, however, he said he hoped the F. M. B. A. men would succeed in electing their compromise man. Mr. McKeighan brought a letter of introduction to Speaker Crafts from Congressman Springer, which stated that the Nebraska Alliance-Democratic member-elect favored Palmer.

STRICT IMMIGRATION LAWS.

The House Bill Passed by the Senate Without Amendment.

WASHINGTON, Mch. 1.—The senate to-day passed the house immigration bill without amendment.

The bill provides for the exclusion from admission into the United States of all insane persons, paupers or persons liable to become paupers, persons suffering from loathsome or contagious diseases, persons convicted of crimes involving moral turpitude, polygamists and contract laborers. It is provided that persons convicted of political offenses shall not be excluded, notwithstanding the offense may be designated as a felony, etc., involving moral turpitude, by the laws of the country from which the offenders come.

The present contract law is amended with a view to making it more binding, but ministers, professional men, professors in colleges, etc., are excluded from the provisions of the contract labor act. Persons bringing into the United States, by vessel or otherwise, any alien not lawfully entitled to enter, is deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and punishable by a fine not exceeding $1,000.

All aliens who come unlawfully to the United States shall be immediately sent back on the vessel by which they are brought. The cost of their maintenance and their return shall be borne by the owners of the vessels on which the aliens came, and if any owner of such vessels shall refuse to receive back on board such alien, or neglect to return them, he shall be punished by a fine of not less than $300 for each offense, and the vessel shall not have clearance from any port in the United States while the fine is unpaid.

A FATAL COLLISION.

An Open Switch Throws a Passenger Train Against a Freight.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Mch. 1.—A Lehigh Valley fast passenger train from New York collided with an Erie freight train at East Buffalo to-night. Both trains were derailed. The accident was caused by an open switch. The Erie freight engine was standing still when it was struck by the Lehigh Valley engine, which was coming at a rapid rate of speed, for it does not stop at East Buffalo. Both engines were a heap of ruins. The list of killed and injured are:

Erie Trainmen—Michael Maloney, engineer, mortally hurt; W. Cain, fireman, injured.

John Battonley, brakeman, was so badly hurt that he died almost immediately. His head was almost severed from his body. He lives in Buffalo and has a wife and child.

Crazed by Domestic Difficulties.

Surrendered by His Sureties.

NEW ORLEANS, Mch. 1.—George W. Dupre, of the New Orleans States, indicted for violating the anti-lottery law, was surrendered by his sureties to-day to the United States marshal and was locked up. Mr. Dupre declined to furnish new bondsmen.

Killed by a Circular Saw.

HERMAN, Minn., Special Telegram, Mch. 1.—An old citizen of Herman, Johnny Warren, was killed to-day by a circular saw flying off from the shaft, striking him below the hip. He died from the effects of the shock in two hours.

CIVIL AND QUIET.

No Unpleasant Incidents Mark the Departure of the Ex-Empress From Paris.

The gravity of the situation, however, can be judged from the fact that, acting under advice from high quarters, the empress changed the line of her route for fear of being insulted by that portion of the populace which had gradually worked itself into a fever heat of rage over the presence of the imperial visitor in Paris.

In spite of the precautions taken to avoid an unpleasant demonstration by keeping the exact hour of the empress' departure a secret, several hundreds of people gathered about the Cafe du Nord and watched the movements of the empress with considerable interest. The crowd, contrary to general expectation, was civil and quiet, the majority of the men present taking off their hats as the empress passed. There were were no insulting cries of any description.

The excitement over the visit of the ex-empress quieted down to-day, but later there was much indignation over an order issued by Emperor William increasing the severity of passports in Alsace-Lorraine in retaliation for the treatment of the ex-empress in France.

NOW IN ENGLAND.

DOVER, Feb. 28.—The royal yacht having on board the Empress Frederick and her suite arrived here at 5 o'clock. The empress was enthusiastically received. The arrival of the yacht was announced by salvos of artillery, and when the imperial visitor stepped ashore the was heartily cheered by the crowds present.

The Prince and and Princess Henry of Battenberg greeted the party of the empress on their arrival at Windsor, where a guard of honor was drawn up. The streets of the town were thronged with people. Queen Victoria will give a banquet to-morrow in honor of her daughter. The queen and Empress Frederick will go to London on Tuesday for the first drawing room of the season, set for Wednesday.

THE CAUSE OF THE QUARREL.

LONDON, Feb. 28.—A social sensation has has been caused by the reports of a verbal fracas between the queen and the prince of Wales at Portsmouth yesterday. Before going to the launch the prince of Wales heard through the foreign office alarming accounts of the position of ex-Empress Frederick in Paris. He decided to go to bring her away, believing his personal popularity would prevent the threatened demonstration, and he wired the queen his intention.

On arriving at the dock yard and joining the queen's circle grouped around the bows of the Royal Arthur, the queen was heard accosting him with "What do you say—turn my daughter out of Paris? Nonsense, it is impossible." The prince, in an undertone, replied that he was so impressed with the gravity of the situation reported by the minister that he had wired his sister to leave immediately if she could not await him. The queen, visibly enraged, repeated that it was impossible to believe that any insult could be offered to her daughter in Paris.

The controversy ended in harmony. The queen, appeased, talked over the matter with the prince, and the latter, before leaving Portsmouth, sent a cipher telegram to ex-Empress Frederick, backing his own wishes with the queen's.

KYLE'S COURSE.

His Organ Says That He Will Be Perfectly Independent.

HURON, S. D., Special Telegram, Mch. 1.—The Ruralist, the official organ of the Farmers Alliance and the mouthpiece of the Independent party in South Dakota, and whose editor is more intimately associated with United States Senator-Elect Kyle than any newspaper man in the state, will say editorially to-morrow:

> Senator Kyle will be in his seat in the senate of the United States on Wednesday, March 4. We claim for him the honor of being the first Independent party member of congress. He is a representative of the Independents, a party standing on its own platform. If necessary to emphasize this point Mr. Kyle will ask for a seat in the center of the senate chamber.
>
> In non-essentials he will follow his convictions. The party that comes nearest to those convictions will gain his help until such time as the people have a chance to send a proper representation. Mr. Kyle evidently believes that plenty of help is coming his way. The attitude of both the Republicans and Democrats, he thinks, will give the Independents all the states west of Pennsylvania.
>
> Senator Kyle will be a man of the people. He will study carefully all the needs of this grand young state. On his return from Washington he will visit all parts of the state, especially the Black Hills. He has promised to make a thorough tour of that wonderland, and no one need fear that any interest there will be neglected.

HUSTON DISSATISFIED.

Reasons Assigned for the Resignation of the Treasurer.

WASHINGTON, Mch. 1.—It is generally accepted here that United States Treasurer Huston has resigned, and that J. A. Lemicke will be appointed his successor.

None of the parties interested will authorize any statement of the subject, and the truth of the rumors cannot be either officially denied or affirmed. It is thought, however, that Mr. Lemicke's name for United States treasurer will be sent to the senate to-morrow. He is in the city.

The reasons assigned for Mr. Huston's resignation are both political and social dissatisfaction with the administration in that he and his family were not properly recognized in either respect.

INDIAN TREATIES.

All Legislation for Aborigines in the Northwest About Cleaned Up.

WASHINGTON, Special Telegram, Mch. 1—All of the treaty ratifications which were adopted in the house on the Indian appropriation bill, which was reported to-day, were retained, although changed in a verbal manner.

The senate committee also inserted Senator Casey's amendments, to confirm the Berthold agreement and appropriate $80,000 to pay these Indians, as well as his amendment to pay the Devils Lake Indians $80,000 for lands lost in erroneous surveys.

This, with the legislation secured for the Minnesota Indians at the last session, about clears up the Indian treaty agreements in the Northwest.

In Favor of Sadler.

LONDON, Mch. 1.—The coroner, in summing up in the Whitechapel murder inquest to-day, spoke strongly in favor of Sadler's innocence. He said it had been effected in a manner similar to that of the other crimes attributed to "Jack the Ripper," and that Sadler, at the time, was physically incapable of committing the crime. The coroner's charge will go a long way toward freeing the prisoner.

Wants a Divorce.

LONDON, Mch. 1.—The Countess Russell has applied for a separation from her husband, Earl Russell. The couple have been married only a year. Both are young, and their prominence, together with rumors of sensational developments to follow, attract universal interest to the case.

Sold Whisky to Indians.

BLACK RIVER FALLS, Wis., Special Telegram, Mch. 1.—George Dickie pleaded guilty to-day to the charge of selling liquor to the Indians, and was sentenced to ninety days in jail. C. C. Weber was given sixty days for the same offense.

Upon complaint made upon oath of E. C. Clement, a postoffice inspector, County Commissioner John Vaaler, of Gem township, and one Chas. Anderson were arrested by Marshal Fry, charged with forcibly breaking into the Gem postoffice and taking certain letters without the consent or knowledge of the postmaster.

A Yankton special says: James Snow, aged twenty-two, and Nettie Cross, aged thirteen, ran away from their home in the eastern part of the county, leaving a note in which they stated that they were going to be married, and would return in a week. The girl still wears short dresses, and is only a child.

The new Masonic hall at Huron was dedicated with appropriate ceremonies. An elegant banquet was served, and an address was delivered by Mayor H. J. Rice, followed with dancing. Four hundred people were present, including a number of Masons from abroad. The hall is the finest in this part of the Northwest, and is handsomely furnished.

Col. R. J. Hinton, special agent for the agriculture department at Washington, has notified State Engineer Coffin that he will make a tour of inspection of North and South Dakota in March in the interests of irrigation. He has signified his willingness to address meetings on this important question at such points as Maj. Coffin shall arrange for.

C. H. Walworth, of Omaha, of the firm of Walworth & Walker, stock dealers, arrived at Pierre with a special train containing about fifteen hundred sheep. These sheep came from Wyoming and Idaho and are shipped here for the purpose of letting them out to small stock men in this vicinity and west of the river. Walworth & Walker own a large cattle ranch with several thousand head of stock out on the reservation country. They have great faith in this country and are confident that the sheep business is one of the most profitable and successful industries which the farmer can engage in. This is only a commencement of the stock which will be shipped in here during the next few months. It is understood that several thousand head of sheep are to be consigned to C. C. Bennett at an early day.

Miss Gertrude Hickox, a prominent young society lady, of Milwaukee, drowned herself in the lake. Her body was found at the head of Wisconsin street. Disappointment in love was the cause of the deed.

Charles Maloney, living near Eau Claire, took a dose of aconite in mistake for cough cure, and his death followed in two hours. He was employed by the Tomahawk Lumber company. His remains were interred in this city.

About 100 additional fillings were made at Ashland, thus taking nearly all the land available except a few tracts of worthless acres which have been burned over. Everything has quieted down until April 17, when the Omaha lands come into market. At that time over 3,000 fillings will be made.

With the opening of navigation Capt. Volney Bigelow's new rafter now on the ways at Eagle Point near La Crosse will be ready for business. She is to be 120 feet long, 22 feet wide, 3 feet 8 inches hold, and will take the Natrona's machinery. Capt. Bigelow has sought to make her plain, strong and serviceable.

Dick Pitts, who was foreman at the gas works at Eau Claire at the time of the explosion, has sued the gas company for $10,000 damages for injuries said to have been received. The gas company claims it will be able to prove that Pitts was asleep on duty, and his own negligence caused the explosion.

An attempt was made to blow up a car on the Eight street motor line at Dubuque. The conductor saw an obstruction on the track placed in the switch and stopped his car. It proved to be a dynamite stick eight inches long, such as miners use in blasting. The car was filled with passengers.

Four mail bags were stolen from a truck in the union depot at Burlington. Only one pouch contained letters. The theft was not discovered for several minutes, during which time the robber made his way to a yard in the rear of the depot where he cut open the sacks. He then escaped in the darkness. The amount stolen is not known.

The sensational White Cap case at Clear Lake closed. Being closely questioned Gurton and Pester revealed the whole matter and gave evidence which resulted in the conviction of Geo. Palmer, Homer Young, Ed. Seebers, Albert Pester and Norris Gurton. The father of Miss Carrie, the wife of Ed. George, who was so cruelly beaten, pleaded not guilty, and his case was continued. Facts were developed during the trial which, when divulged will create a sensation.

While four little boys of 4 and 6 years respectively were walking down the railroad at Burlington on their way to school a few days ago five tramps met them and demanded the food in their dinner pails. On being refused, the little fellows were bound and gagged and locked in a box car of a train about to start westward. The little fellows were carried several hundred miles before anyone's attention was called to their presence. When rescued they were nearly famished and half frozen.

Others from abroad, who have recently been giving special courses before the different departments of the university, are Dr. Hammond, now dean of the law department of Washington university, a course upon the history of common law; Dr. G. D. Black, of Chicago, upon special pathology and hygiene, and Dr. G. H. Hall, superintendent of the insane hospital at Independence upon insanity.

Billy Brank's Bonanza.

Inordinate thirst for spirits and the dry throat that it inseparable from it will develop the inventive faculties as well, or even beter than downright necessity.

Billy Brank, in a town in western New York, was poor; Billy was thirsty; Billy found a dead cat. Depositing it behind the office of F. K. Hull, a respected citizen, he waited. Mr. Hull is not more fastidious than his neighbor, but he has always nourished a prejudice against dead cats beneath his office windows. As was to be expected, he paid Billy 25 cents to give the remains a christian burial. Bill took her away and had five drinks of the Central house's best whisky at 5 cents a drink. The next day Billy muddled his cat by the river bank so that he would not be recognized by Mr. Hull as an old acquaintance, and again Mr. Hull paid her funeral expenses. Later she made the acquaintance of officials of the First national bank and then of the Second national bank. All paid. Every resident made her acquaintance, and finally Billy laid her aside as a souvenir. He knew where he could get more cats.

But greater wealth was opened up to him by the power of his inventive thirst. He sowed grass seed in the cracks of the sidewalks. This he did in front of all the shops, and when, in the natural course of events the grass grew, Billy made no end of money weeding it out.

Reports from Billy's home state that he is on the verge of T. D. T.'s and gout.—N. Y. Continent.

One treasurer, one village recorder, one justice of the peace, one constable, one president of village council, and three councilmen,

C. G. Rapp, President.
Attest J. C. Mathews
Village Recorder

Minneapolis Tribune; A Minneapolis man, in a recent interview in the Tribune of that city, hit the nail on the head in this matter as follows; "There never was a greater humbug than a usury law. This state had a usury law for years, and its friends admit that it has done no good. In Massachusetts there is no usury law and money can be had there for 4 percent. The state of Washington has no usury law and I am told that money is flowing in there at a great rate and interest has dropped and it going down all the time, while in Minnesota on account of the legislatures movements, eastern money loaners have wired to their agents in this city not to make any loans until the effect of the new legislation is known."

Village Politics are beginning to loom up and the great question of who will be our village officers is the all absorbing topic of conversation. For the office of President we have heard mentioned the names of C. G. Rapp and E. M, Hoff; for Recorder, Justus L. Johnson and J. C. Mathews, Councilmen, L, K. Kolstad, Fritz Eikhoff S. M. Dainerd Emil Holmes, O. W. Brink John Burkee, Andrew Hall and J. M, Hanson; for Treasurer we have heard of no one so far in opposition to the present incumbent Wm. Eickhoff; for Constable, Martin Williams and Dan Patterson; for Justice of the Peace, P. S. Stranahan is the only name so far commented upon. The consolation offices to be elected by the council are numerous and there should be a place for nearly every one here. They are assessor, marshall, pound master, street commissioner, health officers and lamp lighter.

The constitution the state projectors in Wyoming have been framing contains a peculiar feature or two that may not facilitate its entrance upon statehood. It is the only new state that has ever abolished the distinction of sex in the voter. This instrument not only provides for female sufferage but establishes a new educational qualification. The voter must vote in English and read in English, and, if not a native must be fully naturalized. This is a marked change from the practice of the other new states and some of the others in the west with a large alien born element. Women have had the right to vote in Wyoming in nearly all its history, and have sat on juries and held the lower judicial positions. But an applicant for admission coming with this condition, may be discovered by wary congressmen to have insufficient population—St. Paul Globe,

"If a merchant" says J, F. Johnson in Farm and implement News "should conduct his business as carelessly as some farmers manage their farms failure would certainly follow,

"It has been difficult to make farming pay of late years but it cannot be denied that many agriculturists have been getting rich nevertheless, What is needed most in agriculture in this country is thorough business system. The farmer must learn to watch the markets and raise the crops that are most in demand. Few of them do this They plant so much wheat and so much corn regardless of the probable demand, and then sell as soon as the grain can be gotten ready.

It is claimed that the farmer cannot afford to hold his product for an advance as he must have money, This is true in the main, but the saving effected in a few years by a careful system and rigid economy will put him in a position to follow the fluctuations of the market, When credits are shortened as they must be in time and the farmer is forced to use ready cash more extensively he will be better off in every regard,"

Crookston Times: A certain young man living not many miles from Crookston, has come to the conclusion that it is very wicked to gamble and has learned also that it is against the law. He went over to East Grand Forks the other day with a wheel of fortune, expecting to find many suckers and make much big money. But as is often the case he went for wool and came back shorn. He had neglected to lubricate the wheels of justice in advance or to post himself sufficiently on the grips and passwords of "de gang" The consequence of this lack of foresight on his part was that before he had fairly got the wheel to turning he was nabbed by one of the watchful guardians of the law, waltzed before 'hissoner' mulched to the tune of $12, his gaudily painted wheel was confiscated and the young man wended his weary way homeward and is now looking for a chance to hire out to some farmer and do chores for his board. But he learned a lesson. The next time he embarks in the prevailing business at East Grand Forks he will make the police department a silent partner in the concern.

There is no doubt but sugar beets can be produced with profit in Minnesota and the Dakotas for the manufacture of sugar in factories on a large scale, and making syrup at home on a small scale as well as for stock feeding purposes. Those who contemplate experiments in 1891 should arrange for good seed at once and begin to study up methods of cultivation so as to get the best results Factories will certainly be built in Minnesota, and the sooner our farmers take hold of beet culture, the sooner the manufacture of sugar can be inaugurated. A leaflet containing much information about this interest is given away by E. J. Kellogg local agent of the Great Northern Ry., or F. I. Whitney, G. P. & T. A., St. Paul, Minn.

Frank Ives,

Rather a Strong Draught.

Colonel Joskins was a South Carolinian, whose capacity in pints was greater than his ability in dollars. For years he had been in the daily habit of visiting the little village store, and of going directly to the jug that held the whisky and drinking a liberal portion without the preliminary of pouring it into a glass.

One day the storekeeper turned just in time to see the Colonel replacing the jug, from which he had taken his customary deep draught. He grew white and stiff, for the jugs had in some way become displaced, and the one which the colonel had calmly set back was the one which held the village supply of sulphuric acid. The Colonel walked out of the store without a remark, and the storekeeper waited in terror to hear the news of his horrible death. None came and the storekeeper marveled much.

But the next morning, at his usual hour, in walked the Colonel, rosy and cheerful as usual.

"Mornin', Jones," he said, as he made directly for the jug, "this new whisky yours has a queer flavor, but I don't object to it."

"Has it disagreed with you in any way?" asked the amazed Jones.

"Disagreed with me? Why, no. But there is one peculiar thing I've noticed. Ever since I drank it I've seemed to blow holes in my pocket handkerchief."—Argonaut.

Fasting as a Cure-All.

The latest craze at the capital is fasting for dyspepsia and other diseases of the digestive organs. Dr. Fisher, the high priest of the starvation doctrine, is making more money than any other physician in town, though his perscriptions are very simple: "Don't eat anything for eight days," or ten days or fifteen, as the case may be, is the formula. Some of the most prominent society people of the city have fasted from ten to eighteen days, and they claim to have received benefit. Mrs. Harrison, who has been troubled by gastritis, is trying the fasting remedy in a modified form.—Washington special Chicago Herald.

HINDOO MAGIC.

Account of the Wonderful Feast Known as the Chinese Duck Trick.

"A few years ago I was stopping in the city of Allahabad, near the center of India, on the Indian Peninsula railway, giving performances in the Railway theater," says a traveler. "Every day a party of native jugglers were in the habit of visiting our hotel and exhibiting their skill on the plaza in front of the building.

"One day I was particularly attracted by an old Hindoo, his son and daughter, who squatted down on the ground and waited for the crowd of sight-seers to gather round. They did not have long to wait. When enough spectators had come to make the performance profitable the old fellow drew from the bag that all Indian jugglers use to convey their 'properties' in a small earthenware jar, filled with muddy water. He first sprinkled a few drops of water on the ground and then placed the jar upon three small stones, which he also took from the bag.

He then produced a small china duck and gave it to me for inspection. I found nothing noticeable about it. He asked me to put it in the water. I did so and it immediately sunk to the bottom. He next drew from the bag a small tomtom, a little musical instrument that emits a drumming sound when the handle is turned, and began waving it around the jar.

"Instantly the duck rose to the surface. He told me to touch it. I tried to do so, when the bird again disappeared, to reappear again and again at the juggler's will. I must confess that I was mystified. There was apparently no cause for the strange actions of the little bird. It was only after the third or fourth visit of the conjuror that I discovered the secret of the trick."

"It was a particularly bright, sunny day and I had chosen a place among the spectators slightly nearer than the others were allowed. I was behind the scenes, as it were. While attentively watching the trick I noticed in the sunshine the sparkle of a long hair that extended from the tomtom to the bottom of the jar."

"The moment I saw this I divined the juggler's secret, and I afterwards found that my theory was correct. The jar already contained a china duck, precisely similar to the one I had examined, save that it was buoyant. Attached to the breast of this duck was the hair. This hair came through a tiny hole in the bottom of the jar. The water was sprinkled on the ground to conceal any leakage. When the jar was placed upon the ground the hair was fastened so that the duck could not rise to the surface."

"As the juggler picked up his tomtom it was an easy matter for him to fasten the end of the hair to it by means of a bit of wax. After this was arranged you can see how easily he was able to make this counterfeit duck bob up and down at the work of command."

Her Presence of Mind.

It was 11 o'clock at night and I was going to my room in a Florida hotel, when a woman came out of her room, full dressed, and asked:

"Do you belong to the hotel?"

"No, ma'am."

"Are there many people here tonight?"

"It is crowded."

"And it won't do to start a panic. Let me say quietly to you that the hotel is on fire. I have known it for ten minutes, but did not want to create an excitement."

"Are you sure, ma'am?" I asked.

"Entirely sure, sir, I smelled the smoke while in bed. You go quietly down and tell the clerk, and I will knock on all the doors on this floor."

She was wonderfully cool and collected and I never thought of doubting her ascertion. Going down by the stairway I beckoned the clerk aside and told him of the fire. He went to the elevator with me and ascended to the third floor, where we found about twenty half dressed people in the halls. The woman who had given me orders came up and said:

"Come this way, I don't think the fire has much of a start yet."

We followed her to her room and began to sniff and snuff. There was certainly a strong odor of something burning, but the clerk had taken only one sniff when he went out and rapped on the next door.

"Hello!" called a voice.

"Are you smoking?"

"Yes."

"Smoking Florida tobacco?"

"Yes; what of it?"

"Nothing. Ma'am, you can go back to bed. Much obliged to you for your sagacity and wit but both were a little too keen this time. The stingy old cuss in his room is smoking swamp tobacco, and it always smells like fire eating its way under a pine floor.—From the Detroit Free Press.

Monday, Feb. 23.

SENATE.

The senate met at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and the members appeared somewhat refreshed after the vacation, as a motion to adjourn, made immediately after the approval of the journal, was defeated by a vote of 22 to 4.

S. F. No. 354—By Senator Craig—Reapportioning the state into congressional districts.

S. F. No. 355—By Senator Donnelly—Amending General Laws relating to county commissioners and care of poor.

The bill authorizing the city of Mankato to donate to the general government a site for a public building was passed under suspension of the rules.

The senate adjourned until 10 o'clock this morning.

Senator Craig, chairman of the senate committee on reapportionment, yesterday introduced a bill reapportioning the state into seven congressional districts, in accordance with the bill passed by congress which gives Minnesota seven congressmen instead of five. The bill is not a committee bill, but embraces Senator Craig's personal ideas of what the new apportionment should be. The basis of the bill is the population, according to the census of 1890.

HOUSE.

When the house assembled at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon Mr. Bell drew the attention of Mr. Bjorge, speaker pro tem., to the fact that copies of the journal were not on the desks of members, as the rules provided, and that the rules would have to be suspended. A vote to suspend the rules revealed the fact that there were sixty members in the house, 48 of whom voted aye and 12 no. There not being sufficient votes to suspend the rules the motion was lost, but the house by unanimous consent decided to proceed with business, and the journal was read.

Mr. McAllister moved that the house adjourn until 10 o'clock the following morning, out of respect to the memory of the late, lamented Gen. George Washington. This the house by a vote of 42 to 8 declined to do, and the reports of committees were read.

Tuesday Feb. 24.

SENATE.

A resolution introduced by Senator Stevens providing for a joint committee to investigate the state fish hatchery was adopted.

A bill introduced by Senator Stevens provides that, beginning with the general municipal election of 1892, the corporation attorney of St. Paul shall be elected by the people, the same as other city officers, and shall hold office for two years.

Senator Hompe presented a bill which requires that all personal references to people made by the newspapers, including discussions of their political views or actions, shall be signed by the writers in each and every instance.

Senator Dean's bill appropriating money to reimburse the city of St. Paul is for the purpose of securing payment for the pavement about the state capitol and grading along the state fair grounds. The amount called for is $11,172.70.

HOUSE.

After the reading of the journal and a brief but ineffectual petition by the chaplain, several protests from various railroad employes' brotherhoods and clubs were received and filed.

Mr. Ringwald asked that Mr. Dearing's bills be placed in general orders and stricken from the calendar, but his request was refused by a vote of 43 to 17. The failure of this move on Mr. Ringwald's part demonstrated that the house was inclined to favor Mr. Dearing's bills, and such being the case all opposition to the bills in the house ceased, and if they are to be fought over it will be in the senate.

The bill introduced by Mr. Barrett is to authorize the railroad and warehouse commissioners to appoint an expert to test and examine and adjust all scales, weights and measures used in grain elevators, mills and other places where grain is weighed in this state. It provides that any person changing the adjustment made by the expert or refusing him free access shall be liable to a fine of $100 for each offense. The salary of the expert is to be fixed by the railroad commissioners and paid out of the grain inspection fund.

Wednesday, Feb. 25.

SENATE.

A large number of bills, mostly local, were passed, and the usual grist of new ones was introduced.

Senator Sanborn called up his pending motion of Tuesday to recall from the house the house bill passed by the senate making some changes in the Duluth charter in respect to water works. Senator Daugherty opposed the motion, accusing Senator Sanborn of acting on the floor of the senate as the attorney for the corporation owning the Duluth water works. Senator Sanborn promptly called him to order, and the statement was retracted by the Duluth senator. The motion, however, did not prevail, and the bill will go to the governor.

The senate voted to reconsider the vote to amend the report of the committee of the whole on the Itasca county bill. The report was then amended by a vote of 25 to 18 and the bill in its original form recommended to pass.

On motion of Senator Sanborn the bill appropriating money for a monument to the First Minnesota at Gettysburg was recalled from the finance committee and placed upon general orders.

Senator Dedon called up his resolution authorizing the labor and public lands committees to employ a clerk at a compensation of $5 per day, and it was passed.

HOUSE.

The principal business transacted by the house yesterday was the cold and cruel massacre of Mr. Bjorge's bill providing for the submission of the prohibition amendment to the people. The temperance committee, it appears, had held a meeting on the previous evening and by seven votes to four decided that the time was not ripe for prohibition.

The list of new bills introduced included several of considerable importance. Mr. Berning introduced a bill relating to violations of the liquor law of the state. The present law provides that for the illegal sale of liquor the violator is liable to both "fine and imprisonment," and Mr. Berning's bill changes it to "fine or imprisonment."

Mr. Gallagher's bill, which is to take the place of a bill previously introduced, relates to the maximum rate of fare to be charged to passengers on street cars. The bill provides that between the hours of 5 and 7 a. m. and 5 and 7 p. m. passengers shall be able to purchase fare checks at the rate of eight for 25 cents, and to use such checks between the hours specified, excepting on Sundays and public and statutory holidays.

Mr. Gallagher also introduced a bill to regulate the charges of the Mississippi Logging company for booming and rafting logs.

Another bill providing for the creation of a state text book commission was introduced by Mr. Wells.

Mr. Walsh's bill providing for an appropriation, not to exceed $1,500, for the carving of a marble bust of the late Gen. Sibley, to be placed in the state capitol, was passed under a suspension of the rules.

Thursday, Feb. 26.

SENATE.

Senator McMillan introduced a resolution providing for the payment of $1,294.50 to Senator O'Brien for contest expenses. It was referred to the committee on claims.

Senator Kelly presented a resolution authorizing the chairman of the engrossment committee to appoint a clerk at $5 per day. Senator Geissel moved to amend by including as a part of the duties of the clerk the work of the insurance committee. The amendment was accepted, and the resolution as amended was adopted.

THE INTEREST QUESTION.

The hour of 10:30 having arrived, which was fixed as the time for the consideration of Senate Files 1 and 375, regulating rates of interest, as a special order, Senator Leavitt moved to take up No. 375, which is the substitute bill presented by the committee on banks and banking. Senator Davis moved an amendment that No. 1 be considered at the same time. The amendment was defeated by a vote of 22 to 25—a strict party vote. The motion to take up No. 375 was then adopted.

Senator Leavitt opposed the motion to substitute, and Senator La Duc contended that his section of the country demanded that no reduction of interest should take effect until next fall.

Senator John Day Smith said he was in favor of straight 6 and 8 per cent, but would not vote for 5 per cent nor for forfeiture of principal for usury.

Senator Sanborn said he was in favor of the usury law, but thought the legal rate of interest without contract should be left at 7 per cent. He would be willing, however, to reduce the contract rate to 8 per cent.

Senator Tawney moved to amend by making the penalty for usury a forfeiture of the interest, and in addition to this making it a penal offense. The amendment was defeated by a vote of 21 to 24.

Before a vote could be reached on any other proposition the senate adjourned.

The discussions of the same special order will continue this morning at 10 o'clock.

HOUSE.

The house had a lively session yesterday, indulging in half a dozen spirited debates on bills on general orders, and also discussed and hung up Mr. Bjorge's bill for the abolition of capital punishment. The West Duluth incorporation bill was also discussed for a couple of hours, but no recommendation was made and it will probably come up again and be either passed or rejected this morning.

The first part of the morning session was taken up with the introduction of bills, several of which possess features of general interest.

Another of Mr. Searles' bills is to regulate the employment of convicts in the reformatory, and the only change it proposes in the existing law is a provision that not more than twenty-five convicts shall be employed in the work of quarrying, cutting and dressing granite, the object being to limit the output of prison-cut granite.

Mr. Currier introduced a bill providing for the licensing of auctioneers and others selling fire and bankrupt stocks of goods who are not permanent residents of the town where the sale takes place. The object of the bill is to protect permanently established merchants from the competition of such sales. The license is fixed at from $50 to $500.

When the house reassembled at 2 o'clock it took up, as a special order, Mr. Bjorge's bill, house file 222, providing for the abolition of capital punishment. Mr. Kinney was called to the chair, and Mr. Bjorge moved that the bill be recommended to pass. Mr. Feig moved that it be indefinitely postponed. Before the question was put Mr. Bjorge made an earnest appeal to have his bill become law.

Mr. Galligher favored the bill and cited the case of Pete Barrett to show that innocent people were hanged for murder. Mr. McAllister followed suit. Mr. Walsh of Hennepin believed that great crimes should meet with great penalties and that life imprisonment was but a farce.

Mr. Bjorge, in introducing the debate, said he could not see in what way the state was benefited by the execution of a murderer. He held that many great criminals were turned loose on the community because the death punishment was so severe and so serious that juries hesitated to ask for its infliction.

The motion to indefinitely postpone the bill was then put and carried by a large majority.

Friday Feb. 27.

SENATE.

When the senate began its session Senator Donnelly desired to introduce some bills, and moved to suspend the special order until 11 o'clock. The motion was lost by a vote of 32 to 16.

The special order was then continued, the question being upon the substitute of Senator Sevatson, making the interest 6 and 7 per cent, and leaving the usury law as it now exists.

When the special order was taken up again the first question was upon the motion of Senator Sevatson to reconsider the vote on the first section of S. F. No. 1.

The vote was then taken, and the motion was lost by a vote of 23 to 27.

The vote then came upon the amendment of Senator Davis, and it went down by a vote of 20 to 30.

There were several other amendments and the main questions to be voted upon yet under the previous question, but the senate adjourned without taking the votes. The consideration of the question will be continued this morning at 10 o'clock, when voting under the previous question will proceed until the main question is disposed of. But as the report to the senate will still be open to discussion and amendment the question will probably take up the whole day.

HOUSE.

The first business of the morning session was the hearing of a large number of petitions, the most important being one urging the house to raise the age of consent.

Mr. Smith offered a resolution which was passed requiring the court house commissioners of Hennepin to furnish to the chairman of the Hennepin delegation copies of all contracts and papers relating to the new court house.

Several dozen bills were returned by the committee on local bills and ordered placed on the calendar.

A resolution, introduced by Mr. Carleton, asking for a committee of three to investigate H. F. 278, Mr. Carleton's bill amending the law relating to steam boilers, was held over for debate.

Souvenirs of the War.

The library of the Seventh regiment contains a new treasure. It is an album of about seventy-five photographic views taken along the line of Sherman's march through Georgia. It was recently given to the regiment by James Osborne Wright, a former member of the Sixth company. Among the first of the views is a group picture of Gen. Sherman and his staff, bearing on its margins the autographs of Gen. Grant and Gen. Frank P. Blair. At the bottom of one of the views—that of the scene of Gen. Sherman's attack at Mission Ridge—is the following notation: "At this attack I commanded the Fifteenth Army Corps under Gen. Sherman. I recollect the scene very well. We lost very heavily, and especially among the officers, of whom many most valuable men were killed and wounded. But we were rewarded by the official report of Gen. Grant, in which it is recorded that we performed our duty. [Signed] Frank P. Blair, Maj. Gen. Vols." Another of the photographs is of the scene of Gen. McPherson's death. On the lower margin of the picture is written: "There was a small wood across the head of the valley, by which McPherson was trying to reach the Seventeenth corps when he unexpectedly met his death. He was brought to me at the Howard house about half an hour after, perfectly dead. [Signed] W. T. Sherman, Maj. Gen." Another new acquisition to the regiment is a statue in bronze of a national guardsman, presented by Howard N. Lockwood.—[New York Sun.

A Pony's Grief.

I had a pair of ponies, bought by me almost as colts, and never seperated for an hour for seven years. Recently one of them, Ali, died; during his illness the sorrow, wonder and efforts to rouse him of his stable companion were touching to behold. They were both loose in a very large box, where they habitually lived together, and the one in health, Odo, was constantly whinnying over his sick friend, licking him and trying to induce him to eat hay, which he brought to him in his teeth. When Ali was really dead and responded to his caresses no more Odo's grief was poignant and pitious. It lasted longer than most brothers' regret would endure. Five months have gone by, but he has not forgotten. When I take him his sugar he neighs wistfully, and looks about for his dead comrade. This is not fiction, it is a plain fact. It is pure mental pain, pain of the affections and the regrets. He wants for nothing materially, but he mourns his lost friend.—Ouida in the Animals' Guardian.

She Was Heroic in Her Way.

A somewhat amusing incident occured at an English provincial theater recently, during a performance of "Called Back." Early in the evening an old lady took up her seat in the balcony and concentrated her attention on the play. When Antony received his coupe de grace at the hands of Macari, the lady became very excited and fainted. She was taken down to the vestibule, and on recovery it was suggested she should leave the theatre. This, however, she declined to do, being anxious to witness as she put it, "the beautiful play." She accordingly returned to her seat, apparently well. The vision scene in Act I next proved too much for her, and again she fainted. Once more restoratives were applied, and she declared her intention of staying to the end. Nothing occured in Act II to arouse her sympathies, but the Siberian scene in Act III, in which Dr. Ceneri shuffles off the mortal coil, again upset her nerves and once more she fainted. By this time the management had had enough of the thing, and the old lady was sent away in a cab to her residence, not far off.—From the Jester.

Spring Humors

Spring Humors, whether itching, burning, bleeding, scaly, crusted, pimply, or blotchy, whether of the skin, scalp, or blood, whether simple, scrofulous, or hereditary, are now speedily, permanently, and economically cured by the Cuticura Remedies when the best physicians and all other remedies fail. The almost miraculous cures daily effected by them prove this. No statement is made regarding them not warranted by the strongest evidence. They are, in truth, the greatest skin cures, blood purifiers, and humor remedies of modern times. They are absolutely pure, and agreeable to the most sensitive, and may be used on the youngest infant and most delicate invalid with gratifying and unfailing success. Cuticura, the great skin cure, instantly allays the most intense itching, burning, and inflammation, permits rest and sleep, soothes and heals raw and irritated surfaces, clears the skin and scalp of crusts and scales, and restores the hair. Cuticura Soap, the only medicated toilet soap, is indispensable in cleansing diseased surfaces. Cuticura Resolvent, the new blood and skin purifier, and greatest of humor remedies, cleanses the blood of all impurities, and thus removes the cause. Hence, the Cuticura Remedies cure every humor of the Spring, from the simplest facial blemishes to the worst case of scrofula. Sale greater than the combined sales of all others.

WASHINGTON.

The treasury department has decided that merchandise in mails other than books and printed matter cannot legally be sent in the mails from abroad.

Secretary Proctor is going to Chickamagua and will then visit Texas for the purpose of inspecting the military posts on the frontier.

Walter Sanborn of St. Paul will be the new United States circuit judge for Minnesota, under the provisions of the new court bill. Senator Washborn said that Senator Davis and himself would work hard to secure Mr. Sanborn's appointment at the proper time.

A statement prepared by the clerk of the house committee on public buildings and grounds shows that during the past congress 411 bills for the erection of public buildings were introduced, covering a total appropriation of $76,635,625. Of this number 93 passed both houses, appropriating $12,676,639, all of which became laws save four, which were vetoed by the president.

PEOPLE IN PRINT.

Prince Jerome Napoleon, who is lying ill in Rome, has suffered a relapse.

There is not the slightest foundation for the story that Baroness Burdett-Coutts would soon begin proceedings for a divorce.

A meeting of business men was held in New York to take steps looking to the erection of an equestrian statue of the late Gen. Sherman.

Col. George R. Davis director general of the world's fair, is suffering from pneumonia. He had quite a severe attack of la grippe last winter, and that doubtless has something to do with his present illness.

Ex-United State Senator Joseph Hill of Georgia is dead. He twice represented his district in congress and was United States senator from Georgia when the war broke out, and again in 1868.

CASUALTIES.

Otteo colliery, Minersville, Pa., is flooded and useless.

Mrs. Mary Germaine, of St. Joseph, Mo., was arranging her toilet by the light of a lamp, when in some way her hair caught fire, and before help could arrive she was so badly burned that death ensued.

Eliza Kennedy was horribly mangled by a Canadian Pacific railroad train at Winnipeg. The woman was returning home along the track, and it is supposed went to sleep on the rails.

Cept. O. E. Peterson and four men of the schooner Coquette, from Morgan City, with railroad ties, lost at sea, were picked up by the schooner Mary and landed at Galveston, Tex.,

The big Pontoon bridge across the Missouri river at St. Charles, Mo., has been totally destroyed by the heavy flood and ice and swept down the river. Four men were carried away with the wreck, but it is thought they will be rescued.

A special says that in the terrible gale which swept the lower James river in Virginia, twenty-four oystermen, mostly colored men, were drowned at points just above and below the mouth of the Warwick river.

Two boilers at the Henry Clay colliery at Shamokin, Pa., exploded, resulting in the serious injury of four engineers and a water boy. The building was completely destroyed and six other buildings were thrown out of place. The loss is estimated at $25,000.

Property worth $70,000 went up in smoke, and three firemen were severely injured in a fire at 152 State street, Chicago. The building is owned by C. W. Partridge, whose loss is $10,000, fully insured. The structure was filled with fine boots and shoes recently bought by William Brownell of Bloomington, Ill., and James Field of Minneapolis for $51,000. The stock is an entire loss, and is insured only in part.

WICKEDNESSES.

David J. Bryan of Indianapolis reports to the Cincinnati police that he has been robbed in a street car of $10,000 in bills.

Minnie May Mabbott, of Flora, who was charged with killing her infant in Indianapolis, has been acquitted. Her two brothers will be placed on trial for the crime.

James Reynolds, head city salesman for the large hardware house of Kelly, Mause & Co., of Chicago, has committed suicide, Mr. Reynolds was the son of John J. Reynolds, ex-governor of Rhode Island.

George Hathaway, who shot and killed ex-Ald. William Whalen in a saloon brawl in Chicago some weeks ago, has been found guilty and his punishment fixed at imprisonment for life.

At San Francisco Russel S. Thompson, a conductor on the cable railroad, was shot and killed by A. Cochrane, his father-in-law, who afterwards killed himself. Cochrane was supposed to be insane.

The grand jury in Chicago has returned two indictments against George J. Gibson, ex-secretary of the whisky trust, and two against him jointly with other persons, whose names are suppressed.

At Horse Creek mines, in walker county, Alabama, Dr. W. J. Matthews shot his wife five times, killing her instantly. He has for some time thought that his wife was untrue to him.

Judge Martine, in the court of general sessions in New York, has imposed a fine of $250 on Jay Gould for not answering to the summons to serve as a petit juror, it being his second offense.

Isaac Dowell was shot and instantly killed by J. H. Wharton about eight miles north of Council Grove, Kan. Both Dowell and Wharton were farmers, and shooting grew out of trouble over a farm, which both claimed to have rented.

Dan Porter, the murderer of Edwin D. Smith, broke jail at Quincy, Ill., and escaped. When the sheriff entered the jail he was confronted by Porter, who demanded his release. This request the sheriff refused to comply with, when Porter knocked him down, relieved him of his arms and gained his liberty.

Ernest Sallinger and Isidor Franenthal, students in the Hebrew Union college, at Cincinnati entered into a compact the other day to end their troubles by suicide, and early the next morning they were both found dead at their boarding house. They had been studying hypnotism, and had attended meetings of spiritualists, and it is thought that this unsettled their minds.

At Macon, Miss., William Ford, manager of the canning factory at Boonville, Miss., was shot and killed by J. E. Rives, a young lawyer. The parties belong to leading families of this section. Rives was at once arrested, and the feeling against him is very strong.

FOREIGN.

It is stated in Paris that Alsace-Lorraine passport regulations will be relaxed.

Avalanches have stopped railway travel between Vienna and Trieste.

Italy's new cabinet will ask a vote of confidence on its foreign policy.

Notary Ducrocq, of Gonesse, France, has absconded; debt $1,250,000.

Lyons, France, officials are moving for free admission of raw silk materials.

Osman Digna is a fugitive, followed only by a few women and horsemen, and is fleeing to Berber in want of food.

Russia will check German immigration at the South, and will curtail privileges of Germans now there.

The London Chronicle believes Salisbury wants leader Thomas Mann on the labor commission, but that other ministers object.

Dr. Armand Jeannoutot, of Paris, claims to have cured 600 patients suffering from tuberculosis by giving them daily inhalations of prussic vapor and thus poisoning the bacilli.

The British treasury department will drop the prosecution of Saddler, who was arrested on suspicion of being the man who murdered Carrotty Nell in the Whitechapel district two weeks ago.

News of a horrible massacre comes from Madagascar. Ramiasatra governor of the province of Belanond, resenting a petition from the populace to the government to defend them from cruelties, massacred 278 persons, including men, women and children belonging to the leading families. The slaughter continued for several days. The agonies of the vicitims were in many cases protracted. Sometimes their limbs were gradually dismembered, their heads were sawn off and their bodies were thrown to the dogs. Many of the women were outraged. The survivors were forced to erect a trophy composed of the heads of the victims.

SPORTING TRIFLES

Oarsman O'Connor challenges Teemer for from $500 to $1,000.

The Louisville Base Ball club at its annual meeting raised its stock from $10,000 to $25,000.

The directors of the California Athletic club have decided the fight between young Mitchell and La Blanche, the Marine, was not to the satisfaction of the club and declared it off and La Blanche and his seconds from further appearance in the ring.

It was stated upon good authority that the American association will put reserve teams in New York, Cleveland, Pittsburg and Chicago, and that in three of the cities grounds have already been secured for that purpose. The teams will be selected from the surplus stock of players of the market.

A four-round glove contest between Bob Fitzsimmons and Jack McAuliffe has been arranged. If McAuliffe stays the four rounds he will be declared the winner and will receive 75 per cent of the receipts. The backers of the men have each posted $1,000 to insure the appearance of the men in the ring.

LABOR CIRCLES

Aberdeen ship owners have enjoined the dock strickers' fund and will sue them for damages.

A negative amendment to the eight hour law for miners will be moved in the commons.

Higher wages and other concessions have just been granted in the British royal dock yards.

Striking car workers at Pullman, Ill., became riotous, and many were arrested. The strikers will be evicted, and more trouble is feared.

The mail-carriers of Omaha have formed an organization and employed an attorney to secure for them extra pay for work over eight hours per day since July 1, when the Council bill took effect.

The rolling mills at Joliet, Ill., shut down for an indefinite period, throwing 1,000 men, this, with those already out waiting for the blast furnaces to fire up, makes 2,500 men idle. The men asked for a sliding scale the same as at the South Chicago mills but the company officials refused to grant it.

A Pittsburg dispatch says: The coke region is in a ferment of excitement over the arrest of the labor leaders. President John B. Rae, of the United Mine workers, Master Workman Peter wise and several others were arrested on a warrant sworn out by Louden, of the Rainey works, on a charge of conspiracy, riot, assault, etc. Louden was injured by the strikers and the warrants were made out at the instance of Rainey, who is now running his mines in opposition to the strikers. The men are indignant at the arrests, claiming a conspiracy, of which they are the victims.

IN GENERAL.

The Hazleton, Pa., rescued miners are improving.

The first time since twenty years ago a Republican board of aldermen has just been elected in Rochester, N. Y.,

Condensed Proceedings of Both Branches of the Minnesota Legislature.

What is Being Attempted in the Way of Legislation by Our Lawmakers.

Saturday, Feb. 28.

SENATE.

The interest question was before the senate to-day, the third day of uninterrupted and weary consideration was begun.

The question was first on Senator John Day Smith's amendment to the first section of the bill and the roll call was ordered at once, under the motion for the previous question made Friday afternoon. Mr. Smith's amendment was loaded with Donnelly's amendment of Friday tacking on the forfeiture of principal feature, but though this was objectionable to many, they voted "aye" in order to force the bill along and get it out of committee of the whole. The amendment carried by a vote of 35 to 11. Next an amendment offered by Senator Sevatson—changing the wording of the second section—was voted down. An amendment from Senator Craven, allowing the trial of minor offenses under the law before justices, was adopted without debate.

The senate adjourned at 12 o'clock to enable the senators to go on a junket to Duluth.

HOUSE.

Stockwell's anti-Pinkerton bill, relating to the duties of all special police officers, failed to pass when it came up for final disposition, but Mr. Keyes gave notice that he would move to re-consider at the proper time.

The house adjourned until Monday at 10 o'clock, and the members of the house went on a visit to Duluth.

Monday, March, 2,

SENATE.

So far as the interest and usury bills are concerned, the senate yesterday made progress backward. The morning session was devoted to the special order, and after a spirited debate, the principal feature of which was a red-hot passage at arms between Senators Leavitt and Mayo on one side and Senator Donnelly on the other, the vote by which S. F. No. 375 was recommended to pass was reconsidered and then the whole question was made a special order again for Thursday morning at 10:30.

Senator Sevatson introduced a resolution providing for a joint committee to consult with the directors of the Minneapolis exposition with a view to securing the exposition building for a permanent capitol. Senator Lienau gave notice of debate.

HOUSE.

The house of representatives demonstrated yesterday that it was an essentially business body. Though suffering individually and collectively from fatigue resulting from the trip to Duluth, the representatives worked hard for an hour and a half in the morning and in the afternoon performed the remarkable feat of rushing an interest bill through committee of the whole in the short space of sixty-five minutes.

Two local bills were passed, one to incorporate East Grand Forks and another authorizing the appointment of bread inspectors in Minneapolis.

Mr. Boyd was given leave to amend his West Duluth incorporation bill by changing the date of election and striking out the clause that only freeholders should be eligible for aldermen.

Tuesday March. 3.

SENATE.

The senate held only one session yesterday, adjourning for the day at 12:30 o'clock in order to allow the committees to act upon some of the bills in their possession.

Senator Leavitt presented a bill prohibiting the shipping of elcomergarine into the state.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

S. F. No. 403—By Senator Leavitt—Appropriating $500 for a bridge over Crow river in Meeker county.

S. F. 404—By Senator Leavitt—Appropriating money for a bridge over the outlet to Lake Stella in Meeker county.

S. F. No. 407—By Senator Leavitt—To ensure pure butter.

HOUSE.

The principal feature of the early hours of yesterday's session of the house was the hearing of a number of petitions from railroad employes throughout the state protesting against the passage of the Currier bill as being seriously detrimental not only to their interests, but to the interests of the railroad companies and the commercial and agricultural interests of the state. The petitions were signed by several thousand railroad employes, including 1,100 in Minneapolis and 891 in Brainerd. A petition from Otter Tail was declared to be fictitious by Messrs. Richardson and T. Cole, inasmuch as to their knowledge it was not signed by railroad employes.

Mr. Penney's bill, H. F. 51, amending the statutes so as to make it lawful to prosecute for an offense either under a city ordinance or the state law or both, the conviction under one law being no bar to prosecution under the other, was by consent of the house ordered placed on general orders for reconsideration.

A message from the governor was received announcing that he had signed the bill amending the city charter of Duluth.

The speaker announced the following appointment: As house members of the joint committee on waterways, Messrs. Kendall, Wagoner and Smith.

The house then adjourned till 10 o'clock this morning.

Wednesday, March. 4.

SENATE

Lieut. Gov. Ives was absent yesterday morning, on account of sickness, and at his request Senator Hompe wielded the gavel over the senate.

Senator March introduced a bill amending the savings bank law, which is said to be for the purpose of allowing more of these organizations to be formed.

Senator March introduced a bill providing for the inspection of illuminating oils. According to this bill the mayor of any city, with the approval of the city council, the village council of any village, the supervisors of any town and the county commissioners for townships shall be authorized to appoint inspectors, and are required to do so upon petition of five inhabitants of the city, town, village or township in which the inspector is desired. The inspector shall appoint such deputies as necessary. It is proposed to pay the inspectors by the fee system, but no provision to that effect is placed in the bill as yet. The author said that the object was to get the main idea before the senate and have the measure perfected there.

The Itasca county fight was ended yesterday by the passage in the senate of the house bill organizing the county. The bill as passed provides that the sheriff of Aitkin county shall act as sheriff of Itasca county until the next general election.

Senator Hompe's bill requiring all newspaper articles referring by name to any person to be signed by the persons writing them, was recommended to pass by the senate judiciary committee.

The senate then went into committee of the whole for the consideration of general orders, with Senator Barr in the chair. Among the bills recommended to pass was that of Senator S. D. Peterson making villages separate election districts. When the report was made to the senate this bill was excepted and amendments were offered excepting about a dozen counties from its provisions. Action upon the report on this bill was finally postponed.

There was considerable discussion of Senator Hompe's railroad bill, the committee deciding to report progress.

The bill of Senator Stevens increasing the amount of personal property exempt from taxation from $100 in value to $200 was referred to Senators McHale, Stevens, Davis and Leavitt as a special committee.

HOUSE.

Mr. A. French introduced a bill providing for an annual appropriation of $10,000 to maintain farmers' institutes in the state, and the average cost per annum of each institute is not to exceed $150.

Mr. Wahlund introduced a bill which provides that it shall be the duty of every board of trustees or board of education to take the census of the children of school age in their district between the 1st and 10th of July each alternate year, commencing in 1891. They are to make a census return of all the children between five and twenty-one years in their district, giving the age, sex and nationality. They are also to give the names of the parents or guardians and place of residence, of all children in their district, between the ages of eight and sixteen years. The sum of 3 cents is to be allowed for each child enumerated.

Mr. Carleton introduced a bill providing for the establishment and organization of a state board of immigration, and appropriating $5,000 annually to maintain it.

Mr. Coburn introduced a bill which is to compel railroad companies to put in track scales at all stations where from 300 or more car load lots of grain or merchandise are shipped the previous year, and to provide for the proper weighing of all merchandise, grain, etc., shipped from such stations, thereon.

The employers and employes contract bill was voted upon and was declared lost by a vote of 41 to 38. Mr. Stockwell gave notice to reconsider the bill.

Mr. Kendall gave notice to reconsider the the anti Pinkerton bill.

Thursday, March. 5.

SENATE.

The senate resumed the discussion of the interest and usury bills yesterday, and when adjournment was reached had proceeded so far as to declare that the rate of interest should be reduced to 6 and 8 per cent. The question of usury was brought squarely before the senate, but before a vote could be reached the senate adjourned.

After the approval of the journal by the senate the chair announced the receipt of a communication from the railroad commission giving the information asked for by the Mayo resolution. The report and enclosed documents formed a very bulky package, and was referred to the railroad committee.

Among the bills introduced was one by Senator Nelson, providing for the submission of an amendment to the constitution prohibiting sale and manufacture of intoxicating liquors.

Senator S. D. Peterson presented a valued policy insurance bill, the third now before the legislature, there being one in the house and two in the senate.

Senator La Due introduced a bill making the office of the members of the board of equalization elective.

Senator Donnelly presented a joint resolution asking congress to establish a postal telegraph system.

HOUSE.

When the house reassembled at 2 o'clock, Mr. Keyes introduced a resolution, which was passed, authorizing the judiciary committee to fix a date after which no new bills will be introduced.

Two bills, one by Mr. Stone and the other by Mr. Barrett, were introduced to regulate the entering and classification of running, trotting and pacing horses in races, competitions, etc., in the state, and providing penalties for false entries.

Mr. Lomen, nothing daunted by the premature death of his bill to prohibit the use of soft or lignite coal on locomotives within the limits of large cities, introduced another and similar one yesterday.

Mr. Penney of Hennepin introduced an important bill providing for the establishment of a school of mines at the state university. The bill appropriates $6,000 to meet the cost of establishing such a school, and also provides for an annual appropriation of $4,500 for maintaining the same.

Mr. Cross' bill asking for an appropriation of $150,000 from the state to aid in completing the state reform school building at Red Wing practically amounts to a loan to that institution until such time as the old reform school lands in St. Paul are sold and the proceeds of the sale made available.

Friday March. 6.

SENATE.

Senator Crandall presented a resolution declaring it to be the sense of the senate that all bills appropriating money should be introduced before March 15. Senator Davis moved to amend by making the date March 20. The amendment was agreed to, and the resolution as amended was adopted.

Senator Dean called attention to the deadly air of the senate chamber, which had already sent more than half a dozen senators home sick, while several more were just on the dividing line, and offered a resolution providing for the appointment of a committee to investigate the subject of ventilation, to see if it could not be improved. The resolution was adopted, and the chair appointed as the committee Senators Dean, Bell and Mayo.

After the order of reports of committees was finished the senate adjourned until Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

HOUSE.

The committee on military affairs made a long report to the house yesterday morning on the bill introduced by Mr. Stivers providing for the compilation of a history of the Minnesota troops during the Indian and civil wars of 1861 and 1865. The report stated that such a publication would cost $8,861, which the bill proposes shall be taken from the public printing fund. The number of copies to be printed is 10,000. In recommending the bill to pass the committee discussed its merits at great length.

Mr. R. A. Walsh of Ramsey introduced a bill, H. F. 726, which provides that every common carrier shall be liable for all damages sustained in this state, by any agent or servant thereof by reason of the negligence of any other agent or servant thereof, without contributory negligence on his part, and no contract, rule or regulation between the agent or servant and the common carrier shall impair or diminish such liability, provided that nothing in this act shall apply to damages sustained on a new road under construction not open to public travel.

Mr. Sinclair's bill relating to town supervisors was also recommended to be relegated to obscurity. And having done these things, the committee rose and reported.

Mr. Furlong drew attention to the shockingly bad ventilation of the house, which is simply mowing the representatives down in swaths.

The Intelligence of Toads.

Toads, in the presence of snakes, usually remain perfectly still. In this is their only safety. For did they make the least movement they would be immediately caught. I have known a hungry snake to lie waiting for over an hour for a frog to move, and even push with the nose to stir him up. This has been called "snake charming," and indeed it looks like it, but the toad is the charmer and the snake the charmee. I remember one day I dropped a toad in the midst of a pit of snakes I had in my back yard. He at once became perfectly still, though surrounded by more than a dozen hungry snakes. There was a circle of fierce heads and glaring eyes around him, but he would not move. The circle narrowed until the protruding tongues almost touched him, yet he was immovable. Just then I was called away for over half an hour, but on returning found the toad, in grave dignity, still holding the fort by most masterly inactivity. This lowly, helpless creature, strong only by adherence to a natural faith, thus baffling enemies numerous and powerful, brought Daniel before the mental vision more vividly than River's celebrated picture.

HEAVY RAIN STORM.

Several Lives Lost and Much Property Destroyed by a Cyclone in Mississippi.

Heavy and Continued Rain Storms in That State Prove Very Destructive to Railroads,

NEW ORLEANS, March 11.—A Pickens, Miss., special says the town has been isolated since last Saturday, when the last train passed north. Continued rains since Thursday night have raised the water in Big Black river higher than ever known, and it is still rising rapidly. The Illinois Central railroad track is lifted bodily from its bed and deposited in the ditch for miles below and above here, and the embankment swept away. Incalculable damage has been done by the water. A cyclone passed over that place last Saturday morning without doing any damage, dropping over in Madison county, where it caused great destruction of life and property. It passed from there into Attala county, near Newport, where houses were blown down and four negroes killed.

A Quitman, Miss., special says the most unprecedented rainfall in that section for the past week has caused a general freshet and the cessation of traffic on railroads.

At Enterprise, Miss., the Mobile & Ohio and New Orleans and Northwestern railroads are submerged for long distances and passage either way is impossible. The town of Enterprise is inundated to a large extent, the water flowing through the streets with the velocity of a river and in many instances coming in the stores. The flood has no parallel save in the memorable year of 1871. It will perhaps be two days before traffic will be resumed.

FRUIT DESTROYED.

The freeze on Feb. 26 did considerable damage to the prospective fruit crops in this section. On Saturday afternoon large hail fell for a few minutes, and Saturday night the rain fell in torrents for several hours, causing greater damage by wash-outs and overflowing lowlands than had been done in many years. Several large growers had their tomato plant beds completely washed away and many others have suffered damage. Last night there was another freeze, this time preceded by rain, which finished up the peach blossoms and very few peaches, if any, will be produced this season. Last year the peach crop was lost by a freeze on March 1. The above noted facts will apply with equal force to a large number of market gardens along the line of the Illinois Central railway within a hundred miles of New Orleans.

TENNESSEE FLOODS.

Nashville, Chattanooga and Knoxville Suffer From Too Much Water.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., March 1.—The river continued to rise slowly all day to-day. Last night at dark the gauge read 47.0 feet, 40 feet being the danger line. River men predict that without any more rain the river will go two feet higher. It was clear and cooler here to-day. About 500 families have been driven from their homes. At 1 o'clock this afternoon the gauge registered 48.3 feet. It is expected the river will soon begin to recede, as reports have been received from up-river points that the high waters are slowly falling.

A Chattanooga special says the Tennessee river at that point has reached the danger line and is rising three inches per hour. Experienced river men predict that it will reach at least forty-five feet, which will overflow much of the city. The rainfall here for thirty-six hours is three and one-fourth inches, and extends up the river and in East Tennessee generally. The sky is overcast and the outlook for more showers is very promising.

A Knoxville, Tenn., special says very heavy rains prevailed throughout that section yesterday and last night, and all the streams are out of bank. A seven-year-old girl was drowned to-day by falling in a raging creek. A colored man named Hunter was drowned yesterday.

LOST ON THE SOUND.

Rumored Sinking of a Steamer With All on Board.

SEATTLE, Wash., March 11—It is rumored here to-night that the steamer Buckeye went down in the sound between Edmunds and Apple Tree cove, with twenty passengers, last night. The rumor cannot be confirmed, as there is no telephonic communication with Edmunds, and the place cannot be reached to-night.

The story is that the Buckeye, which is a small steamer, went into Edmunds yesterday loaded with cabbages and other market vegetables. The captain invited a party to go with him on a trip across the sound. About twenty, the majority being gentlemen, accepted the invitation. The boat had reached the middle of the sound about dusk, when a storm came up. For an hour or more there was a heavy gale.

A grader on the Great Northern near Edmunds is reported as saying he saw a light bobbing on the water for an hour or so and then disappear. The boat did not return to Edmunds last night, and this morning near that place the shore was covered with cabbages and wreckage. This story was brought by the steamer Idaho, which touched at Edmunds this morning.

Mountaineers Fight.

LOUISVILLE, March 11—A regular pitched battle was fought by a number of desperate men at a place called "Hell's Half-Acre" in Virgina, near Cumberland Gap last night. Hugh Johnson was shot through the head and chest and killed outright. Garrett Solhon was shot through the thigh; Mose Gibson through the bowels, not expected to live; Shelby Gibson through the leg, and John Owens, a bystander, in the chest. The first two were arrested last October on suspicion of being the men who had shot young Morris Wills, a young Englishman. The fight originated with these men who sought revenge against those who were witnesses against them.

Commuted by the President.

WASHINGTON, March 11—In the case of John Youngman, an Indian convicted in Wisconsin of rape and sentenced to be hanged April 3, the president commuted the sentence to imprisonment for life at hard labor in the Wisconsin state prison.

Regarded With Little Favor.

NEW ORLEANS, March 11—The defense in the Hennessy case closed to-night as far as the prisoners except Manuel Politz, are concerned. The defense to-day sought to prove an alibi for Cagnetto and Scaffedi and presented a good case. As the majority of the witnesses testifying to-day were either Italians or their employes, their testimony is not regarded with much favor, and it is not unlikely that charges of perjured testimony will follow the trial. Politz will try to clear himself from the mass of evidence which has been heaped upon him. The arguments are expected to begin to-morrow evening or Wednesday morning.

THE FIGHT IS STILL ON.

Liberals Encouraged by the Partial Victory They Gained.

TORONTO, Ont., March 11.—Sir Richard Cartwright, the Liberal leader, has issued an address to his constituents in South Oxford, in which he says:

"For the first time since 1874 we have gained the two central provinces of this dominion, and we have gained them on a clear and distinct issue in the teeth of an absolutely unlimited expenditure of money and of every other engine of corruption which a reckless and utterly unscrupulous administration was able to bring to bear. Our opponents' array, on the other hand, is most literally a thing of shreds and patches made up of ragged remnants from half a dozen minor provinces, a great majority of whom do not even pretend to be actuated by any principle save that of securing a slice of booty for themselves and the sections or constituencies they respectively represent.

"Not even Sir John Macdonald's most abject worshipers can fail to see that he has blundered terribly in many ways, and most of all in his dealings with the United States, and that he has led his followers into a cul de sac, out of which there is no escape save through such a series of pitiful and probably useless humiliations as even his lust for place and power at all hazards and at any sacrifices can scarcely tempt him to undergo. For ourselves, strong in our own convictions and fortified by the verdict of the two chief provinces of the dominion, our course is clear. We propose to pursue, without wavering, the line of policy marked out in successive debates and resolutions already thrice recorded in parliament on the question of free trade with the rest of this continent.

"I am making no idle boast when I pledge that I will not cease my opposition, in season or out of season, till we have succeeded in freeing our country from the shackles which the folly and ignorance of a portion of her citizens have imposed upon us. For my own part, I see very strong reason for believing that the end is near, and very near, and that, humanly speaking, nothing can prevent the success of the Liberal party save only dissension in its own ranks, of which, as matters now stand, I am happy to be alive to assure you there appears to be no danger, so far, at any rate, as its parliamentary representatives are concerned."

UNDERGROUND TRANSPORTATION

A Plan for Running Cable Cars Beneath Sidewalks.

CHICAGO, March 1—The Daily News to-morrow will publish a novel plan for street transit in large cities. The scheme is, in brief:

An under-the-sidewalk cable road to run north, south and west from a central point in the heart of the city. It is declared a company of wealthy capitalists stand prepared with their money and their influence to execute the novel plan of under-ground transportation, which, they declare, is entirely practical. It is claimed a thoroughly competent engineer presented reports after a long and careful investigation and surveys declaring the project feasible. The plan contemplates running out on one side of a street and returning on the other side. The style of cars will be similar to the present cable cars, and the whole under-ground roadway, including the cars will be lighted with electricity. Stations will be arranged at the corners of intersecting streets in basements of large buildings. The projectors claim for their plan the advantages of a high rate of speed, not possible on the surface; no danger to passengers or pedestrians, and great relief to the overcrowded streets by the removal of the enormous passenger traffic now conducted and which is constantly growing.

SEVEREST ON RECORD.

A Terrible Blizzard Raging in the Southwest of England.

LONDON, March 11—A terrific blizzard prevails throughout the southwest portion of England.

The storm is the severest on record in that part of the country. Many small vessels have been wrecked off the coast. The loss of live stock is also reported to be heavy. Hundreds of sheep and lambs have perished in the storm.

A snow storm has been raging in Scotland and the North of England for a week past, while in the South of England the weather was mild until Sunday. Yesterday's gale, which was totally unexpected, advanced in a northeasterly direction across the bay of Biscay. The blizzard prevails over the whole of the south of England. It commenced in London at 4 o'clock p. m. The storm increased to a fury at night, and there was an unusual rise of the tide. All the channel steamers had boisterous passages. The Dover mail boat nearly sank in the harbor. Her peddle box was completely smashed. The mail service steamers cannot cross the channel. The sea makes a clean breach over the admiralty pier, where the telegraph clerk and a signalman are practically prisoners. Similar reports come from points along the coast.

GIVES THEM BAD NAMES.

The Times Severe Upon Parnell's Emissaries to America.

LONDON, March 11.—The Times, to-day comments upon the character of the Parnell emissaries to the United States, saying that James O'Kelly is an ex-Fenian and a late arms agent for the Clan-na-Gael society.

John O'Connor is classed as a man whom John Devoy brought from the rat holes of conspiracy. John E. Redmond is by the Times dubbed an avowed adherent of the "harp without the crown."

The Times' article concludes with the remark that "if any persons can persuade the advanced section in the United States to open its purse it will be them," referring, of course, to the gentlemen mentioned.

Suing Uncle Sam.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., March 9.—Preliminary steps in one of those most important civil suits which has ever arisen in this state have just been completed by Attorney General Hunt in what is known as the suit of the state of Illinois vs. the United States, familiarly known the 2-per-cent claims, the state claiming judgment for several hundred thousand dollars because of non-fulfillment of contract on the part of the government to construct a national road from navigable waters flowing into the Atlantic on east to and through the State of Illinois to the Mississippi river. This highway was known as Cumberland road, and was to be a great national highway.

Much Illness in Pierre.

PIERRE, S. D., Special Telegram, March 11—Hon. George H. Hand of Yankton, one of the best known men of South Dakota and attorney for the Northwestern railway in the state, lies dangerously ill at Hotel Locke. Scarlet fever has broken out, and with about fifty cases of pneumonia and grip great fears are entertained of a fever epidemic.

Murdered by Their Mother.

MILAN, Tenn., March 11—Mrs. Sarah Belknap at Darden, Henderson county, cut the throats of her daughters Mary and Ella and then cut her own. The three are dead. No cause is known for the terrible deed.

WHAT CONGRESS DID

An Exhaustive Review of the Work Accomplished by the Congress Just Ended.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—The working or business feature was perhaps the most distinguishing characteristic of the Fifty-first congress.

Three measures, any of which in intrinsic importance and popular interest would be sufficient for a national issue, stand forth pre-eminent among all others. First, the McKinley tariff bill, which became a law; second, the silver bill, on which in the first session a compromise was effected based on monthly purchases of 4,500,000 ounces of silver, which in turn was followed by a more radical measure that failed of passage; and third, the federal elections bill, which, after a protracted, bitterly and hotly fought and intensely exciting preliminary struggle, failed in the senate to reach a decisive vote on its merits.

Radical innovations in the rules of the house added interest to its proceedings, and determined but fruitless efforts to adopt the most vital of these innovations formed a part of the history of the latter part of the sessions of the senate. Even in its mortuary record the congress was remarkable, the call of death having summoned no fewer than twelve of its representatives and three of its senators. The list contains the following names:

Senators Beck of Kentucky, Wilson of Maryland and Hearst of California, and Representatives W. D. Kelley, Samuel J. Randall and Lewis F. Watson of Pennsylvania, S. S. Cox, David Wilber and Newton J. Nutting of New York, Richard Townshend of Illinois, J. M. Burnes and James P. Walker of Missouri, James Laird of Nebraska, Edward J. Gray of Louisiana, and James Phelan of Tennessee.

THE TOTAL APPROPRIATIONS

for this congress will probably reach $1,000,000,000. During the Fiftieth congress 1,161 bills were vetoed, and during the Fifty-first 14. Among the bills which have become laws are these:

The copyright bill; the private land court bill; the postal subsidy bill; the Indian depredations claim bill; the timber and pre-emption law repeal bill; the customs administrative bill; a general land forfeiture bill; the bill to relieve the supreme court by the establishment of intermediate circuit courts of appeal; the United States judges' salary bill; the world's fair bill; the Wyoming and Idaho admission bill; the anti-lottery and anti-trust bills; the reapportionment bill; the immigration bill; the bill to ratify agreements with various Indian tribes and to pay the friendly Sioux $100,000; to reduce the fees of pension agents; to pay the French spoliation claims; the meat inspection bill; the bill to prevent the importation of adulterated food and drink; the live cattle and hog inspection bill; the bill appropriating $1,000,000 for the improvement of the Mississippi river; to permit sorghum sugar manufacturers to use alcohol without payment of tax; fixing government rates on land grant railroads; for the relief of settlers on the Northern Pacific railroad indemnity lands; to permit the export of fermented liquors to a foreign country without the payment of a tax; to apply the proceeds of the sales of public lands and the receipts from certain land grant railroads to the support of agricultural and industrial colleges; to amend the interstate commerce act; providing that applications to purchase forfeited railroad lands shall begin to run from the date of the restoration of the lands to settlement and sale; to extend the time of payment for public lands in cases of failures of the crops; to issue 1,000 stands of arms to North and South Dakota, Wyoming, Montana and Nebraska; to reserve the big tree tract in California as a public park; for the inspection of cattle steamers in order to secure more humane treatment of cattle; providing that the life-saving appliances act shall not apply to the lakes and bays of the United States; to enable the postmaster general to expend $10,000 to test free delivery system in small towns; to create the customs districts of North and South Dakota and Puget sound for the erection, repair or enlargement of many public buildings heretofore noted.

KILLED IN SOME MANNER.

The Blair educational bill, the bill for the appointment of an alcoholic liquor commission and the "eight hours" claims bill are measures which were defeated on test votes, while among those which after passing one house failed of action in the other are the bankruptcy bill, the Conger lard bill and the army reorganization bill.

The Paddock pure food bill, the Nicaragua canal bill, the Pacific railroad funding bill and the interstate commerce bill (to permit limited pooling of earnings by railroad companies) are among the measures which failed to reach a vote in either house.

To provide for the free coinage of silver; enlarging the rights of homesteaders and pre-emptors on the public lands; reviving the grade of lieutenant general of the army; for a boarding vessel at Chicago, and for the exploration and survey of the interior of Alaska.

To transfer the revenue marine service to the navy; to authorize the construction of a tunnel under the Detroit river at Detroit, Mich.; for the relief of telegraph operators during the war.

Among the measures on which neither house acted, except in some cases by committees, were:

The sub-treasury and farm mortgage bills; the service pension bills; the Canadian reciprocity resolution; the bill to encourage the construction of an international railway; the postal savings bank and postal telegraph bills; the Butler bill to aid negroes to immigrate to Africa; woman suffrage and prohibition constitutional amendments; the income tax bill, and various other radical financial and political measures.

FOR THE WORLD'S FAIR.

General Plans for the Grounds and Buildings Completed.

CHICAGO, March 6.—The general plan of the grounds and buildings for the world's fair was completed to-day. Jackson Park is divided into five parts, of which the one to the north, the ground already improved, is reserved for government buildings.

The main exposition is to front on Alagoon, and to the east will be a curved pier extending far into Lake Michigan, and made beautiful with buildings and with ornamentation designed by the sculptor, St. Gaudens. The state buildings will be disposed on streets laid out for the purpose of giving each as nearly as possible a place of equal prominence. The administration building is to be surmounted with a gilded dome rising to the height of the auditorium tower.

Trichinosis Spreading.

IDA GROVE, Iowa, March 6.—The trichinosis cases near this city, the result of eating bologna sausage, are becoming more serious. One more death has occurred and four new cases are reported. There are now seventeen persons whose recovery is doubtful and four have died.

St. Paul Capitalists Interested.

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., Special Telegram March 6.—It is said that the sale of mines near here, which was reported exclusively in the PIONEER PRESS, was to a syndicate of seven Englishmen and five Americans, and aggregates $10,000,000. The Americans interested are New York and St. Paul capitalists.

A Compulsory Education Bill.

MADISON, Wis., March 6.—In the legislature to-day the compulsory education bill was passed to the third reading. Only one Republican voted against it.

We learn that the delegation from Red Lake Falls. Fosston and East Grand Forks are still at St. Paul trying to get the legislature to divide Polk County. They will have their labor for their pains, as it is definitely known that our entire delegation is against the scheme. They should take a tumble and come home and go to work.

The question of proper cultivation of the soil is one of importance to every farmer. Methods employed in clayey heavy, wet and other soils of the east and south will not exactly suit the lighter soils of the Northwest. A leading and successful farmer of Minnesota has been experimenting and gives his opinion in a little circular furnished free by E. J. Kellogg local agent of the Great Northern Ry. or F. I. Whitney, G. P. & T. A., St. Paul, Minn. It is a publication calculated to interest all thoughtful and practical farmers.

Why is it that looking about for something on which to work reforms, our legislators never run up against the express companies? These corporations as it is now are having a nice time of it paying no taxes and charging rates to suit themselves. A better subject for legislation could not be found.—New Ulm Review.

Every farmer should have his plans for spring work pretty well matured or else he ought to be seriously considering now what crops he expects to plant. Field and garden seed should be in hand and examined or tested. Extra attention this year to the small things of the farm will add thousands of dollars to the value of our products. Let us have more poultry, eggs, vegetables root crops, fruits, etc. than ever before for sale and home use.

Timber culture and pre-emption laws this day repealed. Allow no further entries thereunder of claimes hereafter initiated.

The long mooted question of the advisability of employing Indians as soldiers has been decided in the affirmative, and orders have been issued by the War Department for the enlistment of not more than 2.000. During the late troubles in Dakota the Indian police made a very good record for loyalty and bravery, and it is just possible that this experiment will demonstrate that there can be such a thing as a "good Indian" in some other role than that of a dead one.—St. Paul News.

MORTGAGE SALE.

Whereas default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage bearing date October 12th 1889 made and executed by William P. Fowler and Jennie R. his wife, mortgagors, to The Dakota Investment company of Grand Forks Dakota, mortgagee which mortgage was on the 18th day of October 1889 at 9 o'clock a. m. duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Polk county Minnesota, in Book 43 of mortgages on page 103. And whereas, it was stipulated in said mortgage, that in case of default of any of the conditions thereof, the mortgagee might declare the whole sum secured by said mortgage due and payable, and default having been made the said mortgagee has elected to and has declared the whole sum thereby secured due and payable. And whereas there is claimed to be due and is due on the debt secured by said mortgage at the date of this notice the sum of sixhundred fifty-eight dollars and seventy cents: and no proceedings at law or in equity have been instituted to recover the debt thereby secured or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that the said mortgage will be foreclosed pursuant to the statute and to the power of sale contained in said mortgage and the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage to-wit: The south east quarter of section thirty-four in township one hundred and fifty-two north of range forty-four west situate in the county of Polk and state of Minnesota will be sold by the sheriff of said Polk county at public auction on Saturday the 18th day of April 1891 at 10 o'clock a. m. at the front door of the court house in the city of Crookston in said county of Polk, Minnesota, to satisfy the amount due on said mortgage and expenses of sale together with an attorneys fee of twenty-five dollars stipulated to be paid in case of the foreclosure of the said mortgage.

As far as the fingers are concerned, experts in palmistry divide hands into three classes. Long, slender, tapering fingers determine the first, and denote delicate, trained perceptions. A subject with such fingers has innate fondness for art, poetry, music and higher forms of literature. In the second class, the fingers are shorter, or nearly equal in length and have blunt ends. They denote a practical, material mind thorough and reliable, rather than brilliant. A woman with such fingers would make a careful and efficient housekeeper, and a man with similar ones would be cautious and thorough in business. In the third class, the fingers are short thick and square, and have short, large nails. A subject having these fingers is active, athletic, opinionated, selfish, has strong appetites for the material things of life, an is liable to form strong prejudices.—D. D. Bidwell in New York Ledger.

Keep out disease by keeping in healthy action the liver, stomach and bowels. There's a pleasant and a sure way of doing it. It's with Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They're the best Liver Pill ever made, and a prompt and effective remedy for Sick Headache, Bilious Headache, Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, and all derangements of the stomach, liver and bowels. They cleanse and renovate the system, quietly but thoroughly. They regulate the system, too—they don't upset it, like the old-fashioned pills. These are purely vegetable and perfectly harmless. One "Pellet" a dose. They're the easiest to take, and the mildest in operation—the smallest in size, but the most efficient in their work.

They're the cheapest pill you can buy, because they're guaranteed to give satisfaction, or your money is returned.

RUSSIAN GIRLS.

Nearly All of Them Marry Young Without Long Engagements.

The daughter is a great pet in Russian families, perhaps because there are generally more sons than daughters. Take the younger members of the imperial family as an example, and we find twenty-two grand dukes and only seven grand duchesses; and this may be stated to be about the average proportion in most families. The necessity for men in the rural districts as assistants in the agricultural labors of their fathers, has given rise to a saying: "One son is no son; two sons are half a son; but three are a whole son."

Notwithstanding the pride and satisfaction with which the birth of a boy is hailed, the little girl is the darling; the object of the tenderest affection and care of parents and brothers, not to speak of other adoring relatives. Much is not expected of her in the way of assistance in the family, she is indulged as far as their means and circumstances will permit, and she takes it quietly and as her due, but it is rarely that she does not voluntarily and tacitly contribute her share in helping her mother. Her occupations are much about the same as those of all European girls, but parish work in Russia existeth not for her. She cannot have classes at Sunday schools, as religion is taught by priests or deacons.

It would be thought quite extraordinary and improper were a young unmarried girl to visit the sick or poor in towns, but in villages it is sometimes done under the direction of mamma or grandmamma. She is undoubtedly fond of pleasures, likes to be well dressed, and generally adores dancing. Music is not the Russian girl's forte, nor is solo singing. Most of the instikas, though they thoroughly understand the theory of music, play like a child of 12; of course there are exceptions, but it is seldom you find a girl able to play a quadrille or polka off-hand.

Girls marry very young in Russia, and there are very few of those most estimable individuals called old maids There are no colonies for the Russian's to run away too, and satistics show that the birth of boys much exceed those of the girls.

Long engagements are not approved of, they seldom last longer than a few months, during which time the fiancee is the mistress of the house. Her girl friends assemble to help sew the dowry, the sewing afternoon generally ending in a dance after tea, when the bridegroom drops in with a few bachelor friends. Another wedding is thus often arranged, and so on, little by little, till, like the fifty one cards in the game of "old maid" they pair off, and one, generally of the sterner sex, is left—forlorn.—English Illustrated Magazine.

Half Right.

Abraham Lincoln was one of the talkers to whom every one loved to listen. His ideas and his language were his own, and whatever might be the topic of conversation, he was certain to say something which no one could have anticipated. An anecdote which has recently been told about him very well illustrates this trait of character,

A writer in the Century says that Lincoln seemed to enjoy the public reception at the White House, and was surprised when people commiserated him upon being obliged to stand and shake hands with such a crowd of perfect strangers, as they pushed one another past him.

Much of the time, indeed, he appeared to be almost unconscious of the throng, taking hand after hand in an almost mechanical way; but now and then, as he caught sight of a familiar face, or one of his callers made a remark which struck his fancy, his eye brightened, and he would perhaps break into a hearty laugh.

Many of those who shook his hand uttered some little carefully prepared speech, and now and then they received a swift answer.

One night an elderly gentleman from Buffalo said. "Up our way we believe in God and Abraham Lincloln," to which the President replied, as he shoved him along the line. "My friend, you are more than half right."

A party of United States officials from Georgia, Florida, and Alabama, has just completed a raid through West Florida resulting in the capture and destruction of twenty-six illicit stills and the arrest of thirty men.

MOTHER-LOVE.

My wife, his mother, rocks him
And braids her nut-brown hair,
And smiles, and stoops to fondle
Our new-born son and heir,

Triumphant gaze maternal!
Since Eve's in paradise
What raptured orbs supernal
Could match her love-lit eyes?

Their gloried glow angelic
Brings Eden back again;
Redeems a world's long struggles
With sorrow, sin and pain.

For Love can win in losing,
Find victory in defeat:
Knit pain-rent ties the firmer,
Make all earth's sorrows sweet.

Not Li'e's unfathomed riddle,
Not Death's unnumbered graves,
Can daunt the trust of manhood
In the Mother-love that saves!

A POSITIVE WOMAN.

Mrs. Prindle stood in front of the pier-glass trying on a new bonnet. She was a plump little woman, with a fair, baby-like face, and no one could blame her for gazing at herself with some complacency, for the dainty bit of millinery perched over the curly brown bang was exceedingly becoming.

"There'll be nothing like it in Hutchinville," she said to herself, with a thrill of pride, and her fingers meanwhile fluttered like humming-birds among the trimmings, touching here a flower and there a loop.

She was going to Hutchinville the next week for the first time since her marriage, to spend a few days with her mother, and the bonnet had been selected from Mme. Le Grande's latest importations with a view to dazzling her rural friends.

"I only hope nothing will happen to it before I go there," was her thought, as she turned at last from the mirror.

She even denied herself the pleasure of wearing it to church the next day, fearing a shower, for the skies were lowering. To face her city acquaintances for one more Sunday in the bonnet that she had already worn a whole season required far less strength of mind than to take her seat in the little Hutchinville church conscious that her bonnet, robbed of its pristine freshness, was being pounced upon by every eye in the congregation; but she could not resist putting it on to let Jack see how he liked it.

"It's pretty well up in the world," said Jack, viewing it critically, with his hands behind him; "but it seems to be the fashion in head gear nowadays. And really, on your head, my dear, it looks remarkably well."

Mrs. Prindle preened for a moment before the class. She was almost tempted to wear it, after all, but a warning splash on the window kept her from yielding.

"I won't risk it, she said; and putting the bonnet back in its nest, she stood on tiptoe and pushed the bandbox in place on the upper shelf of the wardrobe,

Hutchinville was a night's journey by boat, and the next day proving stormy, Mrs. Prindle, in terror of seasickness, decided to defer her trip but with the waning of the afternoon the wind suddenly shifted, the clouds parted and the sun burst forth like a monarch newly crowned. If it was going to be a fair night, it would be too bad to disappoint her mother, who she knew would be looking for her the next morning, and ordering a carriage the last moment, she hastily gathered up her baggage and departed.

She was a methodical little woman and even for the short time that she was to occupy her stateroom she wanted "a place for everything and everything in its place;" but on boarding the boat she met an invalid friend who detained her for half an hour or more in the ladies' cabin, and before she could arrange her stateroom the capricious wind had veered again. She stood for a moment at the window trying to persuade herself that there was no cause of uneasiness, but the rain was already driving against the deck, and the increasing roughness soon compelled her to take refuge in her berth.

To all those on board who were predisposed to seasickness it was a night of woe, and when, the next morning, Mrs. Prindle took the stage for Hutchinville, the little village being about three miles inland, she was too exhausted to give a thought to her baggage—even the precious bonnet had for the moment drifted out of her mind—and it was not until she alighted at her mother's door that the discovery was made that the bandbox was missing.

With hasty greetings and equally hasty directions as to where to find the box, her brother Tom was dispatched on horseback to the boat, and in a disturbed state of temper and nerves Mrs. Prindle seated herself at the breakfast table.

But Tom shortly came galloping back with the information that the stateroom had been searched in vain; not a box of any kind was to be found.

"Then that maid must have taken it," Mrs. Prindle declared. "She had to go rummaging among my things last night for my bottle of salts, and I daresay the bandbox took her eye."

"More likely it slipped overboard when they were bringing your traps ashore," remarked Tom with a repugnance to having people suspected.

But Mrs. Prindle, convinced that the bandbox was in the waiting maid's possession, insisted on going herself to see the captain.

The captain, who had just risen from breakfast when the carryall stopped at the gate, listened to Mrs. Prindle's story with courteous patience. Mrs. Bates had been on the boat for thirteen years, he said, and he had never had cause to suspect her honesty; but he was more than willing to investigate the matter. It was possible that Mrs. Bates had taken the box to her own room simply for safekeeping, he suggested.

But Mrs. Bates, who had just finished putting in order the stateroom Mrs. Prindle had occupied, denied all knowledge of the bandbox, and was so indignant over Mrs. Prindle's implied suspicion that the captain had some difficulty in preventing a scene.

"It's very strange," said Mrs. Prindle, stiffly, as the captain helped her over the gang-plank. "A box like that couldn't have gone off without hands. Somebody must know something about it, and if it isn't the maid it must be some of the passengers."

But all the passengers had left the boat, and Mrs. Prindle herself had to admit that to send a search warrant after them would be an unwarrantable proceeding. Beyond question the bonnet was lost and she, return d to Hutchinville feeling that the pleasure of her visit was at an end. Even the fact that her traveling hat was a pretty fair affair, and not at all out of style, afforded her little consolation. Still, she could have worn the the traveling hat in a more resigned state of mind had the weather been such as to make the other seem a trifle in advance of the season; but from the hour of her arrival until she turned her face homeward, scarcely a cloud marred the serene azures of the skies. The air was full of subtle hints of bursting buds, and robin songs filled the perfumed dawns, while up and down the streets from morning till night the merry children trundled their hoops and high above the treetops soared the inevitable kite; but to Mrs. Prindle, bereft of her bonnet, these unmistakable signs of spring served only to intensify her sense of loss, and she was scarcely sorry when the time came for her to return to town. The loss, trifling in itself, took the beauty out of the velvet lawns.

Jack, like the dutiful spouse that he always proved for himself to be, was at the landing to meet her next morning, and on the way home she poured into his sympathetic ear the story of the missing bonnet.

"You are sure you took it with you?" he asked when the recital was ended.

"Jack! Of course I'm sure! You don't suppose I'd gone off without it after buying it on purpose to wear it when at home?"

"Hardly, but never mind, dear; all you have to do is to go to Mme. Le Grand's and dublicate it," said Jack, eager to comfort her.

"I may go to Mme. Le Grand's and order another, but I shall not duplicate it," said Mrs. Prindle with much dignity, "I've no wish to have my bonnet a companion-piece to Mrs. Bates'. That woman ought to be brought to justice, and as soon as we're through breakfast, Jack, I want you to take a description of the bonnet to some detective and put him on the watch for her."

Jack barely succeeded in suppressing a whistle.

"Wouldn't it be better,"—he began but the stopping of the streetcar in front of their own door served to change the subject. "I feel like a famished hunter," said Jack, as he turned the latch-key.

Mrs. Prindle, too was hungry, and when Jack had deposited the parcels she asked him to tell Bridget to put breakfast on the table at once.

"I'll be down in a moment," she added, as she pulled out her hat pins.

Jack started to obey, but before he was half-way down the stairs, a cry from Mrs. Prindle caused him to face about, and on regaining their room he found her standing in front of the wardrobe gazing in a dazed way at the upper shelf.

"Jack," she whispered, huskily, "is there a bandbox up there?"

"Jack seemed a little dazed. "It looks very much like one, my dear," he said, slowly; "but of course it is not the one you took away with you."

"I'm—oh, I'm afraid it is, Jack!" gasped Phebe, as Jack took down the box, "or rather I'm afraid I didn't take it, after all. I remember telling Bridget to put it with the other things in the carriage, she had my bag and umberella in her hand at the time—and just then the door bell rang, so I told her to go on and I'd bring the box, and I didn't think of it again till I was at the gate and then Bridget came running out with something that I supposed to be it, and stowed it into the carriage; but now I think of it, it must have been the lunch box. Oh, Jack, what a goose I've been!"

"Moral," said Jack, taking the bonnet from the band box and perching it on his own head.

"Please don't, Jack," entreated Phebe.

"Well, then, let's have breakfast," said Jack, hungry enough to be glad of a truce.

But though the subject was not alluded to again that day, whenever Mrs. Prindle shows a disposition to be a little over-positive, Jack, with a masculine memory for feminine shortcomings, mildly reminds her of the lost bonnet.

Disestablishment in England.

English church disestablishment is coming faster and faster to the front of political discussion by the highest authorities. At a great meeting in Glasgow recently Lord Rosebery said: "I approach the question in a spirit perhaps somewhat different from some of those who are here to-night. I know many think that an establishment is a national injury and a national injustice. I cannot take that view altogether. I do not consider that an established church is either a necessity or an outrage. If I may say so, a church of some discription is a necessity for a statesman, even if it were not a necessity for man himself. But of the necessity of an establishment the nation and the state itself should be sole judge. The church is a necessity, but the establishment is a superfluity. It is a superfluity in which, in my opinion, the state—the nation—has a right to indulge it if it chooses; but it is a superfluity without which it can very well do if it pleases."

"German Syrup"

J. C. Davis, Rector of St. James' Episcopal Church, Eufaula, Ala.: "My son has been badly afflicted with a fearful and threatening cough for several months, and after trying several prescriptions from physicians which failed to relieve him, he has been perfectly restored by the use of two bottles of Boschee's German Syrup. I can recommend it without hesitation." Chronic severe, deep-seated coughs like this are as severe tests as a remedy can be subjected to. It is for these long-standing cases that Boschee's German Syrup is made a specialty. Many others afflicted as this lad was, will do well to make a note of this.

An Episcopal Rector.

J. F. Arnold, Montevideo, Minn., writes: I always use German Syrup for a Cold on the Lungs. I have never found an equal to it—far less a superior. ® Substance and Form in Literary Judgment.

And is it not true that from the nature of things the contemporary judgment lays most stress on substance, and that the "final" judgment is favorable to form? Substantially speaking, how many historic things of immense contemporary vogue seem insipid to us, whereas scarcely anything of very great formal merit has been allowed to perish. In other words, is there not an element of universality about perfection of form which significance of thought does not possess; or, at any rate, is not perfection more nearly attainable in form than it is in substance? And nothing is so preservative at perfection or any approach to it.

One thing is very certain—neglect of form involves the sacrifice of an element of positive attractiveness as well as offending positively by perverseness and eccentricity. Whether rhyme and rhythm, cadence, purity, flawlessness, melody are essential or not to poetry, the abandonment of the artistic quality which they imply is obviously a loss.—Scribner.

Prices for Rare Books.

People who are fortunate enough to possess first editions of Burns will do well to send them into the market while the craze for them lasts. A copy which sold for £66 in 1887 sold for £120 last season. It is clear that for some time to come there will be a great run on the late Mr. Halliwell Phillipps' folio edition of Shakespeare in sixteen volumes, of which only 150 copies exist. Nine years ago this work was sold for £51, but last season the copy which was offered realized £171.—London World.

Last July he lost the power of speech, was taken sick, went to bed, and has not spoken or opened his eyes, until a few days ago, when blood began to flow from his head and ears and suddenly he came to his senses. The doctors are dumbfounded by the phenomenon, and explain it by the supposition that some blood became clotted in his brain which prevented it from becoming active. He remembers nothing since he went into the sound sleep but can recall everything previous to that time.

TAKEN FOR TASCOTT.

A Barber of Aberdeen, S. D., Is Arrested as the Long-Looked for Murderer.

His Resemblance to the Murderer of Millionaire Snell is Said to be Remarkable.

ABERDEEN, S. D., Special Telegram, March 18.—Lee Barnes, a barber of this city, was arrested to-night on the complaint of a man named Owen, charged with being Tascott, the murderer of Millionaire Snell of Chicago. Barnes' examination was adjourned until Wednesday, when a man named Clark, who gave much valuable information to the grand jury which indicted Tascott, will arrive to identify the prisoner.

Owen has been working on the case for a year, being struck with the remarkable resemblance of Barnes to the pictures and descriptions of Tascott. He succeeded in getting a picture of Barnes and forwarded it to his brothers, J. G. and Willis Owen of Chicago, who showed it to Clark, State's Attorney Longenecker and a number of detectives and officers who worked on the case. Clark declared the photograph more closely resembled Tascott than any before seen by him. Some of the detectives thought Barnes "too stocky" for Tascott, but admitted the startling resemblance. Owen claims that Longenecker advised the arrest of Barnes.

Up to to-night the location of the supposed Tascott was kept from Clarke, whom the Messrs. Owens feared would seek the murderer on his own account and claim the reward.

Barnes has been here a year, and is reckless and dissipated. He has been remarkably reticent concerning the past, was never known to receive a letter, and has no relatives and friends hereabouts. He claims to be thirty-five years old, but looks younger. He is five feet nine inches in height, and weighs 165 pounds or more. He has light hair, inclined to be red; prominent hazel eyes, and small sandy mustache. His face is full and red and his body erect.

The consensus of opinion here is that it is another case of the wrong man, though the Messrs. Owens are unshaken in the belief that the murderer of Snell is at last captured. The remarkable resemblance certainly warrants the arrest, however.

HEAVILY INSURED.

Important Discovery in Connection With a Mysterious Death.

NEW YORK, March 18.—District Attorney Fitzgerald of Tottenville, S. I., who is investigating the mysterious death of Carl Ruttinger, to-day found in a valise, among Ruttinger's effects, photo negatives of Ruttinger and his brother-in-law, Wright. After a careful comparison Mr. Fitzgerald said that he had no doubt that Ruttinger was the dead man lying in the morgue. A reporter who saw the negatives was struck by the resemblance of Wright to the man who committed suicide in the Astor house Feb. 3, and who was buried under the name of "Fred Evans."

The latest and most important development in the case is the discovery by the police that Ruttinger's life had been insured in a German company and through a foreign branch of a New York company for $30,000. This has led to the theory that possibly the body which was found bound and gagged in the marshes at Tottenville was not that of Ruttinger at all, and that the whole mystery is an ingeniously contrived "graveyard insurance" plot. In other words, it is suggested that the conspirators may have obtained a body of a man very much resembling Ruttinger in appearance, shipped it to Tottenville, dressed it up in Ruttinger's clothes, and placing the passport in the pocket, dumped the disguised corpse into the Arthur kills in the expectation that, when found, the only means of identification would be the clothing and the written document.

NOTHING IN IT.

The Northern Pacific Has No Desire to Engage in the China Trade.

NEW YORK, Special Telegram, March 18.—James B. Williams, vice president of the Northern Pacific, was seen to-day in regard to the reported negotiations for chartering the steamers Abyssinia, Parthia and Batavia for the Chinese trade.

"Such a loan is an impossibility under the charter of the Northern Pacific," said Mr. Williams. "We have no more right to run steamships than to establish shoeshops. We would not embark in that trade if we could. The tea trade does not last more than two months in the year and the other imports amount to little as freight. The steamers used to make a profit by bringing over a load of 1,000 or 1,500 Chinamen at probably $50 apiece. The Chinamen cannot come now and the profit in the trade is gone."

Mr. Williams added that he did not think any officer of any subsidiary company of the Northern Pacific had made any negotiations that would give rise to the report referred to.

PERMITTED BY THEIR CHARTERS.

The Lehigh Valley Will Probably Disregard the Commission's Order.

PHILADELPHIA, March 16.—Secretary John R. Fanshawe, of the Lehigh Valley Railroad company, makes the following statement concerning the decision of the interstate commerce commission in the Coxe suit that is of interest:

"With no disrespect to the commission, which has evidently given to the cause very deliberate and intelligent thought, we will probably refuse to reduce our rates, and in the proceedings which may then be instituted in the United States circuit court for Pennsylvania, will endeavor to show that our rates are not unreasonable. Our charters, under which our whole carriage is made, permit us to charge much higher rates than those which have been condemned. We do not think that it is within the power of congress to disregard these charters and to compel us to carry for a less rate than we are permitted to charge. We do not think that the act of congress is meant to permit any condemnation of rates as unreasonable and unjust, which are specially authorized by the states which confer the franchises to transport. We do not see in the act of congress any authority to pass upon such question."

Serious Charge Against an Old Man.

UTICA, N. Y., March 18.—Amos L. Edict, aged sixty-three, a prominent citizen and a former supervisor, was to-day arrested charged with outrage on the affidavits of six girls, whose ages ranged from eleven to fifteen years. He pleaded not guilty and was remanded for examination.

Put Up a Certified Check.

ASHLAND, Wis., Special Telegram, March 18.—W. P. Frazier, who shot S. MacDonald four weeks ago, secured bail to-day in the shape of a certified check on a bank of Shakopee Minn.

RECALLED BY PINKERTON.

The Famous Detective Ransacks His Memory to Good Purpose.

CHICAGO, March 16.—W. A. Pinkerton, of the Pinkerton detective agency, was an intimate friend of the late Chief Hennessey, and was thoroughly acquainted with the dangers which threatened the chief. He is firmly of the opinion that Hennessey was killed by the Mafia. He tells the following story:

"Last April the Provenza and Matranga stevedores engaged in a fight, the result of a vendetta of old standing, and a Matranga had his leg shot off. The Provenzanos used old-fashioned horse pistols bored out and loaded with slugs. After this shooting the Provenzanos were tried and found guilty, but it was claimed that perjured testimony had been given, and a new trial was granted. That brings us right up to the assassination.

"Detective D. C. O'Malley helped the Matrangas in prosecuting the Provenzanos. Joe Macheca, who was riddled with bullets Saturday, and who had been on good terms with Hennessy, wanted the latter to assist in convicting the Provenzanos even after it was known that the Mafia was producing perjured testimony. Hennessy refused. During the summer he sent to Italy and got the records of all the witnesses who had testified against the Provenzanos. He dug deeper into the order than any outsider ever dared, and when he was up here to see me in October he said he had the evidence to root up the Mafia in this country. He had ascertained facts that would have uncloaked their organized band of assassins and would have sent a great crowd to the penitentiary for perjury. Chief Hennessey told me he believed O'Malley had told Joe Macheca and Matranga they must get Hennessey out of the way or all go over the road. The day for the new trial of the Provenzanos was set for Oct. 15. Hennessey was killed on Oct. 13."

EAST-BOUND SHIPMENTS.

An Insinuation That the Lackawanna Is Secretly Cutting Rates.

CHICAGO, March 16.—The statements of east-bound freight shipments for last week show that the Chicago & Grand Trunk and the Nickel Plate captured a much larger proportion of the tonnage than any of their competitors. In the case of the Nickel Plate it would be indeed surprising if it were not generally known that many shippers receive orders from Eastern buyers to forward their grain over the Lackawanna line, of which the Nickel Plate is the Chicago connection.

Of course, this is understood to mean that the Lackawanna is influencing business by paying rebates, or absorbing lighterage charges in the interest of the consignee who orders the property so routed, but it does not appear that any effectual means have been devised for putting a stop to this irregularity.

The shipments of flour, grain and provisions from Chicago to the seaboard last week aggregated 44,131 tons, against 40,588 for the week previous, an increase of 3,543 tons, and against 56,977 for the corresponding week last year, a decrease of 12,846 tons.

As the Nickel Plate secured 23 per cent of the whole business, the proportion of the Vanderbilt lines combined was 52 per cent, while that of the Pennsylvania lines was 12 per cent, the Chicago and Grand Trunk 27 per cent, and the Baltimore & Ohio 9 per cent.

THE ANNEXATIONISTS.

Talk of Proceeding Against Them on the Grounds of High Treason.

TORONTO, Ont., March 16.—It is understood that the government has been considering what it should do with such men as Edward Farrar. A firm of Toronto solicitors have been at work investigating his conduct, and some weeks ago they advised the government that he came well within the law relating to high treason. As the law now is, it is said, there would be no difficulty in securing his conviction on the charge of high treason. Whether the government will go this far is yet to be decided.

The report says that if the authorities do move they will probably move against some others who are members of parliament. Any punishment that may be meted out to them will be of the nature of banishment rather than of confinement.

It is also said that the government is being urged to ask Lord Salisbury to station in Canada from five to ten British regiments, quartering them in Halifax, Quebec, Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver. It is argued that the presence of these regiments in Canada would do more to put down the annexationists and put a check to their conspiracy than anything else could do.

CATTLEY ON TRIAL.

He Reported Himself as Not Well When Danger Was Apparent.

OMAHA, Neb., March 16.—The court martial to try Capt. Henry Cattley, Company O, Second infantry, on the charge of cowardice convened at department headquarters this morning. Charges were read which allege that Capt. Cattley feigned sickness when there was prospect of fighting at Pine Ridge, and shirked duty when it was dangerous. There were four specifications, to all of which Cattley pleaded not guilty.

The only witness examined was Lieut. Turner, who testified that Capt. Cattley ordered him to take command of the company when it was ordered to go after the hostiles on the White river, as he was not feeling well. On other occasions when danger was apparent Cattley reported himself not feeling well and unable to command, but when the duty was not dangerous he was on hand.

The meeting adjourned until to-morrow after the cross-examination of Lieut. Turner had been concluded.

FOUND A WATERY GRAVE.

Twenty-Two Lives Lost by a Collision Between Steamers.

LONDON, March 18.—A serious maritime disaster is reported. The ship Roxburg collided with the ship British Peer, of Calcutta for London, 120 miles southwest of the Scilly islands. The Roxburgh sank, and twenty-two of a crew of twenty-four were drowned, the captain and one seaman being rescued. The other ship was also badly damaged.

Lynched a Woman.

MOUNT STERLING, Ky., March 18.—A mob went to the house of Mrs. Wigginton, whose husband and sons are charged with poisoning Mr. Ferguson and Mr. Watts, and hanged her, and are now searching for Wigginton, who has fled. Two of the Wigginton boys are in jail, which is strongly guarded.

Poisoned Five People.

PARIS, March 18.—A saloonkeeper of Marseilles named Mouttet has been arrested on the charge of poisoning with arsenic his wife, mother-in-law, grandmother, infant, and a friend who had lent him money.

Killed by His Insane Wife.

IOWA CITY, Iowa, March 18.—Mrs. A. C. Richards, living near Charles City, rose from her bed last night, and in a violent fit of insanity grabbed a shotgun and shot her husband through the head, killing him instantly.

HENNESSY AVENGED

The Murderers of Chief Hennessy are Shot by Indignant Citizens of New Orleans.

A Mob of Over Three Thousand Headed by Prominent Men of the City do the Job.

NEW ORLEANS, March 16.—New Orleans struck the Mafia a death blow to-day.

It rose in its might almost at midday and wreaked a terrible vengeance upon the Sicilian assassins who relentlessly slew David C. Hennessy; and, though there are eleven men dead to-night who were happy yesterday over their victory in the greatest criminal trial the city has ever witnessed, the work of bloodshed was accomplished without unnecessary disorder, without rioting, without pillaging, and without the infliction of suffering upon any innocent man save one, and he was only slightly hurt.

Following are the names of those who met death at the hands of the enraged populace:

It was not an unruly midnight mob. It was simply a sullen, determined body of citizens who took into their own hands what justice had ignominously failed to do.

Last night a body of cool-headed men, lawyers, doctors, merchants and political leaders—all persons of influence and social standing—quietly met, and decided that some action must be taken, and the people's justice, swift and sure, visited upon those whom the jury had neglected to punish. This morning a call for a mass meeting at Clay square on Canal street appeared in the papers, which editorially deprecated violence. The significant closing sentence of the call was, "Come prepared for action."

W. S. Parkerson, the leader, is a prominent lawyer here, the president of the Southern Athletic club, and the man who led the vigorous city reform movement three years ago. Walter D. Doneger, another of the speakers, is one of the leaders of the New Orleans bar; John C. Wickliffe also a prominent attorney, and James D. Houston, of the foremost men of the state. After denouncing Detective O'Malley, who is supposed to have tampered with the jury, the speakers announced that they would lead the way to the parish prison, Mr. Wickliffe concluding with these words: Shall the execrable Mafia be allowed to flourish in this city? Shall the Mafia be allowed to cut down our citizens on public streets by foul means of assassination? Shall the Mafia be allowed to bribe jurors to let murderers go scot free?

HEADED FOR THE JAIL.

The Determined Crowd, Well Armed, Starts for the Prey.

By this time the crowd had swelled to three thousand or more and before any one could realize what had happened, the great throng, gaining recruits at every street, was tramping down the street to the neighborhood of the prison, stopping only once, and that was at the arsenal, where double barrelled shot guns, Winchester rifles and pistols were handed out to responsible and respectable citizens in the party.

When the vanguard of armed citizens reached the prison which is many squares from Canal street, that grim old building was surrounded on all sides. Sheriff Viller, when he heard that a movement was on foot to take the prisoners and then started on a hunt for Mayor Shakespeare. The Italian consul and Attorney General Rogers joined in the pursuit, but his honor does not reach his office till noon and he was not to be found at any of his regular haunts. The governor had not heard of the uprising and had no time to act. The police force was too small to offer much resistance to the army of avengers.

Meanwhile the prisoners were stricken with terror, for they could hear distinctly the shouts of the people without, madly demanding their blood.

Innocent and guilty alike were frightened out of their senses, and the prisoners who were charged with crimes other than complicity in the murder of the chief also shared in the general demoralization. Some of the braver among the representatives of the Mafia wanted to die and they pleaded for weapons with which to defend defend themselves, and when they could not get them they sought hiding places. The deputies, thinking to deceive the crowd by a ruse, transferred the prisoners to the female department, and there the miserable Sicilians trembled in terror until the moment when the doors would yield to the angry throng on the outside.

Capt. Davis refused the request to open the prison and the crowd began the work of battering in the doors. On the street there was a heavy wooden door which had been closely barred in anticipation of the coming of the avenging mass.

pressed into the yard of the white prisoners. The door of the first cell was open and a group of trembling prisoners stood inside. They were not the men who were wanted, and the crowd very quickly, though with remarkable coolness, burst into the yard.

Peering through the bars of the condemned cell was a terror-stricken face which some one mistook for Scoffedo. A volley was fired at the man and he dropped, but none of the shots struck him, and it was subsequently found that he was not one of the assassins. The inmates of the jail were ready to direct the way to where the Italians were. "Go to the female department," some one yelled, and thither the men with their Winchesters ran, but the door was locked. In a moment the key was produced. Then the leader called for some one who knew the right men, and a volunteer responded and the door was thrown open. The gallery was deserted, but an old woman, speaking as fast as she could, said the men were up stairs.

A party of seven or eight quickly ascended the stair case, and as they reached the landing the assassins filed down at the other end. Half a dozen followed them. Scarcely a word was spoken. It was the time for action.

FILLED WITH LEAD.

A Deadly Rain of Bullets Pours Into the Screaming Prisoners.

When the pursued and the pursuers reached the stone court yard the former darted toward the Orleans side of the gallery and crouched down beside the cells. Their faces blanched, and, being unarmed, they were absolutely defenseless. In fear and trembling they screamed for mercy. But the avengers were merciless. Bang, bang, bang, rang out the reports of the murderous weapons and a deadly rain of bullets poured into the crouching figures.

Manuel Polietz and Antonio Bagnetto, were hanged and their bodies riddled with bullets, the rest of the assassins were shot. As soon as the bloody work was done the leaders addressed the mob and asked them to disperse.

This they consented to do with a ringing shout, but first they made a rush for Parkerson, and, lifting him bodily, supported him on their shoulders while they marched up the street. The avengers came back in a body to the Clay statue and then departed.

The bodies of some of the slain were removed this evening. Caruso was married but leaves no children. Romero has a wife and children and Macheca a wife and family. Comitez leaves a wife.

The coroner and his jury viewed the remains and presented a simple finding. They did not say who shot the men.

Intense indignation is manifested toward the jurors who tried the Italians. Many of them have been discharged from their situations. Foreman Seligman has been expelled from the Stock Exchange and the Young Men's Gymnastic club. It is charged that the jury was bribed.

HENNESSY'S ASSASSINATION.

The Cause Which Led to Summary Punishment of the Italians.

The following is given as a clear statement of the actuating causes which led to the tragedy enacted this morning, as ascertained from interviews with a number of prominent citizens, some of them active participants in the stirring events of to-day:

On October, 1890, at about 11 o'clock at night, D. C. Hennessy, chief of police of the city of New Orleans, going from his office to his home was waylaid and shot to pieces by a band of Italian assassins, armed with such blunderbusses as could only have been made and used for the purpose of assassination.

The indignation and the excitement was such that mob law and lynching were about to be resorted to. To allay excitement and to assist the constituted authorities, the mayor of the city appointed a committee of fifty representative citizens to take charge of the investigations and to aid in the trial and conviction of the assassins. This measure arrested violence.

The committee entered upon its work, and at a meeting subsequently held in front of the city hall the actions of the committee were ratified, and they were encouraged to continue their labors to secure the prosecution and trial by the courts.

BRIBERY AND CORRUPTION.

After months of preparation and a trial which continued three weeks and in which distinguished counsel, assisted by an able district attorney, a jury charged to have been bribed and corrupted, in the face of testimony establishing their guilt, rendered a verdict of mis-trial as to three assassins, Scoffidi, Nonastrio and Politz, and acquitted the three assassins, Macheca, Marchesi and Bagnetto. Three more were on trial and were acquitted because of insufficient evidence, these being Mastranga, Incordona and the boy Marchezi.

The acquittal of Macheca, the chief conspirator, and of Marchezi and Bagnetto and the mistrial as to Pollitz, Scoffedi and Monastiero fell like a thunderbolt upon the community, and impressed law-abiding citizens with the conviction that laws had been violated, that their verdict invited assassination and the engrafting of the Italian Mafia upon American institutions.

IN THE METROPOLIS.

Dago Sentiment Set Forth in an Unusually Lurid Editorial.

NEW YORK, March 16.—The following most important portions of the editorial on the New Orleans tragedy in Il Progresso, Italo-Americano, the leading Italian newspaper of this city, give an idea of the feeling of the Italian colony in the matter:

We believe that never in the history of nations has such a horrible tragedy been committed, not even among the most barbarous people or tribes the most entirely removed from the principles of civilization and the maxims of Christianity—never, for savages and barbarians respect the sentences and the members of their courts of law. In what world are we living? Where, oh where, is the much boasted reverence of the American for the constitutional laws of his country? Why is the verdict of a jury in a capital process a farce, a joke, a child's play that they should make beasts of the natives and beasts of others? All narratives confirm the fact of the tacit acquiescence and connivance of prominent citizens; of the premeditated determination to carry out the tragedy; of the security, impunity in the face of the law. Therefore the responsibility, the shame upon the American name is so much the greater. Therefore the more severe must be the account and explanation asked and demanded in the name of justice and truth and human inviolability; in the name of hospitality and of common rights; in the name of constitutional franchises; in the name of international treaties and protections."

The editor of the Italo Americano telegraphed the different Italian papers of the country to-day, asking for opinions on the New Orleans tragedy. Among many replies received were the following:

"Richmond, Va., March.—The Italian colony is very sorrow for the tragedy of New Orleans, and hopes to have satisfaction by the American government.

V. DONATI."

"Boston, March 15.—The colony is excited and unanimously believes in the intervention of the home government, a naval demonstration asking satisfaction and respect for the people's rights.

"M. E. MORVILLE."

DONE AT WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—Secretary Blaine to-night sent the following telegram to Gov. Nichols at New Orleans:

Department of State, March 15.—His Excellency, Francis T. Nichols, Governor of Louisiana, New Orleans: It has been represented to the president by the minister of Italy accredited to this department that among the victims of the deplorable massacre which took place in the city of New Orleans yesterday were three or more subjects of the king of Italy. Our treaty with that friendly government, which under the constitution is the supreme law of the land, guarantees to the Italian subjects domiciled in the United States the most constant protection and security for their persons and property, making them amenable on the same basis as our own citizens to the laws of the United States and of the several states, in orderly administration. The president deeply regrets that the citizens of New Orleans should have so disparaged the purity and adequacy of their judicial tribunals as to transfer to the passionate judgment of a mob a question that should have been adjudged by settled rules of law. The government of the United States must give to the subjects of friendly powers that security which it demands for our own citizens. It is the hope of the president that you will cooperate in maintaining the obligations of the United States towards Italian subjects who may be within perils of the present excitement, that further bloodshed may be prevented and that all offenders against the law may be brought to justice.

JAMES G. BLAINE.

Baron de Fava, in a dispatch to Marquis di Rudini, the Italian premier, states that he has protested against the inaction of the local officials in New Orleans, and that Mr. Blaine, the American secretary of state, expressed horror at the acts of the New Orleans mob, promising that he would immediately take the orders of the president in the matter and that the decision would be communicated to the Italian government.

There is some kicking in the Northwest over the annulling of the preemption right by the act repealing the timber culture law. The class of settlers this act will affect are the squatters who haven't filed their pre-emption claims, and there is no provision to protect them in the act. Parties who have filed their pre-emption claims will not be disturbed.

A trip to St. Hilaire last Friday found everybody busy. Justice Hanson was busy dealing out law to the transgressors while Attorney Mathews could hardly tell which way to turn first. The stores had a good lot of customers and all seemed to be busy, The town was sorely besieged with commercial travelers with big grips which is not a bad recommendation for any town. Brother Ives of the Spectator was grieving over being obliged to set up and publish twenty mortgage sales.—Thief River Falls Press.

Senator W. D Washburn has written a citizen of Thief River Falls that he has recommended to the First Assistant Postmaster General that the name of the post office be changed from Rockstad to Thief River Falls. The Senator also adds that he does this at their request but he is of the opinion that they have selected a very poor name and one that would make a stranger very suspicious of its inhabitants. Notwithstanding the name we believe however that the citizens of that berg are far from being a "theiving lot" —but, if we owned a railroad, as does Senator Washburn, we would keep clear of the town.

We imported last year over $2,000,000 worth of eggs from Canada and have been doing so at this rate for years The total value of all farm products brought over the line last year was over $18,000,000, every dollar of which could have been produced in Minnesota and given $300 each to 62,000 farmers. Eggs and poultry have always been in demand in the markets of our rapidly growing Western towns and cities, and no farmer need look for a more profitable investment or a more worthy occupation than that of supplying this demand. We learn that it is almost certain that the legislature will pass a usury law lowering the legal rates of interest to six and eight percent. We also notice that the Farmers Alliances of this county are passing resolutions favoring this bill. We wish to make the prediction that as soon as this bill passes money will be harder to get and and rates of interest higher than ever before in the history of the county. It is almost impossible to borrow money at present upon the best of security at ten percent and loaning companies feel that where there are so many who will not pay their interest the risk is too great for them to invest their money. One thing is certain you cannot compel capatalists to invest their money and it is reasonable to presume that they will send their money for investment where the risk is light and it will bring the best interest. A glance at this and almost every other paper in the valley will convince anyone that loan companies are compelled to foreclose a great number of mortgages. A very large number of mortgages will fall due in the next two years and if the farmer cannot renew he must lose his land. It may make good times for the printer and lawyer but it will ruin the country.

Henry N. Copp, the Washington (D. C.) land lawyer, has revised and reprinted his Settler's Guide' the 17th edition. In view of the recent confusing legislation of Congress, this book is an indespensible assistant for all who are, or expect to be interested in public land, Settlers will save money by purchasing it, and all who expect to take up land any time in the future should get posted and save expensive mistakes. A cheaper, illustrated with numerous cuts, shows how to tell township, section and quarter section corners and explains the system of surveys. It gives full information about the homestead, pre-emption, timber culture, desert land, and other laws. The price of the book is 25 cents Address the author,

A new man can be made, out of one that's "used-up," bilious and dyspeptic. It's done by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It starts the torpid liver into healthful action, purifies and enriches the blood, cleanses, repairs, and strengthens the system, and restores health and vigor. As an appetizing, restorative tonic, it sets at work all the processes of digestion and nutrition, and builds up flesh and strength. It's the only Blood and Liver Remedy that's guaranteed, in every case, to benefit or cure. If it doesn't do all that's claimed for it, the money is promptly refunded. But it keeps its promises—that's the reason it can be sold in this way.

"Discovery" strengthens Weak Lungs, and cures Spitting of Blood, Shortness of Breath, Bronchitis, Severe Coughs, and kindred affections. Don't be fooled into taking something else, said to be "just as good," that the dealer may make a larger profit. There's nothing at all like the "Discovery."

FASHIONS FOR MEN.

What will Be Considered the Proper Thing in Men's Attire.

The moonstone is a favorite for scarf pins.

Black silk handkerchiefs are considered vulgar.

All the indications point in the direction of a triumph for the neglige shirt.

At no time since its introduction has the patent-leather shoe been so popular as at present.

A new fancy for spring and summer is cotton half-hose with woolen soles. It is an imported idea.

The white pique vest of a season ago while not wholly under the ban is not effected by the exquisites.

The puff scarf is still popular, but is smaller than that worn last season. One of the new colors is stone blue.

The embroidered shirt front is passe. Only those who pay small heed to the proprieties of dress now wear it. Pique fronts, however, if not pronounced are still in good form.

The ultra fad in suspenders is the portrait of one's best girl embroidered in silk on the webbing near the heart of the wearer. Of course, one's best girl should do the embroidering with her own sweet, white hands.

Let no man wear a Derby to whom a silk hat is becoming, except at business. That is the general law laid down by the arbiters. The silk hat for spring is almost straight in the crown, with a narrow brim rather sharply curled.

Among the swells who haunt the up-town clubs it is considered unpardonable to insert the scarfpin in the center of the necktie. The latest mode is to insert it diagonally from the left side. It is permissible, however, to insert it diagonally from right to left.

With link sleeve buttons, which are all the rage, the fashionable thing to wear is a link button in solid silver, or in silver ornamented with gold. Stone or diamond settings are not worn except by those who are not conversant with the contemporaneous requirements of fashion.

The general trend of the spring fashions goes to demonstrate that Americans are rapidly setting up idols of their own, instead of worshiping at the shrine of English ideas. It is claimed by not a few leading authorities that the Americans are the best dressed men in the world.

No decree of fashion, apparently, can displace the four-in-hand scarf. It is more popular than ever, and varies so little this season from the style of last year that the difference is not preceptible. Fashionable men the world over now tie their cravats. Make-up scarfs are for the masses; men of taste eschew them.

The day of the big walking-stick is past. The most coveted effects just at present are natural sticks of medium size, with modest silver trimmings. Gould-mounted canes are used chiefly by elderly men or members of the sedate profession. The latest fad for spring is a stick with a natural root, ornamented with a spiral silver band.

The tan glove, while still in popular use, is not the correct caper among men who pretend to set the pace for the rest of New Yorkers. The latest conceit is a glove as tight fitting as physical endurace will permit, and of a rich gold-brown hue. Deep embroidery on the back cannot be worn without sinning against etiquette.

The double-breasted, straight sack coat is undoubtedly the most popular garment for spring. The tailors say that most of their customers want it. It should not be worn, though, on fromal occasions, as it is intended wholly for business wear. This season the coat is an inch or two longer than formerly, and the patterns, as a rule, run to plaids and stripes. Solid black is gradually disappearing.—Daily Continent.

MINNESOTA SOLONS.

Condensed Proceedings of Both Branches of the Minnesota Legislature.

What is Being Attempted in the Way of Legislation by Our Law-makers.

Tuesday March. 10.

SENATE.

The attendance of members in the house yesterday was unusually light, and during the morning session but little business was transacted. Several petitions presented against the Currier bill were received, and citizens of Wright county presented petitions asking that all liquor licenses be turned into the county, instead of the village treasuries. A letter from the family of the late Gen. Sherman was read, thanking the Minnesota legislature for its resolutions of condolence and sympathy.

Senate bills were reported upon by the committees, among which were the appropriation bill for the St. Cloud reformatory and the bill abolishing the state board of corrections and charities.

The order of the introduction of new bills was reached, and ten or eleven measures, mostly of a local character, were read for the first time by Judge Dakin. Several were of a local character, but of no great importance.

The principal general bill introduced was by Mr. R. A. Walsh of Ramsey county, and is to establish a court of appeals.

The following senate files were recommended to pass: 303, 28, 341, 97, 85, 8, 78, 213, 140, 54, 66, 101, 57 and 29.

The house then adjourned until 10 o'clock this morning.

HOUSE.

The senate yesterday postponed the consideration of the usury bill again, and if another postponement is not agreed upon, it will be taken up this morning at 10:30. The day was occupied with the transaction of business in the regular order. One of the principal acts was the recommendation by the committee of the whole that Senator Donnelly's railroad constitutional amendment bill should pass. The bill is nearly a copy of a provision of the constitution of Illinois.

Senator Hompe's bill requiring court commissioners to give bonds for $2,000 was recommended to pass.

Senator Allen's bill amending the law relating to ownership of real estate by corporations and aliens so that it will allow lumber companies to own more than 5,000 acres of land was recommended to pass as amended. The amendment limits the amount of land to 10,000 acres and provides that it shall be what is known as pine lands.

Senator S. D. Peterson's bill requiring the railroad commissioners to ascertain the cost of railroads was recommended to pass.

Senator Lienau's bill adding two members to the high school board and creating the office of high school inspector, with a salary of $2,000 per year, was recommended to pass after some opposition. The objections raised were to the creation of another state office.

Wednesday, March. 11.

SENATE

So far as progress on the usury bill was concerned but little was accomplished. One additional section of No. 1 was finally adopted, but the temper of the senate is so uncertain that it may be changed by to-day's proceedings.

At 10:30 o'clock the senate resumed consideration of the usury bill. Senator Donnelly read a list of alliances which had petitioned for the retention of the usury laws.

Senator Dean considered that both bills, No. 1 and No. 315, were departures from the correct system of finance, and argued that it would be a great calamity to make the laws relating to interest and usury more stringent at this time.

Senator Keller spoke in favor of 6 and 8 per cent interest, with simply the forfeiture of interest for usury.

A vote was finally reached upon Senator Donnelly's amendment to Senator Tawney's amendment to section 3, of S. F. No. 1. Senator Tawney's proposition was to strike out the clause providing for forfeiture of principal for usury and insert a penal clause, and Senator Donnelly's amendment was to strike out that portion striking out the forfeiture clause. This amendment to the amendment was carried by a vote of 25 to 24.

Senator March then presented an amendment to section 3, which again brought up the question of substituting the penal clause for the forfeiture, it being exactly the same as that of Senator Towney, except that the limit of the fine was fixed at $300 instead of $500.

Senator Donnelly moved to amend Senator March's amendment by striking out so much as repeals the forfeiture of principal clause. This was the second time during the day that the senate had voted on this question. This time the amendment of Senator Donnelly was lost by a vote of 23 to 23.

As soon as the president declared the amendment lost, Senator Donnelly arose and said he presumed the senate was about to adopt the amendment of Senator March, which would repeal the present usury law and replace it with a law making the taking of usury a penal offense.

"I have," he continued, "been holding something in my breast for several days, and I think the time has come to disclose it. A member of this senate, who is a banker, said to me that the banks of this state had raised $10,000 to beat the bill now pending before this body. I do not charge that any of this money has been given to buy senators. But I do charge that money has been raised to defeat the question upon this floor."

After order was restored Senator Leavitt said he presumed the senator from Dakota had kept his charge of corruption for the last shot, but it was a blank shot, as there was nothing in the charge. He then presented the following resolution:

AN INVESTIGATION ORDERED.

Resolved, That a committee of five shall be appointed, of which the senator from Dakota shall be chairman, to investigate the charge that the bankers of this state have raised $10,000 to defeat S. F. No. 1.

The resolution was adopted without division, only two or three voices being against it, and the senate adjourned until 10 o'clock this morning.

HOUSE.

After the house had assembled and the opening ceremonies had been gone through, Mr. Reeve called up his resolution memorializing congress against free coinage and had its discussion made a special order for Friday at 2 p. m.

A motion by Mr. Ringwald providing that each member of the legislature be allowed five additional copies of the new legislative manual went over on notice of debate.

The new bills introduced were not very numerous, but seven or eight of them possessed points of general interest.

A bill by Mr. French relates to the method of procedure by heirs to real estate, in cases where a person dies intestate.

Mr. Smith introduced a bill providing for the creation of a new lumber district to be known as Lumber District No. 8, which shall comprise St. Louis, Lake, Itasca and Beltrami counties and tributary territory to the Rainy river. It further provides for the appointment of a surveyor general for the new district, and fixes the scaling fee at five cents.

Thursday, March. 12.

SENATE.

The senate at yesterday's session finally succeeded in recommending an interest and usury bill for passage. The bill recommended was Senate File No. 1, which reduces the interest to 6 and 8 per cent and retains the present law, which forfeits both principal and interest for usury.

Senator Donnelly presented a resolution authorizing the investigating committee which was ordered the day before to be appointed, to send for persons and papers and to employ a stenographer to take evidence.

When the special order—the usury bill—was taken up, the first question was upon the amendment of Senator March, which in effect repeals the forfeiture clause and substitutes a penal clause in its stead.

Senator Wood, in discussing the question, said that no action taken by the legislature could bring a great measure of relief. The remedy must be furnished by the national government in providing a greater volume of currency.

A vote was then taken upon Senator March's amendment and it was defeated by a vote of 24 to 24.

Senator John Day Smith moved that the amended bill be recommended to be placed at the head of general orders, but the motion was defeated by a vote of 17 to 30.

Senator Davis moved to recommend the amended bill to pass. Senator Leavitt moved to substitute No. 375 as amended, but the motion was lost by a vote of 20 to 27.

Senate File No. 1 was then recommended to pass by a vote of 25 to 21, and the senate adjourned.

HOUSE.

Two petitions in favor of the Currier bill were received and referred to the railroad committee.

Under the order of the introduction of bills a large number of measures were introduced, among them being several of a general character. The most important was a proposed amendment to the constitution introduced by Mr. Smout by which it is proposed to radically change the qualification of a legal voter in this state.

The 110 bills on general orders gave the house a busy time during the afternoon. Mr. Greer was called to the chair when the house went into committee of the whole, and the galleries commenced to fill up with large numbers of railroad employes and others interested in N. P. Nelson's bill to compel railroads to fit their locomotives and cars with automatic breaks and couplers.

After a speech in favor of the bill by Mr. R. A. Walsh and short and lurid remarks pro and con in which Mr. McAllister, the Demosthenes of Hennepin county, participated, a vote was taken and the bill, which has been fought over and discussed for the past six weeks, was recommended to be indefinitely postponed by a vote of 53 to 37.

Friday March. 13.

SENATE.

Senator O'Brien presented a communication from the warden of the Stillwater penitentiary saying that the binding twine machinery was now in working order and would be operated on the day when the legislature visited the prison. Later in the day it was agreed that the senate should adjourn at noon on Thursday next and spend the afternoon at Stillwater. A special train will leave the union depot at 1:30 o'clock.

When Senator Donnelly's bill proposing a constitutional amendment relative to railroads and warehouses was reached upon the calendar, Senator Leavitt spoke briefly against it, pointing out some defects which he thought existed in the measure. Without further debate the senate proceeded to a vote, and the bill was defeated by a vote of 27 yeas and 13 nays.

Soon after Senator Donnelly moved to reconsider the vote by which the bill was lost. The motion prevailed by a vote of 25 to 14. The bill was then referred to the judiciary committee for amendment, with the understanding that it should be placed upon the calendar when reported back and not go again to the committee of the whole.

Senator Allen's bill amending the law relating to the ownership of real estate by aliens and corporations, so that it permitted corporations engaged in manufacturing lumber to own 10,000 acres of land, was defeated.

Just previous to the adjournment of the senate Senator Crandall presented a concurrent resolution providing for the adjournment of the legislature April 10. Notice of debate was given by Senator McHale.

HOUSE.

The committee on local bills reported back a large number of bills and occupied a great part of the morning. The bill to relieve Thomas Monahan was placed on general orders, and several local bills were passed under suspension of the rules.

Representative Bell's wolf bounty bill was indefinitely postponed on the recommendation of the committee on agriculture. The bill to prohibit granite cutting in the state reformatory at St. Cloud was disposed of in the same way.

Senator McHale's bill relating to the sale of poisons was passed on to the calendar.

On motion of Mr. Stockwell the committee on towns and counties was instructed to bring in a bill to organize every unorganized county in the state.

Mr. Linnemann presented a resolution to increase the pay of Reading Clerk Dakin to $10 per day, Assistant Clerk Moody's pay to $7.50 and the doorkeeper's committee room keepers and other assistants be paid $5 per day. Mr. Gildea gave notice of debate.

Mr. Bell introduced a bill authorizing the city of St. Paul to convey to the United States lots 3, 4 and 5, of block 8, Rice & Irvine's addition, for a site for a new post-office or government building.

Saturday, March 14.

SENATE.

Senator Crandall called up his resolution fixing April 10 as the day of adjournment.

Senator Donnelly opposed the resolution. The resolution was indefinitely postponed.

The interest bill was made a special order for Monday at 3 p. m.

A bill by Donnelly to repeal the newspaper laws of 1887 was recommended to pass.

Senator Lienau's bill establishing an experimental manufactory for beet sugar at the state farm, and requiring instruction in sugar beet raising to be given at that institution, was recommended to pass. Then, just before adjournment, the bill was passed under suspension of the rules by a vote of 28 to 4. The negative votes were given by Senators Borchert, Leavitt, Mott and Probstfield.

HOUSE.

The bill for reimbursing the contestants in the election cases before the house was referred back to the election committee to be reintroduced in the form of a resolution.

Mr. Hadland make a sortie into the future by moving that the legislature adjourn at noon, on April 10. Mr. Turrell gave notice of debate.

H. F. 746, relating to the abolition of the office of fire warden in St. Paul, was recommended for passage by the Ramsey county delegation and was ordered placed on the calendar.

H. F. 804, the bill reorganizing the board of education of the city of St. Paul, was passed under suspension of the rules.

Mr. Green introduced a bill prohibiting any person to use dynamite or any other explosive in catching or killing fish in any of the lakes or streams of the state.

Mr. Gilmore introduced a bill compelling all owners of billiard and pool tables from the use of which they derive a pecuniary profit, to take out licenses therefor, and the license money to be turned into the county poor fund. The use of card tables for profit in public rooms is forbidden by the bill.

Monday, March, 15.

SENATE.

Senator Davis offered a bill allowing the directors of the state agricultural society to lease any portion of the state fair grounds for a period not to exceed twenty years, for stock exhibitions, trotting or running meetings, etc. Senator Smith sent up three bills, one authorizing the publication of 3,000 copies of the report of the bureau of statistics, another regulating the business of foreign fire, life and casualty insurance companies in this state, and the third regulating the filing of articles of incorporation.

The two local bills, one reducing the membership of the St. Paul board of public works from four to three, and reducing the salary of each to $2,500, and the other abolishing the present board of education and establishing a new board of seven members to be appointed by the mayor, were reported back favorably from Senators Lienau and Sanborn, of the Ramsey delegation, and passed under suspension of the rules.

The usury bill was passed by a vote of 33 to 16.

HOUSE.

H. F. 614, a bill to amend the general statutes of 1878, relating to money, bonds, bills and notes, which is a substitute bill for H. F. 437, was defeated.

Some slight opposition was manifested to the passage of H. F. 409 and 411, but Mr. Tucker took up the cudgels for the bills, and in a forcible speech overcame it, and the bills passed.

Before adjourning Mr. R. A. Walsh moved that the house adjourn until 10 o'clock Wednesday morning to enable the Hibernian members to properly celebrate St. Patrick's day, and as a token of respect to the memory of Ireland's patron saint. But the house would have none of it, and decided to meet this morning as usual.

Bret Harte's Seclusion.

Unlike many authors, Bret Hartel never does an ambitious piece of literary work amid the din of the city. Whenever the plot of a story gets thoroughly crystallized in his mind he repairs to a quiet suburban retreat just outside of London, and there he works. And in this little nook the author is at present hard at work upon a new story of considerabe length. Only a few of his closest friends know the whereabouts of his cave of seclusion, and even these he has never asked to join him there. The novelist works steadily when he is in seclusion and stops only for an hour's walk every day. When at work his diet is a very frugal one; he retires early and is up just after dawn, working often several hours before he has his morning coffee, eggs and rolls. For two months he will thus keep himself secluded; then, returning to London, he places his manuscript in the hands of the publisher and considers his work done, for Bret Hart hates proof-reading.—Florida Times-Union.

"Don't Pass Around the Hat."

Not long before the death of Gen. Sherman he expressed himself freely to his old friends, George W. Childs, about his funeral, his grave, and his monument, says the Philadelphia Times. He wanted a military funeral becoming his rank, but he said with the emphasis common to the brave, old soldier: "Don't pass the hat around for me when I am dead.

Gen. Sherman was sickened by the spasmodic but even ineffectual efforts to erect a monument over the remains of Grant; he revolted to the speculative pomp displayed at the funeral of his chief, and he freely expressed himself against making a show of his body and then putting it away on the Hudson or some other advertising lot to take care of itself.

These ideas are made mandatory in his will, as just been made known by Lieut Thackara, his son-in-law. The will defines the mounment to be erected over his grave to be paid for by his estate, and it prescribes its cost and the exact letters to be on it, viz., the simple date of his birth and death, his army rank, with the words "True and Honest," added.

A FIRE at Fowlerville, Mich., destroyed the postoffice, express office, opera house and a large number of business blocks and dwellings. The loss is placed at $100,000, with very small insurance.

THE British steamer Curlew sunk at pier 6, East river, New York. One of the vessel's sea cocks on the side was left open and water poured in until she went under. She is a small vessel and was until recently employed in carrying mail from Nova Scotia ports to Newfoundland.

OWEN GARRY and his wife, aged people, were burned to death in their home at Rockford, Ill. It is supposed the woman got up and struck a match to get a drink and in so doing set fire to the bed clothes. Their screams were heard by a stranger passing the house, but before a rescue could be effected both were dead and horribly burned.

WICKEDNESSES.

BROKER HAMILTON YOUNG of New York has been arrested, charged with forgery of checks to the amount of $7,000.

ELIAS YOUNG, charged with killing Lieut. J. S. Robinson in August, 1861, is under arrest in Wilkesbarre, Pa.

AT Camden, N. J., Lingo has been found guilty of murder in the first degree. He assaulted and murdered Mrs. Miller, the wife of a prominent farmer.

HENRY JONES, Geo. S. Key and Edward Smith, the three colored men convicted of having committed murder on the Island of Navassa, have been sentenced to be hanged in Baltimore Friday, May 15.

THE jury in the Camelee Lupze murder trial at Wichita, Kan., brought in a verdict of murder in the second degree. There is a general condemnation of the verdict, and the colored people talk freely of lynching.

NEAR El Reno, Okla., Will Schwab and William Flescher quarreled over a debt of 25 cents. Flescher, who is only fourteen years old, stabbed Schwab to death and fled.

NEAR Barbourville, Ky., Mrs. Barbara Shelton was found burned to death in the ruins of her home. It is supposed she had been murdered and the house burned to conceal the crime.

REV. LOUIS WOODRUFF, who was rector of St. Luke's church in Katskill, N. Y., during the year 1890, has been arrested in New York charged with secreting property on which he had given a chattel mortgage.

JAMES S. ENSOR, notary public and attorney-at-law, well known in business and social circles in St. Louis, has disappeared, and, it is said, has misappropriated $8,000 loaned to him by friends.

MEMPHIS WORKMAN, a young farmer, was murdered near Washington, Ind., the other day. The shock prostrated his sweetheart, Nellie Hays, to whom he was to have been married in a few days, and she is dying of grief.

AT Springfield, Ill., while Mrs. Annie Sturgeon was calling at the house of Joe Vasconiellos, the latter shot her three times, and then shot himself, but it is not thought the wound will prove fatal. Mrs. Sturgeon will probably die.

WHILE Officer James E. Tenn was attempting to arrest two negroes in a dance house for carrying concealed weapons, at Houston, Tex., he was shot and instantly killed, and a bystander named Frank Michaels was mortally wounded. The negroes escaped.

JAMES CHANEY, JR., a prominent citizen of Cosnocton, Ohio, cut his throat with a razor last night and then tried to kill his wife by cutting her throat. It is the opinion of the physicians in attendance that they may both possibly recover. Domestic infelicity was the cause of the tragedy.

A WARRIOR GONE.

Gen. Joseph E. Johnston, the Great Confederate General, Dies at Washington.

His Death the Result of a Cold Caught Soon After Attending Gen. Sherman's Funeral.

The general had been suffering for the past three weeks with an affection of the heart, aggravated by a cold he caught soon after attending Gen. Sherman's funeral in New York. His physician has been trying to keep his strength up for some days, but his advanced age has given little hope for his recovery from the beginning of his illness.

At times for about two years Gen. Johnston has shown unmistakable signs of a general breaking down. His mind often became bewildered so that he could not tell where he was or how he came there.

About 6 o'clock this evening Dr. Lincoln found him perfectly comfortable, and apparently a little better. While his friends and attendants knew that he might pass away at any time, yet they had no warning that

THE END WAS SO NEAR.

Gov. McLane entered the room at a little after 11 o'clock, and as he approached the general's bedside he heard an almost inaudible sigh, and the general was dead.

Gen. Johnston's nearest living relative is a sister, Mrs. Mitchell, who lives in this city. The funeral services will be held in this city, although the day has not yet been fixed upon. The interment will be made in Greenmount cemetery in Baltimore.

Gen. Johnston was the last, save Gen. Beauregard, of the six full generals of the Confederacy. After the war he became successively president of a railroad company in Arkansas, of an express company in Virginia and an insurance agent in Georgia. He was elected to congress from the Richmond district in 1877 and next saw public life as commissioner of railroads, which office he held under President Cleveland's administration. He had lived in this city since he lost his office under the present administration.

Gen. Johnston was a man of slender build, of not more than medium height, and with a kindly, pleasant face. He was unobtrusive in manner, and invariably courteous to all persons with whom he was brought in contact.

BIOGRAPHICAL.

Sketch of Gen. Johnston's Life and His Service in the Confederate Army.

Joseph E. Johnston was born in Prince Edward county, Va., in February, 1807. He received a military education, graduating from West Point in 1829, served with distinction through the Seminole war in Florida and the war with Mexico in 1846-7, where he rose to the rank of captain.

In the early part of the year 1861 he was made quartermaster general, with the rank of brigadier general, but resigned his commission in April, 1861, to enter the rebel army as major general, taking immediate command of the rebel troops concentrated about Harper's Ferry. It was wiley Joe Johnston that amused Patterson during the months of June and July, closely eluding Pennsylvania's supposed great general, and by a brilliant rapid maneuver effecting a movement with his subordinate, Gen. Beauregard, in time to prevent the defeat of that general by crushing McDowell and gaining for the rebels the first great battle of the war—Bull Run. After effecting the junction with Beauregard at Bull Run, Johnston waived his rank, giving the glory to his subordinate. Johnston continued chief in command of the rebel armies in Northern Virginia until May 31, 1862, when he was severely wounded at the battle of Fair Oaks.

During his incapacity for duty, Gen. Lee was given command of the rebel armies about Richmond, and on reporting for duty in January, 1863, Johnston was assigned to the command of rebel armies in Alabama, Mississippi and Tennessee, and on May 13, 1863, Grant, on his campaign in the rear of Vicksburg, found Johnston at Jackson, where he whipped him on the 14th with a single army corps and cut him off from co-operating with Pemberton. During the siege of Vicksburg Johnston continued to threaten the rear of the besiegers, but was carefully watched by Sherman, who, on the surrender of Pemberton, attacked Johnston at Jackson, but the wiley general eluded capture and escaped across Pearl river. In December, 1863, Johnston relieved Gen. Bragg, whom Grant had routed at Chattanooga, and found himself

CONFRONTING GEN. SHERMAN.

In the battles of Dalton, Resaca, Altoona Pass and Kenesaw Mountain, when Johnston was driven and forced to fall back by Sherman, he was never caught napping, and although forced across two deep rivers in his retreat his movements were masterly and executed with small loss of material and men. Gen. Johnston was never popular with Jeff Davis, who had superseded him at Richmond with Lee, and had at various times shown his dislike by unfriendly criticisms, and on July 18, 1864, took advantage of Johnston's reverses in the Atlantic campaign to summarily relieve him, placing Hood in command. The change of rebel commanders, it is safe to say, was in no wise detrimental to the Union cause.

This suspension of Johnston from command continued until in February, 1865, when Davis, seeing Hood slaughtered by Thomas in Tennessee, Early annihilated by Sheridan in the Shenandoah valley, and Lee hemmed in by Grant at Petersburg, with Sherman marching through the Carolinas to join Grant, yielded to the pressure and called Johnston to the command of the scattered commands in Georgia and the Carolinas. Gathering an effective army of some 35,000 men, Johnston gave battle to Sherman at Bentonville, N. C., only to be beaten and driven back to Chapel Hill, where, on April 26, he surrendered himself and army, being given the same terms granted to Lee at Appomattox.

When the ruins of the Confederacy were crumbling, and Davis and his cabinet were seeking safety in flight, Johnston had an opportunity of striking back at his old-time enemy, Jeff Davis, who, to cover his retreat, and that of his immediate friends, ordered Johnston to make certain disposition of his troops, but Johnston quietly ignored the orders of the fugitive president, and proceeded with the surrender of his army.

Sherman, in his memoirs, tacitly admitted Johnston to be the ablest general who confronted him during the war, and while Lee at the North was popularly supposed to be the ablest of Southern generals, the Confederate soldiers point to Joseph E. Johnston.

GEN. JOHNSTON'S FUNERAL.

Tuesday the Day—The Pall Bearers—Messages of Condolence.

WASHINGTON, March 22.—The funeral of Gen. Joseph E. Johnston will be held at St. John's Episcopal church in this city Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock, the rector, Dr. Douglass, conducting the ceremonies, after which the body will be removed to Baltimore for interment at the Greenmount cemetery the same day.

Only the simple burial service for the dead will be read at the grave. All the ceremonies will be simple and devoid of display, this being the expressed wish of the dead man and his relatives. The honorary pall bearers will be Senator John T. Morgan of Alabama, Senator John W. Daniel of Virginia, Hon. J. L. M. Curry, Gen. John G. Parker, U. S. A.; Gen. Charles W. Field, Gen. Harry Heth, Rear Admiral C. R. P. Rodgers, Rear Admiral W. G. Temple, Gen. H. G. Wright, Gen. Benjamin W. Bryce, Col. Archer Anderson of Baltimore, Col. Edwin G. Harris, Hon. J. C. Bancroft Davis, and Pay Director James Watmaugh, of the navy. The active pall bearers will be taken from members of the ex-Confederate association of this city.

There were a great many callers to-day at the residence of the late general, including Generals Schofield and Rosecrans and Admiral Rodgers. A large number of telegrams of condolence were received. P. T. Sherman, on behalf of the family of the late Gen. Sherman sent the following from New York: "The family of Gen. Sherman desire to tender to the relatives of Gen. Johnston assurances of their profound sorrow and sympathy."

Bishop C. T. Quintard, of the Episcopal church in Tennessee, an old comrade and friend of Gen. Johnston, from Memphis telegraphed: "Assure the immediate relatives of Gen. Johnston of my profound sympathy. He was one of my dearest friends. A prince among men has fallen."

The following dispatch is from St. Louis from a number of Gen. Johnston's old comrades in arms: "The death of Gen. Johnston causes extreme sorrow to his late comrades and many admirers here, and they beg to tender sincere and heartfelt sympathy."

A DUCAL TYRANT.

A Grand Daughter of Queen Victoria Becomes a Victim of Matrimonial Wretchedness.

LONDON, March 24.—Deep indignation is expressed among all classes of Englishmen in regard to the reports current as to the treatment of the Grand Duchess Elizabeth, granddaughter of Queen Victoria, by her husband, the Grand Duke Sergius of Russia, brother of the czar.

It is now well understood that the czar's motive for appointing his brother to be governor of Moscow was not, as officially stated, to give him a mark of esteem, but to remove the grand duchess from the foreign society of St. Petersburg, where her maltreatment by the imperial family has already caused an international scandal.

The reports as to the abuse to which the lady has been subjected are not mere gossip, but come from high and trustworthy sources, and nobody in England has any doubt of their truth. The grand duke is said to be really attached to his wife, but he treats her on the same principle that Russia treats a conquered province or state. Having annexed her by marriage, he has claimed that she must become Russian altogether, even to the abandonment of the religion in which she was born and educated. With this view coercion, characterized as brutal, has been tried upon her. When she desired to attend English services she found no carriage to take her, and the grand duke on such occasions has shown a displeasure in ways that a Russian or Tartar, whether high or low, very well understands. There is no allegation openly made of physical violence, but rumors to that effect are current.

The young princess, now but twenty-seven years old and only twenty when she was married, appealed for a divorce to her father, the grand duke Louis of Hesse, and to her grandmother, Queen Victoria. The queen, dreading scandal, appears to have advised her to comply with her husband's wishes as to religion. Officially, the queen was simply stated to have sent her blessing to her granddaughter, about to be converted to the Russian church. The grand duke Louis, however, took a different view of matters. He was indignant, and openly protested against his daughter being coerced as to her religious profession, and wanted to bring her home. Then ensued a correspondence between the father and the grandmother, the former urging the latter deprecating interference; but before anything could be done, the Russian imperial family, apprehensive of the disgrace that would attach to them should the grand duchess leave her husband, made the official announcement of her conversion, and then speedily followed the decree appointing Sergius governor of Moscow and removing him and his wife to that interior Russian city, far from the glimpses of England and Germany that may occasionally be caught at St. Petersburg.

It is not at all certain that the end is yet. The Grand Duke Louis is thoroughly aroused. It is he who has through the Times and other newspapers appealed from Queen Victoria to the English people in behalf of his daughter, and whatever the result may be he has certainly succeeded in exciting a strong public sentiment.

IT'S MANSLAUGHTER.

Young Hundley, the Huron Parricide Convicted of Manslaughter in the First Degree.

HURON, S. D., Special Telegram, March 24.—This morning the jury in the Hundley murder case returned a verdict of manslaughter in the first degree against Fred Hundley, who killed his father, Hon. Zack T. Hundley, here last June. The verdict is generally approved. The minimum penalty is four years in the penitentiary. It is thought that the sentence will not exceed eight years.

Fred is seventeen years old. He and his father got into trouble while putting down a carpet. At the time of his death Mr. Hundley was editor of the Herald Democrat, the leading Democratic paper of the state, chairman of the Democratic state committee and a leader of his party. His death created a great sensation.

A MURDERER ENTRAPPED.

A Rich Man's Son a Burglar as Well as a Murderer.

PITTSBURG, Pa., March 24.—The burglar Fitzsimmons, or Andrews, as he is better known, with a dozen other aliases, who killed Chief Detective Gilkinson and badly wounded two others last night at Peters' Run, was captured in Braddock, near here, at 9 o'clock to-night. It was shrewdly suspected that he would visit a house at Fourth and Ann streets, occupied by a Mrs. Clark. At 9 o'clock the patient watchers saw the rear door open, and in a moment Andrews was cornered in an out house. His painful wound, coupled with four revolvers staring him in the face, soon cowed the murderer, and he is now in jail with all the inmates of the house. A satchel full of jewelry has been found near Andrews' house, and on his person was a large amount of money.

A satchel found near the scene of last night's murder contained a lot of valuable jewelry stolen at Homestead. A copy of the will of Robert Fitzsimmons, dated at Brockville, Ont., Dec. 10, 1890, was also found in the valise. The will shows that the murderer's father was a wealthy man, having about $10,000 in money to divide among his heirs, besides a large amount of real estate. The murderer is named in the will as Frederick Carrolton Fitzsimmons, and is bequeathed $3,000 in money and a good share of real estate.

FOUGHT HARD.

Outlaws on the Chickasaw Reservation Overcome by Officers.

ARKANSAS CITY, Kan., March 23.—A party of Chickasaw reservation marshals had a desperate fight with outlaws yesterday.

The outlaws were cornered in a house and opened fire on the approaching officers. The fire was returned with fatal effect, killing Alexander Davis, one of the pursued. Two others, Bill Poe and John Chesler, were captured after a desperate resistance. The marshal also lost one of the party, Rev. Perkins, a preacher, who accompanied them, being shot and killed by the outlaws. The prisoners were brought in safely and lodged in jail.

FROM AN ICY LAND.

An English Explorer Returns to Winnipeg From a Journey to the Arctic Circle.

With a Party of Natives He Visited Parts Never Explored by White Man.

Leaving Calgary in June, 1889, Mr. Pike proceeded to Athabasca Landing and from there to Fort Resolution on Slave river. Here he secured the services of two Indian guides and helpers and started for the barren lands in search of musk ox, caribou and other large game, "packing" provisions and wood via dog trains, and altogether had a very successful hunt, killing about forty musk ox and as many caribou as they were in a position to handle.

On this trip Mr. Pike went as far north as Fish river, this being the river on which Franklin's first expedition to the North pole was lost. He experienced many adventures. The party was lost for fourteen days last fall and endured terrible sufferings.

They started to cross the Yukon range of mountains to the Pacific coast, when, after journeying for some twelve days, they found that, instead of being, as they supposed, on McLeod river, they were on what afterward turned out to be the Nation. Here the guides admitted they were lost, and nothing remained for the members of the party to do but retrace their steps, which they did, with but enough provisions for a few days. In two days they were out of grub, and, to make a long story short, they starved for fourteen days.

Mr. Pike absolutely refuses to say anything of their tortures during this time, but many facts were gleaned from those who saw them on their return to the Rapids, and who were compelled to feed them as they would a babe. As an example of the terrible state of affairs, some hundreds of miles were on ice, and their frozen condition, when rescued, was simply horrible, while some of the party were so reduced from cold and hunger as to be totally helpless. It was afterward learned that they were but a short distance from the lake, and that had they been in a position to have understood the location their destination could have been reached in a very short time.

When asked to describe the barren lands, Mr. Pike said that it was an immense tract of barren rock, on which grew a kind of moss and shrub on which deer that run by thousand feed and appear to be very fond of. There are numerous lakes among rocky bluffs, the waters freezing in the cold season to the depth of from seven to nine feet. He reports the temperature as low as 40 degrees below in winter, but the months of July and August, he says, are very hot. Six months during the year the sun never shines on these barren parts.

Mr. Pike reports moose very scarce, but says there are large numbers of musk ox and thousands of caribou deer, the latter taking to the woods in winter.

Mr. Pike is one of the few white men who have succeeded in killing an ox, and the only white man who has trod the path of the Franklin sufferers on the Fish river. The travel during this trip was almost entirely done on foot, the dog trains being used for carrying provisions and wood. There are no laws in the country but those of the Hudson's Bay company, and business is carried on entirely without the aid of money, their currency being so many skins, a skin being valued at 50 cents.

GILKINSON'S MURDERER.

An Impenetrable Mystery Seems to Surround the Nervy Criminal.

PITTSBURG, March 25.—Excitment still runs high in McKeesport and vicinity over the murder of Detective Gilkinson, and the shooting of the officers. There seems to be an impenetrable mystery surrounding the nervy man Fitzsimmons, or Budd, who fought the officers. Budd claims he awoke out of sleep to see his wife struggling with two men, and he fired, not knowing who they were. He has traveled all over the world, seems to be known generally, yet no one can place him or even give his right name.

Watches, jewelry and silks have been found at the house of Mrs. Clark in Homestead, where he was in hiding; but the great bulk of the $40,000 robbery is missing. Laura Hill, who first peached on Budd, has closed up, and Budd himself nurses a badly wounded shoulder, and says nothing.

When the detectives searched Fitzsimmons' house they found papers showing that Frederick C. Fitzsimmons had recently fallen heir to property in Brockville, Ont. Telegrams were sent to Brockville seeking the history of the man who had murdered Detective Gilkinson Saturday night, and the answer came back that Frederick C. Fitzsimmons was at his home in that place.

The mystery thrown around the prisoner by receipt of the telegram has not yet been penetrated. The opinion of the officers is, however, that the murderer had stolen the papers from the Canadien owner and had assumed the name of the man to whom the papers rightfully belong.

It is also currently reported that "Fitzsimmons" has confessed to the murder of Margaret Douglass in McKeesport last May, for which crime Eddie Myers, a nephew of the murdered woman, is doing time in the penitentiary in this city.

SWITCHMEN STRIKE.

Bad Feeling Against a Yardmaster Results in a Walk-Out.

CHICAGO, March 25.—Over one hundred switchmen, comprising the entire yard force of the Chicago & Northwestern, went out on a strike to-night. The strike was result of bad feeling among the switchmen against Yardmaster Frank McNeary.

After the strikers had been idle half an hour Mr. McNeary tendered his resignation pending an investigation, and the strikers went back to work. Mr. McNeary is a member of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, and the committee waited upon Assistant Superintendent Sanborn in conjunction with the switchmen's committee. The trainmen are disposed to support McNeary, and the matter promises to develop into a fight between the two organizations.

Queen Victoria in France.

LONDON, March 25.—Queen Victoria left Windsor Castle this morning, en route to Grasse, a small town in the department of the Alpes-Maritimes, France, twenty-five miles west of Nice.

PARIS, March 25.—Queen Victoria arrived at Cherbourg to-day on her way to Grasse. The Western Railway company has issued special orders to its employes in regard to the passage of the royal train over its line. Strangers are not to be admitted to any stations on the route to Grasse until after the train has passed. Local trains scheduled to run to-morrow have been suppressed so as to give the royal train a clear and uninterrupted run.

HEALY BADLY HURT.

The Anti-Parnellite Assaulted by a Mob in the Streets of Cork.

CORK, March 25.—Timothy D. Healy, M. P., had a very rough experience in this city to-day, being assaulted and seriously injured.

He had attended the assizes, being interested in a case in which his brother, Maurice Healy, to whom Mr. Parnell recently sent his famous resignation challenge, had obtained damages for libel against a local member of the Parnellite party.

Upon leaving the court room at the conclusion of the trial Timothy Healy was soon surrounded by a howling mob, who followed him along the street and made a number of attempts to assault him. The crowd finally became so violent that Mr. Healy, to escape his tormentors, was compelled to beat a retreat and take refuge in the dressing room of the Victoria hotel. But this proved to be only a temporary place of safety, for, before Mr. Healy could recover from the effects of the mob's rough usage, a man suddenly rushed into the room, turned out the light and then struck Mr. Healy a powerful blow in the face, smashing his eye glasses into pieces.

When assistance arrived and the room was again lighted Mr. Healey was found to have been badly injured, as he had received numerous cuts from the broken pieces of his eye glasses, and the blood was pouring down his face in streams. He was removed to a room, and, as he appeared to be suffering intense pain, a number of physicians were summoned.

Three doctors are in attendance on the injured man. They have made an examination of the wounds in his eyes, and express the fear that Mr. Healy's injuries may result in the loss of his sight.

Healy's assailant is O'Brien Dalton, who was connected with the Tipperary conspiracy. He first upbraided Healy for an insulting speech which he says Healy made while Dalton was in prison. He then struck Healy. The glass injured the coats of Healy's left eye and inflicted an incised wound an inch below the eyelid. It is feared that inflammation will ensue. Healy's sight is not injured. Mr. Morley, who arrived at the hotel after the assault, was highly indignant. Parnellite roughs watched all the exits till Healy departed from a back entrance when they hooted him.

IN THE THROES OF DEATH.

A Pugilist Shot by a Crook Said to Be From St. Paul.

CINCINNATI, March 25.—Louis Bezinah, the prize fighter of Covington, Ky., the same that at Dallas, Tex., while traveling with the Muldoon-Kilrain combination killed one James with a blow of his fist in a sparring contest, is dying in the Cincinnati hospital from pistol shot wounds inflicted by a jealous crook.

For about two years Arthur Chambers, alias Kid Dugan, a young loafer and gambler, said to be the son of a hotel keeper in St. Paul, has been intimate with May Riley, a woman of the town. A few weeks ago this woman cast off Dugan or Chambers

To-night early Dugan thrust himself into May Riley's house, made the colored woman show him to the woman's room up stairs, where he found Bezinah, May Riley and others. Quickly drawing a pistol, he fired two shots into Bezinah's abdomen, not a foot away, then fired two more at May Riley and fled but was captured. One shot grazed the Riley woman's head and the other made a flesh wound in her arm. Bezinah was taken to Cincinnati hospital. His recovery is impossible. He had an engagement to fight Tommy Comer at Dayton shortly and was going into training for it.

DRENCHED WITH BURNING OIL.

Three Men Meet Their Death and Two More Will Die.

JERSEY CITY, N. J., March 25.—An explosion occurred to-day in the yard of the Tidewater Oil Refining company, by which three men were burned to death and two others fatally burned. There are about twenty-five stills in the yard. Running above the chain of stills is a large pipe, which is used to pump the oil from one still into another. A gang of men were at work raising Still No. 16 by placing a block under it when the big pipe connecting the chain of stills on top suddenly exploded.

The oil became ignited and poured down on the men who were caught in between Stills No. 15 and 16. Rescuing parties were at once set to work to get the men out, but this could not be done until the flames were extinguished.

John Hayes, aged forty-five years, married, and Michael Haley, twenty-two years old, married, were dead when taken out. Foreman George Gregory was alive when taken out, but was so badly burned that he died at the hospital shortly after. John Anderson and John Gallagher were taken to the Bayonne hospital. The physicians at the hospital say they cannot recover.

MURDEROUS ROBBERS.

Two Men Robbed and Then Thrown From a Train.

CHICAGO, March 25.—John Wilson and Henry Matthews, two respectable citizens of Laporte, Ind., were seized by three burly ruffians while they were walking to their homes, a few miles outside that city, about dusk last evening and thrown into an empty cattle car, which was on its way to Chicago, attached to the regular cattle train.

The train had stopped, but started as soon as the daring deed was committed. The ruffians threw the men to the floor of the car and robbed them of their valuables, which they only succeeded in taking after a desperate struggle.

After a battle of nearly half an hour the nearly exhausted men were hurled from the rapidly moving train and left lying bruised, bleeding and unconscious by the roadside. Two hours afterward they were found and conveyed to a neighboring house, where they were revived. They are both seriously injured.

Repeated Her Charges.

NEW YORK, March 25.—Mrs. Potts, the mother of Helen Potts-Harris, called at the district attorney's office to-day and made a full and complete statement of the case from her point of view. In this statement she repeated the charges that young Harris was implicated in and responsible for the death of her daughter. As has already been stated, the exact nature of these charges as placed before the district attorney could not be learned, as Mr. Nicoll merely contented himself by stating that the mother had called and preferred the charges. He says it will be some days before the matter will go before the grand jury.

Two Hundred Insurgents Shot.

LONDON, March 25.—Dispatches from Chili received via Buenos Ayres say there has been severe fighting near Valparaiso recently and that 200 of the insurgents were taken prisoners, tied together and shot with cannon and musketry by government troops.

Strychnine Poisoning.

MEDICINE HAT, N. W. T., Special Telegram, March 25.—Clara, aged sixteen, the eldest daughter of James Sanderson, a wealthy half-breed of this place, died to-day from the effects of strychnine.

UNDER THE BED.

The Woman who Looks for a Burglar Rewarded at Last.

"You've heard of that burglar under the bed," said Mrs. Westside, reports the New York World. "Well I've just had the greatest scare of my life. I've been looking for that burglar under the bed ever since I was a school girl, and my grown children long ago joined in the hunt."

"And you found him at last?"

"Wait—I will tell you. The other day I went to some friends in Washington. I stopped at the house of a couple of old maids the nicest people in the world you know—who have been recently bereft of a loved relative. He had died in the house. During the evening the conversation naturally turned upon the character and late illness of this man. It was only a casual conversation. Nothing was remarkable about it and the subject was quickly lost in the flood of other talk. We sat up late, and when we arose to retire one of the girls laughingly inquired whether I was afraid to sleep alone.

"'Because,' she said "we have no man about the house now. If you're the least bit timid you can sleep here, though the best room is ready for you.'

"'Dear me,' said I, 'I'm not a child.' and I was shown up to a handsome bedroom.

"You know, I'm not a bit afraid of a man. I'm more afraid without one. I'm not at all superstitious—wouldn't be afraid to raise an umberella in my room, to walk under a ladder or through a graveyard. I began to disrobe without ceremony as soon as my friend bade me good night. Her last remark recalled the conversation about the man who died there, 'probably in this very room,' I thought, looking around—'perhaps in this bed.' But even if I had been certain of that the fact wouldn't have disturbed my rest. So I went on with my preparations. Before I jumped into bed and turned out the gas I did just what I had done from girlhood—threw up the overhanging coverlet and looked under the bed for that burglar.

"Heavens! The sight that met my eyes fairly froze my blood! I was rooted to the spot with horror!

"The long-expected burglar? No. At that moment I would have welcomed the most desperate burglar that ever lived. I would have embraced him. I saw a long cloth-covered box, with brass drop handles on the side, and studded with brass headed tacks along the edges.

"I was so frightened, so utterly astonished, I couldn't scream, or I should have yelled loud enough to raise the neighborhood. Fortunately, I heard a footstep at the moment and a tap at the door. It was the other sister come to bid me good night.

"'Good gracious!' she exclaimed, seeing my white face, 'What in the world—'

"I—I—O, dear! As soon as I could find my tongue. 'Why do you k—k—keep that co—cof—fin under the bed?'

"She burst into a hearty laugh. Running quickly to the bed she pulled the thing out. It was a dress box. We sat down on the floor and laughed together. I think I cried. I don't care. It would have scared a mule. Even after I knew what it was I couldn't sleep soundly a single night while there for dreaming it was a coffin!"

A Strange Delusion.

Years ago, way back in the early 70's, one of the leading families of North Davenport, Iowa, were possessed of an only daughter, fair of form and face whom they had betrothed to a young gentleman of good family living in the neighboring city of Dubuque, —all names being withheld out of consideration for these good people, who still reside in the cities named. Everything was arranged for a speedy marriage of the young pair, when the happy prospective bride took sick and died. The grief of the young man was dry-eyed, but terrible when he saw his loved one arrayed for the bridal of death instead of for a union with himself. He followed the remains to the Oakdale Cemetery, returned home in an abstracted sort of manner, only to be stricken with nervous fever the same night. Then a peculiar hallucination took possession of his fevered brain—he believed the lost one to be present with him in the room. His parents gently but vainly remonstrated with him, yet he would talk to her that should have been his bride, describe her dress and appearance to those attending on him in his delirium, even though others would sit or stand where he declared her to be. Finding that he was rapidly sinking under this peculiar delusion, it was decided to array a young lady in clothes that were an exact counterpart of those in which the bride-elect had been buried, and which were the same the young man declared were worn by her when she visited him in the spirit. While he was sleeping this well-meaning counterfeit took her station in the room, anxiously awaiting the outcome. When he did awake, he turned his eyes to the spot, flung his arms aloft, and shrieked in an unearthly voice, "My God, there are two of them." Gasping which he fell back and expired.

Creamery Failures.

The Michigan Dairyman says: "One thing has got to be stopped—the starting of creameries by irresponsible men in the spring and their failure in the fall, after swindling the farmers out of a large part of their season's product. Judging from the frequency of creamery failures recently, this thing has been developed into a thoroughly worked scheme."

There was a great hue and cry raised by the Alliance and Democrats all over the state because the legislature of two years ago had so many clerks and hangers on on the payrolls. The Alliance and Democrats are now in control of the legislature, and what is the result? there are more names on the pay-roll than there were two years ago. But then this is an age of reform you know.—Granite Falls Journal.

Sauk Center Herald: The present legislature of Minnesota was elected largely with due referance to the demands of the agricultural interests of the state—and what has it accomplished in alleviating the burdens either real or imaginary under which the farmers are chafing?

Buffalo Journal: The legislature drags its weary length along. To many of its members it will be a relief when the last day comes, but the majority will insist on staying until the last day the law allows. It looks now as though the records of this winter will be the most unsavory ever made in this state, and it will be most unfortunate if this should be the case.

With Italy demanding reparation for the dead dagos, France and England snarling over the Newfoundland fisheries, and the Cologne Gazette stigmatising the row in Paris over the visit of the ex-empress as "Bubenhafteverunglimpfungen," it is no wonder the Peace society feels perturbed and the millennium appears far off, unattainable and dim.—Pioneer Press.

Brainerd Journal: We would be very glad to see a lower prevailing rate of interest, but do not believe that the passage of a new interest law at this time will have that effect as to loans upon real estate. It will certainly result in the withdrawal of large amounts of money from the state, and the foreclosure of thousands of mortgages upon farm property.

Farmers who will give systematic attention to the cultivation of sugar beets, and co-operate with the agricultural expirement station, are requested to leave their names with Agent E. J. Kellogg of the Great Northern Railway and seed and instruction as to proper culture will be sent free. Analysis of beets will also be made without cost to the producer.

Ole Stene better known as "Irish Ole" had a load on last Saturday evening and made considerable of a disturbance on our streets. Constable Williams arrested him but had to call on constable Brink and several citizens before he could land his prisoner in jail. He was brought before Justice Hanson Monday morning after spending Sunday cooling off and was fined three dollars and costs anounting to about eight dollars.

Editor Muzzy was down from Thief River Falls yesterday and informed us that now the sleighing was fast disappearing, the citizens of that berg were commencing to build their annual crop of railroads. If the people up there really want a railroad they had better send a delegation of Indians down to St. Paul to take care of Donnelly and his alliance friends, for if the proposed railroad legislation is passed there will be no railroad building in Minnesota this year or next.

The county division scheemers are still on earth it seems, as Senator Lommen has recently introduced a bill dividing Polk county into three counties the two new ones being named Sherman and Red Lake. The bill has been referred to Senator Lommen and this is probably the last we will hear of it this session. The legislature has less than a month to do business in and without the unanimous consent of all our delegation it would be impossible for such a bill to pass. It is positively known that Senator Lommen and Representative Carlton are not in favor of division.

My new spring stock of ready made clothing, Hats and caps boots and shoes gloves and mittens and dry goods is now ready for the money saving public's inspection.

Yours for honest goods and low prices

E. M. Hoff.

A writer in the Northwestern Financier offers this very wholesome advice to the tillers of the soil. It is worth heeding. "Farmers stick to your own business which you understand. Do not go in debt nor mortgage your farm. If already mortgaged, bend every energy to redeem it and do so no more. Borrowing money to speculate or go in to some scheme which you do not understand, is a delusion and a snare, and nine times out of ten will sink your money. Beware of the schemes proposed by some of the Alliances to regulate the country and cure all ills. Keep your money. Look out for yourself your wife and your children."

The so called "victory" of the demagogues yesterday in passing through the Senate the usury bill will, if it runs the gauntlet of the lower house and becomes a law, prove the political death-knell of every active advocate it has had. It will simply result in oppressing the farmers by driving money from the State You can legislate in such a manner as to drive capital away but you can make no law which will compel a man to loan money in Minnesota. A capitalist or money loaner would be a fool to do business in Minnesota, if the demagogue bill becomes a law. The farmers and small borrowers will be the worst sufferers.—St. Paul Daily News.

Crookston Times: Senator Lommen has introduced a bill which provides for the forming of the counties of Red Lake and Sherman from Territory taken from Polk county. The Times has not seen the bill, but we suppose that it is the result of the Alliance between Red Lake Falls and McIntosh to secure county seats and was probably introduced as a matter of courtesy to the petitioners from those places. Mr. Lommen, however, undoubtedly understands the situation and has no intention of passing the bill. Outside of the two villages interested and a few of the farmers living adjacent thereto, the opposition to a division of the county in this manner is almost unanimous and Mr. Lommen is, or ought to be, aware of the fact. In the face of an opposition of this kind he will be less wise than we give him credit for if he attempts to pass the bill and thereby put the county to the trouble and expense of an election We understand that the two villages mentioned have a strong lobby in St. Paul who are doing everything possible to work up a sentiment in favor of their measure, and we would suggest that something be done at once to show our representatives the actual feeling of the county on this question.

MORTGAGE SALE.

Whereas default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage bearing date September 25th 1889, made by Robert William Brown and Leida Samyah Brown his wife, mortgagors to The Dakota Investment Company, of Grand Forks. Dakota, mortgagee and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the county of Polk in the state of Minnesota on the 11th day of October 1889 at 8:15 o'clock a m. in Book 43 of mortgages, page 99. And whereas it was stipulated in said mortgage, that in case of default in any of the conditions of the same, then the said mortgagee was empowered to declare the whole sum secured by said mortgage due and payable, and the said mortgagee has elected to and has declared the whole sum so secured due and payable; and whereas there is claimed to be due and is due on the debt thereby secured, at the date of this notice the sum of seven hundred and twenty dollars; and that no proceedings at law or in equity have been instituted to recover the said debt or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, that said mortgage will be foreclosed, pursuant to the statute and to the power of sale therein contained, and the lands described in and conveyed by said mortgage to-wit: The north east quarter of section eight in township one hundred forty-nine north of range forty-three west situate in the county of Polk and state of Minnesota, will be sold by the sheriff of said Polk county at public auction on Saturday the 9th day of May 1891 at 10 o'clock a. m. at the front door of the court house in the city of Crookston in said county, to satisfy the sum then due on said mortgage, with expenses of sale, together with an attorneys fee of twenty-five dollars stipulated to be paid in case of foreclosure thereof.

It isn't done by others—that's why the guarantee of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription should command attention. It's a guarantee that means something. If the medicine doesn't give satisfaction, in every case for which it's recommended, the money is promptly refunded. Remarkable terms—but it's a remarkable medicine. All the functional irregularities and weaknesses peculiar to womankind are cured by it. For leucorrhea, periodical pains, weak back, prolapsus and other displacements, bearing-down sensations, and all "female complaints," it's an unfailing remedy. It is a powerful, restorative tonic and nervine, imparting strength and vigor to the whole system.

Try it, if you're an ailing woman. If it doesn't help you, you have your money back.

As a regulator and promoter of functional action, at that critical period of change from girlhood to womanhood, "Favorite Prescription" is a perfectly safe remedial agent, and can produce only good results.

BAKING POWDERS ONCE MORE.

"The Effects of Ammonia" According to the Scientific American.

Many combinations of chemicals have been proposed and tried for baking powders, but the general consensus of housekeepers, as well as of scientific authorities, has settled upon a mixture of sodium bicarbonate (baking soda) with potassium bitartrate (cream of tartar).

Were the above mixture of chemicals allowed to stand, it would soon deteriorate. To prevent this it is mixed with an inert substance which isolates to some extent the particles of the mixture, so as to confer lasting powers upon it. This substance is usually flour or powdered starch, and is termed "filling." Some filling is necessary. About 10 per cent is the least that can be used by the most careful manufacturer, and all over 18 per cent should be considered an adulterant, harmless, indeed, but nevertheless an imposition on the consumer.

Twenty-one baking powders are cited in the United States department of agriculture report on foods and food adulterants, Washington, 1889, as exceeding this amount. The amount of starch varies from 21.57 to 52.29 per cent, which goes to show how much starch is bought and paid for at the price of baking powder. All but two of these contain ammonia or alum, or both, and are in the list of powders given below.

A more important point, however, is to know what baking powders are adulterated with alum or ammonia, as the continued use of such powders, according to many authorities, injures the health.

The use of alum in baking powder has been prohibited in England, France and Germany, and a law has recently been passed in Minnesota requiring manufacturers using alum to publish on the label, "This baking powder contains alum," and the Canadian government report says (page 27): "The residue left in the bread after use of an alum powder are sulphate of ammonia, sulphate of soda, and alumina. The last named is an earthy substance quite insoluble and therefore indigestible." (Page 31.) "Alum is entirely objectionable as a substitute for cream of tartar, and ought not to be allowed a place in any well appointed bakery."

The insidious effects of ammonia as an adulterant in baking powders are not so well known, but Bartholow sums up the evidence against ammonia as follows: "The long-continued use of ammonia impairs digestion by neutralizing the gastric juice. Increased waste of tissue is also one result of its administration, manifested by pallor, emaciation and feebleness." And the Pacific Medical Journal, commenting on the cause of dyspepsia, says (page 657): "This question regarding the effect of ammonia upon the human economy is one upon which authorities do not differ, and the individual experience of every physician is in accord with the assertion of authorities. The agent (ammonia) is a drug, not a food; an excrement, not a nutriment. The amount received by the system through these means, while not great at any particular time, and not sufficient to prove injurious, becomes both great and deleterious by being continuous. Physicians owe it to their patients and to the people generally to inform themselves regarding this matter, and without fear or favor unqualifiedly to condemn injurious preparations; and the various boards of health throughout the state, in dealing with the question of food adulterations, would do the people a great service to look well to the brands of baking powders containing ammonia and other injurious ingredients."

In the face of such testimony, quantities of ammonia are used, one company, it is estimated, using every year in the manufacture of their baking powder two hundred and fifty thousand (250,000) pounds. It is a common right of the people to know what food compounds contain. There is, however, no law to that effect at present, and for the protection of the public we have compiled a list of baking powders containing ammonia and alum from five official reports, viz.: United States department of agriculture, Bulletin No. 13; inland revenue department, Canada, Bulletin No. 10; Ohio dairy and food commission, New Jersey dairy commission and the Massachusetts state board of health. It is a list worth preserving.

In the United States report, the results of analyses by Prof. H. A. Weber, made for the Ohio dairy and food commission, and by Prof. H. Bedinger Cornwall, of Princeton college, N. J., for the dairy commission of New Jersey, are cited, as well as those by Dr. H. W. Wiley, chemist of the United States department of agriculture. This gives a peculiar value to the report, which of course contains a great deal which cannot be summarized here.—[Scientific American.

Edison a Vegetarian.

Thomas A. Edison, according to a friend of his, is a vegetarian, eschewing flesh, fowl and fish. He enjoys fruit of all kind, grain of every variety, and likewise vegetables, especially those that ripen in the sunshine. He is very careful about his diet, holding that it has a powerful influence upon the mind and its actions as well as upon the health and vigor of the body. He has studied the matter under the beams of the solar orb, under the flash of electricity, under the laws of science and in the light of reason. It seems that he is unaware of anything like self-denial in the practice of vegetarianism, and that he finds plenty of delicious, invigorating and exhilarating esculents outside of flesh, fowl and fish.—New York Sun.

Cigars Must be Kept Moist.

Cigars must be kept in a more or less moist atmosphere, else they will dry out and crumble apart. Some years ago a genius who knew that fact invented a box so arranged that the atmosphere within it could be fed with moisture from a wet slab of compressed sponge or blotting paper. To-day the best cigar stores in the city are built like these moistened boxes. Material for holding water is kept in frames, like panels, in the walls, and the air within the store-rooms is kept incessantly moist.—New York Sun.

MINNESOTA SOLONS.

Condensed Proceedings of Both Branches of the Minnesota Legislature.

What is Being Attempted in the Way of Legislation by Our Lawmakers.

Monday, March, 16.

SENATE.

Senator Davis offered a bill allowing the directors of the state agricultural society to lease any portion of the state fair grounds for a period not to exceed twenty years, for stock exhibitions, trotting or running meetings, etc. Senator Smith sent up three bills, one authorizing the publication of 3,000 copies of the report of the bureau of statistics, another regulating the business of foreign fire, life and casualty insurance companies in this state, and the third regulating the filing of articles of incorporation.

The two local bills, one reducing the membership of the St. Paul board of public works from four to three, and reducing the salary of each to $2,500, and the other abolishing the present board of education and establishing a new board of seven members to be appointed by the mayor, were reported back favorably from Senators Lienau and Sanborn, of the Ramsey delegation, and passed under suspension of the rules. The usury bill was passed by a vote of 33 to 16.

HOUSE.

H. F. 614, a bill to amend the general statutes of 1878, relating to money, bonds, bills and notes, which is a substitute bill for H. F. 437, was defeated.

Some slight opposition was manifested to the passage of H. F. 400 and 411, but Mr. Tucker took up the cudgels for the bills, and in a forcible speech overcame it, and the bills passed.

Before adjourning Mr. R. A. Walsh moved that the house adjourn until 10 o'clock Wednesday morning to enable the Hibernian members to properly celebrate St. Patrick's day, and as a token of respect to the memory of Ireland's patron saint. But the house would have none of it, and decided to meet this morning as usual.

Tuesday March. 17.

SENATE.

The first business that came before the senate yesterday morning was a motion made by Gen. Sanborn, to the effect that in accordance with an adopted joint resolution, the senate adjourn to the house to listen to addresses by the Hon. Benjamin Butterworth and Moses P. Handy, relative to an appropriation for the purpose of having Minnesota represented at the Chicago world's fair in 1893. The house, however, was not quite ready to receive the senators, and several petitions against the extension of the Minneapolis saloon patrol limits and the passage of the employers' liability bill were received before the motion of Gen. Sanborn was put into effect.

Mr. Leavitt presented a resolution, just before the senate took its noon recess, calling for the appointment of a joint committee, two on on the part of the senate and three on the part of the house, to investigate the advisability of having the legislature print the general laws of the present session, and then have the same sent to the various newspapers of the state for distribution. Senator Day gave notice of debate, after which a recess until 3 o'clock was taken.

HOUSE.

The bill introduced by Mr. Gildea regulates the manner in which mutual insurance companies shall be organized and does so at considerable length.

Mr. Penney introduced a number of bills, three of which deal with the question of liquor licences, the last one, H. F. 870, being intended to make an important change in the law, by declaring licenses saleable, or capable of being assigned like any other property.

Wednesday, March. 18.

SENATE.

The senate, after passing a number of bills, resolved itself into committee of the whole, with Senator Allen in the chair, remaining in committee until the noon recess.

Mr. Stockwell's bill prohibiting foreign detectives from making arrests in this state was referred to Senators Davis, Tawney and Eaton for amendments.

Returning to the senate files on general orders, Senator March's bill regulating grain warehouses was taken up, Senator Hompe at once opposing it on the ground that it gave the present chief inspector the entire control of the wheat of the Northwest. After Senator March spoke in reply, on motion of Senator Geissel the committee decided to report progress.

S. F. 613, introduced by Senator Mayo, and seeking to prohibit the sale of mileage at a discount by railroads, was opposed by Senator Dean in an effective and polished argument, and on his motion indefinitely postponed by a vote of 18 to 11.

The committee then arose and made its report, after which the senate adjourned.

HOUSE.

Speaker Champlin, looking somewhat pale and reduced by his week's sickness, resumed his seat and called the house of representatives to order yesterday morning. Mr. Furlong, who has acted during the speaker's absence, and presided over the deliberations of the house in an exceedingly able manner, resumed his seat as a private member.

The majority of the bills introduced were of a local character or making unimportant amendments to the present laws. Mr. McAllister introduced a bill, H. F. 874, which is intended to relieve certain corporations from paying taxes upon their capital stock, for which the existing law provides.

Thursday, March. 19.

SENATE.

Senator Crandall created a flutter of excitement in the senate chamber yesterday morning when he introduced a resolution—the second one of the kind that he has presented this session—instructing the judiciary committee to prepare a bill for the redistricting of the state into new judicial districts, consolidating as many of the same as possible and reducing the number of judges to a number deemed advisable and report the bill to the senate inside of a week. Senator Hale gave notice of debate, but was induced to withdraw the same, after which Senator Crandall stated that no attorney in either house dared to present a measure seeking to consolidate the districts on the ground that they would incur the displeasure of the judges. He pointed out the fact, and called it notorious that Minnesota had more judges on her pay roll than the whole English government. He concluded by moving the adoption of his resolution, which was done by a unanimous vote.

After several petitions were presented the introduction of bills was taken up, and among the twenty or more offered was one by Senator Probstfield seeking to take the management and control of the agricultural college out of the hands of the regents of the university. The bill provides that the governor shall appoint an "agricultural college board" to consist of thirteen members, of which the governor shall be a member ex officio, which is to have entire control of the school of agriculture. It also provides that the departments of military tactics and mechanical arts now attached to the university shall be attached to the agricultural college.

HOUSE.

A message from the governor informed the house that the two bills, one abolishing the office of fire warden in St. Paul and the other authorizing the transfer of the St. Paul postoffice site to the United States government, had been signed.

The temperance committee reported back the bill regulating license fees, with the recommendation that it be indefinitely postponed, and the committee on agriculture made an adverse report on the bill regulating the practice of veterinary surgeons.

The house adjourned at noon until 10 o'clock this morning to enable the members to visit Stillwater penitentiary and inspect the new binding twine plant placed in the institution.

Friday March. 20.

SENATE.

A resolution by Senator Sanborn providing for the payment for file covers for the senate went over on notice of debate.

Senator Sanborn presented another resolution providing that the legislature should adjourn at noon of Friday, April 17. Senator Morse gave notice of debate.

The regular order was then suspended, at request of Senator March, and the Minneapolis charter was taken up.

Senator Donnelly opposed submission, and Senator Bell also spoke against it. The vote was then taken, the question being upon the minority report of the committee providing for the submission of the charter to a popular vote. The motion to adopt this report was defeated by a vote of 14 to 27.

HOUSE.

Mr. Gallagher, chairman of the committee on elections, submitted a resolution to reimburse the contestants in the election cases in the house for their expenses.

On the motion of Mr. Currier of Blue Earth the house decided to meet for the future at 9:30 every morning of the session.

Mr. McGuire moved for the appointment of a committee of five to investigate the agricultural college and its relations to the state university. His motion was adopted.

On the motion of Mr. Stone, who drew attention to the fact that this was the last day for the introduction of appropriation bills, the time was extended twenty-four hours.

Mr. Ringwald introduced a bill amending the law relating to weights and measures, the inspection of scales, etc.

Mr. Furlong introduced a bill amending the wolf bounty law, providing that the bounty shall be $5 for male wolves over three months old, $7 for females over three months old, and for wolves under that age $3. The person claiming the bounty shall exhibit the carcass to the chairman of the board of supervisors of the county wherein the wolf is killed.

Mr. McGrath introduced a bill to repeal chapter 54 of the General Laws of 1881, relating to mining and taxation of mining property and products. The bill provides that after the passage of this act all mines, mining property and products shall be taxed and assessed as provided by the General Laws of 1878, chapter 1.

Mr. J. R. Nelson's bill to regulate the length of the biennial sessions of the state legislature makes the length of the session "ninety calendar days" instead of "ninety legislative days" as at present, thus cutting down the length of the session by about ten days.

Mr. McAllister's bill to license plumbers was recommended to pass with some slight amendments.

The house then adjourned until 9:30 this morning.

Saturday, March 21.

SENATE.

Senator Tawney sent up a bill seeking to appropriate $350 for the purpose of purchasing overcoats for the regular members of the three militia companies of the state.

Senator Donnelly offered a bill fixing the minimum age of children employed in factories at thirteen years, and Senator Probstfield offered one making the fact of an accident caused by railroads prima facie evidence that such accident happened.

The passing of local bills was taken up, among those passed being Mr. Ames' house file repealing the law creating the office of the St. Paul fire warden, and the house file known as the Bell charter for the city of St. Paul. There was no trouble in regard to passing the latter, the Ramsey senators being unanimous for it. The bill received forty votes, and now only needs the governor's signature to become a law.

At 1:30 o'clock the senate adjourned until 3 o'clock Monday in order to allow the committee on ventilation to improve the chamber ventilation through its engineer.

HOUSE.

Several petitions were received favoring the bill to tax railroad property and the Currier bill, or a reasonable substitute therefor.

Mr. Price made a motion providing that in future all bills in general orders upon which progress is reported go to the foot of the list. This created some discussion, Messrs. Diment and Stevens opposing it and Mr. R. A. Walsh favoring the motion. After some talk the motion went over on notice of debate.

Mr. Keyes reported that the judiciary committee after investigation as requested by the house as to the duration of the session and the last day for the introduction of bills, had decided that the house would have to adjourn at 12 o'clock noon on April 20, and that Friday, March 27, would be the last day on which bills could be introduced.

The introduction of new bills occupied the greater part of the morning session, and again the list contained many bills of more than ordinary importance. Among the number were several of the regular appropriation bills, a synopsis of which is given.

House file 962 was introduced by Mr. T. Cole, chairman of the committee on insane, and is the general appropriation bill for the current expenses of the three insane hospitals of this state, located at St. Peter, Rochester and Fergus Falls. The bill provides for the following appropriations.

Mr. Stone of Ramsey county introduced an important bill, which is intended to secure the erection of a new capitol building, and providing for an appropriation therefore.

"Laying On of Hands."

My friend, the agent of a Buffalo wall paper house, says a writer in a an Eastern paper, was "taking on" with a headache in the waiting room of the big depot in Philadelphia, when a slick-looking stranger about twenty-five years of age sat down beside us and asked:

"Is the ache mostly over your eyes or in the back of your head?"

"It's all over my head," groaned the victim.

"Exactly. Proceeds from a nervous state of the system. Ah! your pulse is away up. Let me see your tongue. I thought so; a cold current of air has chilled the nerves along the spine and a smashing headache is the result."

"Are you a physician?" I asked.

"Well, no, not in the ordinary sense. I am called a professor. Some call me a fakir, even. I effect cures by what is called laying on of hands. You are skeptical, of course, but I will agree to cure your friend here in ten minutes or forfeit $50."

"For heaven's sake go ahead," groaned Tom. "If you can cure me in an hour I'll give you $10."

We went down into the baggage department, where the performance wouldn't attract so much attention, and the fellow began passing his hands over Tom's head and face and also rubbing his hands. He hadn't worked a minute before Tom said he felt better, and in ten the headache was entirely gone.

"Now don't offer to pay me, or I shall be offended," he said, as he stopped work; "and you'd better sit quiet right where you are for about ten minutes. Close your eyes, thus, and lean back a little more, so."

He bowed himself out in a graceful way, and had been gone fifteen minutes when Tom carefully arose, opened his eyes, and suddenly called out:

"Robbed, by thunder!"

The fakir got $90 in cash, a railroad ticket to Washington and a diamond pin worth $125, and the police haven't nabbed him to this day.

Why We Die.

Dr. Philip Wales in St. Louis Globe-Democrat: The most common cause of death is fat and lime. Microbes are mere accessories in causing death. Take myself as a case in point. Once when I was younger I could lift my leg on a level with my head. It is an effort to me now to get it half that distance. Lime deposits are the causes of it. It is only a few days since that I performed a post mortem on the remains of a distinguished journalist, who died in this city at an advanced age. When I reached his heart I took my knife and on rubbing it over that organ it sounded as if it were being rubbed over a rough stone. The heart was fairly encased in lime. I have now under my care a distinguished literary man—a nonogenarian. He is going to die. (The patient has since died.) His death will be caused by abnormal deposits of lime. There is no mystery in death. It is as natural for man to die as to be born. We are born, we develop, we grow ("grow" is right) and we die. Is there anything strange about that? Man is like a tree. He lives his time, then withers, decays and dies. When we shall have learned everything we shall be wise enough to prolong the life of man, but by reason of the materials of which the body is composed he must die.

George Eliot's Housekeeping

The affairs of George Eliot's household were so arranged, it is said, that she could give herself uninterruptedly to her work. A housekeeper had entire charge of the management of the house, and Mrs. Lewes was carefully guarded from all outside interruptions. She usually went into her study at eight o' clock in the morning, and remained there at work until 1. If the weather was fine she rode out in the afternoon, or walked. In case the weather did not permit her going out she returned again to her study.—Exchange.

Purify Your Blood

At the coming of spring the blood should be purified, as impurities which have been accumulating for months or even years, are liable to manifest themselves and seriously affect the health. Hood's Sarsaparilla is undoubtedly the best blood purifier. It expels every taint of impurity, drives out scrofulous humors and germs of disease, and gives to the blood the quality and tone essential to good health.

"Every spring for years I have made it a practice to take from three to five bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, because I know it purifies the blood and thoroughly cleanses the system of all impurities." W. H. LAWRENCE, Editor Agricultural Epitomist, Indianapolis, Ind.

Shoot the Spy
Scott's

A cough or cold is a spy which has stealthily come inside the lines of health and is there to discover some vulnerable point in the fortification of the constitution which is guarding your well-being. That point discovered the spy reports it to the enemy on the outside. The enemy is the changeable winter climate. If the cold gets in, look out for an attack at the weak point. To avoid this, shoot the spy, kill the cold, using SCOTT'S EMULSION of pure Norwegian Cod Liver Oil and Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda as the weapon. It is an expert cold slayer, and fortifies the system against Consumption, Scrofula, General Debility, and all Anæmic and Wasting Diseases (specially in Children). Especially helpful for children to prevent their taking cold. Palatable as Milk.

SPECIAL.—Scott's Emulsion is non-secret, and is prescribed by the Medical Profession all over the world, because its ingredients are scientifically combined in such a manner as to greatly increase their remedial value.

CAUTION.—Scott's Emulsion is put up in salmon-colored wrappers. Be sure and get the genuine. Prepared only by Scott & Bowne, Manufacturing Chemists, New York. Sold by all Druggists.

Dickinson & Co., book dealers and stationers of Kansas City, the largest concern of the kind west of the Mississippi river, was taken possession of by the sheriff under a chattel mortgage held by the Union National bank. The assets of the company are believed to be about $100,000. The liabilities are thought to be comparatively small!

SHOT AT BY A BOY.

A Twelve-year-old Boy Attempts to Assassinate an Argentine Republic Cabinet Minister.

BUENOS AYRES, March 30.—The greatest excitement prevails here over an attempt to murder the minister of the interior, Gen. Julios Rocca, yesterday, and the city is in a state of siege.

Gen. Rocca had been at a meeting of the cabinet, and about 5 o'clock, accompanied by his friend Gregorio Soley, he entered his carriage and was driven down Mayo street. Just after passing Cangallo street Mr. Soley suddenly remarked to the general: "I believe I heard the report of a revolver." The general felt a twinge in his side and exclaimed: "I am wounded." The carriage was stopped and in a minute policemen were swarming around it.

Thomas Sambrico, an Argentine by birth, but an Italian by descent, was arrested with the smoking revolver in his hand. Thomas is only twelve years old. He declared that he could not get work, and believing that Gen. Rocca had been the cause of the ruin of his country, he had decided to kill him. The police have arrested about twenty-five persons who are suspected of being abettors or accomplices of young Sambrico, among them being his parents and brothers.

As a consequence of the attempted murder the president and his ministers issued a decree to-day, declaring the capitol in a state of siege. This is the second attempt that has been made on the life of Gen. Rocca.

Armed platoons of cavalry and squads of infantry are posted at every street corner. All sorts of rumors are flying about and the government is on the qui vive for trouble. Troops are held at all the armories ready for an emergency, and the troops in nearby towns are under marching orders. Trouble is brewing, and another upheaval is likely to occur soon.

FANNED BY THE WIND.

Incendiaries Responsible for a Disastrous Blaze at Hot Springs, S. D.

HOT SPRINGS, S. D., Special Telegram, April 1.—Last Saturday night in the town of Oelrichs fire was discovered to have started in the Atchison livery stable on the east side of Main street. Almost immediately after the fire was discovered it broke through the roof.

Three horses belonging to Grant Easton were in the stable and perished in the flames. An effort was made to save the buildings on the same side of the street, but to no avail. The flames spread rapidly, assisted by a strong wind from the east, and the whole row from Atchison's old drug store to Bull & Co.'s brick was destroyed by the flames.

Livery stable of Frank Long and N. Atchison, loss, $1,500; insurance, $500. Building belonging to Colgan, used for law office by E. S. Eastin, loss, $700; no insurance. Store building of A. Colgan, loss, $1,200; no insurance. Two store buildings of Sam W. Moses, occupied by E. Buck, saloon, and John Brown, drug store, loss, $1,800; insurance, $600. Almost every movable thing was saved. The loss is estimated at about $5,000. It is the general opinion that the fire was the work of incendiaries.

TAULBEE'S THREATS.

They Will Be Admitted Into the Testimony of the Kincaid Trial.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—Judge Bradley delivered his decision in the criminal court to-day in the Kincaid case, on the question of the admissibility of testimony going to show that the deceased had on various occasions threatened the life of the defendant. The court held that the evidence was admissible. The defense then called William E. Curtis, Frank P. Morgan, Perry Heath, A. J. Kelley, ex-Congressman Polk Laoon of Kentucky and Representative Paynter of Kentucky, who testified as to hearing Taulbee say that he would kill Kincaid.

During the day's testimony there was reference to the publications that gave rise to the trouble between himself and Taulbee. The first publication was made in a paper in this city, and referred to scandalous occurrences alleged to have taken place in the model room of the patent office, in which the Kentucky congressman and a female clerk figured. Kincaid subsequently published an account of the affair in the Louisville paper of which he was correspondent, using Taulbee's name in connection with it.

NEEDS NO PROCLAMATION.

The Cœur d'Alene Reservation Opened by Force of the Statute.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—Secretary Noble has sent a telegram to Representative Wilson of the State of Washington stating that upon due consideration of the matter, it is his judgment that the Cœur d'Alene Indian reservation in Idaho, as described in the Indian appropriation act approved March 3, 1891, was opened by force of the statute, and needs no proclamation or further action to accomplish that end.

This opinion, however, the secretary says, is given without any argument made to the department, and it is to be received as the expression of views that may be changed if there is any dispute arising concerning its validity in a contest case.

The northern section of this reservation which is opened to settlement contains about 300,000 acres, and may be entered under the homestead act upon payment of $1.50 per acre, one-half of which is to be paid within two years.

DIRECT TAX.

A Warrant for Minnesota's Share Issued in Favor of Gov. Merriam.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—A warrant for $92,245 was issued to-day in favor of the governor of Minnesota in payment of that state's direct tax.

In compliance with the request of the governor of Indiana, the secretary of the treasury to-day instructed the assistant treasurer at Chicago to pay the draft of $760,144 drawn in favor of the governor of Indiana as that state's share of the fund, less $50,000, which he says will be detained in the treasury until the present differences in regard to an alleged obligation on the part of the state have been finally adjusted.

Stabbed by an Italian.

PATERSON, N. J., April 1.—William Pritchard was standing in front of his home, in Montgomery street, last night, when an unknown Italian stole up unseen and stabbed him in the back of the head, neck and shoulders. He turned to look for his assailant and saw him start up the street on a run. The only reason Pritchard can give for the Italian's action is that a few nights ago an intimate friend of his insulted two strange Italians. Pritchard's wounds are ugly ones. The police are hunting for the man, but with little hopes of capturing him, as Pritchard cannot identify him.

TWO OFFICES FILLED.

Thomas H. Carter of Montana Appointed Commissioner of the General Land Office.

WASHINGTON, Special Telegram, April 1.—The president to-day made the following appointments: Thomas M. Carter of Montana, commissioner of the general land office, vice Lewis A. Groff, resigned; James Compton, of Fergus Falls, Minn., surveyor general of Minnesota, vice John F. Norrish, term expired.

Mr. Carter's appointment meets with approval here. Carter is very popular personally. He has an agreeable way of handling people. His appointment, however, is generally attributed to the influence of Russell Harrison and the Northern Pacific road. Senator Sanders is very glad. He thinks that the burial of Carter in a department in Washington will take him out of the next senatorial contest. Carter does not think so, however. He will see Sanders later on.

The appointment of Mr. Compton was the natural corollary of ex-Senator Buckman's dispatch to the president, withdrawing from the race. It is ancient history that Mr. Compton was the second choice of the Minnesota delegation for the place. It is also pretty well known that Compton was the first choice of Senator Davis, and that it was Davis' quiet work that prevented the appointment of Buckman months ago.

The appointment of Compton is approved by the Minnesota colony in Washington. Ex-Congressman Dunnell said to your correspondent: "It is a splendid appointment. I favored Buckman first, but Compton is all right."

PROVED HER INNOCENCE.

The Charge of Arson Against Mrs. Willoughby at Luverne Dismissed.

LUVERNE, Minn., Special, April 1.—The grand jury has dismissed the charge of arson for which Mrs. Nellie D. Willoughby was held to answer in September last.

The complaint, it will be remembered, was preferred by her late husband, from whom she had been divorced, and was based upon a story told by one Mary Owen, who swore that she heard the bargain between her own mother and Mrs. Willoughby whereby the latter employed the mother of the girl to fire the building. The stable was burned, in all probability by fire from the pipe of a drunken tramp, on the morning of Jan. 16, 1890.

Mrs. Willoughby was present with her counsel and witnesses, prepared to sustain her innocence, but the only witness for the prosecution had left the country, and the lady, who is well known as an Iowa temperance worker, returned to her home in that state vindicated.

LIKES RED LIQUOR.

KANSAS CITY, March 30.—Justice Ganzhorn and the manner in which his office has been run in the biggest justice of the peace district in Kansas City, are subjects of universal gossip.

To-day police officers were looking for him with a warrant charging him with embezzling $58 which he collected on a judgment. When last seen he was rounding up South Grand avenue with his attaches, all of whom were intoxicated. The justice is out on bail on a trial for assaulting a colored woman and for a disturbance of the peace. The county court at its next session will investigate.

To-night Capt. H. A. Bridges, a discharged clerk, attempted to assault Ganzhorn with a knife during a session of court. The justice fought him off with a chair until a deputy marshal wrested Bridges' knife from him. No arrests were made. Ganzhorn continued to try the case before him as if nothing had happened.

A notice was served on Ganzhorn to-night that he would be arrested in the morning unless he settled in the meantime the amount of his alleged embezzlement.

SLAUGHTERED BY NATIVES.

Indian Troops and Several Englishmen Killed by a Rebellious Tribe.

CALCUTTA, April 1.—A dispatch from Manihur says that the hostile tribes of Assam recently attacked a camp of native troops and killed 470 of them, including seven British officers and Chief Commissioner J. W. Quinton who was investigating disturbances in that district.

One account of the affair reports that Commissioner Quinton and his staff were made prisoners. Another account says that Col. Skene, the commander; Commissioner Quinton, with his son and daughter; Capt. Boileau and six officers were killed, the natives refusing to give them quarter. The rebellious tribe is famous for cunning, cruelty and bravery.

Immediately upon receiving the news of the disaster the viceroy at Simla summoned a council. The native regiments in Assam have already been dispatched to Manipur. The Third Bengal infantry will start for the scene to-morrow.

SUING A SENATOR.

A Suit Against Senator Power of Montana for Breach of Contract.

NEW YORK, April 1.—George F. Woolston has brought suit against Senator Thomas C. Power in the supreme court to recover $324,107 damages for breach of contract. Woolston avers that in May, 1889, Power and he made an agreement by which the latter was to assign to him in July following one-half of the stock of the Helena Water Company of Montana in consideration of $75,000 and a one-sixth interest in the West Side (or new) Water Company of Helena, Mont., for $40,000.

Mr. Power in his defense alleges that the compact was only to be carried out providing Woolston secured previously the remainder of the stock in both companies.

CURE FOR THE GRIPPE.

Prominent Men Endorse a Remedy for the Prevailing Epidemic.

NEW YORK, Special Telegram, April 1.—The return of the grippe, which is mild in the East, compared with the West, has brought out here to-day from physicians and others of national repute some remarkable endorsements of a new remedy. It is Ausbruch Tokay, a Hungarian wine, imported by Lorenz Reich, of 334 Fifth avenue. Its merits as a preventive and cure are certified to by Chauncey M. Depew, Oliver Wendell Holmes, Dr. Willard Parker, Dr. L. A. Sayre, Dr. Alfred Loomis, Prof. Doremus and scores of other prominent men.

Carried off On a Bridge.

ST. CHARLES, Mo., April 1.—The largest pontoon bridge in the world, located at St. Charles, across the Missouri river, was broken from its moorings early yesterday morning and started down the river. Five men connected with the bridge were on it at the time of the break: John Coleman, Fritz Weeks, Louis Robinson, James Sparks and John Enoch. These men have not yet been heard from. This is the third wreck the bridge has experienced within the past few weeks. The wreck was caused by an immense amount of driftwood being lodged against the bridge.

MINNESOTA SOLONS.

Condensed Proceedings of Both Branches of the Minnesota Legislature.

What is Being Attempted in the Way of Legislation by Our Lawmakers.

Monday, March, 23,

SENATE.

The senate held a single session of three and a half hours, during which time it killed Senator Donnelly's bill to repeal the newspaper libel law of 1887, and also Senator Tawney's mortgage taxation bill.

When the senate began business the special order was postponed for one hour in order that some routine business might be transacted.

Among the bills introduced was one by Senator S. D. Peterson which fixes the maximum charges by express companies for transporting farm produce at 30 cents per 100 pounds for the first fifty miles and 10 cents for each additional fifty miles.

Senator Lienau introduced two bills aimed at foreign life insurance companies. One of them provides that all such companies before being permitted to do business in this state, must each deposit sureties to the amount of $200,000. The second one requires all such companies to pay a tax of 2 per cent upon their premiums.

Senator Morse introduced a bill providing for a penalty of 1 per cent on all delinquent taxes after June 1 of each year, and holds the county auditor responsible for the collection of the same.

HOUSE.

Mr. Gallagher, chairman of the elections committee, introduced a resolution to reimburse the contestants in the election cases before the house and the attorneys, which was held over until there was a larger attendance of members.

Mr. Waeck introduced a resolution directing the chief clerk to purchase fifty copies of the Globe almanac for each of the representatives at a cost of not more than 20 cents per copy. The resolution was referred to the committee on legislative expenses.

Mr. Bonde introduced a resolution instructing the chief clerk to investigate the cost per copy of the legislative manual and report to the house.

Mr. Darelius drew attention to his resolution to amend rule 51 so as to provide for the omission of the calling of the yeas and nays on local bills. He stated that by so omitting the roll call business would be expedited, and that the attorney general had stated that it would be legal and constitutional to do so.

Tuesday March. 24.

SENATE.

A number of petitions were presented asking for the passage of the Currier railroad bill.

Senator McMillan sent up a resolution authorizing the appointment of a committee of three senators to consider the question of capital removal.

Senator John Day Smith gave notice of debate, and a little later Senator Glader introduced a bill, which, in great detail, provides for the removal of the capitol to Kandiyohi county. The bill establishes the city of Minnetaga as the seat of government of the state, and provides for the sale of lots in the city, the proceeds to go to a capitol building fund. The bill also provides for a commission of three persons, who shall have charge of the erection of a new capitol building. These commissioners are to advertise for plans and specifications, and they, with the governor and state auditor are to select a plan. The total cost of the building must not exceed $650,000, and any contract made by the commissioners in excess of this amount shall be null and void. The bill provides further that the seat of government of the state shall be removed to the new location on the 1st of January, 1890.

HOUSE.

Under the order of introduction of new bills Mr. Keyes introduced a bill placing the state library under the supervision of the judges of the supreme court, and prohibits publishing firm and their employes from using the library or the books therein for the purpose of its publications without paying for the wear and tear of the books, the sum being named by the librarian at not less than $300 per annum.

Mr. Lynn introduced a bill which amends the laws relating to interest and usury by providing a fine of $500 for any person, persons or corporation who shall receive from a person making the loan a greater sum than allowed by law, or imprisonment for not more than one year. The person making the complaint is to receive the fine. This bill provides a punishment for usury.

Mr. J. R. Nelson proposes to amend the penal code relating to the use of false weights, punishing offenders for knowing misrepresentation as for a misdemeanor.

Dr. Hemstead introduced a bill to amend the law relating to the solemnization of marriages, extending the power to do so to court commissioners.

Wednesday, March. 25.

SENATE

The principal thing done by the senate yesterday was to defeat Senator Donnelly's bill submitting to a vote of the people a constitutional amendment relating to railroads and warehouses. The fight in favor of the bill was waged by Senator Donnelly after his usual methods. He argued and pleaded and threatened in turn. But his efforts were without avail, for when the final vote was taken the measure only received 19 votes in its favor, while there were 20 against it, with six absentees. Senator Tawney led the opposition to the bill, and he was ably seconded by Senators Mayo and Leavitt.

A bill introduced by Senator Dedon ca ll for an appropriation of $50,000 to remodel the Minneapolis Exposition building and fit it for use as a capitol building, and provides that the state offices shall be removed to that building as soon as it is ready for occupancy.

Senator Guderian presented a measure which authorizes the city of Anoka to issue bonds for the purpose of building a steam or electric motor line between that city and Minneapolis.

HOUSE.

Mr. Kinney introduced a resolution requesting the speaker to appoint five delegates to the convention, and the resolution carried.

Mr. Feig moved to reconsider the vote on the resolution to reimburse the parties in the election contest cases, and asked that the original resolution be sent to the committee on claims. To this the house agreed and the resolution was so referred.

Mr. Penney's bill relating to executions under the law, and providing that they all take place in the state prison, was called up. This bill was defeated yesterday because of there not being enough votes in the house to carry it, and to-day there being a large house, it was carried without any trouble.

Thursday, March. 26.

SENATE.

Senator Sanborn presented a concurrent resolution providing that the legislature shall adjourn at noon on Monday, April 20, and that the last day for the introduction of bills shall be to-day, Friday, March 27. The resolution was adopted.

Senator Dedon exploded a bomb in the senate by the introduction of the following resolution:

Resolved, That the seat of Senator J. S. O'Brien is hereby declared vacant as per section 9 of article 4 of the constitution of the State of Minnesota, which provides that no senator can hold more than one office under the state government at the same time.

Senator Morse gave notice of debate.

Senator Leavitt called up his resolution providing for a joint committee to procure bids for printing the General Laws of the session and distributing them to the newspapers of the state.

Senator Day then moved to refer the resolution to the printing committee.

Under the order of executive communications a message was received from Gov. Merriam vetoing S. F. No. 54, Senator March's bill conferring certain limited banking privileges upon trust companies. As soon as the message was read Senator March moved to reconsider the vote by which it was passed. In a few remarks he said the measure did not intrench upon the rights of banks. That was the only objection he heard against the bill, and an explanation of the provisions of the bill had convinced his constituents that this objection was not valid.

HOUSE.

The business of the house consisted principally of the introduction of bills, it being the last day but one for the introduction of proposed new legislation. The afternoon was almost entirely taken up with this order of business, while the morning was consumed by a lively discussion over several temperance measures and the reading of the report of the special committee of the house appointed to investigate the management of the state prison.

Mr. Ringwald's resolution providing for supplying each member with five additional copies of the manual was lost by a vote of 33 to 33, and Mr. Feig moved for a reconsideration.

Friday March. 27.

SENATE.

At the opening of the morning session of the senate yesterday there were no petitions, letters or resolutions, and the introduction of bills was proceeded with. At the end of half an hour the senators had emptied their pockets and desks, and then, as it was the last day for the introduction of new bills, it was voted to return to that order at 5 o'clock in order that no one should be shut off from getting any of his measures before the senate.

A bill introduced by Senator Tawney raises the tax on the output of iron mines from 1 cent per ton to 3 cents per ton.

Senator Dean introduced a bill prohibiting pool rooms and the selling of pools.

Senator Daugherty introduced a bill prohibiting all persons from engaging in private banking in Minnesota.

A bill introduced by Senator Craig provides that railroad companies that are entitled to swamp lands must make their selections within a year. Otherwise the selections shall be made by the land commissioner.

A bill introduced by Senator Probstfield extends the time of redemption from mortgage sales of real estate from one to three years, on the condition that taxes and interest are paid.

HOUSE.

Yesterday was the last day in the house for the introduction of bills and the representatives did not fail to take advantage of it. For several hours there was a continuous stream of new bills which dealt with all manner of subjects and matter and legislated upon what has been called the five elements—earth, fire, air, water and whisky. When the first grist of bills had been introduced and read there was a brief intermission and some other business was transacted, but the fit came on at intervals during the day, and before the hour of adjournment 125 bills had been introduced.

Any one who has traveled over country roads in winter will appreciate the provisions of a bill introduced by Mr. Daly, which provides that all double sleighs used in Washington county shall be of the width of sixty inches between the runners and providing a fine for violations of this law.

Mr. Hadland introduced a bill limiting the expense of the state board of corrections and charities, which shall not exceed the sum of $2,500 annually.

Mr. Thomas Cole introduced a bill which proposes to abolish the state board known as the board of managers of the state prison at Stillwater. The bill is exceedingly curt, not occupying more than seven lines.

Mr. Tripp introduced a bill requiring the observance of seven legal holidays in this state, including New Year's day, Washington's birthday, Decoration day, Fourth of July, general election day, Thanksgiving day and Christmas.

Mr. Tripp also introduced a bill providing for a monthly settlement between the city of Minneapolis and the county of Hennepin.

Saturday, March 28.

SENATE.

Senator John Day Smith resurrected the senatorial contest of two years ago next when he arose to make his report as chairman of the committee appointed to investigate how the testimony of ex-Senator Sabin, taken by bribery investigating committee two years ago, came to be omitted from the printed report. This report recited the testimony taken, which was obtained from Prof. Bowers, of Minneapolis, and drew no conclusions as to its omissions. It was then ordered that the testimony of Senator Sabin be printed and pasted into the copies already printed.

Senator March's grain and warehouse bill was the first measure brought up and it at once became the subject of a hot debate and was finally indefinitely postponed.

Senator Keller's livery bill, S. F. 367, was recommended to pass. Another measure was introduced by the same gentleman, providing for liens for livery stable keepers in certain cases, was referred back to the author, and then the senate adjourned until 10 o'clock Monday morning.

HOUSE.

The senate joint resolution, expunging the impeachment proceedings against E. St. Julien Cox, came up in the house. Mr. Turrell, of Redwood explained the resolution. Mr. Cox was the judge in his district at the time when he laid himself liable to the charge of impeachment—the judge was impeached for drunkenness. The judge had been sufficiently punished and these impeachment proceedings should be stricken from the records in justice to his family.

Mr. Lynn moved the adoption of the resolution, and it was so agreed.

Several bills of local interest were passed after which the house adjourned till 10 o'clock Monday.

A Boy Set Them Thinking.

Several gentlemen were standing in the lobby of a hotel the other evening when a rather small-sized messenger boy rushed in and handed one of them a telegram. The gentleman glanced at the clock as he signed the blank and said: "Well, I didn't know it was that late; where is time going to, anyway?" Quick as a flash came the reply from the little fellow, "Into eternity," and picking up his book he walked out. The oddity of the remark struck the men as funny, and they laughed loudly at the little preacher for a moment, and then the laugh died out on their lips and each one looked as though he was thinking of something like that which he had heard when he was a boy.

TALMAGE'S BUSY WIFE.

A Glimpse of the Great Preacher's Business Manager.

Mrs. Talmage is distinctly her husband's right hand, and all the details of his busy life are looked after by her, says Edward W. Bok in The Ladies, Home Journal. She is a business woman, having a rare executive ability, capable of easily handling a number of things all the same time. Much of Dr. Talmage's daily work is planned and laid out by her. She makes his pastoral and social engagements, and all his lecturing interests are in her hands. She knows his capacities even better than he. Whenever a journey is to be made, it is she who lays out the route, procures the tickets and staterooms and attends to all the details. No public man, perhaps, is saved so many annoyances as is Dr. Talmage by his wife's foresight and ability. The rear apartment of the second floor is Mrs. Talmage's working room. It is tastefully furnished, but more with an eye to utility than ornamentation. In this room Mrs. Talmage spends most of her time. It is "her private den." All the mail that is left at the house for Dr. Talmage is taken into this room and opened by her. It is not an unusual thing for the postman to deliver between one and two hundred letters a day, all of which pass through Mrs. Talmage's hands. Business letters are answered by her, and all the letters that may be of an unpleasant or annoying personal nature are destroyed. Dr. Talmage never sees them.

A day in Mrs. Talmage's home would be a revelation to those who believe that the life of a public man's wife is a succession of pleasures, dotted here with a pretty compliment and there with some token of honor. While many people are yawning and preparing to break their night's rest, Mrs. Talmage is already up, opening the first mail. Breakfast is promptly at eight o'clock. Then the family separate and the wife begins to receive callers—which alone is a task. It is a well-known saying among the neighbors that "the Talmage bell is never still." All kinds of people must be seen, innumerable appointments made and kept, the pastoral work of the largest church in America must be looked after, the details of a score or more missionary, church, literary societies with which Mrs. Talmage, or her husband, is connected, have their demands, and in addition to all these, are the household cares of a large house and a family of growing children. All the appointments of the Talmage home in Brooklyn reflect the woman who presides over it. Gaudiness in furniture or decorations is absent, and, instead, one sees a harmony of good taste on every hand. Mrs. Talmage is an excellent housekeeper and her home shows it.

An Exception.

A plain-looking man from the north woods of Michigan had been two days at a Detroit hotel, when he was asked for his bill and offered a check of $25 on a local bank in payment.

"Don't you see that sign!" demanded the clerk, pointing to a placard which announced that no checks would be cashed or money lent.

"But my funds are in the bank," protested the guest.

"Then draw 'em out."

"But this check is all right, and if you will accept it I shall be much obliged."

The clerk turned to the telephone, called up the bank, and asked:

"Has——any money with you?"

"Yes."

"What's his check good for?"

"Wait a minute. Hello!"

"Well?"

"His balance is $128,354.12."

"Good-bye! Certainly. Mr.——, with the greatest of pleasure! There' your change. Always glad to see you when you come to Detroit!"—Free Press.

Druggists Who Disagr ee.

A correspondent of a St. Petersburg contemporary has published the results of an inquiry he made into druggists' charges, and by so doing he has caused fear and trembling among the apothecaries of the city, who dread some government order on the subject. The inquiring individual presented to fifty-nine different apothecaries a prescription for a solution of boracic acid, 1,000 grammes in quanity and 3 per cent. in strength. For this he was charged various prices from 30 kopecks up to a ruble—100 kopecks—and even up to 1 ruble 76 kopecks. This was bad, but worse follows. There was as great variety in strength as in cost, for out of fifty-nine druggists there were eight different ways of reading 3 per cent. In the 1,000 grammes of water there was anything from ½ an ounce to 3 ounces of boracic acid.

Only One Left.

A well known English actor, traveling to Birmingham by the Great Western railway recently, on approaching Branbury began to feel hungry, and determined to indulge in one of the buns for which the town is famous.

The train having pulled up, he hailed a boy, handed him sixpence, and commissioned him to get "two Banburys," one of the two being promised him for his trouble.

Just as the train was about to start the boy came rushing up to the carriage in which the now impatient actor was seated, and, holding out threepence, exclaimed, with mouth half full:

"Here's your change, sir."

"Bother the change; where's the cake?" roared the hungry Thespian.

And then the train moved off.—Jester.

MORTGAGE SALE

Whereas default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage bearing date April 11th 1889, made by Caroline McKibben and James A. McKibben her husband, mortgagors, to The Dakota Investment Company of Grand Forks Dakota, mortgagee, and recorded in the office of the register of deeds of the county of Polk in the state of Minnesota on the 12th day of April 1889 at 5.50 o'clock p. m. in Book 43 of mortgages page 22.

And whereas it was stipulated in said mortgage that in case of default in any of the conditions thereof, then the said mortgagee was empowered to declare the whole sum secured by said mortgage due and payable; and default having been made the said mortgagee has elected to and has declared the whole sum so secured due and payable; and whereas there is claimed to be due and is due on the debt so secured at the date of this notice the sum of twelve hundred twenty-two dollars and that no proceedings at law or in equity have been instituted to recover the said debt or any part thereof.

Now therefore notice is hereby given that said mortgage will be foreclosed pursuant to the statute and to the power of sale in said mortgage contained and the lands described in and secured by said mortgage to-wit: The south east quarter of section twenty in township one hundred fifty-three north of range forty six west situate in the county of Polk in the state of Minnesota will be sold by the sheriff of said Polk county at public auction on Saturday the 23rd day of May 1891 at 10 o'clock a. m. at the front door of the court house in the city of Crookston in said county and state to satisfy the amount then due on said mortgage with expenses of sale together with an attorneys fee of fifty dollars stipulated in said mortgage to be paid in case of foreclosure of the same.

The new proprietors of the Minneapolis Tribune have taken down the picture of Blaine which has been running for some time and it is reported will run the paper in the interest of President Harrison. We are of the of the opinion they will find it hard work to secure the Minnesota delegation for Harrison. It is more than probable that Minnesota will send a solid delegation for James G. Blaine, first, last and all the time.

George O'Brien, of Fisher, has confessed that he set fire to Thompson & Johnson elevator which was burned there some time ago. He was formerly employed by that firm but was discharged and took this way of being revenged. He is a young man about 18 years of age and is the son of farmer living near Fisher. The confession was made to the county attorney and others and he is now in jail at Crookston with a good prospect of serving a term at Stillwater. It would be much better for him had he killed a man as firing a building is serious offence in this county.

A Washington dispatch says: The instructions to registers and receivers under the new laws have been prepared in the general land office, although it may be a few days before they may be promulgated through acceptance by the secretary of the interior. These instructions, it is said, will construe the laws very liberally in behalf of the settlers who have had their lands in contest by action of special agents of the government. It is claimed to have been the intent of congress to deal leniently with the settlers who had gone upon the lands of the United States and tried to make a home. The interior department has been disposed to treat these settlers with consideration, and will so construe the law.

Battle Lake Review: The fact that some men while in office are forever claiming they are watching the peoples interest is sufficient excuse for the people to watch them. An honest-hearted officer will never pose as a watch dog in such a way that he will give the impression to his constituents that he is doing his work for effect. The officer who is loudest in his talk against what he calls "job against the people" is nine times out of ten posing for office, and if an opportunity happened favorable he would steal the people blind. These self lauded honest men who insist that the people must know that they are honest are just the ones the people must watch. An honest man don't have to advertise it with his own mouth.

THE USURY BILL.

Every loan company doing business in this county have notified their agents not to take applications for real estate loans and it is impossible today for a farmer to obtain a loan on his land no matter how good his security may be. The companies also state that they will not renew a loan in this country if the bill passes but will try to get their money out of the country as soon as possible. This means that every farmer who has a mortgage on his land, and who is not able to pay up the same will lose his farm. We will predict for the benefit of our farmer friends who are clamoring for the passage, if the bill, does pass they will see the hardest times this county has ever seen and a large majority of them will lose their lands. Times will be good for newspaper men and lawyers, however, and we expect to have twice as many mortgage sales to publish as soon as the farmer triumphes and the bill is passed.

MORTGAGE SALE.

Whereas default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage bearing date September 25th 1889, made by Robert William Brown and Leida Samyah Brown his wife, mortgagors to The Dakota Investment Company, of Grand Forks Dakota, mortgagee and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the county of Polk in the state of Minnesota on the 14th day of October 1889 at 8:15 o'clock a. m. in Book 43 of mortgages, page 69. And whereas it was stipulated in said mortgage, that in case of default in any of the conditions of the same, then the said mortgagee was empowered to declare the whole sum secured by said mortgage due and payable, and the said mortgagee has elected to and has declared the whole sum so secured due and payable; and whereas there is claimed to be due and is due on the debt thereby secured, at the date of this notice the sum of seven hundred and twenty dollars: and that no proceedings at law or in equity have been instituted to recover the said debt or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, that said mortgage will be foreclosed, pursuant to the statute and to the power of sale therein contained and the lands described in and conveyed by said mortgage to-wit: The north east quarter of section eight in township one hundred forty-nine north of range forty-three west situate in the county of Polk and state of Minnesota, will be sold by the sheriff of said Polk county at public auction on Saturday the 9th day of May 1891 at 10 o'clock a. m. at the front door of the court house in the city of Crookston in said county, to satisfy the sum then due on said mortgage, with expenses of sale, together with an attorneys fee of twenty-five dollars stipulated to be paid in case of foreclosure thereof.

Crookston Times: Representative Carlton sends us a copy of the act providing for the extension of the time of payment of seed grain furnished to farmers having their crop injured by hail or blight during the year 1888.

By this act the county commissioners are authorized to grant an extension of time for payment for two years, upon satisfactory evidence, shown by two or more witnesses that the person applying for such relief has also suffered a failure of crops during the years 1889 and 1890 A provision is made in the bill that when a person is granted an extension the state shall acquire by virtue thereof a just and valid lien upon the crops of grain of such person raised by him during the years for which the time of payment is extended for the full amount of his indebtedness on account of seed wheat furnished under the original act.

This bill was introduced and passed the senate some time ago and Mr. Carleton succeeded in securing its passage in the house under suspension of the rules on Thursday.

Washington March 31st.—The Baron Fava has presented to the state department his recall by the Italian government, and has demanded his passports. The department is greatly surprised because it was wholly unexpected and because the investigation into the New Orleans matter is not completed. The reason for recall is: "The king of Italy is dissatisfied with the adjustment between the two countries in regard to the New Orleans masacre." This action can be construed into no other way than an act of open hostility on the part of the Italian government toward the United States, with which it has heretofore been on friendly terms. It is also reported that eighteen American citizens have been seized and imprisoned in Rome to be held as hostages.

Whereas default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage bearing date September 11th 1889 made and executed by Neils Erickson and Johanna his wife, mortgagors, to The Dakota Investment Company of Grand Forks Dakota mortgagee, which mortgage was on the 17th day of September 1889 at 4:30 o'clock p. m. duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of said Polk county in the state of Minnesota in Book 43 of mortgages page 82. And whereas there is claimed to be due and is due on the debt secured by said mortgage at the date of this notice the sum of one hundred seven dollars and eighty-one cents; and that no proceedings at law or in equity have been instituted to recover the said debt or any part thereof.

And whereas the said Dakota Investment Company, for a valuable consideration, did on the 19th day of February 1890 by their deed in writing duly assign and transfer said mortgage and the notes secured by the same to George A. Dockstader, his heirs and assigns, which said assignment was duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds of said Polk county on the 4th day of March 1890 at 10.30 o'clock a. m. in Book 48 of mortgages on page 359.

Now therefore notice is hereby given that the said mortgage will be foreclosed pursuant to the statute and to the power of sale in said mortgage contained, and the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage to wit: The north west quarter and the south half of the north east quarter and north west quarter of north east quarter of section five township one hundred and fifty-two north of range forty-four west situate in county of Polk and state of Minnesota will be sold by the sheriff of said Polk county at public auction on Saturday the 18th day of April 1891 at 10 o'clock a. m. at the front door of the court house in the city of Crookston in said county of Polk to satisfy the amount then due on the said mortgage and the expenses of sale together with an attorneys fee of fifty dollars stipulated to be paid in case of foreclosure of said mortgage.

MORTGAGE SALE.

Whereas, default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage, bearing date August 2, 1888, made and executed by James Eustus, and Sarah M., his wife, mortgagors, to the Dakota Investment Company of Grand Forks, Dakota, mortgagee, which said mortgage was on the second day of August 1888 at 10:30 o'clock a.m. duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of said Polk county, State of Minnesota in Book 36 of mortgages on pages 446, 447, 448 and 449. And whereas there is claimed to be due and is due, on the debt secured by said mortgage at the date of this notice, the sum of Six Hundred Fifty-three dollars and sixty-five cents, and that no proceedings at law or in equity have been instituted to recover said debt or any part thereof. And whereas, said mortgage provides, that in case of default in the conditions thereof, the mortgagee might declare the whole sum secured by said mortgage due and payable; and default having been made, said mortgagee has declared the whole sum secured by said mortgage due and payable.

Now therefore notice is hereby given that said mortgage will be foreclosed, pursuant to the statute and the power of sale therein contained, and the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage to-wit: The West half of the South West quarter, and the West half of the North West quarter of Section Thirty-three in township One Hundred Forty-nine North of Range Forty-four West situate in the county of Polk and State of Minnesota, will be sold by the Sheriff of said county of Polk, at public auction on the 17th day of April 1891 at 10 o'clock a. m, at the front door of the Court House in the city of Crookston in said County, to satisfy the amount then due on said mortgage debt and the expenses of such sale including an Attorney's fee of Fifty dollars, stipulated in said mortgage to be paid in case of foreclosure.

A Bad General Presumption.

I think it is not to be denied that the rules by which testimony is admitted or excluded, originating in the purpose of the English courts to protect innocent persons from prosecutions often malicious, and accusations often false, under laws frequently unjust and arbitrary, do now sometimes produce effects unfair to society and partial to the criminal class. Taken in connection with the requirement of a unanimous verdict from twelve jurors, selected by process that carefully sifts out intelligence and competence, the result, in a large proportion of cases, is the escape of the guilty at the cost and risk of the community. I am even tempted to go so far as to say that in a large class of criminal cases the presumption of innocence for the accused is, if not wholly unfounded, at least much too obstinately maintained, and that the rights of society are ignored or violated.—Scribner.

Something is lost when you use Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. It's Catarrh. The worst cases yield to its mild, soothing, cleansing, and healing properties. No matter how bad your case, or of how long standing, you can be cured. Incurable cases are rare. It's worth $500 to you, if you have one. The manufacturers of Dr. Sage's Remedy are looking for them. They'll pay you that amount in cash, if they can't cure you. It's a plain square offer from a responsible business house, and they mean it. It seems too one-sided, too much of a risk. It would be—with any other medicine behind it. It only goes to prove what's been said: incurable cases are rare—with Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy.

Other so-called remedies may palliate for a time; this cures for all time. By its mild, soothing, cleansing and healing properties, it conquers the worst cases. It removes offensive breath, loss or impairment of the sense of taste, smell or hearing, watering or weak eyes, when caused by the violence of Catarrh, as they all frequently are.

CARBONATE OF AMMONIA.

Highest Authorities Approve its use as an Ingredient in Baking Powder

That a small portion of carbonate of ammonia—about one part to a hundred of cream of tartar and soda is generally used—is a most valuable addition to a baking powder is a fact well understood by every physician and scientist who has examined into the matter. It adds to the leavening power and keeping qualities of the baking powder and to the wholesomeness of the food raised by it. So used it is entirely harmless, not only, but highly beneficial.

Those baking powders in which carbonate of ammonia is not used are of inferior quality and do not give satisfaction in the making of choicest food. The various articles appearing in the newspapers against the use of carbonate of ammonia are well known to be published by those manufacturers of baking powder who do not use it, in the effort to create a prejudice against the better powders. The articles of such character quoted from scientific or medical journals first appeared therein as paid advertisements.

In explaining the cause of the great value of carbonate of ammonia for leavening purposes, the Scientific American says editorially:

"The carbonate of ammonia is an exceedingly volatile substance. Place a small portion of it upon a knife and hold over a flame, and it will almost immediately be entirely developed into gas and pass off into the air. The gas thus formed is a simple composition of nitrogen and hydrogen, slightly aromatic, inoffensive, and perfectly wholesome. No residue is left from the ammonia. This gives it its superiority as a leavening power over soda and cream of tartar used alone, and has induced its use as a supplement to these articles. A small quantity of ammonia in the dough is effective in producing bread that will be lighter, sweeter and more wholesome than that risen by any other leavening agent. When it is acted upon by the heat of baking the leavening gas that raises the dough is liberated. In this act it uses itself up, as it were; the ammonia is entirely diffused, leaving no trace or residuum whatever. The light, fluffy, flaky appearance, so desirable in biscuits, etc., and so sought after by professional cooks, is said to be imparted to them only by the use of this agent.

"The bakers and baking powder manufacturers producing the finest goods have availed themselves of this useful agent, and the handsomest and best bread and cake are now largely risen by the aid of carbonate of ammonia combined, of course, with other leavening material.

"Ammonia is one of the best known products of the laboratory. As the application of its properties to the purposes of cooking results in giving us lighter and more wholesome bread, biscuit and cake, its general use will prove a boon to dyspeptic humanity."

The Indiana State Board of Health, the New York State Board of Health, the Ohio Food and Dairy Commissioner, the Canadian Government and various other official authorities agree that carbonate of ammonia is a perfectly admissible ingredient for a baking powder and that it in no way effects the wholesomeness of the food.

It is well that consumers should know the facts in reference to so important a matter, that they may dismiss the silly stories published by the alum baking powder makers in order to detract attention from the inferiority of their own goods.—Medical Journal.

Joking an Indian.

It is dangerous to joke with an Indian. His sense of humor is so dull that he may think himself insulted, when he is merely made the butt of a bad joke. Mr. Alexander was a decayed Scotchman, who, having strayed into Fort Carlton, served the Hudson Bay Company as a clerk, at one hundred and twenty dollars a year and his food. Life was very dull at the post, but one day "White Cloud," the Sioux chief, arrived here with seventeen warriors. The chief, an Indian Apollo, stood over six feet in his moccasins, and was proud of his courage and strength.

One day White Cloud was in Alexander's room, who, thinking with Julius Hare that "the next best thing to a very good joke is a very bad joke," put on a pair of boxing-gloves, and told the Indian that with these the white men learned to fight. Showing another pair, he asked White Cloud if he would like to put them on. The Indian, not knowing what would happen—for Indians never hit with the hands, and consider a blow from the fist a gross insult—said he would.

Alexander first took away the chief's knife and pistol and locked them up. Then putting the Indian in the middle of the room, he showed him how to stand on his guard. With one blow Alexander knocked the chief down. He rose, rushed at the clerk, and was again knocked down.

The maddened Indian tore off his gloves, and tried to get his knife from the drawer, but the drawer was locked, and he calmed down and demanded to be let out.

"What will you do when outside?" asked Alexander.

"Attack the fort and kill every man in it," said the chief.

Alexander, seeing what his foolish joke had done, resorted to a desperate measure. He took his revolver from a drawer, and told the chief that unless he promised to give up his purpose and make friends, he would shoot him on the spot. For a minute or two White Cloud was obstinate; but Alexander produced two bottles of whiskey and promised him these.

Then the chief shook hands, and receiving his knife and pistol, left the room, carrying the present for which an Indian will do almost anything. He kept his word, though he never again treated Alexander as a friend.—Youth's Companion.

A TALE OF TWO CHAIRS.

Elijah on his Lizzie calls,
When chores are done and evening falls.
Elijah's bashful, Lizzie's sly,
But then, her parents sit near by.
"Good-night, Elijah—Liz, good-night,"
And, paw and maw, by candle light,
Go off to bed and leave to bliss
Their daughter and her beau, with chairs arranged like this:

Elijah 'lows "This weather'll do
Fur hay'n." Lizzie thinks so, too.
"Went coonin' 'long with John las' night."
"Get any coons?" "No: moon wa'n't bright."
And so they court; naught goes amiss
And Lige and Liz have aimed respective chairs like this:

With Spartan will to do or die
Elijah seems to grow less shy
And chairs become bewitched, I wis,
They hitch, and hitch, and hitch, until they stand like this:

"D'you like me Liz?" "Oh, Lige!" they kiss.
Then round gets caught in round, and chairs resemble this:

THE CARPENTER'S MATE.

TWENTY years ago I commanded one of the vessels, the Norseman, of the old Allesworth line of Liverpool. She was in the East India trade at the time, and I was about to make my first voyage as master. I had been with her the previous voyage in the capacity of chief mate, and was more than pleased when the firm called me into their private office and offered me the command of the ship.

I had just been married, and it is needless to say that I accepted the firm's offer, at the same time arranging to have my wife accompany me on the voyage.

"I have a favor to ask of you, Capt. Thornton," said Mr. Burlingame, the senior partner, when we were alone, "and I rely upon your honor to keep the matter confidential."

I bowed, and Mr. Burlingame went on:—

"My daughter Evelyn has become infatuated with one of my clerks, and he has had the assurance to ask her hand in marriage. He has been dismissed from our employ, and I have seen nothing of him since. My daughter has taken the matter to heart, and I have decided to send her out with you on a voyage, in hope that the change of scene and the companionship of your wife and yourself may bring back the roses to her cheek. Anything you can do to assist in making her forget this wretched infatuation will be appreciated."

I had little faith in my ability to cause Miss Evelyn to forget her lover; besides, as I had just entered the married state myself, I could hardly be expected to sympathize with a plan for the separation of two loving hearts, but I promised to care for the shipowner's daughter as far as was in my power, and the interview terminated.

The following morning my wife and I went aboard the Norseman, which was lying at anchor in the Mersey. At nine o'clock Mr. Burlingame and his daughter came aboard. The latter was a handsome young lady of twenty-two years, but her sweet face was pale and sad, and although she said nothing, it was evident that the thought of leaving home affected her deeply.

Farewells were over, the anchor was aweigh, and Mr. Burlingame, after a parting grasp of the hand, and a whispered admonition to "take good care of Evelyn," stepped aboard the tender and returned to shore. We were towed down the Mersey, crossed the bar, and dismissing our tug pilot, bore away for the Cape of Good Hope.

After we were well under way all hands were called aft to choose watches. As the crew filed by, one of their number, a fine-looking young fellow, attracted my attention.

"Who is that young man?" I asked pointing him out to Mr. Everson, my chief mate.

"Kenneth Gardner; he shipped as carpenter's mate," was the reply.

Just as the crew ranged themselves in a line a little abaft the mainmast, the ladies came on deck and walked forward to where I was standing.

As I turned to greet them I was startled by a scream from Miss Burlingame, and the next moment I was holding her limp form in my arms. She was at once taken below and soon recovered consciousness, but could give no explanation of her fainting fit.

We were scarcely two weeks out before I noticed a great change in Miss Burlingame. The roses returned to her cheeks, and she seemed well pleased with her situation aboard the Norseman.

She went all over the ship, sometimes accompanied by my wife, and sometimes alone. Several times I noticed her in conversation with the carpenter's mate, and, my curiosity being aroused, I walked forward one day and got into conversation with him.

I found Gardner an intelligent fellow, possessing a surprising familiarity with the rules of navigation and all matters pertaining to the merchant marine. I thought it a little singular that a man of his intelligence and apparent ability had no better position than that of carpenter's mate on a merchantman, and told him so.

His reply was that his limited resources had prevented his gratifying in any other way his passion for travelling and seeing the world. The explanation was not satisfactory, but a look into the handsome, manly face convinced me that whatever his reasons were for being on the Norseman in his present capacity, they did not concern me, and I asked him no further questions on the matter.

In due time we doubled the Cape of Good Hope, ran the eastings down, and crossing the Bay of Bengal, sighted one morning the low sandhills and, later, the flat, sandy coast at the mouth of the Hooghly. We took aboard a native pilot, and were soon lying at anchor at Garden Reach, about eleven miles below Calcutta. I went ashore accompanied by my wife and Miss Burlingame.

During the voyage the young lady had regained her health and spirits, and had become well acquainted with the carpenter's mate. While he took no liberties, I began to feel anxious about the matter, and regretted that the handsome youth was a member of my crew. I pitied the poor clerk left in Old England and meditated on the fickleness of woman.

At Calcutta we loaded a cargo of jute for Melbourne and put out to sea. On the morning of the sixth day out the baromenter began to fall rapidly, and as the typhoon season was at hand I felt a little anxious, although there was no indication of danger in the clear sky and the light breeze which fanned the surface of the Indian Ocean.

About two o'clock in the afternoon the sky to windward showed signs of a gathering storm. Professional pride told me to crowd on all sail so long as the wind continued fair, but experience whispered that the lives of the ship's crew, my wife and Miss Burlingame depended to a great extent upon my seamanship and good judgment. I considered the matter a few minutes, and then, summoning the chief mate, said—

"Mr. Everson, call all hands, take in the light sail, send down the studdingsail yards and booms, skysail, royal and topgallant yards fore and aft, and close reef the topsails and courses."

The mate, whose hair and beard were whitened by the ocean blast of forty years, regarded me in surprise for a moment, then touched his cap and returned to the waist. I could see that the old salt doubted the advisability of the course I was pursuing.

The orders for shortening sail were rapidly executed, and in less than twenty minutes the Norseman was all snug fore and aft. In the meantime the horizon became overcast with a heavy bank of copper-colored clouds; in the thirty years I have followed the sea I have never seen the elements arrayed in a more terrific line of battle than they were at 3:30 of the afternoon of September 15, 1870.

The hatches were carefully battened down and the watch sent below to secure what rest they might, while I paced the quarter-deck, restless and uneasy. The breeze gradually died out and a dead calm ensued.

The ladies came on deck and chaffed me for shortening sail.

The barometer continued falling, and I again ordered all hands called. A line of foam was approaching on the starboard beam.

"Hard a port!"

"Hard a port, sir!" responded the helmsman.

I seized my trumpet and gave my orders.

"Haul up your courses."

The command was promptly executed, and the men started aloft to furl. They were too late.

"Down for your lives! Down!"

The tidal wave struck us on our port quarter, breaking over the poop deck, accompanied by a fearful gust of wind. Away went our courses, and the topsails were literally blown from the bolt ropes.

I looked for the ladies who had been standing on the quarter-deck. Merciful heavens! they had been washed overboard, and I saw their agonized faces half a ship's length to leeward.

With a yell to lower away the starboard boat I plunged into the sea. as I rose to the surface I heard a cool voice beside me:—

"Cheer up, Cap'n we'll save them sure."

I glanced over my shoulder and saw the carpenter's mate.

It seemed as though Providence had intervened in our behalf, for after the first terrible gust the wind subsided. We reached the ladies and looked around for the boat. It was coming, the crew pulling like demons, while in the sheets sat Everson, urging them to greater exertion.

By the time we returned to the ship the cyclone had broken upon us in all its fury, and for three days we drifted at the mercy of the storm.

On the morning of the fourth day the wind and sea went down, the damage to the Norseman was quickly repaired, and we stood away for Melbourn.

Upon our arival Kenneth Gardner asked for his discharge, which I could not well refuse him. After the papers had been filled out I took occasion to thank the young man warmly in behalf of Mr. Burlingame, and intimated that it would be to his advantage to return to Liverpool as soon as possible, giving him at the same time a letter of introduction to my employer, which contained a detailed description of the gallant conduct of Gardner in saving Miss Evelyn's life.

The ladies were ashore, stopping at one of the hotels, and I was to join them later in the day. I appeared about five o'clock. Mrs. Thornton was suffering from a headache and Miss Burlingame had gone for a drive.

The young lady came in half an hour after accompanied by Kenneth Gardner. Exchanging greetings, the latter placed in my hands a document. I opened it and was taken flat aback at the contents. It was a certificate signed by a leading clergyman of Melbourne, stating that Hiram Holdsworth and Evelyn Burlingame had that day been united in marriage.

Of course, I gave them my blessing. I couldn't help it. I believe I kissed the bride several times, and would have continued had not my wife objected.

The next thing was to inform Mr. Burlingame of the condition of affairs, and as gently as possible I broke the news that his discharged clerk had rather played it on the old man. I recieved his answer at San Francisco in the person of Captain Gregson, who had been sent out to relieve me of the command of the Norseman, but the agents of Burlingame and Co. were instructed to pay me a full year's salary.

Burlingame died of apoplexy, and as Evelyn was the only heir, she inherited all his vast wealth.

Men show particular folly on five different occasions; when they establish their fortune on the ruin of another; when they expect to excite love by coldness, and by showing more marks of dislike than affection; when they wish to become learned in the midst of repose and pleasure; when they seek friends without making any advances of friendship; and when they are unwilling to succor their friends in distress

General Surprise.

The man-eating tiger is a creature both cunning and audacious. One described by Sir Samuel Baker, which became the victim of a practical joke, was not the typical old and mangy animal, but a powerful beast, of almost unexampled ferocity. It was a merciless highwayman, which infested a portion of the road, and frequently carried off the drivers of bullock carts to feast upon them in the jungle.

The natives feared to travel with a single cart, and it became the custom to pass the dreaded spot with several teams together. This, however, proved a vain precaution, for the tiger seized the driver of the hindmost cart, and made away with him, in spite of the cries of those left behind.

At length, Mr. Duff, the superintendent of police, provided two covered carts, each drawn as usual, by two bullocks. The leading one was fitted with strong bars of bamboo, which formed an impenetrable cage. In this the driver was seated, and Mr. Duff himself sat with his face toward the rear, prepared to fire through the bars at the moment of attack.

This would have been an exciting time for the driver, but that individual was personated by a dummy stuffed with straw, which might prove tempting to the tiger's eye, but would hardly satisfy his palate.

Slowly the carts moved along the dreaded path. Suddenly there was a roar and a crash in the jungle. A large tiger bounded forth, seized the dummy driver, and dragged him away. Nothing could have been better planned, but one chance, necessary to success, had been forgotten. No sooner had the tiger roared and bounded upon the carts than the bullocks, terrified beyond control, went full gallop across the country, followed by the other team, all in the wildest panic.

It was impossible to fire, and after a few seconds of desperate chariot-racing, both carts capsized, and lay, with the animals, in a heap on the ground. The victorious man-eater, victim of what he must have considered a practical joke, was left to a dry meal of a straw-stuffed carter, instead of the juicy native he had expected to get.—Youth's Companion.

Wall Street Cripples.

"Down in the district of town known as Wall street," a distinguished railroad official said recently, a number of sturdy men move about on crutches. They have all their arms and legs; their faces are as a rule the faces of men whose lives are not too hard; they do not sport the Grand Army buttons. If you watch them you see that they do not rely very greatly on their crutches; that the crutches, to be sure, are always under the arms in the right position for use, but they are used very seldom. One of the church bearers will stand and talk to a friend, holding the crutches entirely off the sidewalk, and will gesticulate with them violently; then starting on he will let the foot of the crutch touch ground once in every three or four or half a dozen steps. These gentlemen are 'railroad cripples,' who are suing railroad companies for alleged damages; they go around with crutchss so they can swear on the witness stand that they were on crutches for six months after the accident, on account of which they are suing."—New York Sun.

Graceful.

The ready and graceful wit of the Abbe de Voisenon once enabled him, in a truly discouraging social difficulty, "to pluck victory from defeat." His courageous effort to escape from an embarrassing situation certainly deserved success.

The Abbe accepted an invitation of the Prince de Conti to dinner, but forgot the date, and at the dinner his chair was vacant. The next day a friend said to him:

"Monseigneur was very angry with you yesterday." The Abbe felt that he had been remiss and attended the Prince's next reception to offer a humble apology.

His Highness, as soon as he perceived his discourteous guest, turned his back. But the undaunted Abbe exclaimed:

"O Monseigneur, you overwhelm me with gratitude. I had been told that you never more would have anything to do with me; but I am happy to see that I have been misinformed."

"How?" asked the Prince.

"Your Highness has turned your back on me, and I know that that is not your custom before your enemies."

For two years I suffered terribly with stomach trouble, and was for all that time under treatment by a physician. He finally, after trying everything, said stomach was about worn out, and that I would have to cease eating solid food for a time at least. I was so weak that I could not work. Finally on the recommendation of a friend who had used your preparations with beneficial results, I procured a bottle of August Flower, and commenced using it. It seemed to do me good at once. I gained in strength and flesh rapidly; my appetite became good, and I suffered no bad effects from what I ate. MISCELLANEOUS NOTES.

Chicago is to have a pretentious art institute.

The Minnesota house votes 75,000 for the Minnesota exhibit at the world's fair.

The New Hampshire legislature has passed the bill appropriating $40,000 for representation at the world's fair.

The Great Falls National Bank of Great Falls, Mont., with a capital of $250,000, has been authorized to begin business.

A receiver has been appointed to take charge of the business of M. Nassbaum, the largest dry goods dealer in Macon, Ga. The liabilities are supposed to be $375,000, and assets about that amount.

The national real estate congress met and organized in Birmingham, Ala., recently. M. P. Pilcher of Nashville was elected president, and John J. McDavid of Birmingham secretary.

The insane asylum board organized at Jamestown by electing B. F. Fancher, president and G. A. Lieber, secretary, both of Jamestown, N. D. It is feared that the appropriation will hardly meet the needs of the institution.

The Farmers' Alliance and the jute bagging trust have made peace. The proposition of the Cordage Bagging company to supply bagging at 6¼ cents per yard for 1¼ pounds, 6½ cents for 1½ pounds, 7¼ cents for 2 pounds and 7¾ cents for 2¼ pounds has been accepted. These are the maximum prices and competition may reduce them.

KITTY NOT THE ONE.

Rumors that Mr. Parnell Has Been Privately Married Since the O'Shea Divorce Proceedings.

The Statement Also Made That Mrs. O'Shea Did Not Become the Bride of Parnell.

London, April 7.—A sensation was caused in the lobby of the house of commons this evening by a rumor that Mr. Parnell has been privately married since the O'Shea divorce proceedings. According to this rumor, the lady whom Mr. Parnell married is not Mrs. O'Shea.

Several Parnellites in the house of commons were interviewed on the subject to-night, but they refused to say more than that the "mystery" of their leader's inner life, often referred to recently as certain to clear Mr. Parnell's character, will shortly be explained.

REBELLIOUS NATIVES.

Serious Trouble Brewing in India for the British Forces.

Calcutta, April 6.—If probable indications turn out to be correct there is very serious trouble brewing in India for the British forces.

Emboldened by the success of the Manipuris, who recently crushed the Ghoorka escort accompanying Chief Commissioner James V. Quinton in his efforts to settle the disputes which have occurred among the rival chieftains of Assam, the Miranzai, in the Kohat territory, a district of the Peshawer division of the Punjab, have risen in arms, and are attacking the British troops along the whole length of their lines. It is also known that the Miranzai attack is being pushed vigorously, that strong reinforcements have been hurriedly dispatched to the front. Full details as to this new uprising are withheld by the British authorities here.

Sharp fighting with the rebellious natives continues. The Miranzais rising is extending. Yesterday the Twenty-ninth regiment lost nine men killed and four wounded.

WANTS HIS WIVES.

Cannon Afraid That He Cannot Keep All of the Mrs. Cannons.

Salt Lake City, Utah, April 7.—The spring conference of the Mormon church closed to-day. At the morning session George Q. Cannon spoke of the manifesto stopping polygamous marriages for the future. He said it was hard for him to accept it, but the saints were in straits and something had to be done. He finally saw the light, but much against the grain, as he had always held that the salvation of the soul lay through polygamy. The question now was, what could be done with plural wives? He had hoped the government would say the husband could keep them, and may be that would be done yet.

Referring to statements issued by anti-Mormon agitators that the manifesto issued some six months ago by President Woodroof in regard to the discontinuance of plural marriages was not genuine, Cannon said its sentiments were sincere and its terms had been observed. It is the intention of the Mormon people as then stated to abide by the law. He considered it of the utmost importance that this should be thoroughly understood in future, and that when a promise of this kind is made by them, they mean what they say; that they are not dealing falsely, but are treating matters in good faith. He said the Mormon people will accommodate themselves to changed conditions to the best of their ability, and honestly carry out all they have promised.

IN A MEXICAN PRISON.

An American's Terrible Experience Among the Greasers.

Wichita, Kan., April 7.—The mystery surrounding the disappearance of James Bellew was cleared up to-day by that gentleman's return home.

Mr. Bellew is a commission merchant and started for Mexico by the way of Galveston a month ago. He spent about a week in Galveston and then left for Mexico, since which time nothing has been heard of him until to-day. At Paso Del Norte, Mexico, Mr. Bellew tendered a Mexican merchant a ten-dollar gold piece in exchange for some purchases. The Mexican claimed that the coin was only a five dollar piece. A dispute arose, and the Mexican called on the police and had Bellew arrested. The prisoner was thrown into jail, and was denied all communication with his friends or with the American consul.

He says that he was subjected to all sorts of indignities and harsh treatment. His health has been shattered by confinement in prison, and he intends that the American government shall procure satisfaction from the Mexican government.

CURSES AND MISSILES.

Kansas City, April 7.—There was a small riot at the Phœnix packing house, in Kansas City, Kan., this morning.

For some time past the rumors of the reopening of the packing house, which has been closed since Nov. 17, have caused large crowds of laborers to congregate about the gates of the plant every morning seeking for work. This morning, as usual, they were there, about three hundred in all.

About 9 o'clock twenty Italians came up in a body to apply for work. They told the superintendent that they would work for $1 a day. When the others who had assembled there learned of the offer of the Italians, they seized fence pickets, stones and other missiles and charged the Italians. The latter made a stand for a moment, but were soon forced back and ended by taking precipitate flight, followed by a storm of curses and missiles. They fled across the Kansas river to Missouri. The crowd followed them to the bridge and there stopped.

It is not known whether any of the Italians were hurt or not. None of the others were injured.

A Town Submerged.

New Orleans, April 7.—Two-thirds of the town of Gretna has been submerged by water from the Ames crevasse, a hastily constructed levee had been built with the view of protecting the town from overflow, it could not stand the pressure of water against it. Many of the people from the overflowed section are moving to this city.

Postmasters Appointed.

Washington, Special Telegram, April 7.—Fourth-class postmasters appointed in Minnesota: C. H. Thingelstad, Brooten, Stearns county; F. H. Knickerbocker, Fertile, Polk county; H. W. Thacker, Glenwood, Pope county; W. C. Andrews, Granger, Fillmore county; C. W. Russell, Pleasant Grove, Olmsted county.

The Czar's Life in Danger.

London, April 7.—The Telegraph's St. Petersburg correspondent says that another conspiracy against the life of the czar has just been discovered there.

A POSTPONED FUNERAL.

Lima, Ohio, April 7.—Mrs. Francis O'Neill, a cousin of Sheriff O'Neill of Allen county, died suddenly Saturday morning. As deceased was apparently in the best of health up till the moment of her death, it was attributed to heart failure.

To-day signs of returning life were noticed by the relatives. Her body became warm and twitched convulsively. All the funeral arrangements which had been made were postponed, but up to this writing she has not recovered consciousness.

The relatives have decided that even if death appears certain they will keep her remains in a ventilated vault until her death is certain beyond peradventure. This action is taken on account of a similar occurrence in the case of her brother five years ago. Henry Lawler, brother of Mrs. O'Neill, in March, 1886, died apparently, and all arrangements were made for his burial. On the day set for the funeral he returned to life, and is to-day a prominent business man and leading politician. The relatives of Mrs. O'Neill are fearful that she may have experienced a trance as did her brother.

SHREWD CHINAMEN.

They Play a Trick in Order to Get a Chance to Spend Their Money.

San Francisco, April 7.—During a gale on the bay to-day the schooner Sadie F. Collier, destined for Chignuk bay, Alaska, with a cannery outfit, was found to be in a leaking condition.

One hundred and forty Chinese were secured to man the cannery, but as there had been great difficulty in securing Chinese for the work the slave dealers have had to give advances to get the Chinese to ship. The schooner had ninety-five of her Chinese on board, and was ready to sail as soon as the other forty-five Chinese should be put on board. The ninety-five on board the schooner had their advance money in their pockets, and were burning for a chance to spend it. As they could not get ashore, owing to a vigorous watch, they determined to sink the schooner. They procured an augur and bored several holes in the bottom of the vessel.

This morning the Collier was in a sinking condition, and her crew had to be taken ashore as quickly as possible. The Chinese are now spending their advance money in Chinatown, and the schooner has been beached.

NINE LIVES LOST.

The Fire at Rochester, Pa., More Fatal Than at First Supposed.

Rochester, Pa., April 7.—The fire here last night, in which four lives were reported lost, was worse than at first supposed, nine bodies having been found.

The wife and son of C. J. Keene, the shoemaker, were visiting in Pittsburg. Had they been at home they would no doubt have also lost their lives.

Maria Tecchio, the Italian girl, the only one of the family to escape, although not seriously injured, is prostrated.

There is no definite evidence as to how the fire started, but it is the opinion of the authorities and it seems to be the correct one that a lamp left burning by Mr. Keene in his kitchen exploded and fired the house. There appears to be no indication of incendiarism. A revised list of the dead follows: C. J. Keene, aged forty; Walter Keene, his son, aged nine; Baptisti Tecchio, aged forty; Annie Tecchio, his wife, aged thirty-six; Yosef Tecchio, aged thirteen; Rosa Tecchio, aged eight; Annie Tecchio, aged two; Victorio Tecchio, brother of Baptisti, aged thirty-seven; Joseph Racma, aged thirty-five, place of residence unknown.

FIGHT WITH ROBBERS.

An Exciting Time in a Restaurant in Chicago.

Chicago, April 7.—Six men entered the Farwell house cafe to-night, and while two presented revolver at Cashier Bliven's head the other four busied themselves with the cash drawer, or in seeking to intimidate the solitary waiter on duty.

The latter, named Delude, grappled with one robber, who was making off with the cash register, and was fired upon twice but not seriously wounded. The shots attracted the police, who chased the robbers into their den, a tenement house near by. The place was quickly surrounded by a patrol wagon load of officers, and after a sharp struggle all of the six desperadoes were arrested. In the fight at the house Policeman Smith received a bullet through his right hand. The prisoners are all local toughs, and one is an ex-convict.

LAWFULLY CONVICTED.

Decision Against a Prisoner Who Would Escape on a Technicality.

Washington, April 8.—The supreme court of the United States to-day affirmed the judgment of the supreme court of Wisconsin, in the case of Patrick Manning, convicted in the court for the district of Ashland, Wis., of manslaughter.

He contended that his conviction was without due process of law, basing it on the ground that under the state law the governor had no authority to appoint the judge who tried him, and that he was tried and convicted by an unlawful court.

The United States supreme court says that the highest state tribunal held that the Ashland court had always existed and was a court de jure, regardless of whether or not the governor had the right of appointment of the judge. The court is bound by that judgment, and there being a court de jure and judge de facto, it holds that there is no ground on which to order Manning's discharge.

All Held Without Bail.

Pittsburg, April 7.—The coroner's inquest in the Gilkinson murder case to-day, after a brief review of the testimony, found that Detection D. H. Gilkinson's death resulted from two gun shot wounds inflicted by Frederick Fitzsimmons. His wife, Lucy, was held as an accessory, and C. M. Clark, his wife and her sister, Cora Wyatt, were held as accessories before the fact in concealing, harboring and maintaining Fitzsimmons at Clark's house in Homestead with the knowledge of the fact that he had committed the murder. All five prisoners were committed to jail to await trial for murder.

A Trifling Accident.

Helena, Mont., April 7.—The accident in the Mullen tunnel on the Northern Pacific west of Helena proves to have been of a trifling character. A projecting beam on a passing freight car knocked down several tunnel supports. Repairs were made during the night, and trains passed through this morning.

Work of Train Wreckers.

Manitowoc, Wis., April 7.—An unsuccessful attempt was made to wreck a Milwaukee, Lake Shore & Western train near Centerville. A tie was placed across the track, but the engine did not leave the rails when it struck the obstruction. The engine was wrecked. No clue to the wreckers.

An Aberdeen Blaze.

Aberdeen, S. D., Special Telegram, April 7.—The residence of Court Stenographer Granger was partly destroyed to-day by fire. Loss $1,500; insured.

MINNESOTA SOLONS.

Condensed Proceedings of Both Branches of the Minnesota Legislature.

What is Being Attempted in the Way of Legislation by Our Lawmakers.

Tuesday March. 31.

SENATE.

Senator Daugherty's bill prohibiting private banks came back from the committee on banks and banking with a recommendation that it be indefinitely postponed. The Duluth senator objected to such treatment, however, and succeeded in getting the bill referred to the committee of the whole.

In the afternoon the first matter of importance to come before the senate was Senator Donnelly's mortgage taxation bill, S. F. 56, which was on its final passage. There was no debate whatever. Senator Leavitt attempted to get an amendment before the senate, but Senator Brown objected and the roll was called on the bill. The result showed 22 votes in its favor and 23 against it.

HOUSE.

When the house met to-day Mr. Gallagher moved to have his bill providing for a three-cent street railway fare taken from the table, but after a lurid discussion, extending over half an hour, the motion was voted down.

The sensation of the morning was caused by Mr. Tripp of Hennepin, who sent up a resolution to enforce the rules of the house against the admission of lobbyists to the floor for the rest of the session.

Mr. Penney, on behalf of his bill, made a strong speech in which he pointed out the cruelty of the present law, which provides that executions shall take place between midnight and sunrise, and further that so far as the provision of the present law prohibiting the publication of reports of executions was concerned, it had never been observed by any of the newspapers of the state.

After a lengthy discussion, in which the objections of the people of Stillwater to have all the executions take place at the penitentiary were enlarged upon at considerable length, the bill was defeated by a vote of 36 yeas to 44 nays.

Wednesday, April. 1.

SENATE

The committee on printing recommended the indefinite postponement of the resolution of Senator Leavitt providing for the asking of bids for the printing of the session laws. This report was signed by Senators Craven, Day and Eaton. Senators Hompe and Grafe dissented from the report.

The afternoon session of the senate, though spent entirely in the consideration of general orders, was productive of not a little interesting debate and action. Most of the time was spent on Senator Hompe's bill entitled "An act to prevent abuses of the right of the liberty of the press," but which Senator Crandall, in his remarks, styled "a blow at the liberty of the press." The bill as introduced provided that all articles and items of whatever nature which appeared in any newspaper should be signed by the writer.

John Day Smith offered an amendment excepting from the provisions of the bill all articles not reflecting upon any one's character.

Senator Lienau was about the only one who voted against the bill. It was almost unanimously recommended for passage.

HOUSE.

There were several important bills considered in the house yesterday, among the number being Mr. Tripp's bill to prevent corrupt practices at elections, the bill relating to foreclosures of chattel mortgages and the world's fair appropriation bill. This latter bill provided for a $100,000 appropriation, but it was cut down in committee of the whole to $75,000. The major part of the morning session was devoted to considering the reports of committees, a number of bills being reported back to the house.

Gov. Merriam's veto of the Pickerel lake bill was taken up, and by a very large majority the house sustained the veto.

A number of senate bills were given their first reading, among them being S. F. 609, Senator Hompe's railroad bill. Mr. Searle moved that the rules be suspended and the bill referred to the committee of the whole. Mr. Currier objected to this, and held that the bill should take its regular course and be referred to the railroad committee. There not being sufficient members present to suspend the rules the bill was referred to the railroad committee in the usual way. was next taken up and discussed at some length. The bill provides for an appropriation of $100,000 for the purpose of making a Minnesota state exhibit. On the motion of Mr. Bell it was amended so as to provide for the turning into the state treasury of all proceeds from any sale of the exhibits.

Mr. Bjorge said he believed $50,000 was as much as the state could afford at this time. If more was to be appropriated the money would have to be found.

A vote of Mr. Feig's amendment was taken, and it was carried by 48 in the affirmative and 43 in the negative.

The bill as amended was then recommended to pass by a vote of 48 to 43.

Thursday, April, 2.

SENATE.

The routine business of the senate was inordinately dull yesterday. Nearly the whole day was spent on general orders and it happened that no bills of particular interest to the general public were discussed. It was the same way with the calendar. Senator McMillan's automatic coupler and brake bill—the measure which provides that all cars and engines in the state must be equipped with couplers and brakes within four years—was referred to a committee consisting of Senators McMillan and Morse, the latter having discovered a provision which he thought needed modification. It will be reported back to-day, and being first on the calendar is likely to be passed. This was the most important bill on yesterday's list. The bill providing for the revision of the statutes under the direction of the attorney general went through without objection.

In the afternoon there was a little more animation in the senate over J. W. Peterson's bill amending the law regulating the sale and manufacture of baking powder and prepared foods, syrups and the like. After the bill had been amended by provisions requiring that all ingredients be shown on the labels the bill was recommeded for passage.

The joint resolution petitioning congress to establish a postal telegraph was favorably considered. This was one of Donnelly's pet schemes. Another bill of some interest was that of Senator Leavitt's, providing for the assessment and taxation of telephone and telegraph lines. The Currier bill from the house was substituted for this—it having practically the same provisions—and was then recommended for passage.

HOUSE.

The question of increasing the compensation of employes of the house came up, Mr. Feig calling up his resolution of March 24. This resolution provides for increasing the pay of the reading clerk, Robert Dakin, one of the best and most efficient officers of the house, to $8 per day.

Mr. Lomen offered an amendment raising Mr. Dakin's pay to $10 per day, and in support of his amendment Mr. Lomen made quite an effective speech.

The amendment of Mr. Lomen was then passed by a vote of 77 to 2, the objectors being Messrs. Knudson and Lewis.

Mr. Knudson called up his resolution authorizing the purchase of copies of the statutes for the use of state officers and it was adopted.

Mr. Doyle, in behalf of the Goodhue county delegation, reported back H. F. 1100, a local bill fixing the salaries of the county officers. On his motion the bill was passed under suspension of the rules.

Friday April. 3.

SENATE.

A resolution from Senator Stevens directing the insertion of maps of the new congressional apportionment in the legislative manuals not yet distributed was adopted.

In the order of committee reports Senators Day and Leavitt reported back the bill asserting the state rights to the Pickerel lake land with a substitute for everything after the enacting clause. The bill is a simple assertion of the claim of the state to the land in question.

The veterinary practice bill landed unexpectedly back in general orders. It was first defeated, 25 yeas to 23 nays, then reconsidered, and finally turned over to committee of the whole.

When the calendar was finished four bills were introduced by permission of the governor, and then adjournment was taken until 10 o'clock this morning.

HOUSE.

The Currier bill, H. F. 901, was the eighth in order on the calendar, and when it was reached there was a large house, only nine members being absent from their seats, namely: Messrs. Bowman, Campion, Coates, Doyle, Gallagher, Lloyd, Sinclair, Wacek and M. Walsh.

KILLING THE BILL.

After the bill had been read, Mr. Searle offered an earnest protest in behalf of Stearns county and the city of St. Cloud, the interest of which he believed would be injuriously affected by the bill, against the passage of this bill. Without further deliberation or discussion the roll was called on the passage of the bill, and it was defeated by eight votes.

There was quite a battle over the world's fair appropriation bill, made mainly by the Alliance members of the house. As this bill came up for consideration just after the Currier bill had been defeated, there was a faint suspicion existing that they were feeling sore and perhaps a little revengeful, but all who spoke disclaimed any such feeling. Nevertheless, they insisted upon the amount being cut down from $75,000 to $50,000, and as the author of the bill would not yield they defeated the bill altogether. Seeing this Mr. Reeve offered to accept $50,000, if the Alliance members agreed to pass the bill without opposition, which they consented to do, and the bill as amended was passed.

Mr. Reeve remained obdurate, and the roll was called on the bill, with the result of its being defeated by 50 negative votes to 41 affirmative,

Saturday, April 4.

SENATE.

A bill was passed allowing alliances the use of school houses for meetings.

The bill requiring all baking powder containing ammonia to be labeled as such.

Senator Donnelly's petition to congress for the establishment of a postal telegraph was passed.

HOUSE.

A motion was made to reconsider the vote by which the Currie bill had been defeated yesterday, the motion was lost.

The Hompe railroad bill, which was reported back by the railroad committee, was ordered to be placed on general orders, where Mr. Searle's bill now is, and the probability is that Senator Hompe's bill will be passed by the house.

The only other matter which excited any degree of interest in the house yesterday was the report of the judicary committee on the bill to regulate the sale of baking powders containing ammonia as one of the ingredients. The bill provides that all such powders shall bear a plain statement of their ingredients printed on each package. It is proposed to amend the bill by compelling all baking powders to be so labeled; and the bill was recommended to be indefinitely postponed by the committee. After a little discussion the bill was ordered to be placed on general orders.

Monday, April 6.

SENATE.

Two solid hours of the morning session were spent in the consideration of general orders, with Senator J. W. Peterson of Goodhue in the chair.

The report of the special senate committee on state's prison investigation was handed in at the opening of the afternoon session by Senator Sanborn, chairman of the committee. It was ordered printed without reading.

The remainder of the afternoon was spent on general orders. There was a discussion on Maj. Reeve's house bill providing for armories for the national guard. The bill puts the construction of armories jointly in the hands of the officers of the city or town where the company is located and the officers of the national guard, but the expense of course is to fall upon the public. The militiamen in the senate fought for the bill strenuously. Senators Tawney and Davis, as old officers and friends of the national guard, elaborated upon the usefulness of the militia and the value of the soldier boys in case of war or not. Messrs. Crandall and Keller were inclined to make sport of the bill and the militia companies, and the opposition developed so strongly that the friends of the bill were willing to draw off and "report progress."

HOUSE.

The house met at 2 o'clock to-day afternoon after its Sunday rest, and by way of making up lost time and striking a balance with its conscience adopted a resolution offered by Mr. Cross, which provides that commencing to-day and until the end of the session the house shall meet every morning at 9 o'clock and sit until 12:30, meet again at 2 and sit till 6 p. m., and meet again at 7:30 and sit until the house in its wisdom sees fit to adjourn. The resolution was carried by a vote of 34 to 11.

The house relegated the senate baking powder bill to the realms of futurity. It was introduced into the house, and Mr. Penney moved to have it sent to the judiciary committee. Mr. Career thought the temperance committee could handle the bill in better style. On the motion of Mr. Cross the house sent the bill to the committee on game and game laws.

A Senatorial Dandy.

Washington Correspondence New York Tribune: Here is the picture of the costume of a Southern senator, which should be preserved in the record of the fashions of the time. This senator wore on his head a small, soft black hat, well pulled over his eyes. His undercoat was dark green, made so as to button at the throat. Under that he wore a low-buttoned waistcoat, leaving a white, shiny triangle of the shirt bosom showing, upon which glowed coral studs. His trousers were a dark blue, with a light red stripe. These trousers were made absolutely skin-tight, like the trousers of the German officers. They came down snugly over a pair of low Oxford tie shoes tied with loose, wide ribbon laces. Over this morning costume he wore a drab-colored cloak lined with brown. The collar of the cloak was a light blue purple velvet. It was caught at the throat with two brass hasps of a character ponderous enough for fastening the back door of a stable. It was in this unique and altogether original attire that the senater was out paying his respects to various department officials.

A MEXICAN RAILWAY.

It Took an American to Make It Go, After All.

On the tramway between the towns of Zacatecas and Gaudalupe in Mexico, which are a few miles apart, the way from Zacatecas is down grade. The cars go at great speed by their own gravitation: no animals are attached, for the descent is as steep as a toboggan slide. It requires six mules, however, to draw each car back again. The animals are harnessed three abreast, like the horses in the Paris omnibuses.

Even the projectors of the tramway had no fixed idea as to how it should be operated, and an American overseer has been in charge from the beginning. The cars were ordered from Philadelphia, and while they were being built, the steel rails, which came from Liverpool by way of Vera Cruz, were laid down from one end of the route to the other. When the cars arrived, it would not run on the track, as the trails had been laid on a gauge three inches narrower than that for which the cars were designed. The Mexicans, in their ignorance, saw but one way out of the difficulty, that was to rebuild the cars, make the bodies narrower and cut off the axle-trees to fit the gauge of the rails.

The present superintendent, a practical American engineer, was in Zacatecas at the time and took in the state of affairs at a glance. He offered for $500 to show the owners how to get over the trouble without altering an article on the cars. The money was paid, and with twenty men and proper tools the American took up a few rods of the track, made a gauge for the rest, and in one day had the cars running over the short distance. The managers of the road at once put the American in charge, and he has held the position ever since.—San Francisco Examiner.

How He Won His Bride.

A tale is told of the great flood of June, 1889, which devastated the Susquehanna Valley at the same time the Johnstown calamity occurred. A well-to-do resident, whose house stood close to the river, had a beautiful daughter, whom a handsome young lumberman had been paying suit. For some reason the wooer did not find favor in the father's eyes, and he was forbidden to communicate with the girl. He continued his toil and patiently abided his time. A few days before the flood he started up the river to assist in bringing down the raft. The raft was duly started, but the water continued to rise to such an extent that it was deemed advisable to tie up. This was found out of the question, as the flood had covered the "snubbing posts," and so the raft drifted on, carried by the current.

Scores of untenanted houses were passed, and they soon approached the home of the young man's sweetheart. As they drew near they saw the whole family on the roof frantically beseeching for rescue. Aided by the current the crew guided the raft so that it just scraped the eaves of the house and with one accord the victims began to leap upon the modern ark. The lover, however, seeing that his sweetheart was safe, grasped the pike and refused to let the father on board, shouting:

"Will you give me Mary? Will you give me Mary?" The old man's face depicted woefully the inward strife between predjudice and self preservation, but meanwhile the raft was slipping past, and a moments hesitation would be fatal. "Take her," he yelled—the pike was withdrawn and he leaped aboard—"but," he continued, "if I ever get you in a hole like that, Bill, I'll drown ye."

The couple were married at Lock Haven.

Forgery Made Easy.

Forgeries are encouraged by the bad practices that have grown up in the commercial houses—the use of stylographic pens and aniline inks. Many large houses, recognizing the lack of character in a signature written with a stylographic pen, have discarded them altogether in signing cheques and papers of similar importance, and other firms require documents to be signed with a steel or quill pen. A stylographic signature is easily imitated, and when it comes to identifying the genuine signature a difficulty is met, arising from the effect of the movement on the essential characteristic features. Aniline inks are still more dangerous because they can be copied exactly by the use of copying pads.

Analogous.

The Boston Transcript reports a conversation between a little girl and her uncle, who is evidently addicted to quizzing:

"Uncle George," said Mattie, "papa says you were a private in the army. Is that something very grand?"

"No, Mattie, not exactly grand," answered Uncle George; with beaming modesty; "not grand, but a post of great responsibility. Mr. Halford is private secretary to President Harrison, and you know that is a position of distinction. Well, I was a private in the army. Do you see, my dear."

Tardy.

In politeness, as in quarrels, human language must often be taken in a Pickwickian sense. Some one reports, in the New York Herald, a bit of conversation between two gentlemen.

"Did she thank you for the seat?" said the first man—as if one ever needed to ask such a question about a lady!

"No," answered the other; "but after she had settled down in it, she smiled sweetly and begged me not to rise."

Gould is King.

Persons who come in contact with Jay Gould and the clique surrounding him are daily impressed with the rigid discipline enforced by the "Wizard of Wall Street" over his followers. Although there are men of millions interested with Mr. Gould in his great schemes, not one of them except Russel Sage, dare speak of what is going on without first consulting Mr. Gould. Mr. Sidney Dillion, a millionare, and by the grace of Gould, president of the Union Pacific Railroad, invariably responds to inquiries concerning the policy of the road with; "Well, now, you had better ask Mr. Gould about that." The same humble deference to the mighty man of millions prevails among the figure-heads in the Manhattan Elevated Railway, the Western Union, and the Pacific Mail Steamship Company. Russell Sage, it is true, often frees his mind with the frankness of a schoolboy, but on such occassions it is only necessary for Jay Gould to look Mr. Sage in the eye and ask: "Did you say that?" and Uncle Russell will promptly reply: "No, no; never said anything of the kind; certainly not, Mr. Gould."—New York Times.

"German Syrup"

The majority of well-read physicians now believe that Consumption is a germ disease. In other words, instead of being in the constitution itself it is caused by innumerable small creatures living in the lungs having no business there and eating them away as caterpillars do the leaves of trees.

A Germ Disease.

The phlegm that is coughed up is those parts of the lungs which have been gnawed off and destroyed. These little bacilli, as the germs are called, are too small to be seen with the naked eye, but they are very much alive just the same, and enter the body in our food, in the air we breathe, and through the pores of the skin. Thence they get into the blood and finally arrive at the lungs where they fasten and increase with frightful rapidity. Then German Syrup comes in, loosens them, kills them, expells them, heals the places they leave, and so nourish and soothe that, in a short time consumptives become germ-proof and well. ⊕

GEN. GRANT'S SPEECH.

A Story Which the Late Gen. Sherman Was Fond of Telling.

The following characteristic anecdote of Gen. Grant was told, and illustrated with exquisite humor, by Gen. Sherman at a little dinner:

"Grant and I were at Nashville, Tenn., after the battle of Chattanooga. Our quarters were in the same building.

"One day Grant came into the room that I used for an office. I was very busy, surrounded with papers, muster rolls, plans, spcifications, etc., etc. When I looked up from my work I saw he seemed a good deal bothered, and, after standing around awhile, with his shoulders thrown up and his hands deep down in his trousers pockets, he said:

"'Well?' I said,

"Looking more uncomfortable every minute, he went on:

"'They've got a sword they want to give me,' and looking over his shoulder and jerking his thumb in the same direction, he added:

"'Will you come in?'

"He looked quite frightened at the idea of going to face them alone, so I put some weights on my several piles of paper to keep them from blowing around and went into the next room followed by Grant, who by this time looked as he might if he'd been going to be courtmartialed. There we found the mayor and some members of the board of councilmen of Galena. On the table in the middle of the room was a handsome rosewood box containing a magnificent gold-hilted sword with all the appointments equally splendid.

"The mayor stepped forward and delivered what was evidently a carefully prepared speech, setting forth that the citizens of Galena had sent him to present to Gen. Grant the accompanying sword, not as a testimonial to his greatness as a soldier, but as a slight proof of their love and esteem for him as a man, and their pride in him as a fellow citizen.

"After delivering the speech, the mayor produced a large parchment scroll, to which was attached by a long blue ribbon a red seal as big as a pancake, and on which was inscribed a set of complimentary resolutions. These he proceeded to read to us, not omitting a single 'whereas' or 'hereunto.' And after finishing the reading he rolled it up and with great solemnity and ceremony handed it to Grant.

"Gen. Grant took it, looked ruefully at it and held it as if it burnt him. Mrs. Grant, who had been standing beside her husband, quietly took it from him, and there was dead silence for several minutes. Then Grant sinking his head lower on his chest and hitching his shoulders up higher, and looking thoroughly miserable, began hunting in his pockets, diving first in one and then in another, and at last said: 'Gentlemen, I knew you were coming here to give me this sword; and so I prepared a short speech,' and with a look of relief he drew from his trousers pocket a crooked, crumpled piece of paper and handed it to the mayor of Galena, adding, 'and gentlemen, here it is!'"

Carrying Home a Stovepipe.

"Well, I never expected to see that," said a Buffalo gentleman, walking up the avenue on a recent pleasant sunny day, as he called attention to a man on a bicycle. The man was at once recognized as a young married man who lived out some two miles or more. He had tied across his back a length of stovepipe and was thus enabled to carry his stovepipe and handle his bicycle freely at the same time. "There was not money enough in the business to have hired that man to ride the length of Delaware avenue five years ago with a length of stovepipe strapped on his back. Now he is a bicyclist, and I believe he would carry market supplies on his head if the bicycle customs favored it. Anything that he can do to prove to himself and his friends how mighty useful such a machine is, even for well-to-do householders like himself, he is ready for. Surely 'the tyrant custom' is a powerful leveler of superficial distinctions especially in bicycling."—Buffalo Commercial.

How Tall Chimney's Oscillate.

The extent or degree of the oscillation of tall chimneys may be exactly taken by a close observation of the shadow they cast upon the ground. An instance to the point is that of a chimney 115 feet high and four feet in diameter externally at the top, near Marseilles, France, the oscillations of which were observed by the shadow during a high wind to attain a maximum of over twenty inches.—Detroit Free Press.

NIGHT.

Come with thine unveiled worlds, O truth of night,
  Come with thy calm. Adown the shallow day,
  Whose splendors hid the vaster world away,
I wandered on this little plot of light,
A dreamer among dreamers. Veiled or bright,
  Whether the gold shower roofed me or the gray,
  I strove and fretted at life's feverish play,
And dreamed until the dream seemed infinite.

But now the gateway of the all unbars;
  The passions and the cares that beat so shrill,
    The giants of this pretty world, disband;
  On the great threshold of the night I stand,
Once more a soul self-cognizant and still,
Among the wheeling multitude of stars.

—ARCHIBALD LAMPMAN, in April Scribner.

WHO WAS FOOLED?

A group of young people were discussing a very knotty problem, apparently, but it was nothing more than the question how they should "make a fool" of a certain very wideawake young man on the First of April.

No threadbare trick would do. He was all eyes, and all his eyes were open. There would be great glory in duping him! Hard to catch, none laughed louder than he when he was caught.

All sorts of traps were proposed and rejected—a cotton-pie, a cornmeal-cake, salt for his coffee, sugar for his potatoes—all were too old and familiar.

But all agreed that it should relate to his eating, for he was noted for his good appetite. Indeed, he boasted of it on all possible occasions.

"I think it would surprise him more," said one bright girl, "to get up something really nice for him. That would be the last thing he would be looking out for from us. You know we always think anything for Bob Reed must be for a joke. Even at Christmas-time he got a jumping-jack, a penny whistle and a Bologny sausage, while we worked days making nice things for people we didn't like half so well."

"That's so! We wouldn't have any kind of a time at all in this dull town if it were not for Bob, with his wit and kind heart—"

"And his horse and buggy."

"Yes, indeed; or his bronco rather. Don't dignify that little creature with the name of horse. Dear me, girls! Shall we ever forget when he bought him?"

"Or with what fortitude we waited for him to be broken?"

"Or how he rode him up and down the street, and let him shake him off over his head for our entertainment?"

They went back to the question under consideration.

"But how shall we get him up something nice? It mustn't be anything nice to eat—he'd scent that a mile away."

"Oh, I have it" broke in the landlord's daughter. "Why didn't I think of that before? Why, his birthday's on the First of April! He says he has a good excuse for being a 'born fool.' Let's make him a nice, great big—party!"

"Capital!"

"Just the thing!"

There was general and enthusiastic agreement, and it was arranged that there should be a birth-day present which should be a real surprise.

Bob Reed was the hero of the village, and he knew it very well. Not that he had ever rescued any one from fire or a watery grave, but he had rescued many a picnic from failure, and many another pleasant village enterprise from collapse.

He pretended to be a martyr to his heroism, and to rebel against his popularity when he was wanted for a tableau, as was not unfrequently the case. Whether his protests were heartfelt or not, his services were always to be had.

Then, to compensate himself, perhaps, he made so much fun at the rehearsals by throwing in passages that were not in the book, overdoing his part, and making everybody laugh, than the girls pretended to be angry with him for making necessary so many rehearsals.

Once when they were practising a pantomime, and he was wanted for his part, he was nowhere to be found. Where could he have disappeared? They had left him safely stowed in a curtained corner of the stage. They were in the second story of the tall school-house, and there were no means of escape.

They stood in wonder. One girl mechanically looked out of the open window, the only possible exit from that corner; and there he hung, his hands grasping the window-sill—his only support! He swung himself up lightly, and promised not to do it again.

He was freight agent, express agent, telegraph operator and coal merchant all in one, and he was not twenty-one years old yet; but he was going to be.

He said that he and Curly were the same age. Curly was a black, kinky dog that he had adopted because no one else wanted him. Perhaps the dog had been handsome when he was younger and had two eyes; but he had long since outlived his beauty and his usefulness.

At any rate, the only possible use Curly could have been to his master, besides being a dependent and humble companion, was the ready excuse he furnished for buying extra baskets at basket-socials. Curly had to have lunches; he liked good things, and got so hungry between meals that an extra basket must be carried for Curly.

But if Curly could have talked, he would have told who else liked lunches, and who got the lion's share of the delicacies; although, as the old dog was so fat that he waddled instead of walked, probably he would have made no complaint.

The little village was soon thrown into a silent bustle. Quick feet sped silently on secret errands. Warning fingers were lifted in silent admonition whenever Bob's well-known figure, usually habited in his ridiculously comfortable plaid blouse, was seen approaching, be that just around the corner or a quarter of a mile away, oscillating between the heavens above and the pony beneath.

Knots of girls might be seen holding noiseless conversations—yes, really!—one moment, and dispersing in all directions the next, looking so very unconcerned and innocent that a far less observing personage than Mr. Bob Reed might have scented a conspiracy. But if Mr. Bob did suspect anything, he held his peace.

The First of April dawned, cloudy, sloppy and muddy. Mr. Bob Reed was not "caught" all day. The boys tried the usual hoaxes, but he would pick up no silver dollars, open no letters, and find no packages that had been conspicuously lost in the middle of the street.

He took a queer notion, that evening. He would scrub the waiting-room! It was muddy and must be cleaned; so he put on his rubber boots, donned a great apron which he called his Mother Hubbard wrapper, and began industriously to carry water.

Presently a young man appeared, and unconcernedly observed, "Oh, pshaw, Bob! I wouldn't scrub to-night. It'll be just as bad to-morrow."

"It's got to be done!" answered Bob, sententiously, going on with his preparations.

He had a grin on his face which would have "given anything away, Bob thought.

"See here! You're wanted—over at the hotel."

"Eh? Is that so?" answered Bob, poising his last pailful of water on the edge of the tub.

"A—a—somebody who wants to see you."

"Oh!" He poured the water into the tub with a terrific splash which sprinkled his visitor. "Somebody who can walk? Tell him to come over here."

The messenger carefully wiped the drops from his clothes with his freshly ironed and scented pocket-handkerchief.

"Sorry, Ed," said Bob; "it was careless of me—but you oughtn't to dress up so, for common occasions. You're getting to be a dude. But who is it who wants to see me? Why didn't he come himself?"

"He—can't very well come. He particularly requests your presence over there. He—didn't send any name. Business, I believe."

"Humph! very mysterious business, I should say. Well, I can go, I suppose." He picked up his hat.

"Oh! You're not going to wear that dress?"

"Why, I'll be back, I suppose?" What's the use to change?"

He started away, on a sweeping trot, followed by Curly.

The assembled guests saw the party of three—Bob, Curly and Ed—through small, temporary cracks at the sides of window-curtains, amid much silent dancing and doubling and noiseless clapping of hands.

Rushing into the room in his ordinary headlong way, Bob came to a sudden stop. He seemed to be astonished when he saw the big dining-room decorated to distraction and cleared for a party.

He begged pardon; he didn't mean to intrude, but some one had asked to see him—in the office, he supposed—and he was in a hurry, and the nearest way led through the dining-room.

He made as if to go on.

Such stamping and cheering and clapping of hands! Then some one suggested that he stay to the party, inasmuch as he was there.

"But—I didn't receive an invitation."

Then the noise had to be made over again. It took a great deal of explanation and very many assurances that he would not be in the way, to induce him to make one of the party. Then he excused himself to go to his room and "dress up a little," and sweepingly bowed himself out.

"Caught at last!"

"My! wasn't he surprised?"

"And didn't he take it well after he was caught?"

Mr. Bob Reed grinned all the way back to the office, all the time he was dressing, and half-way back to the party.

It was voted a grand success. The supper was excellent. There was no cotton pies nor frosted johnny-cakes. The present Bob received was not a tribute to his appetite, but a beautiful copy of Shakespeare, finely illustrated.

He accepted it with a modest and appropriate acknowledgment, and with feelings of genuine surprise that he endeavored not to show. Curly received a basket of lunch.

Nothing could have induced Bob to hint that he knew pretty nearly what was going on all the time. But some of the elders shrewdly suspected it, and catechised him. He merely grinned.

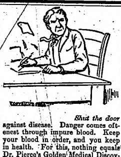
The girls said, "I don't believe it! He only acts that way to make believe, because he dislikes to admit that he was caught."

If the girls had presented him with a caricature of a present, in a mock speech, as some of them had proposed to do, undoubtedly he would have turned the table on them without mercy. But he merely said to himself. "Who would spoil the fun of the party, when they were doing all that, by being mean enough to know anything about it beforehand?"

And no one ever quite knew which was the April fool, Bob or the party; but they had a good time just the same.—Youth's Companion.

How a Princess Dresses.

Though the Princess of Wales is very simple in her attire at her home and when in the country, she yet thoroughly understands the art of magnificent dressing when it is required. She has taught women all over the world the beauty of simplicity, and the assumption of cottons has become more and more general every year because she approves of them. Very fond of both walking and driving it is not marvelous that the Princess has retained her beautiful complexion, and that, with her artistic knowledge, she is counted the best-dressed woman in England. Simplicity is the keynote to her attire, and it is by her influence that the well-made cloth gown and the small bonnet have retained their hold so long in the fasionable world. When she goes yachting, a simple blue serge gown, trimmed with white braid, and a cap on which the name of the royal yacht is painted, is the costume fancied by her and her daughters, and the one that permits them to have a thoroughly good time and enjoy the sea and the sea air as they wish to do.—The Ladies' Home Journal.



Shut the door against disease. Danger comes oftenest through impure blood. Keep your blood in order, and you keep in health. For this, nothing equals Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It invigorates the liver, purifies and enriches the blood, and rouses every organ into healthy action. By this means it cures. Every part of the system feels its saving influence. Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Biliousness, Scrofulous, Skin and Scalp Diseases—even Consumption (or Lung-scrofula) in its earlier stages, all yield to it. It's the only Liver, Blood and Lung Remedy that's guaranteed to benefit or cure, or the money is refunded. Trying terms to sell on—but it's a medicine that can carry them out.

"Golden Medical Discovery" contains no alcohol to inebriate, and no syrup or sugar to derange digestion.

It's a concentrated vegetable extract; put up in large bottles; pleasant to the taste, and equally good for adults or children.

The Art of Story Telling.

The habit of telling stories is apt to grow into a vice. It is easy enough for a bright man to raise a laugh and aid in the entertainment of a company by the relation of some bright incident, but unhappily he is apt to degenerate into a monopolizer of conversation. Some one once defined a bore to the man who persists in talking about himself when you want to talk about yourself. There is a good deal in this, even when the desire is not to be so personal as one's own affairs. It is only human to desire to have a fair share of the conversation as of every other social privilege. I sat at the table of a very cultivated family living in the east, and only a few months since.

Among the guests at the dinner was a professional story teller with a wife who knew exactly when to make a suggestion, and played foil for him from the soup to the walnuts. After the meal the men went into the smoking room, and I complimented this gentleman upon his marvelous memory. At that he produced a small memorandum book in which were notes sufficient to suggest every story he knew. In other words he had a repertory, and deliberately selected the stories best suited for each occasion, thus monopolizing the attention of the company and ruining the conversation.—Detroit Free Press.

A Finger Nail Sixteen Feet Long.

The question of whether Chinese finger nails will come into general use as articles of jewelry is one which interests shell and precious stone dealers. The Chinese judge their gentlemen as Americans do their idlers—by their long finger nails. A reporter has seen among the heirlooms of a heavy weight merchant in Chinatown a nail which attained the great length of thirteen inches, and the Chinaman's grandfather was reported by the merchant to have raised one eighteen inches long on the index finger of his left hand. The merchant at that time said there was nothing wonderful about that, as he knew a Chinese priest who had a nail on the little finger of his left hand which was sixteen feet and some inches in length, and the priest was then but 68 years of age.—San Francisco Letter.

A cough or cold is a spy which has stealthily come inside the lines of health and is there to discover some vulnerable point in the fortification of the constitution which is guarding your well-being. That point discovered the spy reports it to the enemy on the outside. The enemy is the changeable winter climate. If the cold gets in, look out for an attack at the weak point. To avoid this, shoot the spy, kill the cold, using SCOTT'S EMULSION of pure Norwegian Cod Liver Oil and Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda as the weapon. It is an expert cold slayer, and fortifies the system against Consumption, Scrofula, General Debility, and all Anæmic and Wasting Diseases (specially in Children). Especially helpful for children to prevent their taking cold. PEOPLE IN PRINT.

Edmund Dehault de Pressense, the well known French Protestant pastor and writer, is dead in Paris. He was the author of a large number of religious works.

Gen. Horace Porter has been selected to deliver the oration on the occasion of breaking ground, on April 27, for the memorial of Gen. Grant in New York.

William Gillemy, an English actor of some prominence, and who is said to have first sung the "Wearing of the Green" in this country, died at New York recently.

Hon. James Fitz James Stephen, the justice of the queen's bench division of the high court of justice, whose mind is said to have become impaired, owing to the annoyance and worry he was subject to during and after the trial of the celebrated Maybrick poisoning case at Liverpool, will at once retire from the bench.

CASUALTIES.

The St. Augustine (Fla.) gas works have been destroyed by fire. Loss, $65,000. The town is in darkness at night.

At Madison, Ind., George Venable, while bathing his feet, attached a galvanic battery to the water, hoping to cure his rheumatism. The most horrible results followed and he died in great agony.

Richmond W. Hull, aged thirty-three, and Charles J. Hull, aged forty-one, were struck by a Washington express train, seven miles from Baltimore. Richmond was instantly killed, and Charles fatally injured. Both men were traveling musicians.

Capt. Lord, of the schooner Eva Adell, reports having rescued Capt. Moore and four sailors from an open boat off Boone island, Me., recently. The men belonged to the schooner Nellie A. Walker, bound for Gardiner, Me., with coal, which foundered in a gale.

Two-thirds of the town of Gretna has been submerged by water from the Ames crevasse, a hastily constructed levee had been built with the view of protecting the town from overflow, it could not stand the pressure of water against it. Many of the people from the overflowed section are moving to New Orleans.

WICKEDNESSES.

Andrew Todt, Michael Sobal and George Rusnock, the three Hungarians convicted of the murder of Michael Quinn, who was killed in the labor riot at Carnegie's works at Braddock, Pa., last New Year's day, have been sentenced to death.

At Fort Worth, Tex., L. B. Imboden, the young financier has pleaded guilty in two of the cases of forgery and embezzlement brought against him and was given five years in the penitentiary. The other cases were dismissed.

Near Middlesboro, Ky., Adam Legre, of Clayborne county, Tennessee, shot and killed Linsey Leach, a miner. They had quarreled over a woman, and engaged in a fight with pistols. Legre was untouched, but Leach received a bullet through the abdomen.

Developments in the supposed fiendish murder of Alexander Snyder, an old citizen of Goshen, Ind., show that his death was caused by rats. The old man fell on the floor in a stupor and the rats attacked him, tearing off the flesh and mutilating the face shockingly.

N. O. Hollingsworth, receiver in the Austin, (Tex.) land office under Commissioner Hall during Gov. Ross' administration, has been arrested. Hollingsworth was indicted by the grand jury for embezzlement and misappropriation of public funds. His alleged defalcation was $13,000.

On the strength of a dispatch from Detroit the government special agents at Chicago recently arrested on an incoming train Long Gim and Lung Gon, Chinamen who had managed to smuggle themselves into the United States from Canada. Lung Gon protests that he had been in the United States for many years.

FOREIGN.

A furious religious and political fight is promised in Canada over the Manitoba nonsectarian school law.

It is officially announced that the assassins of Bulgarian Minister Baltcheff have been arrested.

The ceremony of piercing the dam of the North Sea canal took place at Kiel recently. Emperor William made the breach.

The amount of duties collected on Chinese at the port of Vancouver, B. C., for last month was $3,031, a decrease of $1,637 from the amount for the same month in 1890.

A cablegram from London to the Maritime exchange New York, says the British steamer Marchioness, Capt. Baker, from New York, March 4 for Odessa and Constantinople, has been towed into Lisbon with her machinery disabled.

The socialists at Dresden are determined to put a stop to the police persecution to which they have been for some time past subjected, and have given notice that any police officer infringing upon their legal rights will be prosecuted to the extent of their ability. Money is being raised for that purpose.

SPORTING TRIFLES

A six-day bicycle race, two hours each day, for a gold medal and the championship of the state began at Lincoln, Neb. There are six entries.

Bob Fitzsimmons says that the fight with Hall will take place at Astoria, Or., in July for $17.000. The loser is to be paid $2,000 and each man is to put up $1,000. Hall will be in Chicago April 15.

Billy Nally of Washington and Walter Campbell of Philadelphia, light-weights, fought with two-ounce gloves at about eight miles from the former city for a small purse. Campbell won in ten rounds.

The German emperor has purchased the famous Scotch cutter Thistle and renamed it the Meteor. The yacht will compete for the queen's cup at Cowes, off the Isle of Wight, in June.

LABOR CIRCLES

Brickmakers to the number of 1,200 went out on a strike at Trenton, N. J., refusing to accept a 20 per cent. reduction in wages.

The electrotypers' strike in Boston has been satisfactorily settled, and soon every union electrotyper will be in his old place. The union will maintain its apprentice laws and the employers have promised to make satisfactory arrangements in regard to wages.

Nearly all the firms in Chicago employing lathers have agreed to pay the increased wages demanded by the strikers, and the men are returning to work.

A strike of all the switchmen employed by the Missouri & Burlington, in Lincoln, Neb., some sixty-five in number, was inaugurated.

In Philadelphia, as a result of the lockout of the puddlers the men in the finishing department of the Pencoyd Iron works, to the number of 400 have struck work.

Great preparations are being made by the St. Louis central trades and labor unions for the proposed great May day demonstration and demand for shorter hours and more pay.

At Lynn, Mass., the morocco workers have abandoned their strike, which began last August and affected 15,000 men at one time. The strike is a total failure. This is practically a deathblow to the Knights of Labor in Lynn.

In Chicago about 400 lathers have gone out on a strike for an advance in wages, and if their demands are not generally granted those remaining, making about 1,000 in all, will stop work. It is thought that the employers will give in.

The spinners employed by the Jesse Eddy Manufacturing company, Fall River, Mass., recently made a demand for an increase in wages from $1.25 to $1.35. The company refused and the spinners struck. The officials at the Cornell mill refused to take back the weavers who struck several days ago.

POLITICAL.

The result of the late election at Detroit is held in doubt by the slowness with which the returns come in, but it is pretty generally conceded by all save the Democratic managers that the Republicans have returned their candidates by about 5,000 majority.

All over Nebraka municipal elections were held under the new law, which embraces the Australian plan of voting. Reports from nearly every city and village in the state indicate that the law is one of the best ever devised. Returns so far show general resumption of power by the Republicans where party lines were drawn. In most of the towns the question was between license and no license, and the vote mainly resulted in favor of a license.

RAILROADS.

The gross earnings of the Canadian Pacific from Jan. 1 to Feb. 23 were $2,703,715 and the net profits $660,545.

Surveys are now being made by the Canadian Pacific in the Rocky mountains for the purpose of diverting its line some 150 miles south of where it is at present located.

It is stated at Winnipeg that the Northern Pacific has offered to sell out its whole system in Manitoba to the Canadian Pacific railroad. There is a probability that the offer will be accepted.

The Northern Steamship company, which connects solely with the Union Transit company, now forms a through canal and lake line from New York to West Superior, Duluth, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Stillwater and all points west, northwest and southwest.

The competition among the fast freight lines to secure a shipment from Topeka of thirty cars of flour to London and European ports have resulted in a cut under the regular rates. One line, a lake and rail line, cut nine cents. Then the Empire line slipped in and met the latter cut by the all-rail route. It captured the business. The fast freight line men say this is only a sample of cut rates to the seaboard, the regular rate being the exception.

At the annual election of the Southern Pacific company the old board of directors were re-elected, as follows: C. P. Huntington, Leland Stanford, Colonel Charles F. Crocker, S. T. Gage, A. N. Towne, J. Stubbs, W. E. Brown, W. V. Huntington, Thomas E. Stillman and Thomas H. Hubbard. The selection of this board of directors insures, it is stated, the re-election of President Huntington. The latter presented a report of the year's work, and spoke favorably of the year's business and of prospects during the coming year.

IN GENERAL.

The twenty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the G. A. R. is celebrated.

Seeding is becoming quite general in the Northwest, under favorable conditions.

A man at Detroit goes a full week without sleep.

Philadelphia's new mayor gives the police department ten days to get out of politics or out of the city's employ.

The 2,600 members of the Grand Army of the Republic in Maryland recently celebrated the foundling of the order twenty-five years ago.

The report of the special Pennsylvania legislative committee appointed to inquire into the existence of an alleged school book trust, declares that there exists no organization in the school book publishing trade which can fairly be called a trust.

The Kansas legislature failed to make an appropriation for the world's fair, but members of the Kansas state board of agriculture propose to expend $150,000 for an exhibit, and expect to be re-imbursed out of the state's share of the direct tax.

The Colorado house has unanimously passed the senate bill appropriating $100,000 for the purpose of making an exhibit of Colorado's resources at the world's fair. The bill will go to the governor, and undoubtedly will be approved.

One hundred and sixty-two ostriches at the California ostrich farm near Anaheim were sold at private sale recently for $6,000. The birds were assessed at $11,000, and are claimed to be worth $30,000. The buyers are a local company of capitalists and speculators.

SEVEN DISTRICTS.

How the State is to Be Redistricted When the New Craig Bill Becomes a Law.

Tables Showing the Population of the Counties in the Districts and the Total Vote.

One of the most important pieces of legislation which has been accomplished by the present legislature is the redistricting of the state into congressional district, to conform to the act of congress by which Minnesota is to have seven instead of five congressmen. This bill has not yet become a law, but its form has been agreed upon and it will probably be passed without a dissenting vote. The basis of the bill is the population according to the census of 1890. The accompanying map gives a clear idea of the districts as they will be under the new regime. There is no change in the First district, except that Waseca county is added to it. The Second district has Chippewa county added, but loses Waseca, Sibley and Le Sueur counties. The Third district loses Chippewa, Kandiyohi and Swift counties and has added Le Sueur and Sibley. The identity of the Fourth and Fifth districts is lost entirely. Hennepin county is put into a district by itself. Ramsey has added to it Washington, Chisago, Isanti and Kanabec, these constituting the proposed new Fourth district. The irregular appearance of the Fourth district is accounted for by the fact that the Anoka people objected to being placed in this district, claiming that their interests were more nearly identical with those of the Sixth district than those of the Fourth.

POPULATION BY DISTRICTS.

The following tables give the names of the counties comprising each district as named in the bill, together with the population:

VOTE BY DISTRICTS.

The following table shows the total congressional vote in 1890, by congressional districts as proposed:

First District	34,500
Second district	34,270
Third district	36,834
Fourth district	28,946
Fifth district	31,544
Sixth district	34,817
Seventh district	35,754

From this table it will be seen that the reapportionment, on the basis of congressional vote, is not nearly so equal as it appears by the population basis. The widest variation between any two districts in population is only 3,905, while in congressional vote there is a variation of 7,888.

THE GAME LAWS.

They Will Probably Undergo a Very Thorough Reconstruction.

Below is given a synopsis of a bill—H. F. No. 996—introduced by the special committee on game and game laws, which has been recommended for passage in the house, and will in all probability pass both houses and become a law. As will be seen, it makes some radical changes in the game laws of the state. The main provisions of the bill are as follows:

Section 1 provides for the creation of a board of game and fish commissioners, of five members, who shall serve without compensation, to be appointed by the governor, for the term of six years each.

Section 2 provides for the appointment of the members in such a manner that only two of the board shall retire every two years.

Section 3 provides that it shall be the duty of the said board of game and fish commissioners to propagate and distribute food fishes and to keep up the supply thereof in the various waters of the state, and to secure the enforcement of all the laws of this state for the preservation, propagation and protection of the game and fish of the state. They shall appoint some person, a resident of the state, as game warden, who shall act as secretary and business agent of said board, who shall hold his office for the term of two years; and said board shall have power to appoint deputy game wardens, who shall be residents of the state, in number not exceeding four, and who shall hold their offices for the like term of two years; and said board may at any time remove any of said wardens and appoint another in his place for the unexpired term. The compensation of said warden and deputy wardens shall be fixed by the board, and said board shall further have the power to appoint at any time a special game warden for any county in the state, for such period of time as they may in their discretion determine.

Section 4 provides for the collection of statistics, specimens, etc., and for the compilation of an annual report.

Section 5 makes it the duty of the board to select locations in different parts of the state for the establishment of stations for breeding fish, for the purpose of stocking the waters of the state with good fish; they shall conduct such experiments at these stations as they deem best to serve the interests of the state; they may institute and prosecute actions and proceedings in the name of the board; the board shall employ a superintendent of fisheries, who shall devote his entire time to the work of fish propagation and distribution under the direction of the board. The salary of the superintendent of fisheries shall not exceed the sum of $2,000 per annum. All property owned or leased by said board shall be exempt from taxation.

Sec. 6. No person shall at any time acquire any property in any game or fish within the State of Minnesota, or subject any of the same to his own dominion or control, save only by killing the same within the periods and by the means permitted by the laws of the state, and, except as permitted by such laws, the game and fish within the state be and remain the property of the state.

Section 7 permits killing woodcock between July 4 and Nov. 1; prairie chickens or white breasted or sharp-tailed grouse, quail, pheasant, partride or ruffed grouse during September and October; wild duck, wild goose, brant, snipe or other aquatic fowl from Aug. 25 to April 25. Possession of such game is considered prima facie evidence of killing the same.

Section 8 prohibits use of traps, snares and similar devices, or decoys except for ducks, wild geese and brant. All birds must be shot with a gun.

Section 9 prohibits hunting with dogs or hounds any elk, deer, moose, buck, doe, fawn or antelope at any time, and prohibits killing such game except during November. No person shall take, kill or worry any moose, reindeer or caribou within five years after passage of this bill.

Section 10 prohibits killing such game except with a gun.

Section 11 provides for punishment of any person, firm or corporation having in his possession the animals named during the close season.

Section 12 applies similar penalties to railroad and express companies shipping such game during close season.

Sec. 13. No person shall enter growing grain, nor hunt nor shoot on private property without obtaining permission.

Section 14 allows any person to kill any dog while such dog is in pursuit of game contrary to this act.

Sec. 15. Game wardens are permitted to burn or destroy fish houses, traps or net lines found in use during the close season.

Section 16 prohibits killing mink, muskrat, otter or beaver between May 1 and Nov. 1 following, unless such animals are destroying private property.

Section 17 prohibits taking speckled, river or brook trout except from April 1 to Oct. 1 following.

Section 18 prohibits taking fish in counties where now prohibited or during the months of March and April.

Section 19 prohibits use of any device for catching speckled, river or brook trout except hook and line. No person except a fish commissioner shall take fish except whitefish and fish in Lake Superior except by angling or with a spear.

Section 20 prohibits breaking up nests or taking eggs of woodcock, snipe, quail, partridge, ruffed grouse, prairie chicken, pheasant, plover, wild duck, grouse or brant.

Sec. 21. No person shall kill, cage or trap any whippoorwill, night hawk, bluebird, finch, thrush, lark, linnet, wren, martin, swallow, bobolink, robin, turtle-dove, cat-bird, or any other harmless bird not elsewhere mentioned in this act, except black birds, sparrows and wild pigeons.

Sec. 22. No person shall sell or keep game or fish during prohibited season.

Sec. 23. Parties having game or fish prohibited during close season, shall turn the same over to a fish or game warden or to constable.

Sec. 24. Game warden or officer of the law may seize game or fish taken during close season.

Sec. 25. Prohibits wanton destruction of game at any season.

Sec. 26. Any participant in the violation of the law may turn state's evidence.

Sec. 27. Fishways shall be under the control of the commission.

Sec. 28. Fishways shall be put in by any one building dams across streams where fish go up during the spawning season.

Sec. 29. Commissioners may order changes in such fishways, and they shall be kept open from April 1 to Oct. 1 following.

Sec. 30. Prohibits catching fish within 400 feet of of any fishway.

Sec. 31. Fines collected under the act shall go to the credit of the board, in the state treasury.

Sec. 32. Authorizes the board to buy animals, fish, spawn or eggs for stocking fields or waters of the state.

Sec. 33. Appropriates $10,000 to carry out the provisions of the act.

Sec. 34. Sections 103, 104, 105 and 106 of chapter 6 of the General Statutes of 1878, and chapter 20 of the General Statutes of 1878, and chapters 205, 206 and 207 of the General Laws of 1889 are hereby repealed.

Sec. 35. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

The act provides appropriate penalties for the punishment of misdemeanors as stated in the various sections.

A CLEVER LAWYER.

Walter Besant Tells a Lawyer's Clever Trick.

Has this story ever appeared in print? If so, I have never seen it, and I tell it as it was told to me. A certain young Russian, of good family, fell in love with a village girl, whom he wished to marry. His father, objecting on the ground of social disparity, made arrangements by which the girl was betrothed to a young peasant of her own class. Now, it is the custom in some parts of Russia for the bridegroom and his friends to begin drinking early in the day of the marriage, so that when the time comes for the church ceremony the groom has often to be led to the altar and supported by a friend on either hand. This happened on the morning of the marriage of the girl. The bridegroom was led to the altar supported by two men, of whom one was the young gentleman himself.

Now mark his craft and subtlety. When the time came for joining hands, he put out his own hand, the groom being too far gone to notice anything, and so was joined in matrimony to the girl. The certificate of the marriage had already been written in the register before the ceremony, a precaution obviously necessary. The wedding over, the young noble took the girl from her people at the church door, drove her away and took her to Paris, where they lived together in love and amity for several years. Then the father died, and it became necessary to return to Russia, and, if possible, for the sake of the children, to get the marriage duly acknowledged. This business was intrusted to a lawyer, who visited the village and saw the register. He returned, stating that it was impossible, because the marriage was entered in the books as between the rustic and the girl. Being, however, assured that something must be done, he returned, got possession of the register, and clumsily erased the name of the rustic bridegroom. This done he—at this point you ask what he did, and everybody says, "Filled in the other name." No he did not; he wrote again over the erasure the name of the village swain. Consider this for one moment. You will acknowledge that he was a very clever lawyer, indeed.—Manchester Times.

ONE WOMAN'S QUESTIONS.

They Sufficed to Make Six Men Risk Their Souls.

A woman wearing a mackintosh and carrying an umbrella stood at the ticket window at the Barclay Street Ferry the other day. Six men were behind her in line. A boat was due to leave in about two minutes.

"Do boats leave here for Hoboken?" she asked, and the man inside answered "Yes."

"How long will it be before the next one leaves?"

"About a minute," was the reply.

"Does the boat go straight to Hoboken?" asked the woman.

"Yes," said the ticket seller.

"How long could I wait in Hoboken before there was another boat back?" asked the woman, while the men behind her grew nervous rapidly.

"As long as you please," said the patient ticket seller: "they are going and coming all the time."

"Could I get from Hoboken to Jersey City without coming back here?"

"Yes; street cars run regularly," was the answer.

"Would it be quicker to go by a car or come back and take a ferry to Jersey City?" she asked.

"I don't know," was the answer. Then the ticket seller asked impatiently, "How many?"

"How many what? asked the woman.

"Tickets. How many tickets do you want?"

The bell was ringing for the boat to move, and the men in line were swearing.

"I don't wan't any tickets," she said. "My sister lives in Hoboken, and if I thought I had time to go and see her and call on my brother's folks in Jersey City I was going over tomorrow."—New York Times.

An Apt Reply.

A certain queen of Hanover once upon a time when traveling, stopped at an inn called "The Golden Goose." She remained two days to rest herself and retinue, and receive such entertainment as was needed, and for the same was charged three hundred thalers.

On her departure the landlord besought her with obsequious deference to favor him with her patronage on her return.

"If you desire that, mein lieber Mann," replied her majesty, "you must not again take me for your sign."—Harper's Bazar.

A FIGHT FOR BLOOD.

Bloody Fight at Bradford, England, Between the Police and Militia and Thousands of Strikers.

Many of the Strikers Seriously Injured by Bayonet Thrusts, Several of the Policeman Also Hurt.

LONDON, April 14.—Ten thousand of the striking weavers at Bradford assembled at that place to-day for the purpose of protesting against the action of the municipal authorities in forbidding the meeting which the strikers had arranged for yesterday.

The police vainly tried to disperse the gathering, but their repeated charges on the crowd proved futile. The riot act was read, and the military were then summoned. The soldiers upon their arrival at the scene joined forces with the police, and a combined charge was made upon the ranks of the stubborn strikers.

A fierce struggle ensued, but the strikers were unable to resist the increased force, and were compelled to retreat before the bayonets and batons. The police used their batons very freely, and many of the strikers were injured.

A score of arrests were made. All the prisoners had gashes on their heads from stones or police batons and many police were injured, but no one had bayonet wounds. Detective Martingale received six cuts on the head and his horse was killed under him by a stab.

It is probable that the strikers will attempt to hold another meeting to-morrow and that the scenes witnessed to-day will be renewed.

WILL BACK THE MINERS.

President Gompers Says the Strike for Eight Hours Is a Foregone Conclusion.

PITTSBURG, April 14.—Samuel Gompers, exponent of the eight-hour work day and leader of the forces of the Federation of Labor, is in the city. Mr. Gompers said today:

"I find that wage workers in cities west of the Mississippi are organized in greater proportion than those in the east. At many points the demand of workers for the eight-hour day has been conceded or has been adjusted by conference. In Chicago and Columbus carpenters have arranged their differences amicably.

"As for the miners, their strike is now a foregone conclusion. It will be a strike which will astonish the operators. They asked very little of operators—no advance in pay at all—and it seems strange that the latter should adopt such arbitrary and unbusiness-like tactics. They talk of money necessary to carry on such a controversy; we've got it and will get more, and all that is necessary."

Mr. Gompers will hold several important conferences while here. Upon one of these depends considerably the future attitude of the leading strikers in the coke regions.

A special from Scottdale says there was unusual activity all along the line to-day owing to the fact that the Frick and McClure companies had decided to begin operations at all points possible. Some twenty eviction notices have been served at the Trotter plant alone, and, in view of the fact that fully 200 notices have been served throughout the region, it is thought trouble will come when the warrants are carried out, as the strikers will certainly not go peaceably. Great mass meetings have been held at Bessemer and other points to-day and at each resolutions were adopted to remain out until the end.

MURDER AND PILLAGE.

IQUIQUE, April 15.—What is occurring in this unfortunate port is something unheard of, and it leads one to believe that no civilized beings live here. Vagabonds are robbing, plundering, murdering, violating women and committing all classes of atrocities, while incendiaries are also engaged in their operations of destruction and pillage.

The triumph of the rebels on the 7th was decisive, and Balmaceda's troops were knocked to pieces. After losing all their cannon, rifles and ammunition, only a few officers and soldiers escaped. The people, who are without work, are suffering fearfully, and hundreds of them have abandoned the nitrate works, only carrying bottles of water, and, accompanied by their families, have wearily trudged across the desert down to Iquique, on the coast. The scene is of a nature which hardly finds an equal in the history of war and revolt, and is due to the nature of the country and the class of work there carried on. Many have died on the way to Iquique, and their bones will mark for many a day the roads to the now abandoned nitrate producing factories.

MURDERED BY INDIANS.

Two Unknown Emigrants Killed by Indians in Idaho.

BLACKFOOT, Idaho, April 14.—Great excitement was caused to-day by a discovery that Indians have killed two unknown white emigrants who were camped at a water tank one mile below this place.

Nothing could be learned as to the cause of the tragedy. There were no eye-witnesses. The bodies of the emigrants were found dead at the tank, and a number of Indians were seen taking to the hills east of here. An uprising is feared. Indian Agent Fisher, who was at Pocatello, was telegraphed for and came up on a special train. Deputy Sheriff Ross left immediately for the scene and took charge of the bodies, leaving an armed posse on guard.

Business is suspended and the citizens are up in arms. About 100 armed mounted men have left the city to overtake the guilty parties. Should the Indians refuse to surrender trouble is sure to follow, as the posse are determined men. Not an Indian was to be found in the city an hour after the affair. The governor and adjutant general have been telegraphed to in regard to the affair.

Went Away With a Widow.

ST. CLOUD, Minn., Special, April 14.—Quite a sensation was caused here to-day when it became known that Henry Branch, proprietor of the Grand Union hotel and a man of considerable wealth, had eloped with Mrs. Hart, a widow. Branch took with him about $4,000 in cash, and before he left made numerous debts with clothing merchants. He leaves a wife and a family of grown-up children.

Passed Through a Cyclone.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., April 14.—Two sleeping coaches running from the City of Mexico, San Antonio and Washington, D. C., via the Mexican National, have reached here in a dilapidated condition. The Mexican train to which they were attached passed through a cyclone and hail storm near Torreon, Mex., Saturday night. So large were the hailstones that the headlight of the engine and every pane of glass on one side of the train of cars were smashed as if they had been struck by rocks. Several persons in the day coaches were injured, and a Mexican at Torreon station was killed.

MAY BE TRIED FOR HERESY.

Rev. Charles A. Briggs' Address Referred to a Committee.

NEW YORK, April 14.—The spring meeting of the New York presbytery was begun to-day, and the nomination of representatives to the general assembly, to be held in Detroit next, was proceeded with. Rev. Charles B. Briggs, D. D., of Union Theological seminary, was nominated as representative, and with others was elected without any opposition.

"Whereas, the address of Rev. Dr. Charles A. Briggs, Jan. 20, 1891, on the occasion of his inauguration as incumbent of Edward Robinson chair of Biblical theology in Union Theological seminary, has been criticised as containing statements contrary to the teaching and spirit of the confession of faith, a committee be appointed to which said address shall be referred, with instructions to report at the meeting in May what action, if any, may be appropriate in relation thereto."

The resolution was unanimously passed. Since the time of Prof. Briggs' inauguration the hottest kind of a theological dispute has been conducted in presbyteries and in the columns of religious newspapers. In debates Prof. Briggs has received some very hard knocks and considerable abuse. Dr. Briggs has not, however, been without his defenders. There is no question in the minds of many Presbyterians that there are ample grounds for an investigation. To this end are quoted such passages from Prof. Briggs' address on "The Authority of Holy Scriptures" as:

"I shall venture to affirm that, so far as I can see, there are errors in the Scriptures that no one has been able to explain away, and the theory that they were not in the original text is sheer assumption, upon which no mind can rest with certainty. * * * We find there are errors of transmission (of the Scriptures). There is nothing divine in the text—in its letters, words or clauses. * * * The Bible, as a book, is paper, print and binding, nothing more."

LOOKS RATHER DUBIOUS.

Indications That the Western Traffic Association Will Go Under.

CHICAGO, April 14.—There is considerable speculation as to whether the Missouri Pacific will be represented at the meeting of the advisory board of the Western Passenger association to be held here to-morrow.

Jay Gould is in the Southwest, and has not signified his intention of being present, while Vice President S. H. H. Clark is in Portland, Or. These are the only two officials that, under the agreement, can represent the Missouri Pacific in the advisory board, and the indications are that the meeting is to be ignored by that company. If this proves to be the case, it can mean nothing less than the dissolution of the association at an even earlier date than was generally believed.

Charges of rate-cutting recently against the Missouri Pacific were to be answered at the next meeting, and it is concluded that Gould has no intention of submitting to the rulings of the board.

THEIR BOAT CAPSIZED.

WINONA, Minn., Special, April 14.—Two gentle from Prairie du Chien were drowned in the Mississippi river a short distance above the city Sunday. Four Prairie du Chien gentlemen left in two boats with a camping outfit, heading for the island above the city.

In the first boat were W. J. Kennedy, alderman of the First ward, and Joseph Ducharme. In the second boat were William Deary, an employe of the Milwaukee road, and William Nelson, a barber. The gentlemen in the First boat, on looking back after a time, could not see their companions, and on going back to find them ran across the upturned boat. The boat is supposed to have been capsized by the heavy waves. The bodies have not yet been recovered.

DEFYING THE LAW.

Alien Labor Imported by Large Concerns in Omaha.

CHICAGO, April 14.—Special Immigration Agent Lester arrived here to-day. He is preparing a voluminous report for Secretary Foster.

"I have just returned from Omaha," said he, "and I can promise you a sensation in ten days. I have been making investigations there and have evidence that the contract alien labor law has been and is being grossly violated. Certain large concerns there that employ a large number of men have been importing alien labor in direct defiance of the law. It will be a big surprise, as the concerns implicated are known all over the world and have a reputation for honesty that has been unquestioned. There are also several other cities where investigation has proved that the law is being violated, but in no place are the cases so flagrant as in Omaha."

MURDERED BY BURGLARS.

Wanton Shooting of a Maryland Man and His Wife.

LANCASTER, Pa., April 14.—A terrible murder occurred in Cecil county, Maryland, near the Lancaster county (Pennsylvania) line early this morning. Granville Richards and wife were aroused by the presence of two men in their room. On Mrs. Richards arousing she was shot in the neck, and Mr. Richards, upon going to her rescue, was shot twice in the stomach. Both will die. The two murderers escaped. Mr. Richards is connected with the customs house in Baltimore.

Died During His Honeymoon.

WILMINGTON, Del., April 14.—Count Lewenhaupt, who married Miss Bayard April 2, died this morning of typhoid fever, after two days' illness. Count Lewenhaupt was a member of a noble family of Sweden, but having chosen to make his home in the United States preferred to be considered as a private individual, and, it is said, requested his friends to drop his title when addressing him. He was a very popular man in society circles, and his marriage with Miss Bayard was considered an extremely happy one. Interment will be made in the Bayard family vault in Old Swede's Episcopal churchyard.

Two Buildings Burned.

ELIZABETH, N. J., April 14.—The First National bank and the Arcade buildings were destroyed by fire to-day. The Arcade contained the postoffice, district court room, telephone station and a large number of stores and offices. The mail was saved, but a large number of stamps and postal cards were destroyed. The total loss is $250,000. There were several narrow escapes from death.

Nearly Killed a "Searcher."

BURLINGTON, Iowa, April 14.—An open revolt against the prohibitory law occurred in this city to-day. A county constable named Green, who has been a searcher in connection with a justice court at Mediapolis, came to Burlington, and with three deputies, began to search the place of one Hirschberg. Before he had finished reading his warrant he was surrounded by an organized band of about forty well known liquor dealers, who administered a terrible beating to him. Green's skull was fractured, his nose broken and one eye nearly destroyed. His three deputies deserted him at the first blow, and escaped from the crowd.

MORTGAGE SALE

Whereas default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage bearing date April 11th 1889, made by Caroline McKibben and James A. McKibben her husband, mortgagors, to The Dakota Investment Company of Grand Forks Dakota, mortgagee, and recorded in the office of the register of deeds of the county of Polk in the state of Minnesota on the 12th day of April 1889 at 5.50 o'clock p. m. in Book 43 of mortgages page 22.

And whereas it was stipulated in said mortgage that in case of default in any of the conditions thereof, then the said mortgagee was empowered to declare the whole sum secured by said mortgage due and payable; and default having been made the said mortgagee has elected to and has declared the whole sum so secured, due and payable; and whereas there is claimed to be due and is due on the debt so secured at the date of this notice the sum of twelve hundred twenty-two dollars and that no proceedings at law or in equity have been instituted to recover the said debt or any part thereof.

Now therefore notice is hereby given that said mortgage will be foreclosed pursuant to the statute and to the power of sale in said mortgage contained and the lands described in and secured by said mortgage to-wit: The south east quarter of section twenty in township one hundred fifty-three north of range forty six west situate in the county of Polk in the state of Minnesota will be sold by the sheriff of said Polk county at public auction on Saturday the 23rd day of May 1891 at 10 o'clock a. m. at the front door of the court house in the city of Crookston in said county and state to satisfy the amount then due on said mortgage with expenses of sale together with an attorneys fee of fifty dollars stipulated in said mortgage to be paid in case of foreclosure of the same.

Stockmen should send to the Depart. of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. for the work on "Diseases of Horses." It is illustrated with handsomely colored plates, and sent free to applicants as long as the edition holds out.

Mr. A. Wright was here several days last week looking over the situation. He has lately returned from New York and fully intends to manufacture some of the Red Lake Pine. He left Friday for Michigan City N. Dak.

The surveying parties who were surveying the Red Lake reservation during the fall and early winter have again taken the field. It is said that on account of an error in the starting point Hawley and Goodnough of Minneapolis will be obliged to go over their entire work again.—Thirteen towns.

We are reliably informed that wheat acreage will be much larger this year than last A large amount of breaking was done last year and it is safe to estimate that there will be at least one-third more acres of wheat sown this year than there was last season.

One week from today the legislature will adjourn. Unless some very bad breaks are made during the intervening six days the members will return to their constituencies happy in the consciousness of having done much less mischief than they might have done. Even in that thought there is some satisfaction.—Minneapolis Tribune.

Pioneer Press: Some wise legislator in the house should tack an amendment to the McHale anti-tights bill providing that all bald-headed men shall wear nightcaps or wigs in public assemblies, and that "any male person above the age of four years" who shall roll up his pantaloons above the ankle for the purpose of wading in any mud puddle in a public place, shall be sent to the county jail, or have his legs painted red, white and blue by the poundmaster.

It is now more than probable that the usury bill will fail to pass. It is now at the foot of the calendar of the house with several hundred bills ahead of it, and they have refused to consider it except in the regular order. It is to be hoped that our legislators will continue in their streak of good sense until after adjournment.

4 bars of soap for 25c at E. M. Hoff. and if you want me to cut the bars in two I will cheerfully do it, then you will have 8 bars of soap for 25 cents, the very same soap as our competitors advertise at 8 for 25 cents, but let us be honest about it. The original length of bar of the Fairbanks brown soap is about 8 inches, and has been sold at 4 for 25c in this village for the last 3 years, now what will you have, 8 or 4,

The opening of the new opera house at Crookston this week by the Hess Grand Opera Company was the social event of the season. The new opera house is one of the finest in the state and would be a credit to a town much larger than Crookston. It has a seating capacity of eight hundred and is exceedingly well furnished throughout, the scenery and frescoing being exceptionally fine. The owner, Mr. T. H. Bjoin, is deserving of great praise for his public spiritedness and deserves to be well patronized by the people of Crookston and the surrounding country.

WANTED—THE EARTH.

Last week an effort was made by some of our citizens to induce the Great Northern to give us a special to Crookston to attend the opening of the Crookston opera house but it resulted in a signal failure. A telegram was sent last Friday to Gen. Pass. Agt F. I. Whitney asking for lowest possible rates for a special. He replied by stating that he did not believe that the people of St. Hilaire could afford a special. In answer to a second telegram he offered to run us a special for a guarantee of $112. He was right the first time, we couldn't afford it. This is the first time in eight years that the people of St. Hilaire have asked for a special train, and they got it—in the neck. We have put up with about the poorest service the road could give without a murmer and naturally expected that we were entitled to a little accommodation. The train would not have cost the company $25 to make the extra trip and it would have been no more than justice to give it to us at a slight advance over cost considering the poor service they compel us to put up with. Our people are very foolish if they further submit to the poor service they have been giving us in the past. Let us petition the U. S. Postal Authorities for a daily mail and we will get it. The Great Northern claimes that this line does not do enough business to warrent a daily train, but let us see. This season they have carried to exceed 200,000 bushels of wheat at 17½ cents per hundred pounds. Add to this shipments of potatoes oats barley hay and cattle and the total amount of freight on exports will amount to over $25,000, add to this the freight on lumber, merchandise, horses and passenger traffic, at least $15,000, we have $40,000 income from 21 miles of track which did not cost over $10,000 a mile to build It looks to us as if it was paying big.

MORTGAGE SALE.

Whereas default has been made in the condition of a certain mortgage bearing date September 25th 1880, made by Robert William Brown and Leida Samyah Brown his wife, mortgagors, to The Dakota Investment Company, of Grand Forks, Dakota, mortgagee and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the county of Polk in the state of Minnesota on the 1th day of October 1880 at 8:15 o'clock a. m. in Book 43 of mortgages, page 60. And whereas it was stipulated in said mortgage, that in case of default in any of the conditions of the same, then the said mortgagee was empowered to declare the whole sum secured by said mortgage due and payable, and he said mortgagee has elected to and has declared the whole sum so secured due and payable; and whereas there is claimed to be due and is due on the debt thereby secured, at the date of this notice, the sum of seven hundred and twenty dollars; and that no proceedings at law or in equity have been instituted to recover the said debt or any part thereof.

Now therefore notice is hereby given, that said mortgage will be foreclosed, pursuant to the statute and to the power of sale therein contained and the lands described in and conveyed by said mortgage to-wit: The north east quarter of section eight in township one hundred forty-nine north of range forty-three west situate in the county of Polk and state of Minnesota, will be sold by the sheriff of said Polk county at public auction on Saturday the 9th day of May 1891 at 10 o'clock a. m. at the front door of the court house in the city of Crookston in said county, to satisfy the sum then due on said mortgage, with expenses of sale, together with an attorneys fee of twenty-five dollars stipulated to be paid in case of foreclosure thereof.

It looks now as if the legislature would adjourn without doing the state very much damage except spending a large amount of money. The people may consider themselves lucky as some very dangerous legislation has been introduced. As it does not meet again for two years we may look for prosperous times.

There is no doubt but that spring has come to stay at last. Ducks and geese have arrived, frogs have come out of their winter quarters and commenced to sing and last but not least the citizens of Thief River Falls have commenced holding railroad meetings. These meetings always commence about the time suckers begin to run.

Linn Longeridge got home from his trip east, on Friday of last week. He was at work in the interest of immigration to this portion of the Red River Valley, during his last trip, at various points in Illinois. He is sanguine of good results following his efforts, as he found a good interest manifested wherever he presented the facts to persons who are thinking of coming to "the wild and wooley west," as the eastern would be humorist delights to call the fairest land the sun ever shone upon.—Warren Register.

The Great Northern Railway has put train service on one hundred and eighty miles of new extension to the Pacific Coast: the line opened running from Pacific Junction, near Fort Assinniboine Montana, to the Rocky Mountains, which, when crossed into the Flathead Lake country, will give that road two routs over the continental range, the other being between Helena and Butte. The Great Northern's extension to Puget Sound will be two hundred and fifty miles the shortest transcontinental line.

That the coming wheat crop will command high prices seems to be a matter beyond doubt. The world's reserve will be exhausted to a critical if not panicky extent before new wheat is threshed and prospects for the new crop are not fine. One third at least of the French crop is destroyed, English crop conditions are not favorable and Holland, Belgium, Germany, Austria and Russia are in a bad way. The India wheat is announced below the average. In our own country it is yet too early to predict the outcome, but the chances indicate only a fair winter wheat and good spring wheat crop, With a full average crop in the United States there will still be a great deficiency in the world's supply and high prices will ensue. Everything indicates a dollar a bushel for the Red River crop of '91,—Stephen Leader.

Cincinnatti Commercial Gazette: A war with Italy as the result of a riot in New Orleans would not be welcome, yet it would have good results. It would wipe out in a flash those senseless party lines cement more closely the great nation as many states in one, and render emphatic the understanding that the foreigner who comes here must consent to become a good citizen under the law or get away. The old sentiment that the United States is the asylum of the oppressed of all nations must be modified to mean that it is not the refuge of the world's paupers, thieves and cutthroats. American citizenship must assert the rights of its own household or it will get into serious trouble,

MORTGAGE SALE.

Whereas, default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage, bearing date August 2, 1888, made and executed by James Eustus, and Sarah M., his wife, mortgagors, to the Dakota Investment Company of Grand Forks, Dakota, mortgagee, which said mortgage was on the second day of August 1888 at 10:30 o'clock a. m. duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of said Polk county, State of Minnesota in Book 36 of mortgages on pages 446, 447, 448 and 449. And whereas there is claimed to be due and is due, on the debt secured by said mortgage at the date of this notice, the sum of Six Hundred Fifty-three dollars and sixty-five cents, and that no proceedings at law or in equity have been instituted to recover said debt or any part thereof. And whereas, said mortgage provides, that in case of default in the conditions thereof, the mortgagee might declare the whole sum secured by said mortgage due and payable; and default having been made, said mortgagee has declared the whole sum secured by said mortgage due and payable.

Now therefore notice is hereby given that said mortgage will be foreclosed, pursuant to the statute and the power of sale therein contained, and the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage to-wit: The West half of the South West quarter, and the West half of the North West quarter of Section Thirty-three in township One Hundred Forty-nine North of Range Forty-four West situate in the county of Polk and State of Minnesota, will be sold by the Sheriff of said county of Polk, at public auction on the 17th day of April 1891 at 10 o'clock a. m, at the front door of the Court House in the city of Crookston in said County, to satisfy the amount then due on said mortgage debt and the expenses of such sale including an Attorney's fee of Fifty dollars, stipulated in said mortgage to be paid in case of foreclosure.

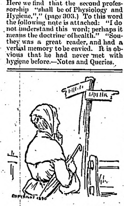
Transportation.

There is an alarming increase in the criminal class. The records of criminal courts show this, and also show that there is a certain element in our population which preys off the honest and law abiding. Fines and imprisonment have no reformatory effect, and in fact no effect whatever. We see no reason why decent people should be constantly in danger of being waylaid or murdered by this class. The remedy we would apply to such incurables is transportation for life. We need an American Botany Bay. Alaska has an excellent climate for destroying the germs of moral disease. By all means let us have an island or islands set apart for such cases.—Health and Home Toledo, O.

Hygiene.

It is useful to have a note of the first appearance of a word in our language. At the end of the first volume of the third edition of Southey's "Letters Written During a Journey in Spain" occurs a translation of the "Rules of the Royal College of Surgery at Madrid, founded by Carlos III, 1787." Here we find that the second professorship "shall be of Physiology and Hygiene,"," (page 303.) To this word the following note is attached: "I do not understand this word; perhaps it means the doctrine of health." "Southey was a great reader, and had a verbal memory to be envied. It is obvious that he had never met with hygiene before.—Notes and Queries.



Turn to the right medicine, if you're a weak or ailing woman. It's Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. If you're overworked or "run-down," it builds you up; if you're afflicted with any of the distressing derangements and disorders peculiar to your sex, it relieves and cures. It improves digestion, invigorates the system, enriches the blood, dispels aches and pains, melancholy and nervousness, produces refreshing sleep, and restores flesh and strength. GEORGE'S SOAP BUBBLE.

The Boss Liar Tells of a Curiosity Money Couldn't Buy.

A party of gentlemen were enjoying an after-dinner cigar and talking about Atlanta men who tell good stories and crack good jokes.

The conversation was enlivened by choice quotations, by way of illustration, says a writer in the Atlanta Constitution.

And thereon hangs this tale.

Dr. Sid Holland furnished an entertaining subject of illustration. One of the stories on him ran thusly:

Two gentlemen were whiling away the time en route from West End to Atlanta on the hay-burner, by seeing which could tell the biggest lie. At one of the sidings, where the mules were allowed an extra long rest, Dr. Holland got aboard.

"Howdy, Sid," said the gentlemen. We're seeing which can tell the biggest yarn. Won't you take a hand?"

"I'm a truthful man myself," replied the doctor.

"Well, we'll put the dinner on it. The man who gets left on the story must set 'em up."

It was agreed, and as luck would have it, Sid, led off with the first tale.

"I've got a relic out home that beats the world," he began. "It's an heirloom in the family and money wouldn't buy it. I've been offered fortunes for it, but always refused to part with the precious thing.

"Talk about relics, it's different from anything I ever heard of. I—"

"Well, what is it?" asked one of the gentlemen, both becoming worked up at the doctor's description.

"I heard of the fellow who had a piece of Eve's fall dress, and about the man who toted a chip off Adam's tombstone in his pocket, but mine tops 'em all."

Both gentleman were worked up to the highest pitch of expectancy by the time the doctor reached the climax.

"But what is it, what is it?" they exclaimed, impatiently, as he paused to brush a sunbeam off his shirt front.

"What is it?"

"A soap bubble George Washington blew when he was a boy."

The two gentlemen looked at each other, glanced up at the doctor, then changed the subject.

THE TROUBLESOME ANT.

He Can be Gotten Rid of By the Freezing Out Process.

The inhabitants of cold climates have little idea of the fierceness of the conflict which has been carried on from time immemorial between man and the ant tribe, and can hardly appreciate the extraordinary capacity shown by these tireless insects in their depredations upon the human race. In the tropics no satisfactory remedy has yet been devised by which the balance of advantage, always largely in favor of the ant as against man, can be overcome, and the insignificant-looking insect, by force of numbers, industry, and perseverence, is master of the situation.

Even in more temperate regions like some parts of our Southern States ants are troublesome enemies, and the sugestion made in the Tropical Agriculturist, published at Colombo, in Ceylon, may be worth trying in some parts of this country. The suggestion is that ants may be frozen out of existence by means of a cask of the freezing mixture used by engineers in excavating in quicksands fixed over the entrance of the nest, the other entrances being closed with clay, with a tube placed in the hole also well packed with clay. The pressure from the head of liquid would, it is claimed, be sufficient to drive the freezing mixture down into the furthest recesses of the ant's galleries, which would almost instantly become lined with solid ice, or, at all events, would be made so cold that no ant, however tenacious of life it might be, could long survive the exposure.

These freezing mixtures are not very expensive, and, as our contemporary suggests, it is possible that the progress of science has here been achieved a victory in the interest of man for which so many generations have contended in vain.—Garden and Forest.

A Mistake Somewhere.

"Got fine boy here," telegraphed Spriggins to his wife's mother, after the arrival of his first son and heir.

Six hours later he was surprised to see his mother-in-law walk into his office, tearful-eyed and sad of face.

"O, Joseph," she gasped, "isn't it too perfectly dreadful?"

"Dreadful? I think it's grand!" said Spriggins, in the vaulting pride of young fatherhood.

"O, Joseph! How can you say so! Is Mamie alive?"

"Why, certainly, and doing splendidly," "I'm surprised to hear it: I supposed I'd find the poor girl dead! It's the awfulest thing I ever heard of!"

"Why," said Spriggins, resentfully, "we thought you'd be tickled to death."

"Tickled? I've cried ever since I got the telegram. I wonder you can be so calm, and I'd like to know what poor Mamie is to do! Oh it is awful! I just sat with that telegram on my lap and cried all the way here!"

The telegram fell from her trembling hand as she spoke. Spriggins picked it up and read:

MINNESOTA SOLONS.

Condensed Proceedings of Both Branches of the Minnesota Legislature.

What is Being Attempted in the Way of Legislation by Our Lawmakers.

Tuesday April. 7.

SENATE.

Senator John Day Smith's bill providing for the method of filling vacancies in boards of county commissioners was lost apparently through a misunderstanding of its effect, and Mr. Smith soon after secured its reconsideration.

The bill authorizing the refunding of moneys paid at tax sales on state and school lands was passed by a vote of 30 to 14, after a debate on technicalities, in which Senator Donnelly led the opposition.

The Currier bill from the house providing for the assessment and taxation of telegraph and telephone lines was passed without any objection.

At the close of the calendar Senator Sanborn, for the state prison investigation, presented a supplementary report on the subject of the discount on the twine-binding machinery. Criticism had been made on this point in the morning discussion, and it was one of the points which Donnelly included in his term "whitewash." Senator Sanborn said there was no desire to cover up anything.

When general orders were taken up and Senator McHale's anti-tights bill was reached its author, to the surprise of the senate, moved its recommendation and took the floor in its support.

Senator Lienau put in an amendment providing that all statues should wear petticoats, but he was promptly squelched.

Senator Keller thought the bill was about the only remaining thing that the senators should kill before packing up their waste baskets and going home.

Only one voice said "no" when the bill was recommended for passage.

HOUSE.

The house was engaged almost exclusively to-day in passing bills on the calendar, and thirty-one bills were sent on their way rejoicing. After the routine proceeding attendant upon the commencement of the day's session had been disposed of, petitions and reports of committees read, the task of disposing of the calendar commenced and continued without intermission until noon, and was resumed after dinner and occupied the afternoon until 4:30. The list of bills passed is as follows:

Mr. Ringwald's bill relating to the salaries and terms office of town clerks of Ramsey county was lost owing to there being but a scanty house; 58 votes were cast, 56 in the affirmative and 2 in the negative, the negative voters being Messrs. Bell and Searle. Senator Allen's bill, S. F. No. 315, was ordered to be placed in general orders.

The house then went into committee of the whole on general orders, with Mr. M. Walsh of Hennepin in the chair.

Wednesday, April. 8.

SENATE

During the morning session the senate adopted resolutions appropriating $589.30 for the expenses of the state prison investigation and giving the doorkeepers full pay at $5 per day from the beginning of the session. They were appointed at $3. The resolution passed by a vote of 33 to 8. Repeated attempts have been made to get through the senate a resolution providing for a second edition of the manual, but heretofore they have failed. Yesterday morning Senator Davis renewed the war and finally his resolution was adopted.

The Hennepin senators had a little altercation over the house bill putting several county officers on a salary instead of the present fee system. This was an issue in the last campaign, and the Democrats sought to evade direct conflict with their own platform by passing the bill, but making it take effect Jan. 1, 1893, at the close of the terms of the present Democratic officials. Senator Morse and John Day Smith objected to Senator March's recommendation that the bill pass and it went back to the delegation.

A couple of bills were introduced at the close of the calendar and then adjournment was taken until this morning.

HOUSE

The house had its first tilt yesterday over the senate measure known as the Davis interest bill. The bill was reported back by the committee on banks and banking. There were two reports upon it, one signed by Messrs. Capser (the chairman of the committee), Dearing, M. Walsh and Lloyd, recommending that the bill be indefinitely postponed, and the other report simply returning the bill to the house without recommendation being signed by Messrs. Lyman, Haller, Gilmore and Carlton.

The minority report of the committee on state university and agricultural college was presented. It is signed by Messrs. Greer, Coburn, Starks, Coates and Zelch, and reports adversely on the proposition to separate the college from the university.

On the request of the governor Mr. Harwick was given leave to introduce a bill authorizing the board of supervisors of Sherburne county to appropriate money for building a town hall. The bill was passed under a suspension of the rules.

Thursday, April, 9.

SENATE.

Two bills occupied the attention of the state senate during the greater part of the morning session yesterday. The first was Senator McHale's anti-tights bill, which was passed by the rousing majority of 37 to 12.

During the committee reports of the morning the bill fixing the salaries of the city officials of St. Paul was reported back and passed under suspension of the rules.

The afternoon was spent on general orders with Senator Mayo in the chair.

Senator Sevatson made a strong argument for his bill fixing the liability of common carriers and providing that railroads must furnish cars for shipment of grain, shall weigh and receipt for the same and be responsible for the delivery of full weight (less a slight percentage for natural waste), and providing penalties for enforcement. Mr. Tawney thought the bill was not practical and Senator Crandall agreed with him, but Mr. Sevatson carried his point, and the bill was recommended for passage.

HOUSE.

The committee on reapportionment made a report unanimously recommending Senator Craig's bill providing for the division of the state into seven congressional districts, to pass.

The committee on banks and banking reported to indefinitely postpone two bills relating to usury and interest.

Mr. Feig asked to have his bill, H. F. 1086, relating to the adulteration of coffee and honey, recalled from the judiciary committee and placed on general orders, claiming that his bill was being withheld by the committee.

The railroad committee reported back the anti-scalpers' bill without recommendation.

Senator McHale's anti-tights bill reached the house during the afternoon, and after being read Mr. Wilson moved that it be referred to the committee on printing.

The calendar was then taken up, and there being forty bills thereon, it occupied the remaining part of the afternoon session. The most important of the bills passed was Mr. Tripp's bill, H. F. 141, to prevent crimes against the elective franchise. The bill had been pretty well discussed and amended and it passed with but little discussion.

Mr. Long's bill, H. F. 638, to establish the hours on public works by making eight hours constitute a day's labor, was passed.

Friday April. 10.

SENATE.

The afternoon was devoted to general orders, with Senator McHale in the chair, and the bill repealing the law taxing mining products and exempting mining lands was the chief attraction on the boards. Senator Tawney spoke first, and made an admirable summary of the workings of the present law and the whole mining situation.

Senator Davis considered Mr. Leavitt's bill as an effort to break down the mining interests of the state.

At last the committee voted to indefinitely postpone by a vote of 24 to 18. Then the committee arose and Senator Leavitt moved to amend the report by recommending the bill to pass. Senator Donnelly tried to get in an amendment changing the present law by raising the tax on mining products from 1 to 5 per cent, but lost it by a vote of 20 yeas to 24 nays.

Senator Leavitt's motion to amend by recommending to pass was then carried by a vote of 24 yeas to 22 nays cast

HOUSE.

A portion of an hour was consumed in discussing a resolution offered by Mr. Starks providing that bills introduced at the request of the governor take the regular course and be not passed under suspension of the rules in future. There was a substitute for the resolution and an amendment, both recommending a method of dealing with local bills, but after a sharp lecture from Mr. Diment, who told the house that the only way to expedite business was to quit arguing and go ahead, the whole matter was laid over.

Mr. Wacek offered a resolution calling for the appointment of a committee of three to investigate as to whether or not the services of several of the clerks of standing committees can be dispensed with. The resolution was adopted.

Another bill killed was H. F. 607, Mr. Wahlund's bill to provide for a census of children of school age. It was defeated by a vote of 38 to 36, and Mr. Boyd gave notice to reconsider.

Mr. Lemmen's bill relating to town plats, as amended by the judiciary committee, was also defeated by a vote of 38 to 40.

Saturday, April 11.

SENATE.

In committee of the whole Senator Leavitt's bill to repeal the mining tax law with several amendments tacked to it was recommended to pass.

At the opening of the session Senator Donnelly occupied twenty minutes of valuable time in pushing a resolution intended, as he said, to facilitate business. It suspended certain rules. But the sage could not persuade the senate that his plan was a good one and came out second best.

About two hours of the afternoon session were consumed in committee reports and first and second reading of bills. A large number of local bills were passed, among them Senator Stevens' bill putting the Ramsey county abstract office on a fee basis and providing that it shall be regularly inspected by the county attorney.

HOUSE.

There was a long debate over H. F. 573, Mr. Searle's bill to regulate the convict labor at the state reformatory at St. Cloud. The bill is for the purpose of relieving the quarry industries of that section and the stone cutters from being injured by competition with convict labor. Mr. Searle spoke in favor of his bill, and declared it was to meet the wants and wishes of his constituents. Messrs. Capser, Linnemann and Coates, from the same county (Stearns), also favored the passage of the bill, and Mr. Searle moved that it be recommended to pass.

Mr. Currier moved to increase the number of convicts allowed to be employed in stone cutting to 40 per cent.

After considerable discussion Mr. Diment offered a substitute as a compromise making the number 33 per cent.

Mr. Keyes thought it no matter how few or how many convicts were employed on any class of work, they would always be in competition with some interest.

On a division, Mr. Diment's substitute was adopted, and the bill was so amended.

Monday, April 13.

SENATE.

Senator Lienau introduced a resolution allowing Edward Newell, file clerk, $3 per day for the first eight days of the session. An amendment offered by Senator Sanborn including G. N. Blaisdell, chief file clerk, was adopted, and the resolution was adopted.

Senator Lommen's resolution providing that the rules of debate in the senate should prevail in committee of the whole was called up by its author, and was promptly killed by the senate.

NO PREFERRED BILLS.

Senator Daugherty moved to reconsider the vote by which Senator Donnelly's resolution to allow each senator to select one bill from general orders, which bills were to take precedence, was defeated. The motion to reconsider was adopted by a vote of 23 to 15, and then the resolution was voted down, receiving 28 votes out of the necessary 36 to adopt.

The senate bill reducing the board of public works of St. Paul from four members to three was returned by the house with an amendment which restored the number to four for one year, after that the board to consist of three members. On motion of Senator Lienau the senate refused to concur in the house amendment, and the bill was sent back to the house.

HOUSE.

Two or three Ramsey county bills were reported back by Mr. Walsh, the secretary of the delegation, among them being H. F. 863, the bill regulating the salaries of St. Paul officials, which was amended so as to increase the fire department appropriation from $205,000 to $215,000. These bills will take their regular order on general orders or the calendar.

On the motion of Mr. T. Cole the chief clerk was instructed to draw his warrant in the sum of $183.88 to defray the expense of the trip of the house committee to inspect the Fergus Falls asylum.

The judiciary committee reported adversely on twenty-two bills and after their titles had been read, the report was adopted.

The calendar was then taken up and occupied the entire afternoon. Among the bills passed was the Hompe railroad bill, S. F. 699. Mr. Searle moved for a call of the house, but Mr. Currier said there would be no opposition to the passage of the bill, which was then voted upon and passed by a vote of 90 yeas to one nay.

A Profession for Women.

There is a class of women to whom the counsel in this article will be very distasteful. The career of a wife and mother has little appreciation in their eyes. It is not enough appreciated by a large share of both sexes. But the remedy for this is in the women's own hands. If they would have an honorable profession they have only to do a quality of work that is worthy of honor. Surgery was once a branch of the barber's trade, and certainly no more honored than housework is to-day, says the Science Monthly, but men have made a study of it, have given it a broad, scientific basis, invented instruments and processes to increase its efficiency, and arranged a systematic mode of learning its practice, with the result that the surgeon of to-day has one of the most honorable of professions. In a similar way dressmaking—which is a trade in the hands of women—has been made a profession in the hands of one man. The ordinary dressmaker gets little respect; Mr. Worth is held in high esteem, and the difference is that he does work which compels esteem. The ordinary housewife and mother takes little pains to learn her business; she follows rule-of-thumb methods handed down from her great-grandmother, introducing no improved process or appliances, and feeling no shame if her home is ill managed or her children ill trained. If women doubt that competent administration at home would win the same esteem that is paid to the competent surgeon or lawyer, or merchant, or college professor they should recall the Roman matron, Cornelia, whose fame has already lasted for nearly a score of centuries. With her the modern woman should say of her home, "This is my diploma;" and of children, "These are my degrees."

Another Mad Walk.

Galignani Messenger: Our French contemporary, the Liberte, has received the visit of M. Sylvain Dornon, a shepherd from the Landes, who proposes to walk from Paris to Moscow on stilts. This strange traveler intends to start from the Place de la Concorde to-morrow morning, and hopes to reach Moscow in forty-five days, in time for the opening of the French exhibition in that place. If these eccentric travelers continue to increase in number there will have to be a separate department arranged for them in the exhibition, or at least for such of them as arrive at their destination. It is stated that this strange pedestrian went up the Eiffel tower in 1880 on stilts.

"I'll go get you some as soon as the curtain falls," said Mr. Fitts.

And various of their acquaintances, as they saw him disappear, said what a pity it was that so sweet a young woman should be bound for life to such a slave of the Demon Drink that he could not even wait until the play was over to satisfy his depraved appetite.

"August Flower"

I had been troubled five months with Dyspepsia. The doctors told me it was chronic. I had a fullness after eating and a heavy load in the pit of my stomach. I suffered frequently from a Water Brash of clear matter. Sometimes a deathly Sickness at the Stomach would overtake me. Then again I would have the terrible pains of Wind Colic. At such times I would try to belch and could not. I was working then for Thomas McHenry, Druggist, Cor. Irwin and Western Ave., Allegheny City, Pa., in whose employ I had been for seven years. Finally I used August Flower, and after using just one bottle for two weeks, was entirely relieved of all the trouble. I can now eat things I dared not touch before. I would like to refer you to Mr. McHenry, for whom I worked, who knows all about my condition, and from whom I bought the medicine. I live with my wife and family at 39 James St., Allegheny City, Pa. OLD HOLIDAYS.

A Falling-off in the Observance of Some Holidays.

A curious phase of the development of society is presented by the decay of certain holidays which once were observed with faithfullness and interest, but which have now become either merely names or empty days of historical association. For many years it has been the costom to speak of Fast Day as a time of especial disregard and to call New England people to account for its evident diversion from its first intentions. But Fast Day is no more peculiar in its lapse from popular enthusiasm than many holidays once distinguished with the people's interest and respect and now merely names upon the calendar. May Day was once a time of great importance and signifiance to all English-speaking people, and its celebration was elaborate and public. It inspired some of the most charming poetry in our literature and was by all means the great spring festival. Its loss from actual observance is an interesting fact of history. When it was believed that witches and fairies held high carnival on the 31st of October, Hallow E'en inspired serious festivites; many customs both local and general in England, lived for a time in the New World in various holidays and then fell into disuse. Of peculiarly American holidays, Washington's Birthday and Fast Day, continue to be set aside for remembrance, although they are not marked by especial observance, and have a use chiefly in recalling interesting historical facts and in affording a brief recess from everyday labor.—Boston Journal.

Journalistic Enterprise in Paris.

Most new inventions especially journalistic inventions come from America; but it is to the versatile Parisians that the credit of the very latest thing in journalism is due. The Compagnie Generale des Voitures is on the point of starting a paper, entitled Paris-Voitures, which is orignal in more ways than one. Noisy news-vendors are to give way to automatic machines. Every cab is to be furnished with one of these; you put a 10-centime piece in the slot and you draw out a Paris-Voitures. The paper is to contain the bills of the theatres, illustrated notes, and "tips" for the races. As if this were not sufficient inducement to the ordinary boulevardier to make the double investment in the cab and the paper for the company's benefit, the happy purchase of the paper is insured against any accident that may happen in the course of the drive. This device is not now heard of for the first time, but it may prove reassuring to the cautious foreigner, who is alarmed at the reckless driving of the Paris John. By a purely orignal contrivance the holder of a Paris-Voitures is to be entitled to a discount of 10 per cent. at the principal shops mentioned in the paper. Lastly, in the spirit of true utilitarian philosophy, business is to be combined with philanthropy, the automatic machine company which undertakes the distribution promising to devote 10 per cent. of its profits to founding a cabmen's refuge.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Prince of Meissonier's Pictures.

Meissonier had the distinction of obtaining the highest price per square inch for his work which has ever been obtained; even the £30,000 paid for the "Angelus" of Millet sinks into insignificance before the sums which, not once but a dozen times, were paid for his canvases. Even the reproductions of his works have followed suit, and the proofs of one only just issued are selling at sixty guineas apiece. As a sample of the prices obtained, M. Delahante, who bought Meissonier's picture "1814," depicting the retreat of Napoleon's army from Moscow, paid £3,000 for the work, and it was ultimately bought by M. Chauchard for £34,000. The millionaire American bought pictures of Meissonier at his own price—sometimes £12,000—and a number of his most famous works are on this side of the Atlantic.

No Soap.

It is stated that soap in India is regarded almost in the light of a natural curiosity, for it is rarely if ever to be obtained of a shopkeeper there. Of course it is sold in the largest towns; but the amount used by the natives must be very small, seeing that the total consumption of soap in India last year was only 5,000 tons. This means that the amount used by each person for the year was considerably less than one ounce.—Chamber's Journal.

At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the New York Central & Hudson River Railroad company held in Albany the old directors and officers were re-elected. The West Shore also elected its old board.

IN GENERAL.

Archbishop Ryan of Philadelphia has issued an order that in future Catholics will not be permitted to bury any of their relatives or friends on Sundays.

Secretary Bagley, of the Indiana board of agriculture, returned from a trip through the northern part of the state. He says there never was such a prospect for a large wheat crop as there is this spring.

Schoff, Fairchild & Co., wool merchants of New York, it is reported, have been compelled to offer a settlement with their creditors on the basis of 50 cents on the dollar. Liabilities, $200,000.

"The Tar and the Tartar" was given its first production on the stage at the Chicago opera house, and was a success. The McCaull Opera company was received by one of the most brilliant audiences ever seen in Chicago.

A suit for $2,000 has been instituted against Dr. U. K. Mayo, of Boston, by Mrs. Jane S. Fowle. She charges that an apprentice in the office of Dr. Mayo pulled the wrong tooth while she was under the effects of laughing gas.

The sheriff of New York has received an attachment for $60,000 against the United States Electric Traction company, at 115 Broadway, in favor of Elizabeth Smaitland, on twenty one promissory notes. Judgment for $10,000 was entered against the American and United Zylonite company, of 361 Broadway.

George Stark a fireman on the Cincinnati, Wabash & Michigan railway, died in horrible agony at Anderson, Ind. He was an inveterate cigarette smoker and an excessive use of them is said to have caused his death. A short time after his death his body turned a livid green. Physicians claim his death was due to arsenical and nicotine poison.

Capt. Deville, surveyor general of Canada, diecredits the correctness of the discovery made by Ensign Moore, of the United States coast survey, to the effect that an error in delininating the international boundary gave the United States a slice of Canadian territory equal to that of Rhode Island. On the contrary, the survey made by the Canadian government at Port Moody indicated that Canada had secured a quarter of a mile of American territory for a distance of several miles.

A DOUBLE SUICIDE.

They Suffocated Themselves With Gas While Wrapped in Each Other's Arms.

New York, April 21.—A young couple registered at the Grand Union hotel Sunday morning as P. Behrand and wife, and were assigned to a large room on the third floor. To-night they were found dead in the room from gas asphyxiation—locked in each other's arms. None about the hotel knew who the couple were, but they were evidently German. He was of light complexion and she was dark. The young man was last seen about the hotel alive yesterday morning, and the fact that there was anything wrong about the room was discovered by the chambermaid reporting that she could not enter it or get any response to her knocking. When the door was burst open it was found that the couple were in bed wrapped in each other's arms. The bed had been pulled out into the center of the room to a place directly under the big chandelier, so as to give a better opportunity for their work. The man was about twenty-five years old and the woman twenty-two.

They left four letters, two to Mrs. Miller, of 210 East Ninth street, one to the coroner and one to a woman in Williamsburgh.

The remains were removed from the hotel to-night with some attempt at secresy, the undertaker removing his name from his wagon. The Mrs. Miller to whom one letter was addressed refuses to state who the suicides are. The letters have not yet been opened.

THREE LIVES THE COST.

Terrible Termination of a Quarrel in a Maryland Town.

Cumberland, Md., April 21.—A bloody tragedy occurred to-day at Oldtown, thirteen miles from here, in which one man was instantly killed and two others mortally wounded.

The murderer is Garrett Luteman, a prominent man, twenty-three years of age, and his victims A. W. W. Carter and William Foley, both equally well known citizens.

Luteman was employed by J. W. Carter, father of one of the victims, in his store as a clerk. He and two men had trouble for several weeks, resulting over money matters. This morning he walked up to William Foley, who was standing in front of Carter's store, and without saying a word, drew a revolver and fired, the bullet lodging in Foley's heart. The latter fell over dead without a word.

Luteman then walked inside the store, where young Carter was engaged in waiting on a customer. Luteman fired at once at Carter, the ball penetrating his lung, fatally wounding him. Luteman's brother, who was standing near by, sprang on him and wrested the revolver from him.

The desperate man wrested himself free from his brother and sprang back of the counter, where he seized another revolver and fired two shots into his own head, then picking up a razor, cut his throat from ear to ear, completely severing the windpipe. When a reporter called on the murderer at his home, he found him still conscious and quite strong, notwithstanding his horrible wounds, and able to converse. He expressed satisfaction over his crime. The physicians say he and one of his victims, Carter, will live but a few hours.

BLOOD FLOWED LIKE WATER.

Deadly Work of the Stiletto in an Italian Family in New Jersey.

New York, 21.—In Hoboken early this morning, Angelo Gaboth, thirty-five years old, of New York, murdered his mother-in-law, dangerously stabbed his father-in-law, and was then killed by Conoquito Chinchella, a son of the murdered woman.

Antonio Chinchella lived in three rooms at No. 105 Grand street, Hoboken. The Chinchellas' daughter and her husband, Angelo Caboth, were visiting the Chinchellas last night. Caboth's wife slept in one room with her mother, and Caboth slept in the second room with his father-in-law.

While all were soundly sleeping, Gaboth arose from his bed and, with a stiletto in his hand, went into his mother-in-law's rooms. Gaboth, with one blow, sunk his stiletto in the abdomen of his mother-in-law, killing her almost instantly.

Gaboth stole back again into the room Chinchella slept, and a moment later he thrust the stiletto into the back of the latter. He meant to end the old man's life with one blow, but he missed the vital spot. As the blow descended Chinchella gave a cry which woke up Conoquito, his son, who was sleeping with his brother in the next room. Conoquito jumped from his bed, looked through the door into his father's room and took in the situation at a glance. He quickly seized his own stiletto and sprang at Gaboth like a tiger.

A fierce contest followed in which Gaboth's wife took part, and was probably fatally woundee, she being stabbed twice and shot three times. Young Chincella finally thrust his stiletto in Gaboth's left eye, reaching the brain, and then piercing his heart with another blow. Young Chincella then gave himself up, and is now locked up at the police station.

A MOUNTAIN TRAGEDY.

Negroes Attacked in a Tanbark Camp and Six Killed.

Chattanooga, Tenn., April 21.—A report reached here from Rockwood, seventy-six miles from Chattanooga on the Cincinnati Southern road, that twenty-five miles from that place last Sunday a party of native mountaineers rode into a tan bark camp situated on the Cumberland mountains, and, without warning, shot and killed six negroes and wounded ten. The mountaineers, it is said, had been discharged for incompetency, and took this method of vengeance.

Two of the wounded negroes reached Rockwood and took the train for Chattanooga, where they live. The train men report their having boarded the train, but they cannot be found in the city, probably alighting in some of the suburbs. The party who spoke to them states they asserted that the shooting crowd numbered twenty or thirty; and used rifles.

Condemned Men Escape.

Eufala, Ind. T., April 21.—News has been received here that the execution of Russ Reilly, Jeff Brown, Douglas Brown, Cudge Barnett, Paro Johnson, Lake Andy and Prince Hawkins, in the western portion of the Wewaka district, Creek nation, which was set for to-day, has been frustrated by the escape of the prisoners by the connivance, it is alleged, of their guards. Three of them—Jeff Brown, Hawkins and Johnson—were recaptured, but they were the three that it was supposed would be pardoned by the chief. They were taken before the district judge Saturday and their pardons offered them. Those at large are still under sentence of death.

RECALCITRANT.

Employes of Swift & Co. Stubbornly Decline to Testify.

Chicago, April 21.—United States District Attorney Milchrist went before Judge Jenkins in the federal court to-day and made complaint that certain employes of Swift & Co, packers, had refused to answer questions as to discriminations in railroad rates in favor of that firm put to them by the federal grand jury, on the ground that by so doing they might incriminate themselves. Judge Jenkins ruled that they must answer the questions.

The employes of Swift & Co. refused to give the desired information, even after the decision of Judge Jenkins. They are supposed to be acting under the advice of their employers. Their names are F. G. Bowles, I. C. Bartlett, F. R. Briggs and A. R. Fay. An order was issued for these witnesses to show cause, on the first Monday in May, why they should not be attached for contempt of court. It is likely that a special grand jury will be impaneled to continue the investigation and that the officers of the roads implicated will be called upon to testify.

The roads accused of violating the law in this case are the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, the Lackawanna fast freight line and the Wabash.

LOST HIS WIFE.

The Better Half of a Fargo Brakeman Suddenly Disappears.

Fargo, N. D., Special Telegram, April 21.—Etta Johnson, the wife of W. M. Johnson, a Northern Pacific brakeman, living here, it is alleged, eloped Friday night. She had kissed her husband that morning when he left for his usual two day's trip to Jamestown. When he returned Saturday night he found her gone with all her things. He claimed to have evidence that her companion was a prominent business man residing in Moorhead, who left on the same train. The gentleman was seen to-night and accounted completely for the time during his absence, showing that he could have had nothing to do with the woman's flight.

It is probable the woman had heard of Johnson's doing with other women and has gone to her mother in Dubuque, where they were married a year ago. Her maiden name was Etta Bruce. Johnson was nearly crazy to-night, and was making threats against the supposed seducer. The report is that a former mistress of his sent a letter to the young wife, saying that she had a better right to Johnson than the wife had.

TOBACCO THE TOPIC.

A Large Increase in the Acreage and Yield of the Weed.

Washington, Special Telegram, April 21.—The census office has issued a statement of the acreage and yield of tobacco for the year 1889, showing an increase over the last census of 55,223 acres and 19,052,410 pounds.

The amount produced in Kentucky has increased over 54,000,000 pounds, and there has also been a substantial increase in North Carolina, Tennessee, Ohio, New York and Wisconsin. On the other hand there has been a more or less serious falling off in Virginia, Maryland, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania and Missouri.

It is apparent that Minnesota is not a tobacco-producing state. In 1879 there was planted 163 acres, and 69,925 pounds were raised. In 1889 only forty-four acres were planted and 23,285 pounds were raised. Ten years ago there were five acres of tobacco in the Dakotas and 1,897 pounds raised. In 1889 three acres were planted and 785 pounds were raised. There has been about a double increase in Wisconsin, where in 1889 there were 17,251 acres and 19,386,149 pounds produced.

GIBBON RETIRES.

The Commander of the Department of the Pacific Succeeded by Gen. Ruger.

San Francisco, April 21.—Brig. Gen. John Gibbon, commanding the division of the Pacific, went upon the retired list at noon to-day.

Two orders were issued from the headquarters of the division. In one of these Gen. Gibbon relinquishes command. In the other Brig. Gen. Thomas H. Ruger assumes command. The latter is not yet in the city, but is within the division limits, and a dispatch was received from him in the morning announcing that he would reach this city via Portland, next Thursday. He is accompanied on his journey by his aide, Capt. Woodruff, of the Fifth infantry.

ANOTHER WAR CLOUD.

England and Portugal Liable to Have a Little Quarrel.

London, April 21.—Advices from South Africa state that the Portuguese, in addition to seizing two British steamers, have seized mails in transit through Mashonaland and expelled the British from the Hengrive river, which is the principal waterway to Mashonland, and have imprisoned a number of British settlers.

A serious rupture between the British and Portuguese authorities is expected. The lives of the British at Heira are in great danger.

LED BY WOMEN.

Strikers Resisting the Officers Who Are Making Evictions.

Scottdale, Pa., April 21.—To-day was prolific of excitement and small riots throughout the coke region. The women generally are leading and most bitter in their attacks on the deputies. During several squabbles to-day a couple deputies were struck with stones, and one was cut on the arm. But few evictions were made, as the sheriffs evidently fear opposition, and are gathering larger forces of deputies.

No More Mobs Wanted.

Washington, Special Telegram, April 21.—Secretary Noble is rather anxious to know how the people up around Ashland and vicinity take the order of the department suspending entries of the lands on the Omaha lands. He also wonders who would pay for the people slaughtered by the men who threatened violence unless the entries were allowed to proceed as certain parties thought they should. The secretary is evidently of the opinion that in case any one was killed that the families of the dead men would hold the United States government responsible and proceed to collect indemnity. It is not said that the Italian incident influenced the secretary, but the inference is that no more mobs or killing are wanted, which the government by any possible means can prevent.

Northwestern Postal Affairs.

Washington, Special Telegram, April 21.—G. D. Bassett has been appointed postmaster at Seely, Faribault county; O. C. Dill at Bancroft, Kingsbury county, S. D. The name of the postoffice at Rockstad, Polk county, has been changed to Thief River Falls.

A Mail Carrier Arrested.

Appleton, Wis., Special Telegram, April 21.—George Lewis, a mail carrier, was arrested here to-day and taken to Milwaukee for destroying circular mail matter. He is perfectly honest, but fell into a careless habit.

MINNESOTA SOLONS.

Condensed Proceedings of Both Branches of the Minnesota Legislature.

What is Being Attempted in the Way of Legislation by Our Lawmakers.

Monday, April 13.

SENATE.

Senator Lienau introduced a resolution allowing Edward Nowell, file clerk, $3 per day for the first eight days of the session. An amendment offered by Senator Sanborn including G. N. Blaisdell, chief file clerk, was adopted, and the resolution was adopted.

Senator Lommen's resolution providing that the rules of debate in the senate should prevail in committee of the whole was called up by its author, and was promptly killed by the senate.

NO PREFERRED BILLS.

Senator Daugherty moved to reconsider the vote by which Senator Donnelly's resolution to allow each senator to select one bill from general orders, which bills were to take precedence, was defeated. The motion to reconsider was adopted by a vote of 28 to 15, and then the resolution was voted down, receiving 28 votes out of the necessary 36 to adopt.

The senate bill reducing the board of public works of St. Paul from four members to three was returned by the house with an amendment which restored the number to four for one year, after that the board to consist of three members. On motion of Senator Lienau the senate refused to concur in the house amendment, and the bill was sent back to the house.

HOUSE.

Two or three Ramsey county bills were reported back by Mr. Walsh, the secretary of the delegation, among them being H. F. 863, the bill regulating the salaries of St. Paul officials, which was amended so as to increase the fire department appropriation from $205,000 to $215,000. These bills will take their regular order on general orders or the calendar.

On the motion of Mr. T. Cole the chief clerk was instructed to draw his warrant in the sum of $183.88 to defray the expense of the trip of the house committee to inspect the Fergus Falls asylum.

The judiciary committee reported adversely on twenty-two bills and, after their titles had been read, the report was adopted.

The calendar was then taken up and occupied the entire afternoon. Among the bills passed was the Hompe railroad bill, S. F. 600. Mr. Searle moved for a call of the house, but Mr. Currier said there would be no opposition to the passage of the bill, which was then voted upon and passed by a vote of 90 yeas to one nay.

Tuesday April. 14.

SENATE.

The senate spent the greater portion of the day upon the bill relating to the management of the Stillwater prison. An amendment was attached instructing the board of managers to purchase another set of binding twine machinery at once. The number of the managers was reduced from five to three. The perfected bill was passed and sent to the house.

The bill relating to district courts, which passed the senate, provides that the governor shall, whenever in his judgment he thinks it necessary, appoint any district judge in the state to hold court outside of his district. The judiciary committee spent some time in considering the question of redistricting the state into judicial districts, but did not have time to complete a bill for that purpose. In order, however, to equalize the work of the district judges the bill passed was prepared. In some of the districts the judges have, it is said, but little to do, while in others they are overworked.

The forestry bill was indefinitely postponed by the senate. This bill provided for the distribution of printed matter giving directions for cultivating trees and for preserving natural forests. It carried with it an annual appropriations of about $5,000.

HOUSE.

H. F. 1017, the bill giving the city council of St. Paul authority to grant sites to manufacturers on the West side levee, was defeated by a vote of 27 to 21, but on motion of Mr. Bell, who gave notice of reconsideration, the bill was referred to the Ramsey county delegation.

Mr. Hadland's bill, H. F. 586, to prevent towns and villages granting bonuses to railroads unless on a two-thirds vote of the residents, and then the bonus not to exceed 2 per cent of the assessed valuation of the community, was defeated by a vote of 50 to 28.

H. F. 1021, Mr. Keyes' bill prohibiting the contract system at the Stillwater state prison, which had been made a special order, was taken up and considered in committee of the whole, Mr. Maguire of Lac qui Parle being called to the chair.

Mr. Keyes' motion, to recommend the bill to pass, was carried, there being but one dissenting voice heard. The committee then arose and reported, the report being accepted without any negative vote.

On the motion of Mr. Boyd of St. Louis county H. F. 379, the Duluth & Winnipeg land grant bill, was made a special order for this afternoon at 2 o'clock. Mr. Bjorge objected, saying that the bill was nothing but a steal anyway, and that more important bills to the state required consideration.

Mr. Doyle next called up Senator Craig's reapportionment bill, S. F. 354, and without any discussion or opposition it was recommended to pass.

Wednesday, April. 15.

SENATE

The senate held three sessions yesterday and succeeded in disposing of a good deal of business, and a good start was made towards clearing up general orders.

The question of purchasing newspapers for the senators was brought up again by a resolution, allowing each member 25 cents per day for papers. The principal event of the debate on the resolution was a sparring match between Senators Donnelly and Keller.

Under committee reports the senate labor committee reported back the house bill of Representative Long providing that eight hours shall constitute a day's work in all state, county and municipal work, with a recommendation that it be indefinitely postponed.

The report of the committee to indefinitely postpone was then adopted by the senate without division.

Two efforts were made to take up the employers' liability bill out of its order, but both failed.

The Keyes election law was labeled to pass, with the amendment off. This amendment could only be the senate amendment requiring the voter to mark the name of each candidate to be voted for.

HOUSE

The principal feature of yesterday's session of the house was the debate on the Duluth & Winnipeg land grant bill. This measure has been hanging over the house since early in the session, and on Tuesday last it was made a special order for yesterday afternoon. The matter came up at 2 o'clock, the speaker calling Mr. Greer to the chair. The debate was long and interesting, and occupied over two hours, the bill being finally recommended to pass by a vote of 56 yeas to 49 nays.

Mr. Bjorge submitted the omnibus appropriation bill which was reported in substance last Saturday. The appropriation for the expenses of the state prison will be embodied in a separate bill.

A motion to suspend the rules and place Senator Leavitt's income tax bill on the calendar was defeated, and the probabilities are it will not be reached this session.

Mr. Bjorge introduced a bill, S. F. 870, calling for an appropriation of $15,000 for legislative expenses in addition to the $150,000 already appropriated. The bill, on Mr. Bjorge's motion, was passed under suspension of the rules.

The speaker announced that the chaplain of the house, the Rev. Mr. Wilkinson, had been bereaved of a daughter, and the members, by a rising vote, expressed their condolence and sympathy.

H. F. 288, Mr. Zelch's free text book bill, providing for a text book commission and uniformity in text books in counties was passed by a vote of 63 ayes and 27 nays.

Mr. Keyes' bill, H. F. 1,021, to abolish the present contract system at the state prison at Stillwater, was passed with only seven dissenting votes. Those voting in the negative were Messrs. Boorell, Boyd, Capser, Holler, Lyman, Nilsson and R. A. Walsh.

Thursday, April, 16.

SENATE.

The routine proceedings of the morning session were not of a very exciting character. The Globe Almanac resolution was brought up again and received its third defeat.

The Ramsey county bill providing for the appointment of a gaslight inspector for St. Paul was recalled to the senate.

A petition signed by 3,000 of the leading business men of St. Paul protesting against the passage of the interest bill, S. F. No. 1, was read and filed. Several petitions against the baking powder bill were also received.

Mr. T. Cole, chairman of the committee on legislative expenses made a report to the house recommending that the assistant sergeant-at-arms, three doorkeepers and six gallery and cloak room keepers have their pay increased from $3 per day to $4, and that two pages, Chadwick and Flaherty, be paid $17.50 for sevices rendered. The report was adopted by a vote of 74 to 14.

Unsuccessful efforts were made to advance several bills, among them being H. F. 370, Mr. Bjorge's fixed rate bill, from their lowly position on general orders to the calendar.

HOUSE.

In the senate yesterday morning the first hour was spent in considering resolutions relating to salaries of clerks and other attaches for the senate, the most of the resolutions providing that they should draw pay from the beginning of the session. Only three or four of the resolutions were adopted.

The senate proceeded to the consideration of the house bill providing that not more than 33 per cent of the inmates of the state reformatory at St. Cloud shall be employed in dressing granite from the quarries.

Senator Hammer also opposed the bill, while Senator Donnelly favored it. The roll call on the passage of the bill developed 31 votes for and 15 against it.

The joint committee on waterways presented to the senate a voluminous report embodying the result of their researches in the matter of establishing canals in various portions of the state.

Friday April. 17.

SENATE.

The senate spent the first hour of the morning session in considering resolutions, which were interesting mainly to the employes whose per diem was involved in their adoption.

At the afternoon session several bills were taken up from general orders and put upon their passage. Among these was the house anti-Pinkerton bill. Senator Davis opposed the bill on the ground that it was simply a scheme to give the detectives of St. Paul and Minneapolis a monopoly of the detective business in the state and allow them to put in their pockets any rewards that might be obtained for the arrest of criminals.

An amendment offered by Senator Donnelly was adopted, which allows private persons or corporations to employ detectives to hunt down criminals, but does not give them authority to arrest the criminals when found.

The bill as amended was passed by a vote of 30 to 17.

HOUSE.

S. F. 863, the St. Paul city salary bill, was passed by the house as amended by the senate.

Mr. Bell brought up his resolution to cut the Duluth & Winnipeg land grant from ten to five sections per mile, but it was lost by a vote of 63 to 29.

Mr. Maguire introduced a resolution calling attention to the reported cruel treatment of two convicts in the Stillwater penitentiary by Deputy Warden Lemon, and instructing the prison investigating committee of the house to investigate and report by Monday next at 9 a. m. The resolution was adopted.

Mr. Capser called up the resolution to pay the telephone clerk $125, and it was passed.

Mr. McAllister's resolution to provide for the printing of 3,000 additional copies of the legislative manual was carried by a vote of 61 to 31.

A resolution to pay for the supply of newspapers to members was passed by a vote of 61 to 38.

The first bill of importance taken up was the Duluth & Winnipeg land grant bill, which, after a brief discussion, was passed.

The roll was called and by a unanimous vote of 71 yeas the age of consent bill was passed, and now only lacks the governor's signature to become law.

Saturday, April 18.

SENATE.

The first business done by the senate yesterday morning was to adopt the house joint resolution ordering the printing of 3,000 copies of the manual.

Senator Stevens introduced S. F. No. 884, a bill annexing to the corporate limits of St. Paul twenty-three acres of territory around Lake Phalen, and it was passed under suspension of the rules.

The senate took another whirl at the lunacy commission bill, which ended in laying the bill upon the table.

Another bill passed by the senate was Representative Stivers' bill prohibiting railroad companies from working their trainmen more than twenty consecutive hours except in case of casualties.

Among the house bills which passed the senate was the Searle refunding bill, the house bill providing for an investigation of land transfers, the house bills allowing corporations not so empowered, to issue preferred stock, the senate bill increasing the salary of the warden's clerk of the St. Cloud reformatory from $1,000 to $1,200.

HOUSE.

A fierce battle was waged over the general appropriation bill which was finally carried.

H. F. 931, the bill providing for the levying of a state tax of 2.1 mills, which was amended in the senate to 2.2 mills, was finally passed by a vote of 64 yeas to 42 nays, after one of the most unruly half hours spent during the session.

The most important bill passed on the calendar was Senate File 76. Senator Hemp's bill providing for the erection of public grain houses and elevators on the right of way of railway corporations.

A motion to call up McHale's anti-tights bill was promptly squelched.

The house worked away to very little effect all through the hours from midnight until 4 o'clock in the morning and succeeded in passing eight or nine bills, but the confusion was so great that it was impossible to make much progress.

FACTS ABOUT THE PEANUT.

An Exotic Which is Put to Many Uses—The Extent of Its Cultivation.

The peanut, originally a native of Africa, was first cultivated in this country in the Carolinas. It is now grown in many localities of all the Southern states and in California, but is a commercial crop only in Virginia, North Carolina and Tennessee. In a number of counties in these states it is regarded as the money crop, there being a steady cash demand for the product. The nuts have been used for the adulteration of chocolate, and considerable quantities are used in the manufacture of oil, but the great demand is for edible purposes. The demand for domestic consumption has steadily increased during recent years, largely outstripping the increase in population, and showing a growing state among our people for the nut. At one time we exported considerable quantities to France, where a large amount of the oil, is expressed, but during recent years our domestic market has been more lucrative for growers. The oil is used for an illuminant, in mechanics as a lubricant of very fine quality, and for alimentary purposes is said to be equal to the best olive oil, for which article it is sometimes substituted in commerce. The crop is one of our minor branches of rural industry of considerable aggregate value, but of such narrow geographical range that no national census, prior to that of 1890, has ever included it in its schedules, and consequently there are no official records of acreage or production. Two-thirds of the crop entering into commercial channels is grown in the southwestern counties of Virginia and adjoining districts in North Carolina, and the Norfolk market absorbs the largest proportion of the crop. The remaining third is raised in Tennessee. During the last four years the total quantity raised in the three states named was 11,880,000 bushels, an annual average of 2,970,000 bushels. The annual value of the crop for the last four years averaged about $2,500,000. Last year there were raised in Virginia 2,500,000 bushels; Tennessee, 1,000,000 bushels, and North Carolina, 250,000 bushels, making an aggregate of 3,750,000 bushels, which was the largest ever raised in one year, except in 1887, when the crop was 30,000 bushels greater than in 1890.—Philadelphia Ledger.

PREVENTING FLOODS.

How Floods May be Successfully Opposed.

Floods may be successfully opposed or escaped. Railways and wagon roads may and must be laid on river flood plains; but the embankments, and trestles, and bridges should be raised not only above the great natural flood mark found in the plain itself, and the reciprocal effects of embankments and other structures on future freshets should be cautiously reckoned. Farms may and ought to be located on fertile bottom lands enriched by annual or decennial overflow; but the farmer should dig deep for his foundations and build his superstructures strong and high. On every flood plain of eastern America he should provide for the loss of crop and fences once in three, or five, or ten years; and both common humanity and economic policy urge that dumb beasts should be pastured and fed on the uplands, so that the fertile river bottoms may be devoted to their best use, namely, the production of plant crops. Cities and towns ought not to be built on the flood-ridden and miasmatic lowlands; yet they have been in the past and will be in the future, so the townsman, like the farmer, should build high and strong and hold himself ready to remove his dear ones and carry his goods to upper stories. And the flood-swept bottom lands of the American rivers afford a business opportunity, curiously neglected in the past, though destined to be successfully grasped at no distant day; namely, insurance against floods.

The great desideratum is general recognition of the facts—which are demonstrated by the observations of thousands and gainsaid by none, though ignored by multitudes—that rivers bear their own flood marks in the alluvial plains by which they are skirted, and that men occupy these plains at their peril.—Forum.

Why Girls Cannot Throw.

Boys from time immemorial have made all manner of sport on the subject of the inability of girls to throw a stone. They suppose, of course, that it is a matter of knack and practice, and that a girl could really throw a stone with as much force as a boy if she "knew how," and threw as many. A medical authoritity suggests another reason:

The difference between a girl's throwing and a boy's is substantially this: The boy crooks his elbow and reaches back with the upper part of his arm about at right angles with his body, and the forearm at an angle of forty-five degrees. The direct act of throwing is accomplished by bringing the arm back with a sort of snap, working every joint from shoulder to wrist.

The girl throws with her whole arm rigid, the boy with his whole arm relaxed. Why this marked and unmistakable difference exists may be explained by the fact that the clavicle or collar-bone in the feminine anatomy is some inches longer, and set some degrees lower down than in the masculine frame.

The long crooked, awkward bone interferes with the full and free use of the arm. This is the reason why a girl cannot throw a stone.

MORTGAGE SALE

Whereas default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage bearing date April 11th 1889, made by Caroline McKibben and James A. McKibben her husband, mortgagors, to The Dakota Investment Company of Grand Forks Dakota, mortgagee, and recorded in the office of the register of deeds of the county of Polk in the state of Minnesota on the 12th day of April 1889 at 5.50 o'clock p. m. in Book 43 of mortgages page 22.

And whereas it was stipulated in said mortgage that in case of default in any of the conditions thereof, then the said mortgagee was empowered to declare the whole sum secured by said mortgage due and payable; and default having been made the said mortgagee has elected to and has declared the whole sum so secured due and payable; and whereas there is claimed to be due and is due on the debt so secured at the date of this notice the sum of twelve hundred twenty-two dollars and that no proceedings at law or in equity have been instituted to recover the said debt or any part thereof.

Now therefore notice is hereby given that said mortgage will be foreclosed pursuant to the statute and to the power of sale in said mortgage contained and the lands described in and secured by said mortgage to-wit: The south east quarter of section twenty in township one hundred fifty-three north of range forty six west situate in the county of Polk in the state of Minnesota will be sold by the sheriff of said Polk county at public auction on Saturday the 23rd day of May 1891 at 10 o'clock a. m. at the front door of the court house in the city of Crookston in said county and state to satisfy the amount then due on said mortgage with expenses of sale together with an attorneys fee of fifty dollars stipulated in said mortgage to be paid in case of foreclosure of the same.

Dated March 20th 1891.

Ignatius Donnelly has introduced fifty six bills since the opening of the session but not one of any importance or embracing sweeping reforms has become a law, Had Mr. Donnelly limited the number to two or three, made the provisions of his measures more reasonable and worked more earnestly for their passage instead of talking on everybody else's bills, he might have succeeded in earning the gratitude of the public.—New Ulm Review,

It would pay our village to spend considerable money this summer in making better roads running into town. We have now a good wheat market and with good roads can do a big business this fall.

The rains the past week make it almost certain that we will have the best crop we have had for several years. The ground is now well moistened something we have not seen in the spring for three years.

In any new country the people who lay back afraid to invest a dollar "until they learn how the country is going to turn out" never find it to turn out anything of benefit to them, The men who show their faith in their works find it turns out pretty well every time.

There is not a vacant building in St. Hilaire today. Our town may not be very big but everyone here is doing a good business and we have no dead horses staring us in the face, which is more than a large majority of the towns in this part of the country can say.

DAILY MAIL.

The citizens of St. Hilaire are requested to meet at the office of Mallory & Spafford on Friday evening April 24, at 7-30 p. m. to consider means whereby we can get a daily mail. It is earnestly hoped that there will be a full attendance.

Hemstead Washburne, the Republican candidate for mayor of Chicago, has been declared elected by the canvassing board. Mr. Washburne is a nephew of our junior U. S. Senator and claimes he will give Chicago a reform administration, which is badly needed.

Street Commissioner Harris has been doing excellent work the past week, he has had men at work fixing sidewalks cleaning up the streets and has put down a platform at the artesian well. A good deal more is left to be done yet in cleaning up the streets and we hope he will keep at work until they are in first class shape.

Seeding has been stopped by the rains the past week but considerable has already been put in. Some farmers report as high as one hunred acres already in crop. They also say that it is doing finely being nearly all sprouted. The prospects for a good crop is the best in several years.

The Crookston Times sagely remarks in its write up of the new opera house that "Mr. T, H. Bjoin, to whose enterprise is due the erection of this handsome structure, is of Scandinavian percentage." We hope, at least, that it is a legal rate or we will be compelled to lay the matter before the Farmers Alliance.

Brooklyn Eagle: Millicent —What is the meaning of "reciprocity" Will?

Will—It means an exchange in which neither party has the advantage: as for instance, if you were to give me a kiss (like this) I would be obliged to give you one in return (like this), see?

Millicent—Yes, how lovely; but Will, but I dont see how an old man like Mr. Blaine can be interested in it.

Our village should see that a wagon road is made on the reservation to the high landing this summer, This matter should not be neglected any longer. Meehan Bros. are building a steamboat there now and with a good road from here all of the reservation freight will come this way. It is less than twenty-five miles from here and a couple of hundred dollars would go a long way toward fixing a good road. It would be the most profitable money ever spent by this village and we think it the duty of the council to investigate as soon as possible.

According to popular tradition the island of Manhatten was sold in 1624 for the sum of $25. The conclusion one would naturally jump to would be that in the light of subsequent events the sum was a ridiculously small price. But let us suppose that $25 had been put out at 7 per cent interest in the year 1624 and had been allowed to compound up to the year 1884 how much would it then have amounted to? Something in the neighborhood of $1,600,000,000. Is the island of Manhatten worth much more than that today?

Mr. E. J, Kellogg, agent of the Great Northern at this place, received notice yesterday that he has been transferred to Stephen and will leave today for his new post, Mr. Kellogg has been agent here for the past three years and has made one of the best agents we have ever had. Mr. Kellogg and wife have many warm friends here who exceedingly regret to see them leave, and who all unite in wishing them prosperity in their new home. The new agent is a Mr. McCaller, formerly of Stephen,

Harry A. Garfield, oldest son of the late President Garfield, was defeated for nomination as a councilman in Cleveland, Ohio, on Tuesday, by John Henz, a saloon keeper. Speaking of the event the Duluth News says that is the way things are liable to go in this country. Once in a while some grandson of his grandfather gets to be president, but as a general thing pedigrees do not count in running for office.

Minneapolis Tribune: It is claimde by those who have had experiance in sugar beet culture that its profits are several times greater than can be made from the raising of cerials, they being from $40 to $60 per acre. In the two years from 1887 to 1889 the production of beet sugar in the United States increased from 400000 to 6,000,000 pounds. It is estimated that the product this year will be 24,000,000 pounds. The soil and climate of the West are peculiarly adapted to this culture and beet sugar is superior to that from sorghum.

A movement has been started among our citizens to work for a daily train and a meeting called for next Friday night, Petitions will be circulated here and at other post offices tributary to this place and there is no doubt that a large petition can easily be had. One thing is certain if we do not work for our interests no one else will. We are of the opinion that there is a sufficient amount of mail to warrent better service than we are getting and if the railroad company refuse our demands we can try the U. S post office authorities,

We are at last able to commend an act of the legislature in that they have adjourned. They held on to the very last minute and have done practically nothing except pass a few local bills and levy the largest tax ever levied on the state, They started in to reform everything in sight and have done nothing except fight and call one another boodlers, Their principal praise will be for the bills that did not pass. Business will now resume as before and we may be thankful that it will be two years before we will be treated to a similar affliction,

---

The steamship companies are dropping rejected imigrants off at Halifax and assisting them to smuggle themselves through Canada into the United States. The companies will be the loser in the long run for public sentiment and the whole power of the government are back of our immigration laws and every year it will be more dangerous and expensive for transportation agents to import the cutthroats and beggars of Europe into this country. Let them do a legitimate business and bring over none but ablebodied, industrious people of good character and fair health and they will be better off in the end.—Minneapolis Tribune.

The Minneapolis Linen Mills will be completed and ready for work in about two weeks, This is the first linen mill erected in the west and is in the nature of an experiment. Thousands of acres of flax is grown in the Northwest and the fiber thrown away. It is stated that the fiber is worth more than the seed and if this enterprise is successful it will be a good thing for the farmers of the Northwest, The company has imported flax fiber from Canada to start the mills but expect to get their supply from this state and the Dakotas in the fall.

McIntosh Tribune: Where is that legislation that was going to make the railroad and elevator companies dance? We have been looking for reformatory laws pertaining to railroad and elevator companies to be passed by the Democratic Alliance legislature, but lo! to behold nothing of the kind seems possible. We would like to see those companies dance; it would be quite entertaining, It would knock the Sioux dance "all hollow." The majority of the legislature promised the people such a law. If they don't fulfil their promises those legislaturs must do the dancing themselves. The people were promised this and they must have it.

It is expected that the Immigration Board of the Red River Valley will have a car of sight seers and land seekers through this part of the country as soon as the seeding is done and the fields begin to look green and promising There is no better time to show up this country than when the fiields have put on their coat of velvet green and all nature has on her best habiliments. The influx to this country this year will be very great and the amount of letters that are daily being received by the secretary of the board shows what is being done. The amount of advertising done by the Great Northern road is very great and the result will be felt by every one in the valley.—Hallock Enterprise.

A thrifty official of the Farmers' National alliance at Washington has been exposed as a political striker anxious to turn an honest penny by selling his influence. His letter addressed to Lieut, Gov. Jones, shows that he was willing to extend the moral support of his organization to that distinguished official official if Mr. Jones would in return consent, in accordance with his settled practice, "to pay the freight." Mr. Jones was not disposed to do so but instead has given the letter to the newspapers. The official is the famous Rittenhouse, "secretary to the president" of the National Alliance who made so much stir in Ocola, Fla, in December last it must be said that, so far as anyone knows at present, the National alliance is much ahead of our state organization in its methods and is completely up to snuff, as a national body of importance should ordinarily be.—St. Paul Dispatch.

The usury bill failed to become a law before the legislature adjourned, Common sense came to the rescue at the last moment and the bill was quietly pocketed. Capital has been badly scared however, and it will be some time before money will be as plentiful and rates as low as before the bill was introduced.

Democra ic papers are criticising Mr. Harrison for riding in a Pullman train because stage coaches and saddle horses were good enough for Thomas Jefferson He has also been known to hunt ducks with a hammerless breech loader, whereas Washington, the papa of his country was content with a flint-lock. Even G. Cleveland used to roll down Pennsylvania avenue in a varnished coach behind a pair of seal bays in cool defiance of the tradition that A. Jackson was wont to ride a hip-shot sorrel mare and tie her to the White House fence with his own hands. Verily these are degenerate days.—Tribune.

A UNINERSAL QUESTION.

"How can I get the most for the least money?" This is the almost universal question among Americans. Always in business, usually in pleasure often in religion this is the tape and rule by which a new proposition is measured. Not to write a homily but to aid hard-worked men in finding homes, and seekers of pleasures and health in finding desirable havens, is the purpose of this notice, We make it brief by saying: "Take the Great Northern Railway from St. Hilaire to the Northwest and the Pacific Coast." Publications concerning the Northwest sent free and letters of inquiry answered by F, I. Whitney G. P. & T. A. St. Paul Minn. The readers of this paper are advisod to call and see Agent Kellogg for particulars if a trip for pleasure, business or health is contemplated to any part of the United States.

A special to the New York Sun from Washington says that Secretary Blaine smarting under the unmannerly interferance of the president in his Canadian negotiations, has assured some of his friends that he would not withdraw his name if entered in the presidential race in 1892. According to the Sun two of Mr. Blaine's friends, citizens of a distant state called on him recently and demanded his consent that they should go to work fixing up their delegation for Blaine in the national convention in 1892. Mr. Blaine, according to these men, said that he could not be a candidate against Mr. Harrison, and was himself for Mr. Harrison's renomination. To this, one of the callers responded: "We don't want Harrison and the country does not want him. We want you. While it is true that you can't come out as a candidate, you can promise us and other friends that if we go to work for you, you won't withdraw your name or write any letter of declination. Will you promise that?" Mr. Blaine's friends say he will promise, and they left him determined to go home and whoop it up for Blaine in 1892.

The Chicago wheat market has not shown the aspiring character of late tent stirs the pulses of the hopeful grower of the great staple. The speculative disposition is bearish, and the uniform bright prospects in all the productive parts of the country have some effect. In a little more than two months, the winter wheat will be pouring from the threshers in a volume rarely exceeded. All the indications now are for a great yield. The conditions could not well be more favorable in the spring wheat regions. Without disasters not to be augured from any of the indications, this is to be a great wheat year in the United States. This would presage a falling of prices if the foreign demand were not likely to be increased But prices have been improving over the water in view of the smallness of the stocks on hand in all the producing countries and the unpromising outlook for the wheat crop in the old world districts chiefly depended upon. The figures in this country will be more than ever determined by foreign conditions. The prices now are below those warrented by the situation in Europe. If the feeling apparent over the water of late continues there must be a marked improvement in figures. It is well to have the present satisfaction of a cheerful mental picture of the agricultural results of the year.—St. Paul Globe.

After dinner, if you have discomfort and suffering, take Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, or Anti-Bilious Granules. They're made to assist Nature in her own way—quietly, but thoroughly. What the old-fashioned pill did forcibly, these do mildly and gently. They do more, too. Their effects are lasting; they regulate the system, as well as cleanse and renovate it. One little Pellet's a gentle laxative; three to four act as a cathartic. They're the smallest, cheapest, the easiest to take. Unequaled as a Liver Pill. Sick Headache, Bilious Headache, Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, and all derangements of the stomach and bowels, are promptly relieved and permanently cured.

They're the cheapest pill you can buy, because they're guaranteed to give satisfaction, or your money is returned.

You only pay for the good you get.

"German Syrup"

A Throat and Lung Specialty.

Those who have not used Boschee's German Syrup for some severe and chronic trouble of the Throat and Lungs can hardly appreciate what a truly wonderful medicine it is. The delicious sensations of healing, easing, clearing, strength-gathering and recovering are unknown joys. For German Syrup we do not ask easy cases. Sugar and water may smooth a throat or stop a tickling—for a while. This is as far as the ordinary cough medicine goes. Boschee's German Syrup is a discovery, a great Throat and Lung Specialty. Where for years there have been sensitiveness, pain, coughing, spitting, hemorrhage, voice failure, weakness, slipping down hill, where doctors and medicine and advice have been swallowed and followed to the gulf of despair, where there is the sickening conviction that all is over and the end is inevitable, there we place German Syrup. It cures. You are a live man yet if you take it.

WAITING.

It was simply absurd! Helmine, "the old maid," at a public masquerade! For nearly fifteen years she had not danced, and to commence again was too ridiculous. Then, too, it was so utterly unlike her to commit such folly, and as she saw her reflection in the tall mirror, enveloped from head to foot in the folds of a light blue domino, the face concealed by a velvet mask, a camelia in the hand, her impulse was to flee then and there. Unfortunately, however, she was not alone, but accompanied by her dressmaker—who acted as a sort of chaperone—and gay, light-hearted Wally. How fervently the child had begged for this pleasure. She had now long lost sight of her young charge, and the modiste, too, had suddenly been charmed from her side, and disappeared in the gay throng.

At this moment she fully realized the enormity of her 36 years—her withered complexion.

Poor little Wally was totally innocent of any part in this little comedy, for had not "Auntie," as she termed Miss Helmine, aroused the child's keen longing to be present by depicting in the most glowing colors the pleasures of an event?

At the last moment, indeed, Miss Helmine had tried to "back out," insisting she was too ill, but their physician, a young man by no means fireproof to the charms of Miss Wally, was instantly summoned by that young lady, and nothing short of a favorable verdict could possibly be expected.

After spreading out their ball finery before the young doctor, Wally cried, dramatically: "Is Auntie so ill that all this is doomed to the attic?"

Dr. Lenhard regarded more closely, for he was very nearsighted, the dainty page's costume, and his imagination instantly conjured up the picture of his charmer thus clad. In his embarrassment he grasped Wally's pulse instead of that of her aunt, murmuring confusedly: "The pulse is a trifle excited. Ah, pardon me. That is—all I wanted to say is, Miss Helmine, that you run no risk in taking Miss Wally to—"

Miss Helmine was greatly amused, and her suspicion that the doctor's next visit would be to the costumer was well founded. This, however, gave them the advantage of an escort, which made her feel somewhat easier on that score. Other scruples were speedily overcome, and Wally, now fairly wild with delight, waltzed the invalid about the room.

Ah, to be young once more!

Now, as she felt herself so completely deserted, she deeply repented having come. With painful anxiety she avoided all, seeking some retired spot. Fortunately she was familiar with the rooms and sought out a prettily decorated ante-room, which afforded the desired seclusion. She seated herself in a low arm chair, and listening to the strains of an intoxicating waltz, awaited his coming.

The white camelia was to reveal his identity, yet she felt that instinct would guide her to him without any outward sign. His picture, young, handsome, and grave, was fixed in her mind. Undoubtedly he would be tall and slender the attitude of the head bespoke as much. Ah, his photograph was the painful termination of this little romance.

Before seeing the picture she might still dream of a possibility, but now she realized the stern fact that he must be at least ten years her junior, that those lips were still imbued with the fire of youth—that hope was dead.

The beginning had been so charming. All the sweet joys of this, her last love affair, passed before her mind as she sat there in all her loneliness.

Sitting one day in the reading-room of a fashionable woman's club an article attracted her attention, headed: "Has Woman's Beauty Substantial Value?" Readers were asked to contribute opinions on the subject, and on the spur of the moment Helmine wrote a short but pithy article extoling spiritual beauty which withers but too soon when unaccompanied by the former. Perhaps these had not always been her sentiments, but her mirror told her that external beauty alone could no longer win her a lover. Shortly after the publication of this article, a letter was transmitted her through the editor of the paper, as her contribution had been anonymous. The writer spoke of his sympathy with the views conveyed by the article, and expressed a belief that he was addressing a beauty of the spiritual kind. He signed himself "Tristan," remarking he had not the courage to reveal himself openly as his heart dictated.

A correspondence ensued which proved both spirited and entertaining, neither disclosing their true names. In this way ideas could be exchanged with more freedom. Although personalities had been avoided, yet each knew the other had not met with that love which alone can give eternal joy. Both had dispositions somewhat tinged with melancholy, and this approaching meeting made them feel as though standing on the brink of a precipice. It seemed strange that Helmine should be an old maid. She certainly had been very pretty, and although without fortune, was the possessor of a fine education, occupying the position of teacher in one of our leading colleges. Many suitors had been hers, but her ideal of man was very lofty, and had not as yet presented himself. Above all he must possess a soul and worship at the shrine of woman.

But to-day, Tristan—what strange emotions thy name calls forth.

She is old, now, too old to have any claim on love—an old maid.

It is so sad not to have outlived, outloved one's life. So sad to die thus.

The more she began to understand him the more she realized their unfitness for each other, and his photograph brought matters speedily to a crisis. Again and again she stared at the somewhat faded picture. How young, how handsome he was. Just the hero for 18-year-old Wally. Helmine had held her present trusted position for the past ten years, and some six years ago Wally had been committed to her care, regarding her as a sort of second mother. Although cousins, Helmine was always addressed as "auntie" by her young charge.

In the sadness of her heart Grillparzer's Sappho came vividly to her mind, Helmine, like Sappho, was in possession of rare intellectual beauties, and a heart which glowed with the passionate fervor of a first love. There was Melitta, the beauteous youthful companion of Sappho and Phaon, whose love both sought.

No, no, she would not lend herself to play a part in the repetition of this sad story. It was then she determined to see "Tristan—Phaon." Seeing Wally was loving her, and as for herself he would esteem her highly, which was all she could now expect.

She wrote, inviting him to come to town, making mention in an off-hand manner, of the young relative, whose youth and cheerfulness sometimes made her forget her own age. An answer to this epistle came the following day. "I am trembling with impatience," he wrote, "for the moment to come which will either verify or crush the fond hopes which have unconsciously arisen within me. I am, alas, far different from what you imagine."

"He comes," said Helmine, "and my joyous dream is dispelled. Ah, it is not only painful; it is humiliating! Is there no way in which to prolong the delusion?"

The following plan suggested itself to her, and she wrote: "That disappointment may not be too keenly felt by either of us, I have devised this plan for our first meeting: Let us attend, in disguise, of course, the masked ball of the Philharmonic Society."

This idea met with his approval, and it was agreed that he appear in a black, she in a blue domino, both carrying in their hand a white camelia. They would not remove their masks, and not until next day would they look upon each other's countenance. Then she would invite him to her house, receive him in her plain house dress, the charming Wally at her side.

It certainly seemed apparent that Wally was interested in the near-sighted doctor, for had she not lately displayed a wonderful interest in the latest results of Dr. Koch's new method, and was she not posted on facts concerning it like a physician? Still this would hardly make a difference, and Wally would soon come to her senses.

All these thoughts darting through the poor girl's head, made her feel sadly out of place in this gay scene.

A couple of masks passed by, carrying on a lively dispute of some kind. There, too, was Wally in her dainty page's dress. Helmine had been prepared to swear that the ribbons on her shoes were blue, but perhaps the light was at fault. Certainly, there stumbled a near-sighted Huguenot, undoubtedly the Doctor.

Helmine remained shy and humbled in her velvet seat, regarded fixedly the frescoes on the opposite wall. Sounds of music echoed from the distant ballroom. Her mask fairly burned her hot face. What folly was she committing, and for what purpose? Had love and happiness indeed parted company with her forever?

Her thoughts were beginning to be unbearable.

Suddenly a black mask, holding a white camelia, stands before her. She seeks self-control, for he must never guess her thoughts. He is evidently tall and slender, and in a polished, gentlemanly way excuses himself for having kept her waiting at all, pleading his ignorance of the rooms, etc. He takes her hand, and his warm clasp says far more plainly than the white camelia: "Isolde, it is I."

A feeling of tenderness takes possession of her, and a sadness born of lost youth. She throws it off, however, and chats pleasantly without apparently being embarrassed by her uncomfortable feelings at this masquerade. There they sat quietly side by side, yet the lifting of those masks might reduce to misery two longing hearts. She tried to prepare him gradually by reciting wittily her many doubts and the disappointments connected with her appearance at the ball, and how the evening had seemed spoiled before it had fairly commenced. To this he replied bitterly: "Life is all one sad disappointment."

Hesitatingly, "Perhaps" passed over her lips.

The crisis had now arrived, and with manly decision he said: "Let us throw off these masks; I, for one, have not told you the whole truth."

"Nor I."

"I have deceived you, Isolde. That photograph is certainly my own, but it was taken twenty years ago, and since then I have passed through a severe illness. I can lay no claim to love—I am old."

With a cry of delight she tore off her mask. "So am I; so am I," she almost shouted, forgetting all. "You are joking," he managed to say, for Helmine did not realize how youthful and pretty she looked in her excitement. Pushing back the hood of her domino, she said: "See, Tristan, see. I have many hairs. I am 36 years old; nearly 40. Just think!—"

"And I," he said, showing a head thickly covered with gray curls, am far over 40. I did not wish to tell you, to dispel your delusion, but I could keep silent no longer." And they were both childishly happy over their gray hairs.

At this moment a page entered the room, a Huguenot in hot pursuit. "Ah, please Miss Wally," the latter cried in a breathless, pleading tone. The page turned, "Miss Wally? Sir, you are mistaken." And the young dandy strutted on with much indignation. Another page now came forward from an opposite direction, and wearing the unmistakeable blue ribbon on his sleeves. Lightly tapping the hapless Hugenot on the shoulder he said: "Let us leave this court, my dear sir, that your nearsightedness may not cause you more embarrassment."

An Obsolete Army Custom.

A curious incident marked the career of the late Sir Leicester Smyth. At the time of the last European war in which England was engaged, the custom—now become obsolete—was observed of granting to the bearer of despatches announcing a victory a sum of £500 and promotion in rank. The then Major Smyth brought home the official notification of the fall of Sebastopol, and received the customary reward and the brevet rank of lieutenant-colonel.

TWO EX-EMPRESSES.

Eugenie of France and Victoria of Germany in Paris.

I was never more shocked in my life than when the train stopped and Empress Eugenie faced round to get out. There is still in the profile something of the old Eugenie who wielded the sceptre of fashion, although a twisted and sunken mouth spoils the purity of the outline. But the front face was almost caricatural. One sees a poor forehead, narrow at the temples, eyes set close to each other, hanging eyelids, brows raised high above the bridge of the nose and falling rapidly toward the corners of the eyes, a long aquiline nose, wide at the nostrils, and of no width at the bridge, a wide lower-face and falling pouch cheeks. The expression was almost silly, though it tells of infinite moral suffering. I fancy she must have suffered most because her pride was humiliated and her 16 years of triumph ended in disgrace. The hair, almost snowy, was very beautiful, and was becomingly dressed. It went well with her blanched complexion. She had to be almost lifted out of the train, and had two sticks in her hands. M. de Raimbeau, when she was set on her feet, gave her his arm and she glanced around. The face took a dazed, weak expression. A crowd of grimy men and women who were going to the cheap working-class cars to ride to St. Denis came on the platform, recognized her and stopped. They tried to mob her. Curiosity was the feeling uppermost. But the elderly folks, who remembered the Empire and its fall, were bitter. The police tried to open a way, and the poor old lady, supported by M. M. de Raimbeau and Pietri, hobbled down the platform to where two carriages awaited her and her party. When she got into the foremost one she seemed to enjoy for a moment being stared at by a mob. But an old man came up, and shaking his fist, asked what business she had with such luxury, after bringing ruin upon France. The volatile crowd in an instant looked hostile. The Empress fell back into a corner, as if from faintness. Policemen cleared a way for her vehicle, and the coachman, lashing his horses, it was out of sight in a few minutes.

I saw the Empress Frederick arrive at 12:40 a. m. She is short, plain, stout, and, indeed, buxom, and looked jolly as she alighted and shook hands with the members of the two embassys that awaited her. She wore her widow's crape bonnet and veil. There is much in her countenance to remind one of Queen Victoria.

The physiognomy gives the impression of sturdy strength of mind and high thought. Nevertheless she has a retreating chin and a poorly formed mouth. The nose is commonplace and turned up. Where her strength lies is in the compact, well-developed forehead and brow. I saw her since walking on the Quay Voltaire. There were infinite depths of sorrow expressed on the plain face. It derived from this an almost tragical interest. —Paris letter New York Tribune.

Mine Discoveries in Leadville.

Many of the discoveries were made by men who had no knowledge of metallurgy or of practical mining, and they achieved a competence through the sheerest blundering. Two poor and ignorant men named Gallagher opened the Camp Bird mine; a prospector who shot a deer for dinner one day saw that there were sparkles in the earth that the animal kicked up in its last agony, and staked his claim there when he found that these bright spots were carbonate. The rich deposit found by a recluse named Fryer, who lived in a dirty cabin, gave the name of Fryer Hill to the locality. A man having died one winter, his friends engaged a sexton to put the body in snow until the ground thawed; he started to dig a hole in the drift but struck ground sooner than he expected, and not only ground but carbonate, the "dead man's claim" panning out, as the saying is, to the great profit of the sexton. Senator Tabor kept a little grocery in Leadville, and took part of a mine in payment of a claim for $30 that he had advanced to the owners, the mine returning to him over $2,000,000.—Goldthwaite's Geographical Magazine

What an Indian Can Eat.

"An Indian can eat anything," said a Robert Street commission merchant, as two ancient children of the forest with well-filled bags over their backs made their exit from the storeroom. "These squaws come here once or twice a week," he continued, "and beg for tainted meat and decayed vegetables and fruit. They will take everything we give'em, and will put the stuff into their sacks and carry it off. I have given them stuff that no white being would think of eating, and they seem to think it all right. I asked one of them how they could eat such strong-smelling meat, when she informed me that in cooking it they destroyed the offensive odor. For all I know, these squaws keep Indian boardinghouses."—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

An Astonished Dentist.

The valuable chimpanzee has developed an unexpected knowledge of dentistry, and performed his first operation on Tuesday. Despite his warm cage and the care with which he is guarded from draughts, he managed to catch a cold in the jaw, which resulted in a toothache. It was the first experience and he did not like it. He picked at the offending molar until, giving it an extra hard pull, it parted with the gum and came out. This was a notch higher than the chimpanzee had ever gone before, and, as he gazed at the glistening tooth in his brown paw, a look of anxious bewilderment spread over his countenance, and his under jaw dropped in helpless astonishment. Even yet he spends hours in examining the tooth, only relinquishing it when meal time comes around.—Philadelphia Press.

The Cost of a Riding Habit.

"It has repeatedly been asked," writes Mrs. Lucy H. Hopper (from Paris) to the Philadelphia Telegraph, "why the Empress, after the news of Sedan was made public, did not present herself to the guards and the people of Paris and call upon them to rally around her and her son to maintain for the latter the imperial throne. The cause of this singular abstention has been made public. It was because no suitable riding habit could be found for her in which to show her self on horseback to the troops and the populace. There was only one to be found at the Tuileries in the hurry and confusion of that terrible crisis. It was one made for the hunting parties at Compiegne, and was in the Louis XV. style, composed of green velvet embroidered with gold, and necessitating a cocked hat for completion of the costume. It was too theatrical. It would not do. And so the gallant appeal to the public was given up, and with it the last hope for the preservation of the empire.

This has been a very bad season for dramatic companies. As the ghost doesn't walk, the actors have to.

MAJ. GEORGE BAKER, the well known newspaper man, died at Steilacoom insane asylum in Seattle, Wash. He served in the civil war, and was afterwards engaged in the newspaper business at Washington D. C.

CONGRESSMAN M. H. FORD died of apoplexy at Grand Rapids, Mich. He retired in his usual good health at midnight, but was found insensible in his bed at 7 o'clock in the morning, and remained in that condition until his death.

A PROOF of Washington's farwell address, which is particularly valuable because of the corrections written on it by the first president himself, has been presented by George W. Childs to the Mount Vernon association, and in a few days it will be placed among the other treasures at Washington's Old Virginia home.

UNFORTUNATE EVENTS.

FIRE has destroyed 15,300,000 pounds of sugar cane belonging to the Laberinto estate near Cifuentas, Cuba.

LA GRIPPE is rapidly decimating the Indians in the vicinity of North Yakima, Wash. At White Bluffs nine died in one day, and at the Mose and Yakima reservations the death rate is large.

THE Pewabic mine fire at Houghton, Mich., has been extinguished, and men are at work at the lower levels. New timbering is to be put in at once and a second skip added to the shaft.

AT Merrill, Wis., two children of C. W. Fuller were playing near a pile of planks when the planks tipped over on both. The girl died in a few minutes and the boy lived about two hours.

THE Chaudiere valley, one of the richest farming districts in Quebec province, has been completely inundated by the rise of the Chauderie river, and serious damage is reported. Populous centers will suffer heavy losses.

IN Chicago fire from an explosion of gasoline in the house of Theodore Kranbradt destroyed that and several adjoining buildings and their contents, and rendered homeless about a dozen families. Kranbradt was badly, and Mrs. Mary Burnsen fatally, burned. Loss, 50,000.

CRIMINAL.

GEORGE GRIEBER of Cincinnati murdered his wife and committed suicide.

GEORGE WHITMORE, president of the Nephi (Utah) National bank, was buncoed out of $6,000 by gold brick swindlers. The swindlers disappeared.

HENRY E. FANNING is held for the murder of Mrs. Emily Taylor in New York. Fanning's roommate states that Fanning confessed the murder to him.

ALEXANDER BENTON, a mine owner near Napoleon, Mo., was shot and instantly killed by Huge Garratt, a saloonkeeper. Both are prominent and well known men.

IN a saloon fight at Bakertown, Pa., Herman Nelson, the proprietor shot and killed John Vancoy and fatally wounded Walter Woodard. The murderer was arrested.

ED. GREENE, a traveling salesman known throughout Ohio, now connected with a Columbus hat store, fatally cut his wife at Zanesville, Ohio. Jealousy was the cause.

IN New York recently Albert Stall shot and seriously wounded a concert saloon actress and then shot and seriously wounded himself. No cause is known.

NEAR New Jefferson, Ohio, Lorenzo Coleman, a lunatic, fatally shot his sister and dangerously shot Cloman and wounded his mother slightly with a shot-gun.

AT Norwalk, Conn., burglars fired a small barn, and while the police and others were attacking the blaze, entered Jackson's jewelry store and secured 15,000 worth of jewelry and diamonds.

THE wife of George Murphy, near Fort Wayne, Ind., placed a revolver against the head of her sleeping five-year-old daughter and sent a bullet through her head, killing her instantly. Mrs. Murphy is crazy.

IN a fight with Richard Williams and his brother, drunken miners at Iron River, Mich., Marshall Terry was shot through the body and Richard Williams' left arm was shattered.

THE couple who committed suicide at the Grand Union hotel, New York, were, Paul Beherend, a music teacher, and Emma Dammheimer, formerly an inmate of a disorderly house, in which she made Beherend's acquaintance.

THE grand jury at Chicago returned an indictment against Dennis Sheehan, a Democratic judge of election, for forcibly breaking open the ballot box in the Twentieth precinct of the Nineteenth ward on election day.

NEAR Calbert Station, Ind. T., six men fired into the cabin of Aaron Hogan, colored, wounding Hogan, Lavina Barnes and Kitty and Cullie Hogan. Their injuries are not fatal. Hogan had interfered in an attempt on the part of the men to burn a neighbor's house.

THE federal grand jury at Chicago returned a true bill against George J. Gibson, former secretary of the whiskey trust, on the charge of attempting to bribe a government officer to blow up Shufeldt's distillery. A capias for Gibson's arrest was at once issued. It is expected that he will at once come to Chicago from Peoria and give bail for his appearance when wanted.

SAM JOHNSON, the negro who ravished Eva Bailey, a respectable white girl at Charleston, W. Va., was sentenced to be hanged. After Judge Snider pronounced sentence, Johnson made a desperate attempt to kill the judge. Officers rushed in and after a desperate struggle, succeeded in dragging the negro away. Judge Snider was not seriously injured.

OTHER SHORES.

A GLASGOW woman has left Salvationist Booth $350,000.

THE insurgents of Chili have fought another battle with the government troops and defeated the latter. This last battle was fought at Iquique on April 19.

THE local government of Prince Edward's Island has resigned. The lieutenant governor has decided not to dissolve parliament.

FARMER DAMM of Albrechtshain, Austria, killed his wife and four children with a hatchet and then hanged himself. Money trouble had crazed him.

IN the British house of commons Honorable William H. Smith said a warrant had been issued for the arrest of Decobain, the Irish conservative member of parliament, accused of unnatural crimes.

THE Mexican government has appointed Leander Fernandez as engineer to lay out grounds at the Chicago fair, several of the states having signified their intention to make exhibits.

THE Official Messenger publishes a decree prohibiting any Jewish artisans or trades from entering the city of Moscow and expelling those already residing there. The czar wrote with his own hand on the bottom of the original document a notice to the officials of Moscow that the decree was to be carried out in every particular. It is stated that a similar decree is projected for St. Petersburg.

AN anonymous pamphlet, of which Prince Bismarck is supposed to be the author, has been published in Dresden. The pamphlet is entitled "The Ruin of Austria," and among other things it suggests that Germany's truest policy is an alliance with Russia and Italy. Prince Bismarck, this publication adds, would unhesitatingly allow Russia to pursue her historically mapped-out route to Constantinople through Bulgaria if that would avert a crisis.

SPORTS.

TEEMER has posted money in Boston on a challenge to row Gaudaur three races at varying distances.

A BOSTON paper announces that the amalgamation between the League of American Wheelmen and the Amateur Union has been consummated.

IN Wilkesbarre, Pa., Tony Farrell and James Jackson fought before the Jester Athletic club. Jackson was knocked out in the third round by a blow on the neck. Both men were badly punished.

A FIGHT with skin gloves took place at Peoria, Ill., between Joe Tansey of Omaha and Charles Wickert of Peoria. Nine rounds were fought, at the end of which Tansey's seconds threw up the sponge. The fight was for $500 and the gate receipts.

GEORGE DIXON the colored bantam weight fighter of the world, gave an exhibition of his fistic ability at Battery D, Chicago, in a six-round contest with Martin Flaherty of Streator, Ill. Dixon easily had the best of the fight, Flaherty clinching repeatedly to avoid punishment. In the sixth round the fighting was rapid and vicious, Dixon receiving a cut over the right eye, drawing blood. This angered him, and he rushed Flaherty viciously, delivering such a rain of blows on him that Flaherty could only avoid them by clinching. No one heard the cry of time, as they were very viciously fighting when Lieut. Ross and a crowd of men stopped the fun to the disgust of three thousand spectators.

RAILROADS.

THE directors of the Pullman Palace Car company declared the regular quarterly dividend of 2 per cent, payable May 15.

A MEETING will be held at Chicago of the Westean Freight association to adjust lumber rates from Mississippi river points to Omaha and the Southwest. The various Chicago-St. Paul lines will be represented, as they are interested.

THE following all-rail freight rates went into effect from Boston and common points to St. Paul: First class, $1.04; second 85 cents; third, 71 cents; fourth, 48 cents; fifth, 39 cents; sixth, 35 cents. These rates apply via the Canada Atlantic and Soo, and also via the Canadian Pacific, Dispatch and Soo.

PURSUANT to a mandate of the supreme court, the Illinois Central has been put in possession of the freight house and roads heretofore occupied by the Baltimore & Ohio will secure other terminals and its passenger trains will soon be running into the Wisconsin Central Depot.

AMONG THE TOILERS.

WAGES of Yorkshire iron miners have been cut 5 per cent.

NEARLY all of the striking graders on the world's fair grounds in Chicago have returned to work under police protection.

AT Pittsburg the Edgar Thomas Steel Works of Carnegie & Co., which have been closed down for the past ten weeks, will resume operations in full, giving employment to about 2,000 men.

THE miners of the Upper Monongahela river region have thrown a bomb into labor circles in Pittsburg by refusing to go out for the eight hour day, May 1, when the general miner's move is to be made.

THE coal operators having headquarters in Chicago are laying in large stocks of coal in anticipation of the miners' strike on May 1. Operators owning mines in the Ohio, Indiana, Pennsylvania and Iowa bituminous fields all expect their men to walk out when the word to strike is given. They say that thirty days cessation of work will exhaust the supply in stock.

MISCELLANEOUS NOTES.

OVER fifteen hundred Italians landed at New York. Two of them will be sent back to Italy, as they are ex-convicts.

DURING the last month 52,172 aliens arrived in the United States, against 35,750 in March of 1890.

THE St. Louis presbytery have voted almost unanimously to recommend the general assembly the appointment of women as deaconesses.

EAST Pennsylvania dairymen demand the discharge of the Philadelphia collector of internal revenue for alleged violation of the bogus butter law.

BARON HIRSCH has bought a large tract of land near Ridgeway, Pa., on which he will colonize Russian Jews to cultivate sugar beets.

A CONVENTION of wholesale grocers of the smaller cities throughout the west has begun in St. Louis. About sixty delegates are present, representing over 182 wholesalers.

A ST. PAUL lady is reunited to her husband after a separation of seventeen years, during which time he amassed a fortune in Australia and was thought by his wife to be dead.

THE NORTHWEST.

A Summary of the Important Events of the Week in the Northwestern States.

Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa, North and South Dakota News in a Nutshell.

MINNESOTA.

Prominent merchants of Duluth have effected the permanent organization of a jobbers' union.

A Kroshus, formerly editor of the Caledonia Journal, has returned home from the insane asylum where he was taken last fall, entirely recovered.

Prof. E. G. Admas of Owatonna has been elected principal of the Rochester public schools, vice Prof. Darius Steward, resigned, at a salary of $1,500 per year.

The Gem City, of the St. Paul & St. Louis line arrived at Wabasha recently and will be the first boat of the season through Lake Tepin.

John Flood and Louis Miller, two young crooks confined in the Pine City lock-up awaiting removal to the state reformatory, broke jail and escaped.

The date for the transfer of Itasca county from the St. Cloud to the Duluth land district has been fixed for June 1. The local office has sent out formal notices to that effect.

W. B. Reed of Hastings, and Oscar Wolf of St. Paul will represent Minnesota at the meeting of the Right Worthy Grand Lodge I. O. G. T., to be held at Edinburgh, Scotland, May 29.

Ellen L. Nelson, a young married woman of Red Wing, thirty-three years of age, committed suicide recently by hanging herself in a barn. Despondency over the loss of her children and pondering over religious matters are supposed to be the cause.

Fire broke out at Waseca in the frame hotel building owned by Thomas Coleman, and before the flames could be gotten under control the entire building was destroyed. His loss on building and furniture is estimated at $2,500. Insurance light.

The government agent from Washington has arrived in Mankato to locate the site for the United States public building. A large number of sites are offered and the owners of each are pressing their claims to the best advantage.

John Joyce, employed by Joe Wright as a laboring man, at Spring Valley, made a bet that he could cross a bridge west of this place, on the Milwaukee road, in front of a train, and lost the bet. He was badly mangled, and died before a physician could reach him.

George Turner and Mrs. Lettie J. Howe, of Denmark were married at Prescott, Wis. The bride is a member of the graduating class of '88 of the Hastings high school, and her many friends will extend to her and her chosen companion hearty congratulations.

News has been received at St. Cloud that an attempt was made recently to wreck the east-bound Great Northern freight train three miles west of Sauk Center. The track had been obstructed with ties at various points, but was discovered before the engine struck them.

Ora Oskey, a boy fourteen years old, left his home at Red Wing last fall with 20 cents in money, and since that time he has seen a large part of the country. He has been all through the South and West as far out as the Pacific coast, and he is now in Montana on his way home.

Mayor elect D. E. Priest, of Waseca, has entered upon the duties of his office. In his communication to the council the mayor dwelt on the necessity of strict economy in financial matters and of earnest efforts to advance the material interests of the city. Speculation is rife as to his appointments, none having as yet been announced.

Andrew Nelson, a farmer living near Tyler, met with a peculiar and painful accident while seeding. He was standing in front of his team when they became frightened and springing forward knocked him down, and running over him, caught him on the seeder teeth and lacerated him terribly. He was badly but not fatally hurt.

The maple sugar season, which is practically at an end in the vicinity of White Earth has been a poor and unprofitable one, the poorest in fact known for many years. The lateness of the "breaking up," wet, murky weather and the hot stage of the weather when the sun shone all had a tendency to the failure of the season.

The next term of the district court will begin in Albert Lea on Tuesday, May 21, and a large calendar of cases is expected. Beside several railroad cases for personal injury, there are two suits against the city involving $30,000 for injuries said to have been sustained by reason of a defective sidewalk.

J. M. Batchelor, of Hastings, who has been quite ill with paralysis, breathed his last, leaving a wife and one son. He had been engaged in the boat manufacturing business, and removed here from Red Wing over a year ago. He was a gentleman respected by all who knew him. The remains were shipped to Red Wing for interment at Trenton.

A painting in oil of rare beauty was discovered in the ruins of the old French mission church at Crow Wing, a few miles north of Little Falls, by Rev. A. Lamothe, of the French Catholic church here. It represents one of the saints holding aloft a cross, and around him representatives of the various races of the globe gazing at the uplifted cross.

A complimentary banquet of Representative A. J. Greer was given by citizens at the Merchants hotel Lake City. It was a nonpartisan affair, in which about a hundred of Mr. Greer's friends, with various political convictions, participated. Mayor McKenny presided. The event signified a thorough appreciation by his fellow townsmen of the work done by Representative Greer in the late legislature.

The Southern Minnesota Dental association held its annual session in Mankato. The attendance was large, including many dentists from Northern Iowa. These are the officers: President, Dr. C. W. Nutting of Spring Valley; vice president, Dr. E. D. Allison of Marshall; secretary, Dr. E. L. Hawes of Mankato; treasurer, Dr. F. P. James of Sleepy Eye.

The new council of Winona organized by electing John Keenan president and John Beutner vice-president. The following city officers were elected: Recorder, O. H. Clarke; city engineer and street commissioner, Frank Bratka; city attorney W. A. Finkelnburg; water commissioner, Alex Milanowski; pound master, F. W. Clark; official newspaper, Winona Herald.

The United States grand jury brought in two indictments at Mankato, one against Arthur Quincy for stealing a package containing a watch chain from the Stillwater postoffice, and the other against John Roszell for raising a $1 silver certificate and attempting to pass the same at Kandiyohi Station. Quincy pleaded guilty, and being but seventeen years of age was sentenced to one year at the St. Cloud reformatory. Roszell's trial has not come off.

There was a special meeting of the Albert Lea council called by Mayor Wilcox to arrange the bond for the city treasurer, $65,000 the amount previously fixed being higher than that officer could secure. The bond was promptly fixed at $30,000, after which the appointments by the mayor of W. S. Carey, as chief of police, and S. F. Chamberlain as policeman, at an increase of $5 per month. Dr. J. M. Todd, F. B. Fobes and A. H. Squires were appointed a board of health for the present year.

NORTH DAKOTA.

J. Walker Smith, Max Witelshofer and D. M. Holmes were elected members of the board of education from the First, Third and Fifth wards of Grand Forks.

The teachers' institute of Grand Forks county meets June 8. State Superintendent Ogden will be present. Mrs. Eiserihuth and Miss Fannie Miller are the lecturers.

Herman, of Hudson, Wis., held at Devils Lake to await requisition for assault with intent to kill a rival lover at that place, and held also for attempt to murder Deputy Sheriff Gilbertson, of that county, was found hanging in his cell. He was cut down by city Policeman Dave Murphy and is likely to recover.

Lloyds, the well known Jamestown private bankers, have incorporated under the National Banking act as Lloyds' National bank. William M. Lloyd, J. W. Lloyd, and S. K. McGinnis of this city, H. L. Lloyd of La Moure and D. McKay Lloyd of Pittsburg, Pa., are the directors. William M. Lloyd is president and J. M. Lloyd cashier. Bank capital is $100,000.

George H. Frey of Sherman, Me., is at Hawkinson to put in a potato starch factory. The wells are being drilled and the foundation made. Farmers in this vicinity have contracted to grow 1,000 acres of potatoes. This will be the first potato starch factory in the state. The state pays a bounty of 1 cent per pound for all starch made in the state from Dakota grown potatoes.

At an adjourned meeting of the board of directors of the Bismarck penitentiary, the contract for furnishing the necessary pipe and fittings for the waterworks extension from the city limits to the prison buildings, was awarded to Rogers & Ordway, of St. Paul, for a consideration of $35 per ton, free on board, in Bismarck. The work on this matter will give employment to the entire prison force for the greater portion of the summer.

The wife of A. M. Johnson, of Fargo, a brakeman on the Northern Pacific, has mysteriously disappeared, and there are many sensational rumors afloat as to the cause. Johnson alleges it is a case of "affections alienated, and that she has gone with a former resident of Fargo, while others allege it is a case of supreme disgust on the part of the wife, as Johnson is charged with being too much of a ladie's man, and that Mrs. Johnson has gone to her mother.

Public Examiner Wallace went to the Red river valley to investigate the neglect of private bankers to organize under the state law. Several weeks ago he issued a circular notifying private bankers that they must organize prior to April 20. Forty-nine banks have organized under the state law, but there are twenty that have not, presumably for the purpose of avoiding assessment. Unless some reasonable cause is given for their neglect information will be made against such private bankers and they are liable under the law to a heavy fine.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Manager Broadhurst, of the Grand Forks opera house, has accepted the management of a local baseball club.

The district W. C. T. U. convention at Mitchell, was attended by a good representation of workers. Mrs. H. M. Baker, state president, addressed the unions.

Henry Boss, employed in Brown's lumber camp, near West Superior was drowned while breaking a log jam. His body was recovered in a few hours.

Dr. C. B. Alford, president, together with other members of the state board of health, met at Huron, and appointed boards in nearly all counties of that part of the state.

J. D. D. McCally, a prominent grain buyer of Frederick for a number of years, was buried the other day. He leaves a wife and many friends.

Prof. Foster, the bigamist, of Sioux Falls remanded by Judge Aikens to the care of the sheriff until a representative from Newport, Ky., appears to take him back to that state.

Eight saw mills at Ashland and three across the bay, at Washburn, have commenced operations. The season's cut will be much larger than that of last year. Many mills will run night and day.

The Roland house, a large frame structure, at Neenah was burned recently. Of the half-dozen transient or regular boarders only one man is accounted for at present. Roland and his family escaped.

Advices from Washington state that postal receipts during the past year have been sufficient in Pierre to raise the postoffice from third class to one of the second classes, and put in the special mail delivery system.

Mrs. Frank R. Hyde, who poisoned her two daughters and then attempted suicide at Souix Falls, is slowly recovering. The oldest daughter is dead, while the youngest may recover. The perpetrator of the horrible act has lucid moments and fully realizes her position. The husband is bordering on insanity, his grief being more than he can bear.

General Manager Ward, of the Duluth, Pierre & Black Hills, let a contract for eight miles of grading out from Faulkton. Spencer Bros. of Spink county have three miles, and the rest goes to Faulkton parties. Chief Engineer Tilden and corps left for eight miles from Pierre to locate the route into Pierre. Work will be pushed from both ends of the line to completion.

The Swan company has just completed a fine six-inch artesian well on the farm of Hon. J. P. Day, of Spink County. The State Agricultural college has leased a forty-acre tract of Mr. Day, and with the help of an expert from Colorado will make a practical test and experiment of irrigation the coming summer. Twenty acres will be cultivated with irrigation and twenty without.

Capt. Charles F. Powell, the government engineer in charge of improvements on the Missouri, from Sioux City to Fort Benton, will arrive in Yankton from the former city, where he has been arranging for offices for his clerical force which is to be headquartered there. While here Capt. Powell will select a location for the ice harbor to be located at Yankton, and also an informal survey of points in the river near here, likely to require the attention of his corps.

WISCONSIN.

Charles Fredin was killed six miles south of West Superior by a falling tree. He was unmarried, and came here from Minneapolis.

George Lewis, a mail carrier, was arrested at Appleton and taken to Milwaukee for destroying circular mail matter. He is perfectly honest, but fell into a careless habit.

Thomas Taylor, a prominent farmer of Hammond died a few days ago, very suddenly of la grippe, only being sick two days. The deceased was a brother of Armstrong Taylor, an attorney in Minneapolis.

Kate Early, who had been an inmate of a house of prostitution, died in the hospital at West Superior from an overdose of morphine, to the use of which she was addicted. There is good reason to believe that she suicided. An inquest will be held.

Chas. A. David, aged 40, a farmer and blacksmith living near New Richmond, shot himself with a Winchester rifle. He was a hard drinker and had been on a spree for some time and probably put an end to his life in a fit of despondency.

A serious accident was narrowly averted on the St. Paul road at Cheney, five miles east of Kilbourn City. Ludwig Knutson discovered a switch lock misplaced and the switch tied out of place, and the fast mail about due. He flagged the train and brought it to a stop before the switch was reached.

When the newly elected city officers were taking the oath of office at La Crosse, it was discovered that O. C. Hats, tax commissioner, was not a freeholder and therefore absolutely disqualified. An effort will be made for unanimous consent in the legislature to amend the charter so the council can appoint, otherwise a new election must be held.

As one incidental result of the passage of the Taylor bill it is learned on excellent authority that it has already been decided by two lumber concerns now operating at Burlington and Dubuque, respectively, to discontinue sawing there and to locate two new saw mills in the Chippewa valley. Doubtless if this purpose is entertained a similar movement on the part of other lumber concerns now operating down the river may be looked for.

IOWA.

Two men were arrested at Ottumwa, for robbing an old man named Johnson.

Constable Hage Kent of Ottumwa brought action against the Courier for $5,000 damages for alleged defamation of character.

Joseph Proctor, a young school-teacher, attempting to board a freight train at Paris, on the Rock Island, was instantly killed.

The proposition to bond Le Mars electric lights was resubmitted at a special election and defeated by a majority of 260 against.

Bishop Perry, of Davenport, confirmed a class of 21 persons at Christ's church, Burlington, and a large class at Fort Madison.

A settlement was made with a syndicate of banks of the claim against the defunct Commercial bank of Dubuque. One hundred and sixty five thousand dollars worth of claims were settled at 77½ cents on the dollar. This practically closes the litigation in the United States courts.

While two young lads, Walter Mincer and Ed. Doran, were playing with a revolver at Eldora, Doran pointed the gun at Mincer and pulled the trigger. The weapon happened to be loaded, and the bullet entered Mincer's body. The boy is alive, but nothing of the bullet can be found. It is thought the boy can recover, although blood poisoning is feared.

Ottumwa section of the county superintendents of schools met with 20 counties represented. State superintendent Sabin presided. Papers were read by J. T. Riggs on "The Recess Question," and J. H. Landis on "The Methods to Obtain More Thorough Instruction in the Common Branches." In the afternoon and evening the "Teachers Reading Circle" was discussed."

George S. Boone, the sole remaining lineal descendant of Daniel Boone, was arrested by the United States authorities and brought to Des Moines for trial. He is charged with pension frauds. Boone served in the Confederate army, while his father was a Union soldier. The father is dead and the son, it is alleged, has for some time been drawing the pension allowed to the former. Boone has been living in a cave on the Des Moines river forty miles below this city.

IN GRANT'S MEMORY

The Great General's Sixty-Seventh Birthday Commemorated by the People of New York.

Ground Broken at Riverside Park for the Monument to Mark Gen. Grant's Grave.

NEW YORK, April 29.—Amidst the plaudits of thousands of citizens, the beating of drums, the bobming of cannon, the melody of children's voices and the elpquence of orators, ground was broken to-day for the monument which is to be raised at the tomb at Riverside Park, where rests all that is mortal of the greatest of the heroes of the war of the rebellion—the immortal Grant.

There, upon the hillside, gathered the members of the Grand Army of the Republic and a number of other bodies and, ranging themselves around the tomb, paid reverence to the memory of him whom all nations honored while in life. On the Hudson river, decorated with bunting, lay anchored opposite the tomb the war ship Yantic, and at 2 o'clock her guns commenced to belch forth a salute of twenty-one guns, which were heard at intervals of thirty seconds. On the platform near mound were gathered the members of the monument association, the members of Alexander Hamilton post, G. A. R., the leading members of the various Grand Army posts and the orators who had been elected for the occasion. Before the regular ceremonies commenced, Lawson Fuller, at the head of 800 children from the sheltering arms institution and a drum and fife corps playing "America," that marched past the tomb with flags drooped, each carrying a bouquet of forget-me-nots, which was cast upon the tomb. The marine band played an overture, after which Rev. Dr. Clark Wright, chaplain of Department Commander Freeman's staff, offered prayer, and a chorus sang "The Star Spangled Banner." Commander Freeman presided.

GEN. PORTER'S SPEECH.

In a few well chosen words, he introduced Gen. Horace Porter, the orator of the day. Gen. Porter said, in part:

"Sixty-nine years ago to-day, there was ushered into the world a being who was destined to stand pre-eminent in the history of his country, and whose fame was to reach into the uttermost parts of the earth. Most of the conspicuous characters in history have risen to prominence by gradual advances, but U. S. Grant came before the people with a single bound. Almost the first sight caught of him was in the blaze of his camp fires and the flashes of his guns, those wintry days and nights in front of Fort Donelson. From that time until the crowning triumph at Appomattox, he was a leader whose name was the harbinger of victory. From the final sheathing of his sword till his ashes were laid to rest in yonder tomb, he was the chief citizen of the republic and the great central figure of the world."

The chorus sang "America" when Commander Freeman arose to initiate the particular ceremony of the day—the breaking of the ground for the monument. Before turning up the sod Commander Freeman said:

In the presence of Almighty God and these witness we, the representatives of the Grand Army of the Republic, break the sod preparatory to laying the foundation of the monument which shall stand as a slight expression of the love of this nation for its great chieftain, and shall tell to all the world that the United States of America does not forget her heroic dead."

At the close of his remarks, Commander Freeman took the spade in his hands, and with it tossed up the earth. This ended the ceremonies, and the crowd dispersed.

GRANT'S BIRTHDAY.

The Event Commemorated by the Annual Dinner at Delmonico's.

NEW YORK, April 28.—The annual dinner in commemoration of the birthday of Gen. Ulysses S. Grant was given to-night at Delmonico's.

All the guests were seated at round tables, in the center of which were banks of flowers over which were placed inscriptions indicative of the character of the great hero. One was "Tender Hearted," another "Uncomplaining," others "Home Loving," "Faithful" and "Unobtrusive."

A notable feature of the dinner was the appearance of Mrs. Grant in the gallery, accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. Sartoris, and her child. When the party appeared in the gallery after the toast to the memory of Grant was drank in silence the gentlemen present all stood up and greeted the wife of the great soldier with applause.

Speeches were made by Senator Evarts, Col. H. K. Douglass of Baltimore, Frederick Taylor of New York, ex-Congressman Wise of Virginia and Col. William McMichael of Philadelphia.

The first annual dinner of the Harlem Republican club was given to-night at the Metropolitan hotel in honor of the birthday of the late Gen. Grant. Hon. James G. Blaine and ex-Gov. Foraker of Ohio, were expected to be present and speak, but did not appear. The order of speeches was as follows: "Gen. Ulysses S. Grant," Gen. George H. Sheridan; "The Republican Party," Hon. John S. Wise; "A Free Ballot and a Fair Count," Gen. James R. Obeirne. "Veterans of the War," Gen. Cyrus Bussey; Col. Thomas P. Ochiltree was to have responded to the toast "Recollections of Gen. Grant by a Confederate," but was taken sick and had to be removed from the room.

THINKS SHE IS A MAN.

The Delusion of an Insane Stage-Struck Chicago Girl.

CHICAGO, April 26.—About two years ago Lizzie Eggerton became stage struck and wanted to join a comic opera company. Her parents objected, and through disappointment the girl was driven to insanity. Last night she was taken to the detention hospital.

She is twenty-two years old, and her delusion is that she must wear male attire. A few days ago she had her hair cut off. The following day she went to a clerk in a clothing store and was measured for a suit. She claimed to be an actress. The clothes were made in the latest fashion, and Lizzie created quite a sensation in the vicinity where she lives.

She insists that she is not a woman, and when taken to the hospital she refused to take off the male attire.

Went Suddenly Insane.

CHICAGO, April 29.—Cyrwin Stoddart, a wealthy resident of Philadelphia, was taken suddenly insane at the Palmer house Sunday and attempted to commit suicide by throwing himself from the window. To-day with great secrecy he was removed to a private asylum near Milwaukee. The event it is feared will result in serious legal and financial difficulties his family. Stoddart is a member of the dry goods firm of Stoddart & Co. of Philadelphia. Overwork resulting from business complications caused by the death of his partner brought here a short time ago is the cause of Mr. Stoddart's insanity.

A POISONING CRAZE.

Numbers of Deaths in Denver Thought to Have Been Caused by Arsenical Poisoning.

DENVER, Col., April 2.—This city at present seems to be possessed of a craze prompting the taking of human life by arsenical poisoning. Saturday the entire country was horrified by the mysterious death of Mrs. Barnaby of Providence, R. I., which was caused by this means. This has caused an investigation as to the means of death of several, and to-day it is stated that no less than seven have died within the last two months from the deadly drug.

Sunday Annie Armstrong, a domestic in the family of a prominent minister, died in the most horrible agony, and an examination showed enough arsenic in her body to kill six people. She was apparently contented and the idea of suicide is not entertained, and how she came to take the poison is a mystery.

Young Harry Cheny, employed in the printing houses here, died suddenly last week, under the most peculiar circumstances, and an analysis of the viscera today by Dr. Burr revealed enough arsenic to kill a family. No more explanation can be made of this case than that of the Armstrong girl.

A month ago Mr. Harting, his wife and six children were taken violently ill immediately after partaking of their dinner. The physicians pronounced the case one of trichinosis, and despite their greatest efforts the mother and four children died within a week and the remainder of the family lived, but are still very low. Since the Barnaby sensation became public, physicians exhumed the body of one of the Harting children and made an analysis, finding a sufficient quantity of arsenic to cause death. There can be no doubt the others died from the same cause. Mrs. Hartings was but thirty-two years old, had had eleven children and did not enjoy the happiest of lives. It is supposed she became despondent and tried to kill her entire family.

Miss Armstrong was a domestic in the employ of the Rev. Mr. Hansen, the Swedish Lutheran minister of this place. Mr. Hansen was seen this evening, and says that it was impossible for the story to be true. But Prof. Hedding, the chemist to whom the viscera was taken, says that, while he has made no complete analysis, he has made some experiments which indicate that her death was caused by arsenical poisoning.

CHEERING NEWS.

President Harrison Informed That His Sister Is Out of Danger.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 29.—Dr. Hughes of Cleves, Ohio, who is the attending physician of President Harrison's sister, Mrs. Easton, who was injured in a runaway accident yesterday, telegraphed the president this morning that Mrs. Easton is out of danger.

After the receipt of the telegram it was announced on behalf of the president that the programme arranged for to-day and the remainder of the week would be observed unless other and less favorable news of Mrs. Eaton's condition should be received.

After lunch at Sutro Heights this afternoon the presidential party drove to the military reservation at Presido, where a great crowd of people were in attendance. The president reviewed the troops stationed at the post and witnessed the artillery and cavalry drill. The party then returned to the hotel for dinner, and this evening there was a reception at the Palace hotel. The president and Mrs. Harrison received the representatives of the army and navy first, and then a large number of invited guests. Several bands of music were in attendance during the reception.

The president and party will make a tour of the bay to-morrow, and in the afternoon will view the launching of the armored coast defense vessel Monterey.

SAYS SHE IS SANE.

Anna Dickinson's Doctor Still Claims That Her Mind Is Sound.

NEW YORK, April 29.—Miss Anna Dickinson was sitting up in bed when a reporter called to-day. She seemed very tired and her voice was hoarse.

When asked her plans she said they were in the hands of her manager. She did not know what she was to do, but she would prefer to give weekly lectures in this city rather than travel and would prefer the stage to either.

Dr. Seward, her physician, condemns the newspapers for reporting Miss Dickinson's lecture in such a way as to make it appear that she is insane. He stakes his professional reputation on the statement that she is sane.

Dr. Seward said it was true that several prominent men had tried to make Miss Dickinson wife or mistress, and failing in this had persistently traduced her. She had documents to prove all she said.

Mr. McGeachy, Miss Dickinson's manager, said this afternoon that arrangements had been made for Miss Dickinson to remain in New York and give a lecture every Sunday evening. The lectures will be confined to political topics. Mr. McGeachy added that he intended to take Miss Dickinson to Europe in June, and return in time to open in New York next season and give dramatic readings. Possibly, upon her return, she may reappear as a dramatic star.

FED THE FLAMES.

Three Serious Fires Occur in the Vicinage of Dubuque.

DUBUQUE, Iowa, April 29.—George Most & Son's flouring and planing mill at East Dubuque, Ill., burned to-day; loss total and about $25,000; insurance, $7,000. The Illinois Central stock yards at Dyersville burned to-day; eighty-two hogs were cremated. The town of Spechts Ferry was wiped out by fire to-night.

Bloody End of an Unholy Passion.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., April 29.—A visitor named Welder from Vernon, Tex., chloroformed Mrs. Mary O. Kinsey of Fort Worth, Tex., at the Grand View hotel here early this morning and then ended his own life with a bullet.

Another Pioneer Gone.

LE SUEUR, Minn., Special, April 29.—Mrs. Catharine Limboll died here at the age of seventy-three. She settled in St. Paul in 1853 and removed to Le Sueur in 1857.

Started by Tramps.

ROCHESTER, Minn., Special, April 29.—The wind has been blowing a perfect gale since 9 o'clock last night, breaking trees and leveling everything not nailed tight. A fire started in the woods southeast of the city last night, presumably by tramps, burning up a big patch of timber and one or two hay sheds.

A Murder Trial.

HAYWARD, Wis., Special Telegram, April 29.—The special term of court convened today. Joe Latour, who murdered Jerry Cleveland last August, is being tried.

Rev Knudson, presiding elder of the Scandinavian Methodist Church, will preach at the M. E. Church next Sunday at 10:30 a. m. All are invited to attend.

Street Commissioner Harris has been doing good work again on the streets He has thoroughly repaired the sidewalks and removed the rubbish from the streets. Dirt has been hauled and several low places filled in. The work is all being done with polltax.

Our new agent C. W, McKailor, and family arrived on last Friday's train. Mr. McKailor is a very pleasant appearing gentleman and will undoubtedly prove satisfactory to the people.

The assessor will soon be around with their little book to see how much money you have made the past year. It is astonishing how poor the average man becomes on the advent of the assessor.

Grain sown before the late rains is already up and growing nicely. Farmers report that they have grain fully three inches high and looking better than they have seen it at this season of the year.

James O'Brien, of Red Lake Falls, was in town last Friday. He has been exploring on the reservation for the past two months. He is of the opinion that the high landing can be reached from here inside of twenty miles.

Crookston Times, E. M. Hoff, of St. Hillaire, transacted business in the city a couple of days this week. He says seeding is nearing completion in that part of the county and there will be a larger acreage seeded to wheat than ever before.

ASTRAY NOTICE.

On April 11th there came upon my farm in Section two township of Sanders two hogs, one white boar and one black sow. Owner can have same by calling on undersigned and paying expenses.

Last fall the democratic papers fought the McKinley bill tooth and toe-nail as a "high tariff robbery." Now they say that the reciprocity features and the eighteen pounds of sugar for a dollar are free trade arguments. Well if they are, why in the dickens didn't they say so last fall?—Kittson County Enterprise

James Meehan of Red Lake Falls was in town last Friday. Mr. Meehan is superintending the building of a steamboat at the high landing. He is of the opinion that if we can make a good road out there to connect with the steamboat we can turn most of the reservation freight this way.

MILLINERY.

Miss Helen Halvorson, the Crookston milliner, will be at the American House commencing May 11th for a few days with a full line of ladies hats. Miss Halvorson employs a first class trimmer from St. Paul and carries a first class line of goods. Ladies are sure to be suited.

A. D, Arthur, of Webster City, Iowa, has been buying cattle here this week. He will leave today with about 180 head of cattle for South Dakota where he will pasture them during the summer. The cattle have all been picked up here and at Thief River Falls and Red Lake Falls, and they are all fine looking cattle, Station agent C. W. McKailor after several months of very efficient charge of the railroad office here came to the conclusion as have all his predecessors sooner or later that the work is too heavy for the salery paid and left with his family yesterday for St. Hilaire. He will continue in the employ of the company there at the same salery and much lighter work. Mr. E. J. Kellogg formerly of St. Hilaire, succeeds him to the position here. He is a married man and expects his wife to arrive tomorrow —Stephen Leader.

The village council holds its regular monthly meeting next Monday evening Let every one who is interested in the welfare of the village make it a point to be there and urge upon the council to make provision to improve the roads leading into town. Now is the time for us to make a strike. The prospects for a big crop was never better and if we provide good roads we can command all of the trade in this part of the county Let us go to work and try to make St. Hilaire the liveliest town in the county.

A judge in India, who was a very bad shot, had been out for a day's sport and on his return the native who went out with him was asked: "Well how did the judge shoot today?" "Oh," he replied, "the judge shot beautifully, but God was very merciful to the birds" If you want to be very polite in your remarks about the late lamented legislature, you can say that they tried hard enough to carry out some of their ideas but God was very merciful to the state. —Minneapolis Journal,

The payment that was to be made for the Indian logs on the 16th inst, was not then made by those who had purchased the logs, for the reason that the agent had not yet received the scales from the scalers. He expects to receive it in a few days, when the money on the contracts will be paid into him and payment thereof made to the proper persons. All the loggers done well this winter, and all claims will be paid in full. Meehan Bros., of Red Lake Falls, will receive about six million feet and besides this there was a large number sold to Walker off of White Earth, so that the entire amount cut on Red Lake and White Earth reservations, the past seasons cannot be less than ten million feet, and probably will greatly exceed that amount.—Thirteen Towns

Every man in the village is in favor of having the village build a road to the high landing on the reservation and there is no doubt but that the council will take action in the matter next Monday evening. A survey will be made and the road built as soon as possible. We will then have the best route to the reservation and if Meehan Bros, succeed in running their steam boat it will be no trouble to get all the Red Lake freight to come this way.

Crookston Times: The new law regulating the saleries of county officers of this county, has gone into force and one of its provisions is to allow the superintendent of schools to appoint an assistant at a salery of $800 a year, and the appointment is confirmed by the state superintendent, instead of by the county commissioners as heretofore. Superintendent Grefthen has appointed Prof. V. D. Carruth as his assistant, and the appointment has been confirmed by State Supt. Keihle.

What's the matter with our board of health? The village should be cleared up before the 1st of May but no move has yet been made. There is a large amount of rubbish and manure in town which should be removed before warm weather or we will have an epidemic of Dyptheria or Typhoid fever. The slaughter house is another nuisance we recommend their investigating. It is entirely too near the center of the village and should be cleaned immediately. Earn your salery, gentlemen and have the town cleared up as soon as possible,

C. D. Baker informs us that the farmers in Otter Tail county are terribly indignant over the McKinley bill. They find that since the late tariff law went into effect that prices are much higher than before, Wheat down there is worth nearly one dollar, oats and barley seventy-five cents, potatoes sixty cents a bushel, hides and cattle have increased about fifty percent. In fact everything that the farmer has for sale has greatly increased in value and the knowing ones lay it to the McKinley bill. As for sugar the farmer gets so much for a dollar that it makes him tired to carry it home and they are bound to have things changed at the next election.

With the opening of the Red Lake Reservation, the act of March 2, 1889, providing for additional homestead entries, will become of great importance to this section, and is of special importance to those who, having already used their homestead right on 40, 80 or 120 acre tracts, would otherwise be debarred from entering the promised land. The act provides that any person entitled, under the provisions of the homestead law, to enter a homestead, who has made final proof for less than 160 acres, is entitled to enter so much additional land as added to the quantity previously entered by him shall not exceed one hundred and sixty acres.—McIntosh Times,

Our citizens are thoroughly aroused and will have a daily mail this summer if work will accomplish it. The meeting last Friday evening was well attended, C. G. Rapp was elected chairman and H. E. Ives secretary. It was resolved that we draft and circulate petitions to the First Assistant Postmaster General asking for a daily mail. It is thought that at least fifteen hundred signers can be obtained The general feeling seems to be that it would be a waste of energy to ask the officials of the Great Northern for a daily train so all the petitions will be directed to the Postmaster General. If that official is satisfied that our demands are just he will undoubtedly compel the railroad to give us a daily service. Messrs. Dainard, Johnson, Patterson, Brink and Holmes were appointed a committee to circulate the petitions. Messrs, Rapp E. M. Hoff, S. M. Hoff, Hanson and Wm. Eickhoff were appointed a committee to confer with other towns and postoffices,

The official figures published in the Tribune showing the large expenditures made by the state legislature for "sundries" and the disappearance of all the "sundries" purchased at the close of the session, will convey to the public mind a good idea of the peculiar economy practiced by the professional Alliance reformers who organized the legislature and distributed the swag. In the house the Alliance men obtained control to a sufficient extent to secure one of their own number for speaker and to distribute all the offices among the adherents of the Democratic-Alliance combine To the speaker and his staff of officials belonged the duty of checking extravagance in legislative expenses and to see that supplies purchased for the members were not put to personal use. Now let us see how these officials fulfilled this duty. The official figures show that eleven dozen of the best pocket knives were purchased at a cost of $291,88; there was also purchased $1,000 worth of file holders; 357 steel knife eracers at $6 per dozen; a large quantity of towels pitchers, tumblers, dusters, thermometers, desk baskets—also the following: One axe; 150 reams of paper valued at $800; 50,000 envelops valued at $250; 60 gross of steel pens at $1 per gross, 165 rubber penholders at $1.50 per dozen; 54 quarts of mucilage at $1 a quart; 153 dozen lead pencils at $5 per gross; 154 of rubber bands; 45 dozen pencil and ink eracers at 50 cents per dozen; 109 dozen blue and red pencils at $9 a gross 159 pair of shears at from $12 to $15 per dozen; 425 boxes of staple binders at 20 cents a box; 79 ivory folders at from $3 $8 a dozen; 18 dozen willow paper baskets at 40 cents each; 75 pasteboard clips at $125 each, 150 ruling pens at $7 a dozen; 132 hand piercers at $5 a dozen 27 dozen thumb tacks at 2 cents each 200 ink bottles at 40 cents each; 25 quarts of ink at 75 cents a bottle etc., etc. All this for 115 members of the house. And of all these articles nothing was left after adjournment but a dozen broken or defaced file-holders.—Minneapolis Tribune.

Crookston Times: The St. Hilaire Spectator roasts the Great Northern railway a very dark brown on account of its treatment of that place during the opening of the Crookston opera house. The St. Hilaire and Fosston people wanted to attend the opening and asked for a special train. Gen. Pass. Agent Whitney telegraphed back that he did not think St. Hilaire and Fosston people could afford to pay for a special train! When informed that they would prefer to reserve the privilege of judging for themselves what they could or could not afford and again asked to name a price at which his company would give them the special, he quoted them a figure which soon convinced them that he was right when he said they could not afford to pay it. The price quoted was more than enough to pay for running a train from St. Paul to the Pacific Coast. The people of St. Hilaire and Fosston are naturally redheaded over this treatment. They show that for the poor service of running a mixed train to their towns three times a week they jointly pay the Great Northern over $100,000 a year. And yet the first time they ask a privilege that they were willing to pay well for, their request was denied and instead they were offered a deliberate and uncalled for insult, But these towns have no more reason to complain than any other town along the Company's line. The same unaccommodating, arrogant, narrow and penurious policy has been displayed in every instance where the opportunity has afforded itself, and this is why the road is hated with such energy and unanimity.

Two local business men made a wager regarding the payment of local postage. A said he could send a letter through the Springfield post office that would be delivered to B, who would return an answer to him, and neither A nor B would pay any postage nor would any be required. B accepted the wager. A and B exchanged envelops, bearing their respective business cards thereon and agreed on a fictitious address like John Jameson, Boston Mass. A wrote a letter to B using the envelop with B's business card, addressed it as agreed and dropped it into a street letter box without affixing a postage stamp. In due time the cashier "returned" the letter to B marked "held for postage" B opened and read the letter and replied enclosing his answer in A's envelope and paying no postage. A received his letter similarly marked and won the cigars. All letters and packages bearing the name of the sender and having no stamps attached are returned to the sender to be stamped A took advantage of this rule and by using B's envelope the letter was returned to B the supposed sender and B's letter reached him for the same reason.—Springfield (Mass.) Homestead.

The Hot Springs.

The great plunge bath building on the grounds of Hotel Broadwater, at Helena Montana, is the finest specimen of Moorish architecture in America. The bath is 300x100 feet in size and covered with 20,000 feet of stained glass. The water supply exceeds a million gallons a day, and possesses wonderful curative properties. The water pours in over a cascade at a temperature of 160 degrees but is tempered to human use. In a sun-lit valley, surrounded by the noble rockies, it is the finest watering place and resort in the interior of the continent. Reached direct by the Great Northern Railway Line. The trip to Helena over this line will enable the health-seeker, home-seeker and tourist to see and enjoy with the greatest facility and comfort, the Park Region of Minnesota, with its thousand lakes; the illimitable grain ocean of the Red River Valley of Minnesota and North Dakota; Devils Lake, and Montana, with its cattle ranches: the Great Falls of the Missouri, and the wonderful scenery of Prickly Pear Canyon. SAW A GOLD MINE IN HIS DREAM.

An Old Hunter Dreams About an Ancient Shaft That Is Now Being Worked.

In 1880 an old buffalo hunter returning from a winter hunt in Paradise valley camped for dinner at the old crossing on the Colorado river, just below our city. After an hour's sleep he awoke to find that his horse had wandered off, and he at once set out to find him. Looking up and down the river until overtaken by darkness he returned to camp at the ford, and prepared for a night's rustling with wolves, panthers, catamounts and other ravenous beasts that infested the country at that time. On the morrow he renewed his hunt, and walked over hill and dale until 12 o'clock with no success.

Stretching himself under an elm tree that stood near the road he soon dropped into slumber, and during that sleep he dreamed that an old man came to him and told him to go up the river until he found a gulch reaching back into the hills. "Go up that gulch and on a large rock you will find your horse standing," said the old man. "The rock under that horse is one of the richest deposits of gold on earth, all of which is yours if you go to it."

About this time the sleeper awoke from his slumbers, arose, and while the dream was fresh commenced the search anew for his horse. One hundred yards from camp, along up the valley, he got a view of the gulch which filled the bill of his dreams. Up the gulch he went, and sure enough, on a small table of rock some thirty feet in diameter, his horse was standing. Bridling his horse he looked over the ground, and imbedded in the face of the rock found an old chisel, which had the appearance of having been there for a century or more.

The fulfillment of the dream thus far put the old man to thinking, and within three days afterward he had visited the settlement, procured tools and was removing the rocks, which proved to be the capping of an old shaft some twenty feet in diameter. The old gentleman toiled until his means of supply were exhausted, and with a heavy heart grounded his tools and put back to the settlements in Palo Pinto county and [illegible] interested and bought his claim.

They came out in the fall of 1880 and commenced operations, and spent several thousand dollars in opening up the old shaft, going down as far as sixty feet. From some cause or other the claim was again abandoned, until during the spring the owner came out to the ground and commenced operations. Considerable [illegible] done, but the bottom of [illegible] has not been reached.

Work was suspended temporarily, the owner, Mr. Graham, having other business that required his attention, and during this suspension some expert miners, backed by a San Antonio syndicate, purchased the mine [illegible] information [illegible] until [illegible] explored [illegible]

Heavy [illegible]

There is one point [illegible] prisons take precedence of [illegible] others I have visited in Europe, Asia or America. I mean in the chains used therein and their enormous weight. In two cells at Alio we found a man in each laden with terrible irons, weighing in the first case three Pouds [illegible] or sixty pounds [illegible] pass more than a hand's [illegible] the fatigue [illegible] had iron bands round [illegible] waist, fastened together by a [illegible] chain which continued nearly to the ground, and was further attached to two chains securing the ankles. The hands were likewise secured by links riveted to the waistband. I obtained photographs of men thus chained, but not representing the worst, for I have seen also in Finland thick iron anklets pierced with holes [illegible] which [illegible] passed an iron bolt [illegible] and the forty pounds weight of [illegible] rests on pads on the [illegible]—Henry Lansdell in Harper's.

The Spider's Poison.

The spider's poison issues from a se[illegible] [illegible] It [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] formic acid and albumen. There seems to be nothing characteristic in its microscopic appearance. When it is collected from the poison glands of several spiders and dried it will retain its physiological properties for many years, and [illegible] after it has been subjected to a [illegible] temperature its properties are not destroyed.—London Standard.

Ecuadorian Barbarity.

The most blood curdlingly cruel thing that has yet come under my observation is the manner in which are obtained the so called "pig skins" that so commonly serve for bottles and casks. They are not the hides of pigs, but those of sheep, and horrible to relate, are pulled off the living animal, the poor sheep being actually skinned alive, or more correctly speaking, skinned dead, for of course he does not long survive the operation.—Lima Cor. Pittsburg Dispatch.

Rolling Steel Casks.

Steel paraffin casks are now being successfully rolled in England, the machinery used being of special design and very economical. The casks are of various sizes, and when empty may be placed one within the other, so as to take up a minimum space in the hold of a vessel.—New York Journal.

A REPORTER'S CLOSE CALL.

He Got His Interview, but He Was Lucky to Get Away with His Life.

"You know I have been in the newspaper business a long time, and I was never known to shirk, not even during a riot or blizzard," says an old timer. "Well, I came very near tossing up the pencil a few nights ago. It was very cold, and I had to call on Bishop —— in reference to some church matters. Taking a car down town I soon reached the street on which the bishop lived. It was just striking the hour of 12. But I had to see the bishop.

"Well, sir, I hunted for the number in the dark for some time. Not finding it I waited to see if I could meet some straggler who lived in the neighborhood. Pretty soon along came a nicely dressed young fellow in a rather mellow condition. I asked him if he lived in the neighborhood and he said yes. The truth is the young man was none other than the bishop's son. He told me in a semi-articulate way that he would go up to his father's room and speak with him about the matter in question.

"Reaching the outer door he unlocked it and asked me to walk in. I stepped in; he opened the second door and I went into the house. Both doors were now locked. The gas had been turned off. We hunted for a match in vain. Well, the young fellow left me in darkness, uttering a drowsy promise to return soon. I heard him stagger up the stairs all right. He went back several paces until I could detect his footsteps no more. He failed to return. I believe he fell asleep and forgot all about me. I stood there for about fifteen minutes not knowing what to do.

"I made a modest noise. No result. A more decided noise. The same result. I began to walk about, purposely bumping against the furniture. Then something happened. I heard a hoarse voice shout, 'Throw up your hands or you are a dead man!'

"Up went my hands like a shot.

"Whiz, bang, bang—three bullets rattled over my head. I thought my time was up.

"Do you know, it seems as if I lived my whole life over in the few minutes I was standing there. When the gas was lighted the first person I saw was a big burly negro.

"The shots brought the bishop out in his gown and his young son with him. Explanations followed. The house had been robbed a few nights before, and the negro had been placed in the basement to watch. He fell asleep. My walking about aroused him. He came up stairs, and seeing my shining hat, which I had forgotten to take off, he banged away at it. [illegible] now, bought a new hat the next day and vowed never to wait in a dark hall, no matter who owned the house."—St. Louis Republic.

Sociable Apes.

The Revue Scientifique has been discussing the question whether the apes of Africa can be taught to do things which they have hitherto been supposed incapable of learning. Emin Pasha told Mr. Stanley that he had seen apes carrying lighted brands as torches during night journeys. From Purchas' book of travels a quotation is given from Andre Battel, who in 1625 says he saw a number of apes sitting round a fire, but it does not appear that they lighted it, but only took advantage of a camp fire that had been left by travelers.

In the Zoological gardens the chimpanzees and other anthropoid apes have been certainly found capable of acquiring various [illegible] may be observed in humbler specimens of monkeys in companionship of Italian organ grinders. Some of these show almost as much intelligence as well trained dogs.

Bombay as a Cotton Port.

In Bombay, as in Lancashire, "cotton is king." The boats plying in the harbor, the wharves of the splendid docks, the picturesque bullock carts that throng the streets are all "cotton." After New Orleans Bombay is the greatest cotton port in the world. Four million hundred weight are shipped abroad every year, and 2,000,000 more are spun and woven in the eighty-two mills of the Bombay presidency. The value of all this cotton is about £12,000,000. The old Cotton Green, a vast space devoted to dealers in the raw material, is one of the show places of the city, and forms a striking picture of busy native life.—Pall Mall Gazette.

To Smallen.

J. M. A. sends a new word from Ottawa: "A little friend of mine in his anxiety to express the difference between a right angle and an acute angle said that the former was much larger than the latter, but if you were to smallen the right angle you would have an acute angle. Permit me to suggest that the editor of The Century Dictionary take into account the new word thus coined by a 6-year-old boy, for I submit that the idea it conveys cannot be otherwise expressed without a cumbersome circumlocution."—Critic.

Not Business.

"That perfumery slot machine didn't work, I hear."

"I understand not. Nobody's going to drop a nickel in the slot and get a scent in return."—Harper's Bazar.

She Knew Harold.

Ponsonby—What do you want $5 for?

Daughter—I expect Harold to propose to-night, and $5 will buy a good enough ring.—Jewelers' Circular.

A Retort.

At a vestry meeting one of the members was declared by another to have "boiled over with rage" because his proposition had been received with general laughter by the board. "Sir," replied the derided one, "I was not in a rage. It would require something rather more inflammatory than the crackling of thorns under the pot to make me boil!" But it is doubtful whether many of them "saw it."—All the Year Round.

The Voluble Eleven Year Old.

Said a matron recently: "I called the other evening upon some newcomers in our community. My husband knew the man in town, and as they were neighbors we paid them a visit of welcome. Mr. Blank was not at home, and Mrs. Blank was busy for a few moments with her baby, so the elder daughter, a child of 11, was sent down, no doubt proudly, to play the hostess. Miss Nora had a keen, pale face and a wonderfully fluent tongue. She explained and apologized for her coming, and then set to work to entertain us according to her lights. She produced a photograph album and showed us, with running comments, the family pictures.

"At a photograph of a very ugly man she said: 'I suppose Mr. —— looks very homely to you, but mamma says no face is homely that belongs to a good heart, and Mr. —— is a very good man. He lent papa $100 for us to move with—papa is paying it back every month. We can't have any parlor curtains till that is paid up.' Alarmed, I hurriedly turned the page and said at random, 'What a pretty woman!' 'Yes,' said the little girl, 'that is a school friend of mamma's. She often visits us. Mamma is very fond of her, only she thinks she comes almost too often. Company always makes a difference, you know, and we have to make a dessert every day when Mrs. So-and-So is here.'

"I shut the book, fairly terrified, but for ten minutes more we were tortured recipients of similar confidences. Then Mrs. Blank appeared. 'You haven't found my little Nora a poor substitute, I'm sure,' she sad complacently. 'She is quite a little woman, and the valued confidant of her papa and me. You have no idea how much we rely on her judgment.' Poor, deluded woman! I longed to tell her how little she realized what the judgment and discretion of an 11-year-old girl were." And this is about the usual result where the forcing process of children is practiced.—Her Point of View in New York Times.

Romance of Hog Killing Shattered.

An old time hog killing is hard to find now. Meat is bought too cheaply from the west. The prairie farms, where corn is burned as fuel, raise hogs too easily to allow southern farmers the luxury of killing and curing their own meat. You go to the packing houses of the west and drop a porker into the slot. In fifteen minutes he comes out clear ribbed and sugar cured lots, with a can of pure lard thrown in, and all the hoof, hide and tallow present and accounted for. The poetry and plenty of the old plantations have given way to the steam packing mills, with their millions of pounds a month.

Farmers used to make their hams from necessity. Now they put them up as a luxury. It has gotten so that none but well to do farmers can afford to raise their own meat. In those days of the steaming gypsy pot, the hickory ashes, the fat pen, and the crisp sward dyed in purple, we heard nothing of trichinæ or pork corners. The only meat futures were when the shote was marked in July for killing in December. Sometimes a mild winter robbed the farmer of his meat. Occasionally his pigsty and smoke house were raided between the suns, but there were grease and plenty in the hog killing on the plantations.—Augusta (Ga.) Chronicle.

MORTGAGE SALE.

Whereas default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage bearing date January 7th 18[illegible] made and executed by [illegible] and [illegible] his wife mortgagors, to Security Trust Company of Nashua New Hampshire mortgagee, which said mortgage [illegible] February 1[illegible] recorded in the office of the register of deeds of said Polk county Minnesota, in Book [illegible] of mortgages on page 237. And whereas there is claimed to be due and is due on the debt secured by said mortgage at the date of this notice the sum of Forty-seven dollars and fifty-five cents and that no proceedings at law or in equity have been instituted to recover the debt thereby secured or any part thereof.

Now therefore notice is hereby given that the said mortgage will be foreclosed pursuant to the statute and to the power of sale in said mortgage contained and the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, to-wit: The south east quarter of section thirty-two in township one hundred fifty-one north of range forty-one situate in the county of Polk in the state of Minnesota will be sold by the sheriff of said Polk county at public auction on Saturday the 30th day of May 1891 at 10 o'clock a. m. at the front door of the court house in the city of Crookston in the said county of Polk, to satisfy the sum due on said mortgage and the expenses of sale.

MORTGAGE SALE

Whereas default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage bearing date April 11th 1889, made by Caroline McKibben and James A. McKibbe her husband, mortgagors, to The Dakota Investment Company of Grand Forks Dakota, mortgagee, and recorded in the office of the register of deeds of the county of Polk in the state of Minnesota on the 12th day of April 1889 at 5.50 o'clock p. m. in Book 43 of mortgages page 22.

And whereas it was stipulated in said mortgage that in case of default in any of the conditions hereof, then the said mortgagee was empowered to declare the whole sum so secured by said mortgage due and payable: and default having been made the said mortgagee has elected to and has declared the whole sum so secured due and payable; and whereas there is claimed to be due and is due on the debt so secured at the date of this notice the sum of twelve hundred twenty-two dollars and that no proceedings at law or in equity have been instituted to recover the said debt or any part thereof.

Now therefore notice is hereby given that said mortgage will be foreclosed pursuant to the statute and to the power of sale in said mortgage contained and the lands described in and secured by said mortgage to wit: The south east quarter of section twenty in township one hundred fifty three north of range forty six west situate in the county of Polk in the state of Minnesota will be sold by the sheriff of said Polk county at public auction on Saturday the 23rd day of May 1891 at 10 o'clock a. m. at the front door of the court house in the city of Crookston in said county and state to satisfy the amount then due on said mortgage with expenses of sale together with an attorneys fee of fifty dollars stipulated in said mortgage to be paid in case of foreclosure of the same.

MORTGAGE SALE.

Whereas default has been made in the condition of a certain mortgage bearing date September 25th 1888 made by Robert William Brown and Leida Samyah Brown his wife, mortgagors to The Dakota Investment Company, of Grand Forks Dakota, mortgagee and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the county of Polk in the state of Minnesota on the 11th day of October 1889 at 8:15 o'clock a. m. in Book 43 of mortgages, page 69. And whereas it was stipulated in said mortgage, that in case of default in any of the conditions of the same, then the said mortgagee was empowered to declare the whole sum secured by said mortgage due and payable, and the said mortgagee has elected to and has declared the whole sum so secured due and payable; and whereas there is claimed to be due and is due on the debt thereby secured, at the date of this notice the sum of seven hundred and twenty dollars; and that no proceedings at law or in equity have been instituted to recover the said debt or any part thereof.

Now therefore notice is hereby given, that said mortgage will be foreclosed pursuant to the statute and to the power of sale therein contained and the lands described in and conveyed by said mortgage to-wit: The north east quarter of section eight in township one hundred forty-nine north of range forty-three west situate in the county of Polk and state of Minnesota, will be sold by the sheriff of said Polk county at public auction on Saturday the 9th day of May 1891 at 10 o'clock a. m. at the front door of the court house in the city of Crookston in said county to satisfy the sum then due on said mortgage, with expenses of sale, together with an attorneys fee of twenty-five dollars stipulated to be paid in case of foreclosure thereof.

Two Barnums of Connecticut

It is rather a curious fact that Phineas T. Barnum was the means of introducing his namesake, William H. Barnum, to public life. The two men were no relation to each other, we believe. Phineas T. Barnum was nominated to congress in the Bridgeport district. It was strongly republican, and his election would have been natural. But there was some opposition to P. T. Barnum as a showman. William H. Barnum a wealthy manufacturer was brought out against him by the democrats, and there first displayed the election tactics from which he afterward became famous. He not only won the election, but he revolutionized the district, which went from the republican side over to the democratic party permanently.—Boston Herald.

He deserves no sympathy. A country doctor so indiscreet as to let his lady patients discover a fact of that kind about him ought to be pelted.

AT THE DOOR.

I thought myself indeed secure,
So fast the door, so firm the lock;
But, lo! he toddling comes to lure
My parent ear with timorous knock.

My heart were stone could it withstand
The sweetness of my baby's plea.
That timorous, baby knocking, and,
"Please let me in; it's only me."

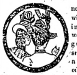
I threw aside the unfinished book,
Regardless of its tempting charms,
And, opening wide the door, I took
My laughing darling in my arms.

Who knows but in eternity
I, like a truant child, shall wait—
The glories of a life to be,
Beyond the heavenly Father's gate?

And will that heavenly Father heed
The truant supplicating cry,
As at the outer door I plead,
"'Tis I, O Father! only I!"

—Eugene Field in Christian Advocate.

THE TRAITOR.



One bitterly cold winter's evening five men were seated together in a small room in a house situated in the Jewish quarter of a busy and largely populated Russian city. The appearance of the room was as wretched as the external aspect of the house itself. The solitary window was totally concealed by a heavy faded curtain, depending from the roof, and as the wind moaned dismally through the broken panes of glass its somber folds swayed to and fro. The inmates of this mournful den were seated around the table, smoking their pipes and talking, as if furtively, in whispers. As the feeble rays of the candle fell fitfully upon the company they revealed the youthful faces of four students. The chief spokesman, however, was a much older man, apparently about 50, with a short, pointed beard, shaggy brow, and keen, penetrating eyes of the darkest hue. The others deferentially addressed the speaker as "professor," and such, indeed, he was, at that time, at a well-known school of medicine in Russia.

On the present occasion, however, he was speaking, not of science, but of the terrible doctrine of assassination.

Prof. V—— was a nihilist, a reputed Colossus of craft in the dissemination of revolutionary doctrines, and on the particular evening in question he was engaged in advocating with fiery eloquence the assassination of a certain colonel who had lately been promoted to the rank of chief commissioner of the secret police. As the night wore on their whispered conversation was suddenly interrupted by a low knocking at the outer door. In a moment the conspirators sprang noiselessly to their feet and listened with bated breath. The sound was repeated—a peculiar whistle was heard from without, and the listeners exchanged significant glances, and quietly resumed their seats. Presently cautious foot-steps were heard in an outer room, the door was opened, and a young man hastily entered. His face was pale, his manner agitated, and as he returned his companions' salutations he regarded them with a fixed and angry stare.

"You have kept us waiting, comrade" exclaimed the professor, puffing calmly at his pipe. "Ugh! we are almost frozen, for the air of this wretched apartment is quite Siberian. But now to business. We will warm ourselves with talk, and fire our minds with the prospect of revenge."

There was a murmur of approval. It was noticed, however, that the young man who had just appeared upon the scene took his seat in silence, and, resting his elbows upon the table, slowly scrutinized the faces of his comrades.

"My dear professor." He said at length, we can not possibly proceed at present with this business."

"Why not?" was unanimously asked.

"Because," replied the latest comer, as he quietly snuffed the candle—"because one of us is a traitor."

"A traitor!" exclaimed the men, starting to their feet.

"Yes comrades, we are betrayed; and no one knows of this plot of ours except ourselves, it is plain, I think, that one of us has turned informant."

"You are mad to say so," hoarsely exclaimed the professor; "but in heaven's name, what has happened! Come tell us quickly. This is no jesting matter."

Listen then. On my way hither, comrades, I entered a cafe de Paris to sip a cup of tea and smoke a cigarette. I happened to sit beside two officers of the secret police, and as one of them was somewhat tipsy, I could distinctly hear his conversation. I found it rather interesting. He told his companion that he was under orders to surround this old, deserted house at mid-night—it was near 11 now—and to arrest all persons found within. He mentioned, moreover, all our names, and added, with a maudlin laugh, that a certain person, to whom the administration is eternally indebted, would be found in our midst playing the part of conspirator. Now, comrades, I have done. What shall we do?"

The men looked at each other in dismay. A dead silence filled the room, for the mere suspicion of treachery among the men who had solemnly dedicated their lives to the sacred cause of liberty seemed to hold them dumb. Such villainy in their very midst—among men banded together, in sacred brotherhood—was a greater crime than the merciless acts of a despot and his minions.

"If this is true," said the professor, in a voice of suppressed rage, "then I will no longer believe in human fidelity or the future of our cause. But—death! If the story is true. Which of us is the informer?" added the speaker, staring fiercely at the pale faces of his companions.

"Bah! it is useless to ask that, my dear professor," exclaimed Ivan—such was the name of the youth who had brought the strange intelligence—as he advanced to the door of the room, locked it, and placed the key in his pocket. "Every one will assert his innocence—of course. But, comrades, suppose we endeavor to find him out? Let us search each other. The traitor, whoever he may be, must doubtless have in his possession some proof of his guilt. At least, the experiment is worth trying. What say you?"

Agreed! agreed!" exclaimed the nihilists, as with one accord they sprang convulsively to their feet. One of the students—a tall, lank youth, with a somewhat foppish appearance—objected, however, to the proposal.

"But why?" hotly demanded the professor, who seemed all eagerness to begin the investigation.

"Because," was the hesitating rejoiner, "honor ought to be enough. Besides there is something degrading in the idea of searching one another, as if, indeed, we were a lot of pick-pockets. So let us break up the meeting. This excitement is absurd, and renders the discussion of our plot impossible. As for the story told by the drunken soldier in the cafe' I don't believe a word of it."

These words produced an angry murmur among the excited conspirators. The protest seemed so ridiculous; and as the clamor increased Ivan turned to the speaker and warmly exclaimed: "Very well; we shall abstain from searching you, since you wish it; but remember this, that if we fail to find a clew to the informant among those who willingly submit to the examination we shall then know upon whom to fix our suspicions. Now, comrades, search me first; I am ready."

In a moment the speaker's pockets were emptied of their contents, and even the lining of his clothes were carefully searched, but beyond a few old love-letters, some political pamphlets, and an English newspaper with a paragraph obliterated with lampblack nothing of an incriminating character was found. A second student readily submitted to the test—if test it was—with similar results. Then a third stepped forward and placed himself in the hands of his companions. But at that moment a curious incident occurred. An invisible hand suddenly extinguished the light of the candle, and in a second the room was plunged in utter darkness.

What did it mean? Who had quenched the light? For a moment the nihilists remained motionless, as if rooted to the spot. As they listened in alarm they heard a strange creaking sound in the direction of the curtained window.

Suddenly the voice of Ivan exclaimed in the darkness: "Comrades, this is a trick! Listen! Some one is endeavoring to escape by the window! It is the traitor at last. His attempt to escape betrays his guilt. Stand back! I know how to deal with him!"

In an instant the reports of three revolver shots rang through the room and were followed by an agonizing yell as some one fell heavily upon the floor.

A profound silence then ensued.

It was an awful situation.

At length Ivan spoke to his terrified companions.

"Strike a light now," he said in a trembling voice, "and let us look upon the face of a traitor. Will no one move. Are you all afraid to gaze upon the dead body of a miscreant who has betrayed us to our enemies? Come, professor, where are the matches? You had them last. But hush! What sound is that? Listen? By heavens, comrades the police are upon us already. The house is surrounded! Quick! here is a trap door known only to myself. It leads to the main sewer and is our only hope of escape. Follow me."

Groping hand in hand in the dark, the affrightened men followed the speaker's directions, and after some momentary confusion disappeared into a noisome abyss. None too soon. In another instant the door of the room was battered to pieces, and a company of gendarmes entered. Lights were now flashed, in every direction, but it was obvious to all that the conspirators had escaped. The officer in charge swore long and deep, and ordered the men to search the house from top to bottom. Then advancing toward the window, he stumbled over a human body.

"What's this?" he exclaimed, examining the dead man's features with a lantern, "Ha! so they have caught you at last, my friend, have they? Well, you played the spy long and well, but it always come to this in the end."

And tearing down the window curtain the officer threw it over the rigid body of—the professor.—Pall Mall Budget.

The Word She Knew.

The other day as a joke loving young woman was being escorted through the Barge Office by Col. Weber she insisted on conversing with every one of the immigrants of whatever nationality. This was somewhat of a tax on the gallant colonel's linquistic powers. At last they came to a great, hulking girl, to whom the lady wished to talk.

"But this is a Russian girl," said Col. Weber. "I can't talk to her."

"Oh, I know one Russian word," said the young woman. "Just say 'Dushenka' to her."

So the obliging colonel leaned over and said "Dushenka."

The girl flushed scarlet, put one finger in her mouth and laughed—a foolish, sheepish laugh.

"What does that word mean?" asked the colonel suspiciously.

"It means 'darling'" cooly replied his companion.—New York Recorder.

He Buys Gold

Frank Mangin has one of the strangest hobbies in the world. He comes on the floor and takes a seat and pulls out a roll of greenbacks. There he sits all through the session; and what do you suppose he is waiting for? Only to buy gold! Every man on 'change who has a few pieces of yellow money can get bills for it by applying to Mr. Mangin. The boys all patronize him, and he goes away every day with his pockets loaded down. I once made bold to ask him what he did with the stuff. He was angry in a moment, and told me it was none of my business, and told me in a way that I never ventured to ask any more questions concerning it.—Chicago Letter.

True poetry announces itself thus, that, as a wordly gospel, it can by internal cheerfulness and external comfort, free us from the earthly burdens which press upon us. Like an air-balloon, it lifts us, together with the ballast which is attached to us, into higher regions, and lets the confined labyrinths of the earth lie developed before us in a bird's-eye view,

HIS TURN CAME AT LAST.

The Conductor Gets Even on the Chronic Joker.

He was the chronic car joker on that line of road, and seldom boarded the train without guying the conductor or left it without raising a general laugh at the company's or trainmen's expense. Yesterday, however, he arrived late at the station and barely in time to swing on without a ticket. He had just caught his breath, after seating himself with the usual daily crowd of fellow travelers, when the conductor appeared.

"Haven't got any ticket," began the joker in his usual vein, and the crowd awaited its daily guy.

"All right; give me 50 cents," responded the official.

"Never carry anything so small," and the traveler picked out a $20 bill, but did not pass it up.

"Make out your receipt first," he continued, "I'm all business to-day." Then as the receipt was duly punched out, he took it and began a long and labored inspection of it, still holding on to his $20 bill, at the same time aggravating the busy conductor with superfluous questions: "Engine all right? Airbrakes or handbrakes? Newsboy chained? Any rebate on this ticket? Punched it all you want to? Any stop-over allowed?" etc. As the conductor began to tire of the business, the funny man handed over his $20 bill and suddenly drew it back, adding, "One question more: Is this a through train?" "Bet your life," replied the conductor, taking the bill, "and what is more," he added, pocketing the bill and deliberately moving away, "it's through without 'change,'" and the entire car smiled at the funny man and his disappearing $20 bill.—Buffalo Commercial.

Keep Your Hat Shiny.

"I haven't had my hat ironed since I bought it two months ago," I heard a gentleman say as he handed it to the attendent of a well known hat store to have it dressed over. "You seem to have the common idea that ironing spoils a silk hat," replied the hat man. "That is a great mistake. No one wears a silk hat over a year, while the majority of men change with the spring and fall styles. You might iron a hat every day for six months without wearing off the nap or injuring it unless you should burn it in ironing, which rarely happens. The leading hat store proprietors do not care to disseminate much information on this subject because they sell hats with a guarantee to iron them for you at any time free of cost. If it were not for the common idea that ironing hurts the hat, the stores would be clogged with the mere business of ironing hats."—New York Press.

Friends.

"It is the edict of the world," said the man—"laugh and the world laughs with you weep and you weep alone." Friends are many when the purse is long, but when care and affliction comes—ah, how is it that I should know this sad truth, that, in such times as these friends are indeed few! The loyalty of friendship is something I have long consecrated in my inmost heart of hearts. One should be free with all possessions, but should be miserly of his friends. Make friends as you treat life's earlier path. Keep constantly fortifying your stock of friends, or the latter will soon pass from you. The friends of our youth are no doubt the best of all; enduring through life without thought or need of change. As Thackeray said. "We are so much alone in this world; you who have anything to love hold that friend to your heart—and thank God!"—Detroit Free Press.

Halstead's Story of Sherman.

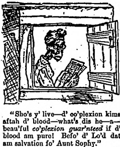
Mr. Halstead told me a story of General Sherman. The editor was in Washington as a newspaper correspondent at the outbreak of the war. He met Sherman there, as a colonel. One day in a party of soldiers and newspaper men the subject of the loyalty of the inhabitants of Washington came up, when Colonel Sherman grimly said: "The loyalty of the people of Washington is such that if our troops in the capital should be attacked and meet with reverses, the women of Washington would cut the throats of the wounded on the sidewalks with case knives." There were observing correspondents in the party who held the same opinion, but were chary of expressing it, and in comparing notes afterward they predicted a future for Sherman, on account of his keenness of scrutiny and his oddness of expression.—New York Press.

Census of a Cheese.

Dr. Adametz, a Swiss scholar, has been taking a census of the inhabitants of a cheese. The microscopic examination of one "gramm" of a fresh Emmenthaler cheese, such as is sold in England under the name of Gruyere, contained no fewer than 90,000 so-called microbes. This prodigious encampment, after seventy days, proved to have increased to a tribe of 800,000. Another sort of cheese contained within a single "gramm" board and lodging for about two million microbes, while in a "gramm" cut from the rind of the same cheese Dr. Adametz found about five million of these inhabitants! A piece of cheese upon our tables of a few pounds' weight may consequently contain more microbe inhabitants than there are human inhabitants in the whole world.—Pall Mall Gazette.

A Typical Case.

A sad story has just come in by canal boat from Cumminsville. A patrolman on one of the outside beats was informed by the passengers on a railroad train that a fight was in progress on the opposite end of his beat. He made a hurried trip to the point indicated, and as soon as he arrived there he asked if any one had heard of a fight. The inhabitants informed him that there had been a murder there some time before, but that the victim had been dead and buried several weeks. The officer then returned with all speed to the from point which he started. Terrible news awaited him. During his absence he had been dismissed from the force for failing to answer calls, and his wife had married again.—Cincinnati Enquirer.



"Sho's y' live—d' co'plexion kims aftah d' blood—what's dis he—a—beau'ful co'plexion guar'nteed if d' blood am pure! Befo' d' Lo'd dat am salvation fo' Aunt Sophy."

All we claim for it is an unequaled remedy to purify the blood and invigorate the liver. All the year round you can depend on Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery in all cases of blood-taints or humors, no matter what their name or nature.

It's the cheapest blood-purifier sold through druggists. No matter how many doses of other medicines are offered for a dollar.

Why? Because it's sold on a peculiar plan, and you only pay for the good you get.

Can you ask more?

"Golden Medical Discovery" is a concentrated vegetable extract, put up in large bottles; contains no alcohol to inebriate, no syrup or sugar to derange digestion; is pleasant to the taste, and equally good for adults or children.

The "Discovery" cures all Skin affections, and kindred ailments.

RIDICULING AN INVENTOR.

Opposition in Europe to Engineer Stephenson's Proposition to Build a Railroad.

George Stephenson, the celebrated engineer, used to speak with indignation of how the "Parliment men" badgered and baffled him with their book learning when he proposed to build a railroad from Liverpool to Manchester.

"The smoke from the engines" said those learned men, "will kill the birds, and the sparks will set fire to the fields and houses. The passengers will be made seasick; the noise will frighten away the game, and thousands of coachmen and innkeepers will be thrown out of employment.

The fast mail coaches were driven at the rate of ten miles an hour. When Stevenson asserted that his steam coaches would attain a much more rapid rate of speed, he was laughed at and hooted at as a crack-brained enthusiast.

"You must not claim a speed over fifteen miles an hour," said the nervous counsel of the promoters of the railroad to Stephenson, just as he was about to appear before a parliamentary committee.

A member of the committee, opposed to the proposed railroad, thought he could make the simple-hearted engineer assert an absurdity that would kill the project.

Well, Mr. Stephenson, he asked, "perhaps you could go seventeen miles an hour?"

"Yes."

"Perhaps twenty miles an hour?"

"Certainly."

"Twenty-five, I dare say. You do not think it possible?"

"Dangerous, though?"

"Certainly not."

"Now tell me, Mr. Stephenson; will you say that you can go thirty miles an hour.

"Certainly."

The fish was hooked to an absurdity, so every member of the committee thought, and they all leaned back in their chairs and roared with laughter.

Their sons now ride sixty miles in sixty minutes.

Queer Face Ornamentations.

At any time from 16 to 22 years of age the male Esquimaux have their lower lips pierced under each corner of the mouth for labrets. When the incision is first made sharp pointed pieces of ivory are put in.

After the wound heals the hole is gradually stretched to half an inch in diameter. Some of the poorer natives wear labrets made from cannel coal, ivory, common gravel and glass stoppers obtained from ships, which they shape for the purpose. All who can obtain them have agate ones.—Washington Letter.

THE CALIFORNIA GIRL.

The Maiden of the Sierra and Some of Her Traits.

The Siskiyou girl is not safe to trifle with, either in an amatory or jocular way. Her life has been spent esthetically. She is conversant with nature from early childhood, and having nothing else, probably, to do she reads her lessons in mountian streams and storm-beaten rocks. Miss Siskiyou is a healthy and strapping dame. She has remarkable strength and her power of endurance would shame a San Joaquin mule into committing suicide. Generally she is a capital shot, and with her brothers and father has assisted at the slaughter of bear, which abound in the mountains. She is expert with the rod, and as a rider she could give points to the most daring queen of the circus. She comes of a predatory race, for these mountains are inhabited by a class of people who declare that they would die of suffocation in a village and that God intended man for the mountains and wild beasts for him to forage upon.

Under such conditions we find a tall and sinewy girl, with a foot ample in its dimensions, long but not broad, an ankle thin and well set, and an enormous length of limb. Her body is slight and willowy, her shoulders broad and straight, the chest but little developed, the throat thin, supporting a small head with very marked features. Her hair is generally tawny, her eyes blue, coldly blue, her nose hooked, her mouth thin but large and furnished with strong white teeth. Her voice is metallic, and it has a queer ring in it as one accustomed to command. She pays no attention to her dress, and is unguilty of any attempt to make herself attractive.

Her flirtations are limited and so is her acquaintanceship. She admires the festive cowboy, while she has a wholesome contempt for the lumberman, whose occupation she deems girlish. But her whole soul—at least that portion of it which, poor girl, she has—is given up to the professional hunter, for in these mountainous wilds there live men whose business it is to hunt, as the rancheros offer respectable rewards for the skins of coyotes, bears, and mountain lions, and a skillful shot can make more money at this pursuit—which to him, after all, is pleasure—than can the man who herds stock.—San Francisco Chronicle.

EVENTS OF A WEEK.

Flashed by the Wires of the Telegraph Condensed and Classified for Convenience of Readers.

Washington, Foreign, Accidental, Personal, Criminal and Other News of Importance.

WASHINGTON.

Recently Enos H. Nebeker took the oath of office as treasurer of the United States.

The president has recognized Anton Frederick Palitzchek Von Palmforst as counsel of Austria-Hungary at New York, and Robert Manson as vice-consul of Sweden and Norway at Darien, Ga.

Assistant Secretary Spalding has decided that the commercial exchange of Des Moines, Iowa, can import minerals duty free, provided they are imported for objects of science and not for sale.

Attorney General Miller received the report of District Attorney Grant at New Orleans on the killing of the Italians in the parish prisoners there last month. He immediately sent the report to Secretary Blaine, for whose use he said it had been obtained. The secretary refused to give the report out for publication or to indicate in any way the nature of its contents.

PEOPLE IN PRINT.

Queen Natalie has announced that owing to circumstances beyond her control she will leave Servia.

The illness of David Dudley Field causes much anxiety among his friends, who fear that his illness is of a more serious nature than the physicians publicly report.

Markham Gamble, surviving partner of the old firm of Proctor & Gamble, soap manufacturers, died in Cincinnati, aged eighty-eight years.

The convention of the Episcopal church of the diocese of Massachusetts elected Rev. Phillips Brooks, of Boston, to the office of bishop, to succeed the late Bishop Haddock. Dr. Brooks and the Rev. Henry Y. Satterlee, of New York, were the only candidates.

Richard Griffiths, founder of the order of Knights of Labor of Chicago, died of the grip. Mr. Griffiths organized the first assembly in Chicago, and was a fast friend of Uriah Stevens, the founder of order. He was for a long time general worthy foreman of the national organization.

Some question has been raised in reference to the death of Capt. Mackenzie, the great chess player, who died April 14. He was supposed to have died of consumption. Dr. S. B. Minden, of St. Mark's place, says that the great player died of morphine poisoning, taken accidentally or with suicidal intent. He says that he reported the case to the coroner as probably one of suicide, but that it was never thoroughly investigated.

CASUALTIES.

At New Bedford, Mass., 700 bales of cotton were recently destroyed by fire.

The cotton factory of Pierce, Atkins & Co., Cincinnati, was damaged by fire to the extent of $10,000.

Fire destroyed several business blocks at Franklin, Pa., causing a loss of $100,000; partially insured.

An explosion occurred in a dynamite factory at Cengio near Genoa, by which five girls was killed and fifty persons were injured.

Fire at Mahoney City, Pa., destroyed several stores, causing a loss of about $200,000, two-thirds of which is covered by insurance.

A hurricane struck Lincoln, Neb., and did considerable damage. A number of buildings were blown down, one of them being the Manchester shoe factory, a three-story brick. No persons were hurt.

Harrisville, a thriving village on the route into the Adirondack forest near Watertown, N. Y., was practically destroyed by fire recently, the loss being estimated at $100,000.

Mrs. Josephine B. Barnaby and Mrs. G. S. Warrell, of Denver, drank whisky containing poison sent them through the mail. Mrs. Barnaby died, and Mrs. Warrell is not expected to live.

A New York, Va. special says: The lighthouse tender Violet found floating in the bay about five miles southeast of York spit lighthouse the wreck of the schooner R. B. Leeds of Somer's Point, N. J., with the bodies of two sailors, apparently foreigners, badly bruised and lashed to the rigging. The Leeds was capsized and the whole crew is supposed to be lost.

WICKEDNESSES.

Postoffice inspector Fitz and Flemming have arrested William Tyler, one of the green goods swindlers who have been reaping a rich harvest in Chicago.

Mrs. Amelia Lindner of Milwaukee has committed suicide. She had two lovers, married one of them and then came to the conclusion that she had married the wrong one.

At Elrod, Ind., Dr. Samuel S. Fleming, of Catlin, Ill., suicided by hanging. The coroner's verdict was that he was crazed by hard study. He was visiting his parents at Elrod and hanged himself in a barn.

Reeves Lewis, secretary of the New Orleans Street Railway company, stole $10,000 dollars from his employers and then blew out his brains.

Two colored tramps in jail at Monroe, Mich., assaulted the turnkey. The officer shot both men, one being killed instantly and the other will die.

It is now alleged that the accounts of Marshall C. Percival, ex-cashier of the Shoe and Leather National bank of Auburn, Me., who attempted suicide are about $100,000 short.

Lawyer Frank Collier of Chicago has again been adjudged insane, and unless he succeeds in securing a new trial, will be sent to the hospital for the insane at Kankakee.

George Seaton, while crazed with la grippe at Bowen, Ill., nearly killed his father with a razor and then committed suicide. The father's injuries were received in trying to prevent the son's self destruction.

Israel H. Marshall, treasurer of Blue Rock township, went to Zanesville, Ohio, and drew $84 from the bank to turn over to his successor. On the way home he was assaulted and robbed. His injuries may prove fatal.

As William Showers walked into the court house at Elizabethtown, he was shot and killed by Charles Moore. Showers' wife was found dead some time ago, and Moore a brother of the woman, charged him with murdering her. Showers was tried and acquitted, but the dead woman's brother did not agree with the verdict.

A Clarksburg, W. Va., Special says:—near Logan court house, Joseph Peck, aged thirteen, set fire to a bed in his father's house and played an organ while the house was burning. The fire was extinguished and the house saved. The next day he upset a hot stove, from which the house was burned to the ground.

The trial of Theodore Schwartz, Columbus Brockelbrough and C. L. Franche, the bankers charged with embezzlement, was begun at Louisville. The case was that of the German Protestant Orphan asylum, and the amount involved $27,801. Schwartz was treasurer of the sinking fund of the institution, and when the bank broke reported that the money was gone with that of others.

The police arrested at Little Rock, Ark., an invalid who claims to be of noble birth on suspicion of being the ringleader of the gang that has been victimizing visitors at Hot Springs. He was well supplied with money and diamonds and had in his possession several checks made payable to his order by prominent citizens of Hot Springs. He had in his pockets a number of letters bearing the postmark of Bremen, Germany, and addressed to A. Felix Avon, Baron von Raven.

FOREIGN.

In the chamber of deputies M. Basly, socialist, introduced a bill limiting the working days to eight hours and prescribing imprisonment as the penalty for infraction of the law. M. Vigor, a member of the tariff commission, moved that the duty on foreign wheat be fixed at 2½ francs and on flour at 6 francs from May 10 to Dec. 1.

Gen. Graham's column surprised a force of about 1,000 Manipuris, who were entrenched behind earthworks. The enemy was completely routed, losing 200 men. One British officer was killed and four officers wounded. A great fire has been seen in the direction of the capital of Manipur and a loud explosion, which took place during the conflagration; seems to indicate that the capitol has been destroyed.

Senator Isaac has given notice in the French senate that he will question the government in regard to Hati, especially as to the significance of the dispatch of an American squadron to Port au Prince. Senator Isaac is opposed to the idea of the United States acquiring the mole of St. Nicholas as a coaling station, as the possession of this place by the American government, he claims, would menace the independence of the Antilles.

SPORTING TRIFLES

J. K. Emmet's St. Bernard dog Plinlimmon has been purchased for $5,000 by E. H. Moore, of Melrose, Mass.

The Columbus association club has signed W. J. Kuehne, of last year's Pittsburg Brotherhood club, to play third base.

Louis Bezinah, the light-weight prize fighter, who was shot by "Kid," Dougher over a month ago," died in a Cincinnati hospital.

The 2,000 guineas stake of the Newmarket (Eng.) meeting was run being won by Lord Arlington's colt, Common. The race was for three year-olds, and the distance one mile and eleven yards.

Wm. O'Connor, the Toronto oarsman, has cabled Stansbury in Australia offering to row him on any course in America for $2,500 a side and allow him $500 for expenses. A cable from Australia says Stansbury has accepted the challenge.

The sculling match for £400 and the championship was rowed on the Paramatta river between McLean and Stanbury, and was won by Stanbury. In the last match between these oarsmen, which took place on November 17 last, McLean defeated Stanbury.

RAILROADS.

At an adjourned meeting of the shareholders of the Grand Trunk, held in London, the policy of Sir Henry W. Tyler, president of the company, was confirmed and the old board of directors was re-elected.

The joint committee of the Trunk Line association met in New York. No business of vital importance was transacted. The impression prevails that unless the boycott of the Alton by the Trunk lines is declared off the worst rate war of years will result.

It is a fact not generally known that the special train which recently carried Van Horne and party westward over the Canadian Pacific made the last hundred miles at the rate of one mile per minute. A great landslide in the Selkirk impeded the progress through the mountains and delayed passenger trains two days.

The Great Northern track is completed and ballasted from Whatcome, Wash., to Westminster, but regular trains do not run further north than Blaine, because of a law which prohibits regular traffic on Canadian railroads until supplied with telegraph lines along the route to prevent the possibility of accidents. It will be late in May, therefore, before trains will run across the boundary of the Fraser river.

IN GENERAL.

New York iron manufacturers, it is said, have combined to make a fight against Andrew Carnegie.

The first official act of Mayor Washburn of Chicago was to order that all of the gambling houses and pool rooms in the city be closed at once.

Both branches of the New York legislature adjourned sine die. The deadlock in the senate over the canal investigation question continued until the end.

Director General Davis, of the world's fair, appointed Walter S. Maxwell, of California, chief of the horticultural department. Mr. Maxwell's name was proposed by Commissioners De Young and Dorsey of California, and subsequently indorsed by many other commissioners.

The Democratic bill so amending the compulsory education law as to permit the education of children in parochial schools has passed to a third reading in the Illinois house after an amendment by Republicans requiring that the English language should be taught in such schools had been rejected.

It is reported the schooner Robert and Minnie is in Catalina harbor loaded with arms and ammunition for the Chilian insurgents. The vessel arrived, and has had no communication with the mainland. She is heavily laden. The schooner Robert and Minnie is an American vessel, and is owned in San Francisco.

Miss Phoebe W. Couzins applied to the circuit court at Chicago to prevent her removal as secretary of the Ladies' Board of the World's Fair. Her bill makes Mrs. Palmer and the other members of the board, and Susan Gale Cook, secretary of the woman's executive committee, defendants.

A suit brought by Charles S. Holmes in the New York supreme court shows that Arthur C. Gelman, a member of the firm of J. H. Labaree & Co., tea merchants, who died suddenly last December, was a defaulter to the firm in the sum of $222,934. Holmes lives in Cincinnati, and claimed to have advanced the firm $70,000 to meet the loss of Gelman.

Mrs. Laura Nelson, wife of C. M. Nelson, of the firm of Nelson Bros., of Kasson, died Saturday April 27. The funeral took place from the M. E. church, Rev. Joseph Hanna officiating. The remains were interred in Maple Grove cemetery.

The body of a five-year-old girl was found floating in the Mississippi at Little Falls. The little one was the child of Mr. Ardell, living on the Crow Wing river in the northern port of the county. Last February she fell through a watering hole in the ice. The parents have been notified.

Warren is now a city. The first charter elected resulted as follows: Mary, L. L. Amberson; alderman, Guy A. Aubot, W. N. Powell, August Lundgren; recorder, A. B. Nelson; justices, J. P. Easton, John Keenan; constable, E. Dady; treasurer, K. J. Taralsth.

The residence of Jonas Johnson, near Wheaton burned with all its contents. Johnson was absent and his wife, who was sick with pneumonia, and six children, were only rescued from a horrible death by the timely assistance of a neighbor. The woman and youngest son were badly burned and both will probably die.

The Woman's Foreign and Home Missionary Societies of Winona Presbytery met in Rochester and held a two day's session. Mrs. C. O. Van Cleve, synodical president of the Woman's Board of Foreign Missions, and Mrs. Pomeroy, of the home board were present. The meetings were held in the Presbyterian church.

William Lyon an old resident of Marshan, died of dropsy. He has been a resident of Minnesota since 1856, locating first in Goodhue county and afterward in Hampton, Dakota county. In 1360 he made a claim in Marsham, where he has since resided. He was born in Readville, Me., June 15, 1815.

The agitation against the saloons of Alexandria has borne good fruits, in that it has nerved the council to enforce the law prohibiting minors from entering such places. The first arrest was made recently and both saloonkeeper and minor fined. The saloons have had things their own way heretofore with reference to laws and regulations and abused their privileges badly.

Secretary Hart, of the state board of corrections and charities, announces that the Eighteenth national conference of charities and correction will meet in Indianapolis May 13 to 20. The committee has not found it possible to secure from the railroads of Minnesota and Wisconsin, any reduction of rates. Delegates can buy tickets to Chicago and return at the usual rates. In Chicogo they can secure certificates on the payment of the regular fare, which will return them to Chicago at a one-third rate.

Two of the heirs, Thomas Edwards and Mrs. Ann McDonald, are residents of Independence, and expect to receive about $2,000,000 apiece. The property was leased for a term of ninety-nine years. The lease has just expired.

ROUGH ON THE OLD MAN.

By Losing His Bet He Saved the Life of the Countess in the Story.

Aime Millet, the French sculptor who died a few weeks ago, was in the habitue of the Divan Lepelletier a Bohemian Club in Paris frequented by artists, authors, and newspaper men. His best friend in the club was Paul Duplessis, the novelist, who long edited the feuilleton in the Patrie. The two men had a standing engagement to meet at the club every evening shortly before dinner. One evening when Duplessis was late Millet strode impatiently up and down the reception room, striking his hands before and behind him, and eagerly eyeing his watch every five minutes. Finally Duplessis arrived forty-five minutes late, Millet sprang to him and caught him by both shoulders.

"What's the matter?" ejaculated the novelist.

"A question," answered Millet. "My father reads your serial novel in Patrie with tremendous care and interest. Yesterday you left the Countess in a most critical position. She had fallen into an ambush of those who were intent on getting her out of the way. Must she really die?"

"Yes," answered Duplessis, "she must die. She will be killed with a dagger thrust by the Corsican Assiani."

Millet dropped into a chair, struck his fist on the table, and exclaimed:—

"I have no luck—no luck at all."

"But what has that to do with my Countess?" asked the novelist.

"Everything. My father bet with me that the Countess would die. I took his bet, because I thought you would be obliged to rescue her from her perilous position so as to use her in the rest of the story."

"How much did you bet?"

"Ten louis d'or."

"The devil you did! That's too much."

"Yes, yes, too much, and I with all my debts!" wailed Millet. "Can't you help me?"

Duplessis reflected a minute, looked at his watch, and said:—

"It is 9 o'clock. The page on which my story appears will go to press in half an hour. If we hurry we may reach the office in time to save the Countess."

In an instant Millet was in the street shouting for a cab, and Duplessis was close behind him. Both men were hatless. The cab came, they jumped in, and drove off like mad to the office of the Patrie. They arrived there at the last minute. The section of the novel prepared for the next day was hastily withdrawn and a harmless African story was shoved into its place. Duplessis worked all night saving the Countess, and appeared on the following afternoon at the Patrie office with a revised edition of the next chapters of his novel. The Countess had been saved, and with her Millet's ten louis d'or.—N. Y. Sun.

How to Go to Sleep.

"If you want to go to sleep quickly," said a physician the other day, drink a half pint of hot water or hot milk. I don't say it will act in every case, but I will adventure my opinion that it will act in eight cases out of ten. Beef tea is also good. Of course, you will always find people ready to overdo this. When I said to a lady patient some time ago that feeding the stomach on retiring produced sleep, I was called on the following day. She had eaten what you call a square meal."—Chicago Tribune.

Henry M. Stanley is reported as saying that there is no need of further exploration of Africa. "Progress will do all of that. In 1893 a railway will be completed, running from the ocean to the lowest cataract, a distance of 240 miles. That will open up 800 miles of navigable waters, which means 16,000 miles of river banks, on which will be located towns and villages and many industries, and the natural growth of the country under these conditions will do away with any need for further explorations."

MORE BLOOD IS SHED

Another of the Strikers in the Coke Region Killed by Mine Officials.

The Men Charged With the Killing are Arrested and Placed in Jail.

Scottdale, Pa., May 6.—The coke region to-day was shaken from center to circumference by just such another scene as has been feared for weeks since the dreaded Morewood killing. At Leisenring No. 3 last night a man named Mahan was shot dead and another seriously injured.

Two Hungarians, who had left the works, delayed their visit and Supt. Gray became suspicious. He, in company with his assistants and four deputy sheriffs, visited House No. 17, where their workmen were enjoying themselves immensely. Their entrance caused a stampede among the strikers, and two of them rushed out.

Mr. Gray and the deputies were followed to the hill by the angry crowd, who came so close they were compelled to back down with rifles presented. They staved off the mob as long as possible, but Mahan rushed up to one of the deputies, seizing his rifle, and grappled with him. This deputy fired and the balance followed suit. In the fusilade the man fell dead, while another was injured. There are grave apprehensions of further trouble at Leisenring, and the force of deputies is largely increased.

Deputy Coroner Stone arrived at Leisenring, empaneled a jury and conducted the examination. A verdict was rendered that Mahan came to his death from gunshot wounds fired by an unknown person.

On information of Worthy Foreman McSloy, of the mine workers, Supt. Gray, Mine Boss Callaghan and Yard Boss Agnew were arrested for murder and given a preliminary hearing before Squire Cotton of Dunbar, who held the defendants for trial. They were taken to jail. The testimony adduced placed the blame of the shooting on Gray.

Some thirty families were evicted to-day at Bradford, and more would have been thrown out had not the deputies objected to being stoned and struck because they were not allowed to use their revolvers on the strikers.

To-night there are 3,500 men at work, including the men at Independent works and T. W. Rainey's.

There is no doubt a slow but steady gain is being made on the men, owing to heavy imports of labor. Five car loads of Italians arrived in the region to-day.

LEAVING CALIFORNIA.

The President and Party on Their Way to Oregon.

Hornbrook, Cal., May 6.—President Harrison and party arrived at Red Bluff, Cal., at 8:30 o'clock this morning on their way to Oregon and had a cordial reception.

At Redding, Cal., the train made a stop of twenty minutes, during which time the president made a few remarks. Postmaster General Wanamaker made a short speech, in which he said that of all the states the party had visited he thought California was the most glorious. Secretary Rusk was also presented, and said that while Mr. Wanamaker had postoffices in his pockets for every town and cross roads, he did not have what we have here—prosperity with plenty to eat. He also remarked that he regretted being compelled to leave California, and would like to live here always. After Mrs. Harrison and Mrs. McKee had been introduced the train drew out amid the cheers of the 2,000 people assembled.

The presidential party passed through Delta about noon, and at Dunsmuir the president shook hands with a large number of old soldiers and thanked the citizens for their reception.

Intermittent showers of rain marked the passage of the presidential train through the Shasta valley, and the president and ladies were much disappointed at not being able to see the summit of Mount Shasta. Thick clouds obscured the mountains in the valley, and when Mount Shasta station was reached heavy rain was falling. Previous to reaching that place stops had been made at Dunsmuir, where the crowd cheered the president, and at Mount Shasta, Soda Springs, where the party drank some of the mineral water. The people at Mount Shasta had a brass band and plenty of enthusiasm ready, and the president and Messrs. Wanamaker and Rusk briefly addressed them. A large framed photograph of Mount Shasta and specimens of the lava were presented to the president.

Another brass band and large crowd were gathered at Montague, where the president made a short address. The train passed through Hornbrook at 5:15 p. m., and an anvil salute was fired in the president's honor.

MARKED FOR ASSASSINATION.

A St. Louis Italian Thinks He Has Been Doomed by the Mafia.

St. Louis, May 6.—Tony Pandolfin, an Italian, well educated and of good address, believes that he is a marked man—marked for assassination by the deadly Mafia—and for that reason he goes about his business heavily armed.

The case has just been reported to the police, but the story told is that while Pandolfin was standing in a saloon at Seventh and Elm street yesterday he was attacked by an unknown Italian and stabbed in the left breast.

"I am positive that I have been marked for assassination," he said. "As I was leaning against the bar yesterday I saw a hand stretched over my shoulder and the gleam of a long-bladed dirk in the clenched fingers, and then felt the steel in my breast."

As he said this he pushed back his shirt and displayed a small red line in the middle of his left breast. Pandolfin attributes the attack to a remark he made in a crowded saloon at the time of the New Orleans lynching. He was discussing the affair with some friends, and said that it served the "d—d dogs right," and he believes that the Mafia has sent an emissary to do away with him.

Justice Taylor's Successor.

Milwaukee, May 6.—Gov. Peck to-day appointed Judge John B. Winslow of Racine to fill the vacancy in the supreme court caused by the death of Justice David Taylor. Judge Winslow presides over the first judicial circuit.

Defiant Moonshiners.

Little Rock, Ark., May 6.—United States officers returned here to-night from a raid on moonshiners in the southern range of the Ozark mountains upon White river. Beside capturing Sam Poole and Mat Jackson, with three confederates, constituting part of a notorious gang of illicit distillers and blockade runners, the officers report discovering a large plant with a capacity for one hundred gallons per day, and members of the gang are defiant and assert they will not be taken. The United States officers will make another and final raid in the latter part of this week. They have nine warrants not yet executed, and serious trouble is feared.

WANTS HIS WEALTH.

Suit Brought by a Woman Against a Northern Minnesota Speculator.

Chicago, Special Telegram, May 6.—Mrs. Lillian B. Louthan wants $15,000 now wrapped up in the bank roll of John F. Winchester, a heavy speculator in Northern Minnesota, and said to own $200,000 worth of property in that vicinity.

The suit was begun in the circuit court last Saturday, but was suppressed until to-day. The suit is for alleged slander and alienation of affections.

Mrs. Louthan is a married woman and lives in Englewood. She is thirty-five years of age, and her attorney says she is "as pretty as a picture." Mr. and Mrs. Louthan, according to the lawyer, were living near St. Paul when Winchester became a member of their family. The story of the suit began two years ago. Winchester was obliged to go a distance of fifteen miles and hired a sleigh. Louthan requested the speculator to give Mrs. Louthan a ride. He did so, and shortly after their return Winchester is reported as having informed the husband that he had taken advantage of his wife. Without a word of explanation Louthan left his wife, and they have since been separated.

A short time ago Louthan asked his wife to return and she refused unless he told her why he left her. He did so, and this suit is the result. Mrs. Louthan denied that she ever misbehaved with Winchester. She says he offered her $3,000 to part from her husband and she declined to listen to the proposition. In other ways, also, it is alleged, Winchester has sought to separate the couple, and the damages are claimed for his various attempts.

MYSTERIOUS VESSELS.

Two Ships From Chili Eyeing Each Other in American Waters.

San Diego, Cal., May 6.—The Chillian steamer Etata, which came into harbor yesterday, is still here taking in a large amount of coal and supplies, and despite the fact that her captain claims that the vessel is only a passenger steamer owned by a New York firm, opinion is growing here that she is a transport and is after arms and ammunition for Chilian insurgents, and as soon as she is loaded here, will take on board the cargo of schooner Robert and Minnie, now lying at the Santa Catalina island, supposed to be loaded with ammunition of war.

A big Chilian war vessel is also reported outside the harbor to-day, apparently awaiting the appearance of the Etata.

There are about ninety men aboard the Etata, and they all refuse to talk of their movements and destination. The large amount of supplies which the Etata took on board to-day, including 40 live cattle, 3,000 pounds of dressed meat and 800 tons of coal, is not regarded here as bearing out the captain's statement that the Etata was bound for Nanaimo to load with coal.

The Mexican man-of-war Democrata is also in the harbor, and it is supposed she was attracted here by the report that the schooner at Catalina is a filibustering craft, and that she would call outside the harbor bar of San Diego for a contingent of Lower California invaders. It is said the Democrata will watch both mysterious vessels.

SUGAR FROM BEETS.

An Immense Plant Located at Marshalltown, Iowa.

Marshalltown, Iowa, Special, May 6.—This city is fairly wild with enthusiasm today, occasioned by the fact that a mammoth beet sugar plant is assured. Eastern capitalists made a proposition to our people a short time ago that if they would subscribe for $50,000 worth of stock and donate forty acres of land for the plant they would establish a factory here with a paid up capital of $550,000. A citizens' committee was appointed to solicit subscriptions and today it reports the full amount raised. An agent of the company has been here several days and to-day the negotiations were closed, so that the industry is an assured fact.

Eight tons of sugar beet seed and the necessary implements for drilling and culture have been ordered by telegraph and active operations will begin at once, as it is the intention to have the factory in running order by the first of next November.

The capacity is to be 400 tons of beets or 80,000 pounds of sugar per day, and the projectors say it will be one of the largest factories of the kind in the world. This enterprise will afford a great stimulus to our industrial and commercial business, and everybody is enthused over the prospects.

SHUT UP IN A BURNING HOUSE.

Five Children Perish in the Flames While Asleep.

Upper Marlboro, Md., May 5.—Saturday night the house of James Cole (colored) was burned in Prince George's county, and his five children perished in the flames.

The house was on the farm of Robert Connyck, in Aquasco district. The father went from his home to visit a neighbor, leaving the house in charge of the children—four girls and one boy—whose ages ranged from five to fifteen years. Shortly afterward he discovered that the house was on fire, and that the youthful inmates, who had gone to bed, were unable to escape. Assisted by Mr. T. M. Naylor and his brother an attempt was made to rescue the unfortunate children, but without success. They were all burned up with the house.

Ex-Bankers in the Toils.

Philadelphia, May 6.—Gideon W. Marsh, who was president of the Keystone National bank at the time of its suspension in March last, and Charles Lawrence, ex-cashier of the bank, were arrested to-day charged by Bank Examiner Drew with conspiring together to make false reports of the condition of the bank to Controller of the Currency Lacy by means of false entries in the banks books. The two ex-officials were held in $20,000 bail each for a further hearing. In his testimony before the United States commissioner Bank Examiner Drew testified that the estate of John C. Lucas, deceased, former president of the bank, was credited on the books with an indebtedness of $750,000 to the bank, whereas the full indebtedness of the estate of Mr. Lucas had been about $900,000, of which amount about $700,000 had been returned.

In Detectives Hands.

Providence, R. I., May 6.—Dr. T. Thatcher Graves, who has been brought into such prominence in connection with the murder by arsenic of Mrs. Barnab, says that he is preparing, with the help of a lawyer, a complete statement for publication, in which he will explain everything. The case has been placed in the hands of the Boston Detective bureau. Ex-Inspector Hanson is now in Providence, and every person who has figured in the case has been instructed to keep silent.

Grip Causes Spotted Fever.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 6.—According to Health Officer Ashman, there are many indictions that the grip will be followed by many cases of cerebro spinal meningitis, which is sometimes called "spotted fever." There have been at least a dozen deaths from the disease during the past two weeks, and Dr. Ashman finds that the grip was the primary cause of all of them. This disease, which attacks the membranes of the brain, soon throws the patient into horrible convulsions. This new form taken by the grip epidemic is regarded as very startling by Dr. Ashman, and worthy of immediate attention by the medical and civil authorities.

SANITARY INSPECTION.

OFFICIAL.

Notice is hereby given that the sanitary inspection by the board of health will take place on Friday May 15th, 1891.

All rubbish and decomposing animal and vegitable matter must be removed from yards and alleys, and privies cleaned or disinfected before that date. All such objectional matter injurious to the public health found in this village on that date will be removed by the village and charged to the person on whose property it is found.

By order of the Board of Health of the Village of St. Hilaire, Polk County, Minnesota.

Dated April 29th 1891.

Dr. J. L. Hennemuth.
Daniel Patterson,
C. G. Rapp.

U. S. Land Office,
Crookston Minn, Feb. 27 1891.

Complaint havin been entered at this office by Hans J. Holten aginst Joseph H. Gervais for failure to comply with law as to timber culture entry no. 2805 dated Nov 2nd. 1882 upon the SW 1-4 Sec. 29 Tp 152 N, R. 42 W. in Polk Co, Minn., with a view to the cancellation of said entry; contestant alleging that the said Joseph. H. Gervais has wholly failed to cultivate any part of said land or cause the same to be cultivated to trees or otherwise since the date of said entry the said parties are hereby summoned to appear at this office on the 7th day of May 1891, at 10 o'clock a. m. to respond and furnish testimony concerning said alleged failure.

Stephen Leader: Mr. O. H. Peters made a visit to his family at St. Hilaire from Thursday of last week to Tuesday. Mr. Peters is the pleasant and capable grain buyer for Brooks Bros at this place. He is a veteran in the business having dealt in grain for more than thirty years.

At the council meeting last Monday evening a number of citizens volunteered to furnish teams and look up a location for the high landing road They will start next Saturday if the weather permits and will look the country over very carefully. As soon as the report is made the council will have work on the road commence. Several plans have been mentioned but none can be decided upon until a thorough survey of the country is made when a first-class road is certain to be built.

A reciprocity treaty has just been concluded between this country and Cuba, whereby sugar, molasses and coffee come into this country free from Cuba and a considerable reduction is made in the duty on tea and other Cuban products. In return Cuba allows most of our goods to go into Cuba without paying duty, and so reduces the duty on our wheat and flour that our farmers will have a monopoly in supplying them. This gives our farmers a new market for about 5,000,000 bushels of wheat. Reciprocity is working wonders!

The Minneapolis Journal has this to say in favor of Kelley's Statutes of Minnesota: "To say that these volumes 'supply a long felt want,' would be but feeble and puerile testimony to their intrinsic value. Such a work has been needed for many years, the last state revision of the general statutes having been accomplished in 1866. During the period which has elapsed many legislatures have contributed to the statutory obligations a very great mass of laws and the most industrious lawyers endowed with orderly minds, have found it irksome to digest and annotate the mass of session laws. The present work embodies in concrete form a complete and accurate codification of of the statute actually in form today."

Among the papers in this locality which worked hardest for the alliance ticket last fall were the Crookston Journal and the St. Hilaire Spectator. Both of these papers have evidently changed front and the question now is what's the trouble? Cook, of the Journal has been ridiculing the legislature and Ives, of the Spectator, says this in his last issue:

"It looks now as if the legislature would adjourn without doing the state very much damage except spending a large amount of money. The people may consider themselves lucky as some very dangerous legislation has been introduced. As it does not meet again for two years we may look for prosperous times."—Ada Index

The Editor of the Index does us an injustice. The SPECTATOR never worked for the Alliance ticket and last fall supported the Republican state ticket fully as strongly as did the Index. We do however remember something about kicking on the county ticket and no county ticket was published in this paper We have not "changed front" Brother Lightbourn, but would do the same thing again under similar circumstances. The SPECTATOR is Republican but will kick on a Republican ring just as quick as on a Democratic or Alliance ring.

Mr. Max Bass, the new immigration agent for the Great Northern railway spent several days in this section during the past week, and the Times is indebted for a pleasant visit. He says the immigration to the Red River Valley this season is greater than it has been for many years past and that a much better class of people are coming in. Mr. Bass is delighted with the prospects for this section and encouraged by the good feeling prevailing among all the classes of our people. He thinks there are great things in store for the Red River Valley and that the era of its prosperity has only just dawned, He is thoroughly familiar with immigration having served for a number of years as immigration agent for South Dakota, and will make a valuable man for the Great Northern Railway and for the Red River Valley.—Crookston Times.

The newly elected members of congress are filling the papers with "interviews," in which they show how, when they take their seats, they will enforce this or that remedy against "hard times" and "low prices." The low prices of farm products have already disappeared, and "hard times" seem likely to follow, but whether they do or not, the people of the United States may rest assured that there is not now and never will be a time or a country in which the lazy or shiftless, or the careless or extravagant will prosper or grow rich, Nor will there ever be a time when men who spend money before they have earned it can get and keep free of debt. Cheap money will not help them. Government loans at two percent or no per cent at all, would only aggravate the trouble, and in the long run increase the distress. Industry, prudence, energy and a good use of time and brain will win success in any calling, but those who depend on the government to help them to fortunes will starve to death while waiting. —N. W. Agriculturist.

Bill Nye contributes this interesting bit of biography: "Jeremiah Simpson is the congressman from the seventh district of Kansas. He is a native of New Brunswick and at fourteen years of age went to sea where he became a victim to the habit of going utterly without socks. He takes great pride in his well turned mahogany ankles and richly carved legs. At full dress parties and receptions the coming season he will offset the low corsage of the dressy Washington belles by wearing a set of high cut pants revealing his well groomed though still slightly chapped ankles Captain Jerry Simpson is now a farmer and it is said was elected because he showed on the stump his sockless condition, claiming that he was so poor and honest that he could not afford socks. His successor will doubtless be a plain man who will go about canvassing the seventh district and wiping his nose on the top rail of the fair ground fence because he is so plain and poor that he cannot afford a handkerchief,

Red Lake Falls News: Jas. O. O'Brien returned Monday from a trip through that almost unexplored region north of Red Lake the party consisting of ten under command of J. W. Howes deputy U. S. marshal were sent out by the Indian department to investigate the alleged encroachment of whites upon the northern part of the reservation. They left Red Lake Agency about two months ago about the time when the season was coldest and snow deepest. They secured Indians as guides and had two dog trains with which to convey their supplies. The journey at first was made upon snow shoes, later when the snow had melted they were obliged to wade through water for miles at a time. Mr. O'Brien reports some very fine farming country along the rivers tributary to Lake of the Woods, The supposed swampy portion north of Red Lake is not so extensive as reported. The line of the Duluth & Winnipeg R. R. runs through some very fine agricultural country. The Rivers of this section are the most magnificent beheld by human eye, the waters all teeming with fish and fur bearing animals. Upon the Rainy Lake River and, at the outlet of Rapid River are beautiful townsites. What will add most to the wealth of the country is the pine and mineral. Many of the half breeds and others who have squatted upon the reservation report iron, copper and gold among the minerals while coal floats down the rivers after heavy rains or during times of floods. The fish industry is important along the Lake of the Woods and tributaries. One individual has built upon the reservation a large ice house where fish are packed. Sturgeon eggs are preserved and shipped to Europe. The inhabitants as a class are lawless, and greatly addicted to the use of alcohol and tobacco. Money is a scarce article and change or small denominations is at a premium. A vast amount of timber has in past years been stolen from the reservation and run into Canada; along the Roseau river a tributary of the Red River, is a vast tract of pine which will come into the market in a short time. This will be a good investment for some American capitalist as the lumbermen from Winnipeg rely on securing a supply of logs from this tract. An exhaustive report of the expedition will no doubt throw a great deal of information to the department of the country north of Red Lake. The Duluth & Winnipeg railroad will open up a wonderful country and there will be a chance for the accumulation of fortunes along this line.

Council Proceedings

Regular meeting of council, all members present.

Minutes of last meeting read and approved.

The following bills were allowed.

To the First Assistant Postmaster General of the United States.

We the undersigned citizens and residents of the territory accommodated by the mail service between the city of Crookston and the village of St. Hilaire, in the county of Polk and the State of Minnesota, most respectfully represent that the mail service now existing between said points is tri-weekly that the number of inhabitants of that territory is very large and is rapidly increasing and a large number of small post offices are supplied through the post office at St. Hilaire and that the service is wholly inadequate to answer the demand of that vicinity and we therefore respectfully ask that a daily mail service be established in place of the existing tri-weekly service

SEAFOAM AND DRIFTWOOD.

Alas, not always gladness!—In thy tone,
O sea, there comes a melancholy moan,
That tells of secrets which are all thine own.

We cannot learn thy deepest mysteries,
Perhaps thou breathest broken tones of these,
To the lone seabird and the homeless breeze;

Perhaps thou tell'st to the seafast hill,
And caverns green, the lore for which we thrill;
We ask thee for a word, and thou art still.

By yonder cottage on the land
A youthful fisherwife doth stand,
Her eyes o'ershadowed with her hand.

Her ruddy boy, with laugh of glee,
Is calling her triumphantly,
To watch his sports beside the sea;

But she, though answering with a smile,
Is sad and tremulous the while,
Nor can his joy her care beguile.

She gazes on the waters gray,
And, seeming inwardly to pray,
Dashes a sudden tear away.

The severed tide, with languid waves retreating,
Has left yon bark upon the rocky sand—
So there with maddened fury blindly beating
Its timbers to the land.

Careless it leaves it now in shattered glory,
Its office of destroyer told aright,
And tells to other shores the boastful story
Of its triumphant fight.

Ev'n have I seen, by angry tempests riven,
A broken heart lie wrecked on life's sad shore,
While still above shone mild the pitying heaven,
And surges rolled no more.

—Temple Bar.

Gluck and "Orfeo."

The history of the various versions of "Orfeo" remains to be written. It can never sufficiently be regretted that Mlle. Pelletan, who devoted her life and fortune to publishing a final edition of Gluck's works, died before "Orfeo" was included in the magnificent series issued by her disinterested munificence. Originally brought out in Vienna in 1764, ten years later the work was remodeled and partly rewritten for the French opera, for which Gluck wrote most of the great works upon which his fame rests.

In a sense, it may be said to date from his earlier manner, but it was in "Orfeo" that he first struck the vein of dramatic truth which was afterward developed so nobly in the two "Iphigenias," "Alceste" and "Armide." In "Orfeo" Gluck first revealed himself as a master of pathos who has never since been surpassed.—Saturday Review.

They Fell Into His Mouth.

I have watched upon many occasions the stealthy advance of a crocodile to capture small birds, when in flights of many thousands they have settled upon yielding branches of dwarf willows. The elastic boughs bent down beneath the weight of the innumerable flock, and the crocodile's head appeared above the surface at a distance, sank below and quickly reappeared (the eyes and crown alone above the water) within ten yards of the unsuspecting birds, all of whom were busily engaged in twittering excitement, quarreling for places, and occasionally dipping their beaks in the water when the bending twigs permitted them to drink. In a few moments after the disappearance of the wary eyes a tremendous splash was accompanied by a pair of open jaws which swept the occupants of the lower branches into the greedy throat.—Wild Beasts and Their Ways.

Slew Fourteen Soldiers.

Near Shanghai some time ago fourteen officers of the salt department of the Chinese empire saw a heap of salt in a house and seized it as contraband. A woman, mistaking the soldiers for pirates, sounded a gong, and the men of the village running up, killed all the invaders. Then, having discovered that the dead men had acted upon authority, all the villagers conspired to cover up the crime. They loaded the boats with the bodies, took them down the river, and burned each boat to the water's edge. But the true story came out, and the villagers were punished. One villager, who had been sentenced to suffer decapitation, killed himself, but his body was seized and his head cut off. Four were strangled; others were punished.—Cincinnati Enquirer

The Mexican Treatment of the Dead.

It was the custom of the original Mexicans to dress the dead in the garb appropriate to the guardian deity of his craft or condition in life. They buried a jug of water with him and placed small bits of white bark in his hands which were covered with characters, this last probably his passport to the regions beyond the stars. As soon as one of their number died they made a fire of his personal effects (all except the clothes in which he was to be buried), the idea being to warm the soul during its flight through the cold regions of space.—St. Louis Republic.

Running for a Companion.

The natives of the Philippines are sociable to an extraordinary degree. Whenever one of them finds himself without a companion to partake of his meal he runs till he meets with one, and I am assured that however keen his own appetite may be he will not venture to satisfy it without a companion.—St. Louis Republic.

Left No Address.

Occasionally a newspaper subscriber departs this life, and then it becomes the duty of the local postmaster to inform the newspaper the deceased has taken of the fact. A postmaster up north thus chronicles the departure of a subscriber, "Dead, and left no address."—Albany Journal.

That's Close Enough.

A Michigan freight conductor was knocked down by a train backing up, and he fell in such a way that the wheels cut twenty-one hairs off his head and let him off, till next time. They counted the hairs and know the number is correct.—Detroit Free Press.

A CURIOUS SIGNAL.

The Bloody Hand of a Steamship Company and Its Signification.

The private signals of ships often create curiosity which cannot always be satisfied. Each line has some peculiar mark which is known as the house flag, and which serves for identification where other signals might fail. One of the most curious of these signals is that of the British steamship Dunmore Head, of Belfast, Ireland. It is the representation of a bloody hand on each side of the funnel, and in the center of a white diamond in a blue flag flying from the mainmast. Below the wrist are elongated marks of crimson, representing dripping blood. It is a left hand, as is shown by the thumb being forward on the port side and aft on the starboard side of the funnel.

This gory symbol has a meaning. It is the coat of arms of the province of Ulster, Ireland, which derived it from the crest of the O'Neils, who were once the royal family of that kingdom. The whole is based upon a tradition which the crew of the Dunmore Head take pleasure in relating. Two sons of the king of Ulster were foraging in Scotland when the death of their father was heard.

The two agreed to row across the channel in their primitive canoes, and the first to touch land was to be king, to succeed the father. When nearing the shore one of the brothers was about to lose the race, when he drew his sword, and placing his left hand on the gunwale of the boat chopped it off, and picking it up threw it ashore. He became king, and the bloody hand became the crest of the family.

In its descent through ages it has in these utilitarian times served to decorate the funnels of a fleet of freight steamships. The Dunmore Head belongs to the Ulster Steamship company. The line is better known as the Head line, as all the vessels are named after headlands in the maritime counties of Ulster. They are the Bengore Head, Teelin Head, Innishowen Head, Horn Head, Black Head, Fair Head, White Head, Dunmore Head and the Ramore Head. On all these steamships the officers wear the sanguinary hand on their caps. The plates and cups and dishes and table linen are likewise emblazoned. In fact the bloody hand of Ulster is prominent everywhere.—Baltimore Sun.

Authors and Their Work.

Literary workers do not like to discuss their methods. Perhaps they are sometimes a little ashamed of the machinery out of which they get names for their characters, just as they might be of their rhyming dictionaries. How many authors have written stories with all the names left blank, or with the actual names of their best friends or the best known of people, and afterward sat down with a directory, a tax list, the catalogue of a college, or the list of victims in a railroad disaster, to select or combine laboriously the right names to give to their people!

Others do not do this at all; they think the name to begin with, and in the evolution of the story associate the imagined character with the name so intimately that they could not go on with the story if the personage were to have any other name. A good deal, it is known, depends upon a name, and in spite of the progress and the power of the gospel of realism there is as yet no such thing as absolute, commonplace, everyday realism in fiction names.—Boston Transcript.

New Blotting Paper.

A new process for manufacturing blotting paper consists in taking unsized paper as it comes from the paper machine and exposing one or both of the sides to the disturbing action of mechanical means for opening up its surface; for instance, to the grinding or abrasive action of sandpaper, emery wheels, wire brushes, or to the action of cards or scrapers. Such action separates and lifts the surface fibers. This process is said to produce a highly absorbent or bibulous paper, especially adapted for use as commercial blotting paper and for other purposes where an absorbent paper is required, and having its fibers separated and raised and presenting a velvety surface as distinguished from ordinary blotting paper. By this process blotting paper can be manufactured from any kind of paper, regardless of the stock or material from which it is made.—Paper Making.

A Woman in the Moon.

It may not be generally known, but there is the head of a girl in the moon. It is a profile, and can be easily discerned when the moon is full. When the moon is in the eastern sky she is looking north, and the head inclines upward. At the top of the yellow orb you will see her hair and a sort of haughty bang which conceals most of her forehead; a little below you will see her eye; then comes her nose (this is rather indistinct); then will be seen the chin, underneath which a very shapely neck curves back, indicating that she is well fed.—Atchison Globe.

Pin Money, Modern Style.

Wee Wife (coaxingly)—And must I ask my own hubby for some pin money?

Husband—I beg pardon for my forgetfulness. Here's a double X.

W. W.—But I—I need five hundred, dearie.

Husband—What! For pin money?

W. W.—Yes, love—for diamond pin money.—Pittsburg Bulletin.

Tom—What color of hair do you like best, Jack?

Jack—It depends upon the girl.—Epoch.

Sanitary Note.

A gentleman visiting at the Yerger mansion remarked that the Esquimaux were not remarkable for cleanliness, as they neither washed themselves nor their children more than once a year.

"Oh, ma," said little Tommy Yerger, "how I wish you was an Esqui-ma and pa was an Esqui-pa!"—Texas Siftings.

A Fixture.

He—Longleigh Converse says he has become quite a fixture in your circle?

She—Yes; he has—a gas fixture.—Kate Field's Washington.

The Queer Toad.

A strange thing about the toad is that if its mouth be kept open the animal will suffocate. This is because it has no ribs and no means of dilating its chest, and, therefore, it must swallow air as it swallows its food. If its mouth be forcibly kept open, the air will pass to the stomach instead of entering the lungs. There is one variety of toad that has no tongue at all. It inhabits dark places in Guiana and Surinam.

The way in which the eggs of this animal are hatched is as wonderful as its lingual peculiarity. The male toad places the eggs in little pits on the back of his spouse and affixes a lid for each pit. Then the female goes about her household duties something in the style of an Indian squaw with a papoose strapped upon her back. After some days little toadlets are hatched from the eggs on the maternal back, and when they are strong enough they force the lids off the pits and hop out.—Exchange.

A Little Money.

The president of one of the transcontinental railroad lines was sitting in his comfortable office in this city talking with the writer a few days ago, when his cashier entered the room, and in a matter of fact way remarked: "Mr. ——, we will need a little money the latter part of this week. There are a few bills and some interest to pay."

"All right," said the millionaire railroader, calmly. "Just telegraph the main office to send on $800,000 at once. We might as well have a little money on hand."—New York Times.

Abusing the Voice.

As the voice is the most delicate of instruments and one which resents at once any abuse of its powers, be sure that you are not misusing it. It is the easiest thing in the world to detect such misuse when it exists. After singing for twenty minutes, stop and see if there are any feelings of weariness or evidences of huskiness about the throat. If there are, you are forcing your voice, and you will show your wisdom by not singing again until you have learned how to use it properly. Some people learn naturally how to use the voice, while with others it is a matter of necessity that they shall be taught. And as there is no surer way to lose a voice than to abuse it, if you find that it is not as easy for you to sing as to laugh, and if you desire to do anything in the future with your voice, cease singing until you can secure a good teacher. It will not hurt your voice to remain unused, though of course early training and constant practice are most desirable.

If, however, you find that you are using your voice properly and that your efforts are pleasing to your friends, sing as often and as much in your home and in your friend's parlors as you please, remembering always that it is better to sing half a dozen times a day, for ten minutes at a time than once for an hour. Never sing for a longer period than ten minutes without rest. It is dangerous in the extreme to tire the voice, and this evil will take prompt and sure revenge by roughening its quality and spoiling its natural sweetness.—Emma C. Thursby in Ladies' Home Journal.

A TUNISIAN STORY.

How a Sea Captain Sought Justice and Got It to His Satisfaction.

A certain captain once left Marseilles for China, but being buffeted by the winds, made for the harbor of Tunis, to await better weather. The collector of the port came on board, and although the captian stated that he was freighted for Canton, and had nothing to do with Tunis, the collector succeeded in proving to him that he must pay his harbor dues, Captian B—did .so, but repaired instantly to the palace of the Bey, and demanded justice. "Good Frank," said the Bey, "I am your friend. What do you want?" "Highness," answered the captian, "your Custom House has robbed me. I have had to pay unjustly." Excellent individual," answered the Bey, "in this country, when we have money, we keep it The first acquisition is a difficulty, but to give back a thing is unknown in Africa." "Shall I not have justice then? "Certainly; every one has justice in Tunis. Will you have it in French or. Tunis fashion? "French justice never I am in a hurry." "So be it, then," replied the Bey. "What is your cargo?" "Marseilles soap and twenty thousand cotton caps." "It is well; go away and be tranquil." The Bey then summoned his Vizier. "Vizier," said he, "we love justice; we love the Franks. Proclaim that every Jew who appears out of doors to-morrow without a cotton cap will have a little transaction to settle with me." There were some thousands of Jews in Tunis, and there was not a single cotton cap. The unfortunate men were preparing for death, when they learned that Captain B—— had an abundance of the desired article. That was enough; he was able to sell his entire lot for eight shillings a cap. He rushed to the Bey's palace, and poured forth his thanks. "Not so fast," said the Bey. "I have not done yet. Vizier, proclaimed that every Jew who keeps a cotton cap another hour will have trouble with me. The Vizier made a grand salaam, and retired. When Captain B—— returned to the ship he found a crowd of Jews already awaiting him, caps in hand. He purchased all the articles again for a penny apiece, and went on to Canton with his cargo intact, and his purse laden with the silver thus juggled from the Jews.

Origin of the Game of Billiards.

The game of billiards was invented about the middle of the sixteenth century by a London pawnbroker named William Kew. In bad, stormy weather, when trade was slack, this pawnbroker was in the habit of taking down the three balls of his sign, and with a yard measure pushing them about the center, "billiard fashion, into boxes fixed at the sides.

In time the idea of a fenced table with pockets suggested itself. A blackletter manuscript of 1750 contains the following in reference to the game and its originator:—

"Master Will Kew did make un (one) board whereby a game was played with three balls; and all the young men were greatly recreated thereat, chiefly the young clergymen from St. Pawless; hence one of ye strokes was named a 'canon,' having been by one of ye said clergymen invented. The game is now known by ye name of 'bill-yard,' because William, or Bill Kew, did first play it with a yard measure. The stick used is now called 'kue,' or kew, in memory of Mr. Kew, who has been dead sometime.

It is easy to understand how "billyard" has been modernized into "billiard": the transformation of "kew" into "cue" is equally apparent.

A SONG OF THE SEASON.

Bring out the rusty garden rake,
Hunt up the hoe and spade,
For spring is here, and it is time
To have the garden made.

Your wife will lean upon the fence,
And watch you while you work.
She's always prompt to give advice;
She'll never let you shirk.

Don't waste your time in trying to tell
The bulbs from worthless weeds;
Dig them all up; that's easiest; and
You'll need the room for seeds.

Work hard, man; you won't break your back
Though you may fear you may;
Don't stop to lean upon your spade—
Think what your wife will say.

Then when you've got the garden dug,
The seeds all out of sight,
You'd better hire a gardener
To do it over right.

THE BOY MARTYR.

"Willie Dent's mother hears him say his prayers every night. Willie told me so."

Georgey Manson said this with a kind of pleading look up in the face of his step-mother who waited to see him in bed.

"Don't stand there talking," returned the woman, with cold impatience. "Get into bed, and let me cover you up. I'm tired and want to go to bed myself."

Georgey gave a spring, and was under the bedclothes in a moment. His step-mother started out of the room.

"Don't shut the door mother," begged the boy, starting up as he heard the click of the latch.

"Well, there, what a cowardly child!" the woman exclaimed, reopening the door with a smart push. Then she went through the next chamber and disappeared.

Georgey Manson lay thinking of the sweet good-night kisses of his own dear mother who had died two years before, when he was six, and whom he distinctly remembered. If she was an angel now, he wondered how she looked, and if she really did come to see him, and if she loved his new mother.

In about half an hour, he heard his step-mother return to her chamber, out of which his opened.

"Mother," he called, "when will father come from the Continent?"

"I can't tell. In about a month, maybe. Go to sleep.

Georgey nestled his head upon the pillow and closed his eyes resolutely. Mrs. Manson continued walking about her room for some time, removing from her bed various articles of wearing apparel and replacing the same in her wardrobe.

When order was perfectly restored, she began preparing herself for bed. One last thing, during her husband's absence of several weeks was never omitted. Mr. Manson had left a considerable sum of money in her care; it was in a pocket-book behind the lower drawer of her bureau, where she thought no one would think of looking. She had no fears of losing the money, none at all; and yet she felt asleep more readily, if, night by night she pulled out the drawer and touched the golden deposit.

So to-night, everything else completed, she went over to her bureau. She knelt, drew out the drawer, which she rested on the floor and reached in beyond. What! she did not feel the pocket-book. Yet it surely was there—oh, yes. She said it could not have been disturbed, and yet the candle shook in her hand as she brought it hurriedly across the chamber. Placing her light on the floor before the bureau, she bent low and looked into the space. The pocket-book was not there! Springing to her feet with a wild glare, Mrs. Manson dashed into the room where Georgey lay asleep and bent over the bed.

"Georgey!" she cried, with all her terror in her voice, and shaking the boy roughly by the shoulder; "wake up this instant and tell me, you little wretch, what you have done with that pocket-book."

"Do you mean papa's money?" returned the child, sitting up suddenly, with great, staring eyes.

"To be sure I do. What have you done with it? Where is it?"

"I haven't seen it," answered the boy, white as death.

"You are deceiving me. I'll whip you till you tell. How came you to know anything about my pocketbook?" And the angry step-mother gave Georgey another rude shake, as if she intended to dislocate every joint in his tender frame.

"I," said the boy, crying with pain and fright—"I saw papa when he gave it to you—and—and—"

"Oh, you did! What business had you to do it, or to remember it, if you did? Well, what else, you miserable——"

"I've seen you look behind the drawer a good many times to see if it was safe." The boy uttered his confession with as great trepidation as if he feared each separate syllable would prove a terrible witness against him.

"So you own to knowing where I kept it? This comes of indulging you with having your bedroom door open. Now do you tell me where the money is, or I'll certainly carry you down to the cellar, and let the awful creature eat you up."

The boy still protested he knew nothing what had become of it. But, of course, the woman would not believe him.

"You're a naughty, wicked child!" she cried, giving him a blow on the side of the head which felled him to the pillow, where he lay gasping with close shut eyes and fingers, and uttering every now and then a low, piercing shriek.

The step mother, shaking all over with rage and excitement, went again and made thorough search for the missing object; but with no success. She returned to the bedside.

"Georgey, stop your crying, quick. You'll have something to cry for, if you keep on deceiving me. Have you told anybody where the pocket book was kept? The truth, or I'll whip you to death."

The child protested again and again that he had told no one.

"Then do you dare to tell me," said the woman, lifting her voice to a scream, "that you don't know what has become of the pocket-book? It was safe last night; there's been no human being in these rooms but you and I. I'm going to shut you up and go away."

Georgey wept on convulsively. The woman dragged him out of bed; thrust him into a closet and shut the door upon him. There he remained all night, crying bitterly, with short in- slept as little as he; she sat up the tervals when he was too much exhausted to make any sound. The woman whole night, keeping as still as possible however, for she wished Georgey to believe he was deserted and alone. Pity was the last sentiment she was likely to feel for him. She said to herself that when he had been punished enough, he would confess. She wondered whether he had spent any of the money—perhaps he would share it with other boys; she would give warning at the fruit shops early the next day.

In the morning, as Georgey was still obstinate, he was neither allowed to leave his chamber nor have any breakfast. His stepmother tied him by his hands to the knob of the closet door, and assured him he would be kept there, and starved to death, unless he confessed what he had done with the pocket-book. Her loss was made public; but the excitement it would naturally have created was measurably counteracted by another, yet more exciting—particularly as Mrs. Manson had likewise made known her conviction that her stepson was the thief, so that her neighbors saw nothing they could do to assist her.

The more exciting story of the two—and very ridiculous it was, as everybody said, and then went on repeating it—was that a couple of young men, coming into the village late the night but one before, when crossing the river bridge, had seen a ghost! Ghost stories have been popular in all ages, and among all nations. This ghost was first discovered gliding down the path towards the river, at a point a short distance below the bridge, where the village boys were in the habit of going in to swim. It wore long, white garments in the approved style of ghostiness—it slowly disappeared among the trees on the bank of the river.

Thus poor Mrs. Manson had her grief and indignation pretty much to herself. Three days and nights passed and Georgey had eaten nothing except a little bread, and had lain only on the bare floor. Finding that denial only brought him punishment, he ceased to say anything; then he was called sullen, and beaten for sullenness, as he had been for lying. At last, his cheeks flushed with fever, and he grew delirious. Then he was put in bed, where he lay, moaning and helpless, through several days and nights, till, finally, the pitiless woman confessed to herself there was cause for alarm. She went to a doctor, and obtained a sedative for Georgey, which she administered; and seeing that he fell asleep almost immediately, shut the door between the two chambers, and went to bed to enjoy the first sound rest since the excitement she had experienced.

That night, Georgey Manson's father was returning home. He had received a despatch from his wife the day after the money was lost, and had travelled over a thousand miles to his home, reaching the last station very late in the evening, whence he had proceeded on foot.

Of course, this gentleman had heard nothing of the ghost which had formed the staple gossip of the neighborhood a few days before; yet almost in the exact spot where the others had seen it, the ghost appeared to him. Unlike the original ghost-seers, who had run away as fast as their legs could carry them, Mr. Manson crept off the end of the bridge, and made his way silently to the path by which the "woman in white" was approaching. Nearer it came, and he saw—with less surprise than most men might—that the ghost was his own wife, walking in her sleep! Once before he had known her to do the same thing, and she had told him it was a habit of her childhood.

She passed without seeing him; he followed, to watch and prevent her doing herself an injury. The woman went straight to a hollow tree, reached in and took out the identical pocketbook, the cause of so much wrong and misery. Her husband followed her back to the house, woke her, and at once related what he had seen.

The remorse of the wretched woman when she knew that Georgey was as innocent as he had declared himself, need not be described. Let us draw a veil over the father's feelings as he looked upon his hapless boy. With tender nursing the child recovered; but the mother had learned a lesson, the effect of which on her character will never be effaced. She has since been a mother, indeed to her little stepson, not quite a martyr.

RELIGION AND THE ROD.

A Praying Jury and an Old Lady Who Piety Before Punishment.

The novel scene of a jury engaging in prayer just before it sentenced a murderer to death might have been witnessed in a Lexington jury room recently. The Lexington Gazette says:

"Something novel occured in connection with the jury in the late Duncan case. After the case had been submitted to them and they filed into the jury room to consider their verdict, it was suggested that the jury engage in prayer before taking a ballot. This suggestion met with favor, and the jurors knelt down on the floor, while Mr. R. J. McArdle, the teller, petitioned the throne of grace for Divine guidance in their deliberations. At the conclusion of the prayer the jury took a ballot and the doom of Anthony Duncan was sealed."

The occurrence reminds the Gazette of the curious custom observed by an earnest and determined Richmond mother in raising a brood of six boys, whom a dying husband had left to her care whom she raised to honorable manhood on a mixed diet of prayer and flogging:

"She was an exceedingly pious woman, and so strict a member of the Presbyterian Church that Dr. Breckenridge or some other observant preacher called her the "She Elder." When the boys were caught in some ugly scrape requiring her attention she would lock them up in the attic in the old Northern Bank, where they lived, and just before night the 'old lady' would make her appearance, armed with Bible, hymn book and a bunch of tough switches. She proceeded to read a chapter from the Bible. This was followed by the singing of a hymn and then a long prayer suitable to the occasion, and then would commence the business meeting.' The whipping was proportioned to the 'old lady's' state of mind and to the offenses charged, but always severe and to the extent of the durability of the rods employed."—Louisville Courier Journal.

NO. 5555.

Jose Bomba always believed that he would win in the lottery. He was an assistant in the barber shop of Don Simon Pesetero in the good city fortune which he was sure would come. Then he would marry Frasquita and be happy. Unfortunately, neither of them was blessed with a peseta.

Jose extracted teeth and followed his master when there was work to be done in the village. Frasquita shaved the clients with a sure hand. For their services they each received 200 francs a year and board. The board consisted of a daily allowance of bread, two sardines, half a dozen tomatoes and water at discretion.

When the time came for Jose to join the army he confronted Frasquita by the assurance that they would soon be rich and might get married. Then he kissed her and went away to join the carabineers for four years.

When he was gone she found that she had to do all his work, even to the drawing of teeth, for Don Simon was penurious and saw his opportunity to save 200 francs a year.

One day Frasquita sought the master.

"Sir," she said, "will you advance me 20 francs on my wages?"

"Twenty francs, you little prodigal what do you want to do with it?"

"I had a wonderful dream."

"Well, what has a dream got to do with 20 francs?"

"I dreamed that 5555 would win the capital prize in the lottery and I want to buy the ticket."

The old man shrugged his shoulders and gave her the money with a growl. Frasquita took the gold piece and all the week seemed happier than usual. When the annual fete of Talavera came around, she amused herself like a fool, gorging herself with fried fish, cakes and avelines of Valence, placing three wax candles before the statue of St. Roque to obtain the prompt return of her lover Jose.

The barber was in the habit of reading aloud from the newspaper every night in his shop to a select circle of clients. One evening, just as he had finished a long political article, he suddenly paused and grew pale.

"Well, Uncle Simon, what is the matter with you?" said one of the auditors.

"Oh, nothing. I am tired of reading; besides there is nothing interesting."

He rose and went in the back room where Frasquita was writing.

"My little Frasquita, you had better go to bed. The air is chill, and I am afraid you will get the rheumatism."

The crowd held their breath. Never in the memory of man had old Pesetero addressed an inferior in such language.

Frasquita rose and went up the stairs. Don Simon called after her. "I think you get up too early for a girl of your age. In the future you need not go to work until 6."

When he returned to the shop he made some excuse to get rid of his friends, who by this time believed him thoroughly mad.

Once alone he took the paper out of his pocket and stood under the light.

"No, I was not mistaken. It is No 5555 which has won. Frasquita is now worth 200,000f."

He walked up and down, much agitated, wondering how he could appropriate this fortune without danger.

He evidently had found a plan, for when he entered the shop next morning he was rubbing his hands. Frasquita was sharpening the razors.

"My child," he said, "sit down here by me. I have a serious suggestion to make. It is now six years since you have served me faithfully. I may have appeared at times somewhat brusque, but that was to prove you. Today the proof is finished."

"It was rather long," said Frasquita.

"Possibly, but now things will be different; we will leave the past alone. For six years I have appreciated your good qualities. As for me, I am 65 years old, but still strong and hearty. I am worth, 160,000 francs besides my shop. What do you say—will you marry me?"

At this proposition Frasquita almost fell off the chair. Certainly the future was not attractive, but the fortune was large. Meanwhile she thought of Jose.

"Will you give me eight days to think it over?"

"Yes, but on one condition that during that time you speak to no one I am afraid you may be influenced against me."

"I promise."

She wrote to Jose and received a laconic response. "Leave everything to fortune." So she consented to marry Don Simon.

On the day of the marriage it was necessary that husband and wife should deposit their fortunes in the hands of the notary. It was then that Don Simon asked carelessly:

"By the way you bought the lottery ticket No. 5555 I believe?"

"Not at all. That was a pretext. I spent my 20 francs at the feet of Talavera."

"Miserable! Wretch—infam"—

Jose returned tranquilly from his regiment, took possession without astonishment of the girl, the store and the fortune!

The Cat at the Grave.

A strange story, in which a cat is a pathetic character, has come to light at Paoli, Ga. A little boy of that village owned a cat that was a great pet in the family. But the cat would have nothing to do with any one except the boy. The latter died, and for two weeks the cat would come as usual every morning to the door, and, going in the room, would cry very mournfully, and walk over the child's bed hunting for its lost friend. Finally the cat disappeared, only returning occasionally. At last one of the child's sisters saw the cat in the graveyard, where it remains, only returning occasionally for food. "It keeps guard at the boy's grave, and can be heard at night crying pitifully."—Savannah News.

Artificial Gems.

Attempts have been made, not without success, to form minerals, Artificial ultramarine has long been an article of commerce. The formation of the diamond is said to have been actually effected, but in the opinion of the inventor the process is so difficult and so dangerous, that the diamond-miner and the diamond-merchant need not feel uneasy. The ruby and the sapphire have lately been reproduced in Paris, and curiously enough, the coloring matter in both is found to be due to one and the same metal—chrominum—in different states of combination. Red and bluestones, or an intermediate violet form which might be likened to the rare and beautiful oriental amethyst, have been obtained in one and the same operation, from the same lot of material. The jewels thus produced have so far all been small; large enough to form the pivots of superior watch works, but not large enough to rank as rare and costly ornamental objects.—Forum.

Our Would-be Aristocrats.

Thousands of American young men, of fair education and excellent possibilities, captivated by the pictures of English aristocratic life drawn in English novels, are learning to despise the simple, rational, useful life of the worthy American citizen, and to court consideration and vulgar popularity by adopting the habits, and leading the useless lives, of English lords. As is usual in such cases the copy is a caricature of the original. The untitled American lord proves usually to be a vulgar creature, having to assert his self-conferred lordship by all that is most unattractive, most inhumane, and most un-American—and that is a good deal—in the English aristocrat. In England, aristocracy has no need to display or to obtrude itself; in America it can exist only by display and obtrusion, for this reason the American would-be man must necessarily court attention and try to strike the vulgar imagination by the mere accidentals of aristocracy, such as any boorish Dives can command—houses, horses, turnouts, yachts, opera boxes, and the like. And the vulgar are impressed by such things, bow down in servile reverence before them, and do their best to make a similar display.—Forum.
